LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE COLUMN

Practical Suggestions on Local Option Campaign.

The eye of the whole state is fixed upon this county. Last winter when the Garrett County Local Option bill was before the legislature, the whole state read and talked about this bill. Its drastic measures astonished many, but by the hardest, persevering work man could be capable of performing it became a law, and was sent to Garrett county for its endorsement. The Senate endorsed it by an unaminous vote. The House of Delegates endorsed it, by an almost unamious vote; the Governor endorsed and signed his name to the bill.

What are WE going to do about it? What are YOU going to do about it? What have you done for it? How much interest HAVE YOU and ARE YOU manifesting for it. The time for DOING IS HERE. Personal, persistent, positive work.

The hour of action is here. What does God require of thee? We pray "Thy Kingdom come." The day is almost here for us to answer the prayer largely, as far as Garrett county is concerned. NOT TO REGISTER IS A VOTE FOR RUM AND RUINATION; is a vote of endorsement for the drunkard making, home destroying, jail filling liquor business. Take that in. Not to register is not to vote, not to vote means, keep the curse of the saloon going, no matter what it does, no matter how bitter the suffering of the drunkard's wife and children; no matter how disgraceful the scenes upon our streets; no matter how disreputable the name of our county may become.

Not to register is to throw our influence against sobriety and for evil.

"CHOOSE YE THIS DAY (Nov.3) whom you will serve," says the Master. It is up to you. ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS. It won't do to say "I am dry" and not register. You may not not believe in politics, but local option is not politics. Local option is washing the stain of liquor selling out of Garrett county, and obeying the Word of God, by "doing good to all men."

Not to register, is to acknowledge the fact that you do not care whether your fellow man is led to a drunkard's life and an untimely end.

Realize that it is YOU, Mr. Voter, upon whom the awful responsibility will rest, should Garrett county go wet. YOU! are the fellow the Devil is watching and anxious about. He is the old deceiver, who says "Don't register," knowing if you do not it is a vote made for keeping up his recruiting offices. A nice thing to do. For YOU to do. Get that into your head, if you can.

You cannot escape this responsibility. The Republican party did not lay the duty of chosing upon you, neither did the Democratic party. There is no party issue. It is for God or the Devil. "Chose ye this day whom ye will serve." This is personal positive. It is you, YOU. Do not forget it.

Did you register last week? If not, do not fail to do so on Oct. 6 and 7, Local Option needs your vote. Needs it very much.

Say, can not YOU spare October 6 and 7 for the special work of seeing that every temperance vote is registered? Garrett county should poll a large majority for Local Option. Our honor is at stake.

Citizens of Garrett county your better judgment entirely agres with what we have been publishing in these columns for some time, that it would be a dire calamity not to close the saloons of Garrett county. But prevent it. How? By making up your mind once and for all that you will vote AGAINST LICENSE at the election and use every proper influeuce to induce your friends to do the same. But (stick this on your looking-glass so that you won't forget it)—BUT YOU CANNOT VOTE THIS YEAR UNLESS YOU HAVE YOUR NAME PUT ON THE REGISTRATION LIST. The only days remaining when you can do this are Tuesday, October 6, and Wednesday, October 7.

A little neglect or indifference at this point will disfranchise you at the coming election and at the next Primaries as well, and may inflict the county indefinitely with the calamity! You don't want to take such a responsibility? Then get registered and urge your Anti-License friends and neighbors to do the same.

"Your King and your county need you." was the watch cry which arrouse ed the Englishman to the call to arms in the great conflict going on in the old world.

The same call is true today in Garrett county. Voters, christian voters, "Your King and Garrett county needs you," in this battle to close up the saloons in the county.

The responsibility of the hour is tremendous. Week after week, through the columns of this paper, we have tried to impress this individual responsibility upon you. Love for God and his cause should arouse every voter to action.

No man is exempt. It is a personal duty, each christian voter has thrust upon him. We are to decide the question whether liquor shall be sold in Garrett county, or not. There can be no excuse for not doing our duty. Will we do it? Will YOU do it?

What's Your Excuse?

A Temperance Talk to Voters

BY JASON KEP

The excuse of the dude who would not go to the rescue of the beautiful maiden who was drowning was that he had never been introduced.

The excuse of the Levite and Priest who took a look and then passed down on the other side of the man who fell among theives, on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho, was they did not know him. They had plenty troubles of their own. Let him call an ambulance; that is what ambulances are for.

How long would it take public sentiment to crystalize, and like a mighty avalanche, sweep rum and the saloons from the community, if every church member voted one way, and that way for the home and children and for the God whom they profess to serve. What is your excuse? Havn't you been introduced?

The principle of non-interference in the affairs which affect the health and prosperity of the community works a hardship upon all.

It is nothing but pre-unadulterated selfishness or cowerdice that prevents you from getting busy. You don't interfere because it is too much trouble, or you might loose a little trade or a few votes when you run for office. Now honestly, isn't that a correct diagnosis of the case? Think it over.

Away down in your heart are you not ashamed of yourself?

Don't you feel like a hypocrit when you get down on your knees (if you do) and ask God to protect and bless you, when you refuse to do the littie things he asks you; knowing all the time that he asks you to do them, not for His benefit, but for your own good.

You know that in doing these things you will not only gain spiritual blessings, but you will be loved, respected and happy upon earth.

If a man was sick and called in a physician to prescribe for him, and then refuses to follow his directions, he could hardly expect to receive a superabundance of benefit, and to a man up a tree it would seem that his thought producer was out of repair.

Now when you call upon the Great Physician, how can you expect any help unless you follow directions?

I am afraid that most of our calls upon the Lord are just society calls: we leave our hearts at home and send our cards.

How often do we hear, "Who is that man?" "Oh, he is the biggest hypocrit in the community." Why? Think it over.

In every community there are a few good people who are trying to build it up, trying to remove the pitfalls and cesspools; to blot out anything which tends toward causing distress, misery and untimely death; trying to make it a better place in which to live and raise a family. What encouragement do they get?

Are you helping? Think it over.

It is a good work—the building of churches and attending them on Sunday, and also reading your Bible on Sunday, but how about the balance of the week?

"A tree is known by its fruits."

If we were called upon for our final examinations on any other day except Sunday wouldn't a deuce of a lot of us flunk?

Mr. Church Member, you know that the saloon is the greatest standing menace to the welfare of the community; that it is the breeding place of crime, that it causes hunger, distress, misery and untimely death. You know that if the sentiment were aroused against them, they could not exist. What are you doing? Are you helping to awaken the sleeping sentiment of the community or are you impersonating the amicable rabbit?

Weeds are a menace to your garden. You remove them so that your vegetables can grow strong and healthy and your reward is an abundance.

Why not remove the saloons, the menace to the community, so that your children can grow up strong healthy citizens?

If these gentle jolts should awaken you, don't worry about the mistakes of the past. Vain regrets don't help. It only gives you a sour stomach.

The whole theme of the bible is now. Let the past go and get busy now. It is more pleasant to view the fireworks from a distance. Think it over.

Farm Facts.

The need of the rural communities today is intelligent and consecrated leadership.

The farm is the power house of all progress and the birth-place of all that is noble.

The farm is the nursery of civilization and the parsonage of all religious denominations.

The farmer asks no special privileges. The business of farming only wants the same opportunities afforded other lines of industry.

It is as much a duty of the country pastor to exhort us to own a home while on earth as it is to inspire us to build a mansion in the skies.

The rural press, the pulpit and the school are a trinity of powerful influences that the farmer must utilize to their fullest capacity before he can occupy a commanding position in public affairs.

A Sharon, Pa., jeweler took in a dollar bill on which was written: "The last of $100,000. Booze did it all. "Hell!" Rather impressive temperance lecture in eight words and six figures.

SEED WHEAT.

One fourth year's trial of Stoner's Miracle wheat more firmly establishes our confidence in the great merit of this wheat. From our own observations we unhesitatingly pronounce it to be superior in every way to existing kinds of winter wheats.

It is a bearded variety, white chaff, grain large, plump, dark red, hard long berry type. Straw medium height, very stiff, making it almost proof against lodging. Contains more gluten than any other variety of wheat. On account of the large heads, and most of the spiklets containing 3 grains, it is a heavy yielder. Under ordinary conditions yields 10 to 20 bushels per acre more than other varieties. On account of its wonderful inclination to stool, the originator advises to sow from 1 peck to ½ bushel per acre. Our observations lead us to recommend 1 bushel per acre for this section, A smaller quantity we believe would be successful on fertile land, providing it was sown very early.

At the low cost we offer it, you can seed your land much cheaper with this wheat than with any other variety. Price $2.00 per bushel. 10 bushels or more at $1.75 per bushel. All seed recleaned and free from cockle and other impurities. Ready now.

PRZEMYSL IS FAST WEAKENING

Russian Guns Do Great Damage to Fortifications

SOLDIERS ARE DEMORALIZED

Czar's Forces Only One Day's March From Tarnow and Only Three Days From Cracow—Russia Will Soon Be Able to Send Million Men or More Against Germany—Success In East Prussia.

London, Sept. 26.—There is a report from Rome that Przemysl is on the point of surrendering to the Russians.

Correspondents of Roman newspapers transmit rumors current in Petrograd that Russian siege guns have destroyed two forts of Przemysl's outer ring of defenses. The resistance of the garrison has weakened amazingly despite enormous resources of defense, guns and ammunition.

This is attributed to demoralization produced by troops which fled to Przemysl after numerous costly defeats. These troops are reported to be spreading the news that the Russians are ferocious creatures.

The news from the eastern seat of war gives the belief the Germans within a week will be facing a more dangerous situation on her eastern frontier than now exists on her western line.

Military writers predict that the kaiser will be called upon far sooner than he expected to find not less than 1,000,000 trained soldiers to protect his Prussian and Silesian frontiers from veritable mobs of Russians. In addition vast quantities of heavy guns as well as field batteries will have to be found.

From most fragmentary unofficial information it is stated that General Rennenkampf, the Russian commander in east Prussia, is driving before him reduced German forces and has won an important battle. The statement is circulated that the German barrier fortresses in Prussia are again facing attack. If this be true it indicates that the Germans, relying upon the Koenigsberg line of forts and the natural difficulties of the country to hold back the Russians, are transferring troops southeastward for the final stand on the line of Posen-Cracow.

All information, except that from Vienna, signifies that the Russians have gone forward so persistently in Galicia, while investing Przemysl and protecting their left flank along the Carpathians, that the advance guard is only one day's march from Tarnow and within three days of forced marching from Cracow. This would indicate that the Russians are driving hard in order to capture the railroad lines leading from Budapest and Vienna.

Petrograd, Sept. 26.—An official announcement from Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field, says:

"On the southwest front the Russian troops have taken possession of the fortified position of Czyschky and Foulstyn, which covered Khyroff and other positions in the Radymno region (between Jaroslaw and Przemysl) taking all the enemy's artillery.

"The Przemysl garrison has evacuated Bourgade and Medyka and has been repulsed in the eastern segment toward the line of forts.

"There has been no fighting on the German front."

That the Russian armies marching against Cracow have already pushed on almost to the outer fortifications of that strong Austrian position is announced here.

Rome, Sept. 26.—The Montenegrins have occupied Mostar, the capital of Herzegovina. They have cut off railroad communication between Metoki and Ragusa, which furnishes the only land communication with Cararro. This place where the Austrian troops are concentrated is isolated. The Austrians have completely evacuated the southeastern portion of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

REPULSE FOR ALLIES

Berlin Official Statement on Battle Along Aisne.

Berlin (Via The Hague), Sept. 26.—That the main line of the French forts extending from Verdun to Toul is being battered to pieces by the German siege guns—forty-two centimeter mortars—was announced by the war office. The official report read:

"The German troops are attacking the entire line of the French fortifications along the French eastern frontier from Verdun to Toul. In an attempt to raise the siege and prevent the demolition of their forts, already suffering severely from the German shell fire, the French have made several attacks in force on the German lines. All have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy, who has also been driven back on his main support.

"The right wing of the German army has been under severe pressure from the combined British-French forces, but at no point has the enemy succeeded in making an impression on our lines. The main chain of defenses along the river Oise and the Aisne is intact and the efforts of the enemy to carry the forts by night attacks have proven futile.

"Along the line from our right through the Argonne forests no important engagements have taken place. East of the Argonnes the German lines have been extended through Varennes, which was taken by a series of brilliant assaults in which the enemy lost heavily."

FRENCH FLEET TAKES PORT

Lissa In Dalmatia Occupied by British and Gauls.

London, Sept. 26.—A Central News dispatch from Rome says that the Austrian seaport of Lissa in Dalmatia was bombarded by a French fleet Sept. 19. Later troops landed from the French warships and went into garrison. British and French flags were hoisted over the semaphore station at Lissa.

Paris, Sept. 26.—A dispatch to the Italian newspaper Messaggero says that the allied forces have landed in Dalmatia after bombarding the fortified harbor of Lissa. The British and French flags then were hoisted to provoke the Austrian fleet to come out and engage the allied fleet in battle.

TAX MEASURE APPROVED

House Gives Big Majority to Emergency Revenue Bill.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The house by a vote of 234 to 135, with two members answering "present," passed the emergency revenue bill which will add to the income of the United States internal revenue $105,000,000. Of the 135 votes against the measure 11 were cast by Democrats.

The vote on the bill was received without remarkable enthusiasm on the part of the house and thereafter the house adjourned.

CHILDREN PARADE STREETS

Austrians Pray For Salvation of Their Country.

Vienna (Via Venice and Rome), Sept. 26.—The conditions of the Austrians in Bosnia and Herzegovina are alarming owing to the threatening attitude of the inhabitants, who have become emboldened by the successes of the combined Servian and Montenegrin armies.

Refugees from Bosnia and Herzegovina are fleeing. Religious processions and prayers in public for the safety of the country are now of frequent occurrence. Eight thousand white robed children accompanied by their mothers paraded the streets praying for Austria's salvation.

FRESH ALLIES' ARMY THROWN AT VON KLUCK

Germans' Right Wing Continues to Give Ground

RETREAT MAY BE BLOCKED

Paris Dispatches Say Kaiser's Army Must Either Fall Back Into Belgium Soon or Be Trapped—Von Kluck's Army Forced Back Ten Miles a Day. Slaughter Is Reported to Be Terrible.

The latest news presages the end of the tremendous German opposition.

According to the government reports, one finds that the Germans are rapidly becoming the victims of the same strategy which nearly took them to a turning movement.

If the allies were compelled to surrender the Laon-La-Fere-Rheims barrier by the enormous strength of the encircling German right, the Germans now must give up the same barrier or suffer their right wing to be enveloped and crushed.

For hopeful, patient Paris there is splendid news. It is becoming hourly more certain that General Joffre has created a new army, an independent force of French and English, and is hurling this body at the already imperiled German right.

It is assumed here that the weight of this new attack has compelled the Germans to retire to St. Quentin, which they must hold or lose communications with Belgium.

It is assumed that Lord Kitchener and General Joffre organized and put in motion a new flanking force, assembling the units at Boulogne, Calais, Dunquertke and possibly Ostend, transporting them by railroads, highways and rivers for a hammer stroke at a critical moment. If this be true and the new army is of great strength the Germans must withdraw. The most conservative of military writers are at one on this point. And withdrawal toward Belgium even may be cut off for General Von Kluck, which would compel him to fall back against Von Buelow and so knock down, pillar by pillar, the whole structure of German defense.

Details of the news are most reassuring. It seems the German west flank, the western face of Von Kluck's army, and probably Von Boehm's army have been driven from seven to ten miles in the last twenty-four hours from Roye and Perronne northwest and southwest toward St. Quentin, where the fighting at the west end of the battle line is centered.

There are further reports that French cavalry raiding near Lecatelet and Roisel have destroyed the railway running to Bouchain, Denain and Valenciennes, and that the whole system of German communications with Belgium is disintegrating.

There are reports of dreadful slaughter. It is said unofficially that all available guns have been directed by the Germans to their west flank and that these guns have cost the allies dearly.

In the battle center the allies are pressing a new attack. Air scouts reported the Germans were weakening their line east of Rheims in order to support their right. At Rheims there is hard fighting and the Germans are again bombarding the city.

The Lausanne Gazette prints a long account of the last fortnight's fighting in upper Alsace, of which no news has heretofore reached Paris.

The paper says sharp actions are being fought at Vazels, Wessling, Guebwiller, Munstar and elsewhere, without marked advantage to either side.

Mulhausen is occupied by a German force and cannon and sharpshooters are in position at Rehberg in the zoological gardens. This has caused great alarm among the inhabitants.

The Germans have set all the unemployed to work digging trenches and everything seems to indicate that the unhappy town will be the theater of fresh combats.

FLASHES FROM WAR ZONE

Paris, Sept. 26.—The Firago says: "Maubeuge has fallen; when and how will be told later. Then there will be one more proof that this war, which William the Knave still dares to say was imposed on him, was willed and provoked by him."

The Echo de Paris says that M. Bellegarde, the United States consul at Lausane, has gone to Rheims to investigate the destruction of the cathedral.

London, Sept. 26.—The British flag has been hoisted over Frederick Wilhelm, the seat of government and German New Guinea. The town and harbor were captured by an Australian force without opposition. An Australian garrison now holds the town.

A dispatch from Boulogne says: "A German aeroplane flew over Boulogne at a great height. The aviator threw a bomb into a shipbuilding yard. No one was injured."

CHECKS SECOND TERM PLAN

President Requests Jersey Democrats Not to Indorse Him.

Washington, Sept. 26.—At the direction of President Wilson Secretary Tumulty wrote a letter to New Jersey Democrats declining to have them indorse the president for a second term.

Secretary Tumulty's letter was to Edward A. Grosscup, state treasurer of New Jersey. It follows:

"You were generous enough to consult me as to whether the Democrats of New Jersey should at this time indorse the president for a second term. I had a talk with the president about it and he deeply appreciates the generosity of the suggestion, but New Jersey is his home state, the men who would act in this matter are his own personal friends and he feels that it might seem as if he were taking advantage of the extraordinary situation now existing to gain some personal advantage through such an expression of confidence by them.

"This would be inconsistent with his whole thought and spirit and he shrinks from it as from something that would embarrass him rather than help him.

"He feels confident that you will know the spirit in which he says this; that in urging the Democrats of New Jersey not to do this he is not abating in the least his deep appreciation."

Mme. de Thebes' Prediction.

Paris, Sept. 26.—The following extract is taken from the prediction of Mme. de Thebes: "The kaiser will die on Sept. 29. Revolution will break out in Berlin on Oct. 4. The French will enter Berlin on Oct. 29. The same war will have ended by Nov. 1, having lasted three months and five days."

TREAT YOUR SEED WHEAT FOR SMUT

Insure Clean Seed By Killing the Spores Of Stinking Smut With Formalin.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

When a field of smutted wheat is threshed, many of the "smut balls" are broken and the sound grains are covered with the smut dust. As far as is known, this is practically the only way infection takes place to any serious extent. This infection is especially serious when a clean crop is threshed with a machine that has just threshed a smutted crop.

Before treating your wheat for stinking smut, it is best to remove all unbroken smut balls. Since the smut balls are much lighter than the sound grain, thorough fanning will generally do this. If fanning will not do it, the grain should be poured into a barrel of cold water and thoroughly stirred so that all the smut balls will come to the surface where they can be skimmed off.

SPRINKLING WITH FORMALIN.

Buy from your druggist 40 per cent. solution of formaldehyde or formalin. Pour one pint into 40 or 50 gallons of water and mix thoroughly. Put the grain to be treated in a basket or in a sack, one half bushel at a time, and plunge the grain into basket or sack containing the grain into the solution until every grain is thoroughly wet. Then raise the sack or basket for a minute to allow the solution to drain back. Next place the sacks where they will drain completely, or dump the grain out in a pile. Cover the pile with sacks or canvas, and allow it to remain in this way for 12 hours or more. Then the grain should be spread out on a clean floor to dry. This amount of solution should be sufficient for treating 40 to 50 bushels of wheat.

A good plan is to treat the seed in the evening and let it lay in the covered pile until morning. About one gallon of the solution will be required for every bushel of grain. Another method is to sprinkle the solution on instead of immersing the grain. According to this method the seed should be spread out thinly over a floor and the solution applied with a sprinkling can or with a spray pump, throwing a fine spray. While the solution is being applied, the grain should be stirred constantly with a hoe, shovel, or garden rake, until every grain is thoroughly wet, about three quarts of the solution to the bushel will be required. After the grain is thoroughly wet, it may be put in a pile, and allowed to remain this way for the same length of time as stated above.

Treated seed may be sown the following day after it has been spread out to dry, or it may be thoroughly dried and kept indefinitely. If sown soon after treatment, the drill should be set to sow from one-fourth to one-third more than for a normal seeding of thoroughly dry seed.

Maryland school teachers from four counties, Montgomery, Prince George's, Charles and St. Mary's will have an excellent opportunity to get in close touch with conditions at the State Agricultural College during the coming week, when their institute from Sept. 7th to 11th, will be held under the direction of the State Board of Education. This is the third event of a very busy summer at the Agricultural College, the first being a six weeks' course for rural school teachers extending through July, and the second being the three days' conference for Rural Ministers which was held there early in August. The Agricultural College is setting a good example in making our State educational institutions and their equipment of use to the people of the State every month in the year.

"Maryland Week" is the designation given the week of November 16-21, 1914, when the Maryland State Horticultural Society, Maryland Crop Improvement Association, Maryland State Dairymen's Association, and the Maryland Beekeepers' Association will hold their annual exhibition in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md.

A "CRUSOE" IN LAKE ERIE.

Middle Bass Island, O.—That he was taken to Middle Sister island, Lake Erie, three weeks ago by a man who said he owned the place and who left him food enough to last a week, but who never returned, is the story told by Henry Adair, fifty, who says he lives in Detroit, brought here by members of a fishing party who rescued him in what appears was the nick of time.

Members of the party fishing in Lake Erie off Middle Sister island, isolated near the Canadian line seventeen miles from here, were attracted by the frantic waving of a shirt. Drawing closer, they discovered Adair. He was emaciated and starving. All he had left of his store of food was a few crusts of bread.

Adair told his rescuers that a man accosted him in Detroit and asked if he wanted employment. He said he was to have been employed to look after the premises, although he found on arriving on the island there was practically nothing to look after.

His scanty food supply was eked out with clams he found in the sand. His days he spent trying to signal help from passing boats.

KILLS AN EAGLE IN A TRAP.

Bird Was a Huge One and Boldly Attacked Hunter.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Tom E. Mason, a fur trapper, has come to Edmonton for medical treatment, following a fierce fight with a golden eagle, which clawed and pecked his face, neck and left shoulder and arm. He killed the bird, which had a spread of wings of eight feet two inches from tip to tip.

"I was attracted to a trap," Mason said, "by a strange noise, and as I got closer I saw a huge golden eagle held by one foot.

"My first thought was to release the bird, not thinking that it would venture an attack, but that is where I was fooled. I was quickly made aware of the fact when I was sprawled upon my back with the eagle and the trap on top of me."

WORK NECESSARY TO BE TENNIS CHAMPION

New York.—It is not an easy thing for a girl to win a tennis championship. But the hardest work is not done around the nets while the contest is actually on; it is keeping in physical condition for such a match.

Miss Clare Cassel of this city, national indoor tennis doubles champion, has compiled twelve rules which, she declares, must be rigidly adhered to before one can hope to win success as a tennis player. They are: First, no golf; second, no candy; third, no dancing; fourth, no cigarettes; fifth, no reading at night; sixth, no wine or cocktails; seventh, no swimming on match days; eighth, massage after each day's play; ninth, luncheon on a glass of milk and a sandwich; tenth, plenty of rallying exercise before each match; eleventh, drinking nothing during a match except barley water; twelfth, bed at 10 p. m. and nine full hours' undisturbed sleep.

Miss Cassel in telling of the work necessary to keep in condition and the strength necessary for a game says:

"No matter how primed a man really is, a five set match finds him all in. He has to play harder to win—or lose—than any man who goes through nine innings of baseball. A championship match with the players even and the score often running to deuce games and deuce sets will find both men utterly exhausted at the end of the play. It makes many more demands on the players than two halves of varsity football.

"And if tennis means this for men perhaps one may imagine what it means for women and girls. If you play to win matches, if you long for the brackets which proclaim you a champion of your club or your county or your state, you must be ready to be grueled week in and week out, for tennis of that class is a grueling game.

"Consider the girls and young married women who follow the tournaments from place to place all the livelong season. It means five months of training and self denial, five months of the hardest kind of work from June through October. And then they must play indoors at least twice a week all winter long if they would keep in form."

WED IN HENCOOP, JAIL NOW.

Judge Tells Wife Deserter He Deserves to Be Cooped Up.

Kansas City, Mo.—Charles Sumner, a clerk, married a year ago in a chicken coop before 10,000 persons at a chicken show in Convention hall, was remanded to the county jail on a charge of wife abandonment. At a hearing in a justice court Mrs. Sumner said she believed only the novelty of marriage led Sumner into matrimony.

The poultry show committee gave Mr. and Mrs. Sumner $10, a dozen chickens and the coop for consenting to the novel marriage. Justice Welch in remanding Sumner to jail said:

"Any man who has the nerve to be married in a chicken coop before 10,000 persons belongs in a coop."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1914.

AMERICAN industry will be kept mighty busy feeding and clothing this country, let alone needy Europe, so go ahead.

IN view of the failure of the tariff, Democracy is going to have a hard time raising money without incurring the wrath of the people.

THE Garrett County Fair is a great success. It couldn't be anything else and be a Garrett County Fair, for Garrett county is a success.

The Democratic Congressional campaign text-book, like the party, is full of errors and deceptions. It actually boasts of a bill that was not passed.

IF the Democratic party is not a contributing cause to the high cost of living there is no question about it being responsible for the high cost of loafing.

THE Democratic party is preparing a one-plank platform for 1916. This platform will contain only three words: "Wilson—that's all.'—Knickerbocker Press.

THOSE who won't economize must be made economize, so the Republicans forced the Democrats to lap off $30,000,000 of extravagance in the rivers and harbors bill.

No citizen has a right to deprive his community of his services at the polls. In order to perform his duty to the State one must be a registered voter. The law and your duty call upon you to register now.

ON August first, one month after the beginning of the prohibition era in West Virginia, the Wheeling workhouse was without a prisoner. The monthly pay-roll of this prison has been reduced from $484 to $74.

LOYALTY to the party is the slogan of this fall. The Sixth Maryland district ought to elect a Republican Congressman this fall, especially when we have such a capable man as Senator Frederick N. Zihlman.

THERE is not a single reason why any Republican should vote for David J. Lewis for Congressman this fall. In every respect Senator Zihlman is his equal, and Senator Zihlman is a loyal Republican and Mr. Lewis is a Democrat.

Do not forget that next Tuesday and Wednesday are the last days of registration. That no one can vote who is not registered under this new registration law. If you did not register Sept. 22 and 23, you must do so Oct. 6 or 7, or lose your vote.

THE American day of prayer for peace has been set for October 4, ample time to resolve ourselves into the proper frame of mind and heart, so that we shall not be rushing into the presence of Omniscience in the spirit of going to a quick lunch counter.

No stronger argument could be made in favor of the adoption of the Local Option law in Garrett county this fall than this significant fact that Kansas, after a third of a century of state prohibition, unites, through both her great parties, in a unanimous demand for the banishment of the saloon from the nation.—Youngstown Telegram.

THE day of Garrett County's redemption from the curse of alcholism draweth nigh. A few days over four weeks and the rum demon will receive its sentence of banishment from the county. Then will follow only six months of the ravages of the beast, until his day of evil shall end, and rum selling and treating will be a crime.

THE Thanksgiving day of 1914 will be appropriately observer throughout Garrett county. We will have great reason for praise and thanksgiving. Bountiful harvests, freedom from epidemics of sickness, peace and prosperity, and the adoption of the Local Option bill will be sufficient reason for a general thanksgiving throughout Garrett county.

THE tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasolene ought to be transferred to 2 cents a foot on all speeches of Congressmen over twelve inches in length, newspaper measurement.

IT is quite important that Republicans should keep in mind the fact that a net loss of three United States senators at the fall elections will give the Democratic party control of that body until 1919.

THE Republican papers predicted early last spring that the Underwood bill would in time force the administration to either a bond issue or a special tax to provide for deficiencies in the revenue. It has come to pass.

THE Republican filibuster against the extravagant appropriations in the rivers and harbors bill has been signally successful. It is funny how these "wasteful" Republicans save money, while the "economical" Democrats want to scatter it to the birds.

NEXT week will be The Republican's special fair edition. It will be a paper of unusual interest, gotten up for the enjoyment of our thousands of readers. Our plans are made to give a full write up of the week's "doings," a history of the Fair as seen by our reporters. It will be a paper you will like to send to your friends away from here, to let them know of Garrett county's prosperity and development. Mailed anywhere for 5 cents the copy.

Senator Zihlman's record in the Maryland legislature proves him the friend of the laboring man. A friend in the time of need. A man for the hour. Constantly on the look out for the best interests of the laboring man. From a personal experience he knew of the burdens carried by the man, for he labored, and labored hard for his daily bread. He is a man you can trust. He is the kind of a man Garrett county needs at Washington. A vote for Senator Frederick N. Zihlman will be a vote well cast, in the very best interest of the Sixth district, as well as for the State of Maryland and the United States.

THE Democratic State Convention met in Baltimore City last Thursday. John Walter Smith was unanimously elected the candidate of the party for United States Senator. The party platform he had prepared was adopted as he wrote it. The names of two Garrett countians appear on the committees, that of Thomas Little of Oakland, on the committee on credentials, and that of Wm. Miller of Accident, on resolutions. Wonder, if Mr. Miller explained why Accident district gave an almost unanimous vote for Straus? Senator Lee made a speech but he had nothing to say for Senator Smith.

COL. E. C. CARRINGTON,
Republican Nominee For United States Senator.

GENERAL REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

A general registration, decreed by an act of the last General Assembly, becomes effective in Maryland this year and every voter in the state must first be duly recorded by the registration officials before he can cast his ballot at the election next November. Four days of registration have been alloted viz: September 22nd and 23rd and October 6th and 7th, with an additional day devoted solely to revision and correction of the registration records. Every voter must register in order to enjoy his franchise in November, and also that he may vote at the county and state primaries next summer. The importance of this general registration should compel the interest and direct the prompt action of every voter in Garrett county.

MORE DEMOCRATIC OPINION.

The following scathing editorial from Mr. Hearst's New York American and one of the most blatant Jeffersonian Democratic organs of the country should prove enlightening as well as informing for local readers of all political extraction:

CAN'T CONGRESS PLAN HELPFUL INSTEAD OF IRRITATING TAXES?

It is quite natural that having failed to take a common-sense view of the revenue problem the President and Congress should disagree on the method of meeting the deficit caused partly by the European war scare, but more by faulty Democratic tariff legislation. It is also natural that Congress, being a many headed body, with none of its heads apparently competent to grasp the principles of scientific taxation, should be as much divided within itself as it is at variance with the President.

Congress is not a unit upon the question of taxing whiskey, but it is quite set on the absurd and illogical plan to put a tax on railroad freight bills. The increase in the income tax is wisely opposed by the President, but still dallied with by Congress. The stamp tax on checks theatre and baseball tickets, Pullman fares, etc., is noisly debated. Automobiles are looked upon with hostility as the property of the very rich, to be taxed heavily, and the limitations of the Congressional mind are strikingly illustrated by the serious proposal to tax petrol in order to strike at the Standard Oil Company.

But on none of these propositions is a majority of the majority in Congress able to agree, and apparently none on which they show signs of agreement appeals to President Wilson.

The trouble lies in the fact that Congress and the Administration enacted a tariff bill which they have set up as perfection and called upon the people to worship. Nothing inharmonious with it, in principle and in effect, can find favor in present Democratic eyes.

But nothing harmonious with it in principle will meet the needs of the existing situation.

It was a tariff law enacted to raise revenue. It has brought a deficit.

It was a tariff law enacted to reduce the high cost of living. The cost of living has gone higher daily since it went into effect.

It was a law enacted to aid American business. Its first effect was to open American markets to foreign invasion, without opening a single foreign market to our trade.

It was a law enacted to promote prosperity. It brought adversity, closed factories, and increased the number of the unemployed.

These are all facts written large in the history of the daily life and business of our people since the Underwood tariff went into effect. They are universally recognized except, apparently, at the White House and in the House of Representatives.

The opportunity is now at hand to correct, at least in part, the blunders of the Administration's tariff law and to allay somewhat the disappointment caused by that futile measure.

This opportunity, however, cannot be seized if the Democrats at Washington cling blindly to the fetish of free trade, or even to the half-hearted version of free trade they enacted into law.

Patching up the law with petty expedients for the correction of its fundamental faults only makes those faults more evident. To plaster the business community over with added income taxes, stamp taxes, taxes on the expenses of traveling men, taxes on auto trucks and drays, taxes on fuel, taxes on freight bills, which will be shiffted to the consumer—such a policy of irrtating and unscientific taxation will be an imposition on the public and the death knell of the party responsible.

Yet this is precisely the policy which blind adherence to the existing Democratic tariff compels.

In commenting upon this proposed revenue legislation Mr. Hearst wrote recently:

"Why can not the Democratic party abandon its theories which have proved false, its policies which have proved fatal?

"Why can it not embark upon a new and enlightened policy of intelligently encouraging our production, of adequately transporting our production and of constantly enlarging and retaining the markets for our production at home and abroad?

Has the Democratic party the clear vision necessary to discern the path, and the intelligence necessary to tread it? Or must it be still wedded to its idols, even though the idol be Moloch, certain in the end to utterly destroy its worshippers?

A POLITICAL TALK.

The people of the Sixth Maryland District are approaching the November election animated by the invincible determination to do what they can to make an end of Democratic humbug and progressive pretense. They deserted the Republican party in 1912, not because they had the least confidence in the Democratic aggregation, but because a goodly number of them hoodooed by Colonel Roosevelt's pretensions and many thought an occasional Democratic victory would do little harm while it might bring some of the Republican leaders to their senses. They are now realizing that they blundered, just as they blundered in 1892, and that they are suffering now as they did in 1894.

In so far as tariff legislation was concerned the Democrats did exactly what they promised the country. Nobody can accuse them of false pretense in that respect. The president, the author of the Underwood bill, David J. Lewis, the representative from this congressional district, and the large majority of Democratic senators and representatives, are firmly convinced that free trade should be the ultimate goal of our tariff legislation. If they stopped short of free trade in the Underwood bill it was because they concede free trade impracticable now, by reason of conditions they would be glad to see removed.

Tariff legislation has paralyzed the industrial world and deprived thousands of workmen of steady employment. It is true that Democratic newspapers and orators—even the president himself—deny the existence of business depression but that is a matter concerning which argument is unnecessary. We are willing to abide by the decision of the voters next November. If they are as prosperous as they were when Mr. Wilson became president they will certainly elect another Democratic congress. If they are not they will vote for straight Republicans for congressmen and also for the entire Republican ticket.

As for the progressive leaders, they are responsible for the present national Democratic administration. Mr. Roosevelt elected Professor Wilson. When the Underwood Bill came up on final passage most of the Progressive members of congress voted for it and many voters from our own commonwealth openly gloried in this treason to the state's material welfare. It is a little late in the day for Progressives to join the tariff advocates outwardly, largely because they see the trend of public sentiment. Citizens who are really tired of the Underwood bill or the Democratic administration will vote the straight Republican ticket this year.

NOW A STATE INSTITUTION.

The Maryland Agricultural College became exclusive state property last Friday by virtue of the foreclose sale of the half interest of 282 acres of land held up to this time by private stockholders. The sale which was authorized through a special provision by the 1914 legislature, was held at the entrance of the administration building on the college campus. Murray Vandiver, state Treasurer, made the first and only bid for the stockholder's half interest, securing for the State of Maryland the possession of the property for $19,000. Ogle Marbury and Speaker James McTrippe, of the House of Delegates, together with General Vandiver represented the interest of the State at the sale, there being in addition F. P. Vietch, representing the Alumni Association of the College, and President H. J. Patterson and Treasurer Herschel Ford, representing the faculty of the institution.

The sale of the stockholders' interest to the State brings to an end private ownership in the institution and places the Maryland Agricultural College in its legitimate relation to the State as its a state owned and state endowed agency, that should be equipped like similar institutions in other states, to carry on thorough and extensive service to the rural communities of the State. State Treasurer, Murray Vandiver, stated immediatly following the sale that the transaction had removed the last obstacle to the liberal support of the Agricultural College by the State.

"There is no good reason left," he declared, "Why the Maryland Agricultural College should not receive the full support and recognition of the people of the State in the field now open to it."

President H. J. Patterson stated that the establishing of full property rights in the State had now placed the Maryland Agriculture College in a position to give a state wide service to the agricultural interests of the State. "We will now be able," he said, "to turn confidently to the farmers of the State for the support which the work of our institution deserves. They should now see to it that their Agricultural College is granted appropriations liberal enough to meet the National Government halfway and provide permanent equipment and buildings that will enable our departments to meet the Federal Department on a more substantial footing and work with it more efficiently in reaching a larger number of Maryland farmers for the improvement of rural conditions. The exclusive ownership by the State of the Agricultural College will be especially helpful in the development of the Extension Division of the College which in connection with the Federal Department of Agriculture expects to establish through county demonstrators an efficient and highly helpful service to our country people.

Hospital for Mountain Lake Park.

Dr. Fazenbaker of Westernport, who has gained quite a reputation of curing appendicitis cases without an operation and who recently bought a large hotel in Mountain Lake Park, is planning to improve the building by adding an addition to it and turning same into a hospital for curing cases of this kind without the use of the knife.

Dr. Fazenbaker is curing cases of this kind every day and getting calls for his medicine from different parts of the country, and is kept quite busy in making calls and shipping his medicine to patients he cannot reach personally.

The Doctor has had ten or fifteen cases in the past two weeks. Each case, where they was advised by their local physicians to be sent to a hospital for operation.

He claims he has cured each and every one of them. He has received many letters and testimonials from his patients stating his medicine had reached the spot and that they were entirely cured.—Piedmont Independent.

A STUDY OF MARYLAND GAME LAWS

Attention of gunners and sportsmen in general is called to some few changes made in the game laws in the counties by the Maryland Fish and Game Protective Association at the meeting of the last legislature.

In all the counties of the state the following game may be hunted between November 10 and December 24, inclusive: Partridges or quail, English or Mongolian pheasant, pheasant or ruffled grouse, rabbits, squirrels, wild turkey, woodcock and deer.

Between November 1 and January 31, inclusive, ducks, geese, swan or brandt may be hunted in all the counties. Doves may be hunted in all the counties between August 15 and December 24, inclusive, with the following exceptions: Baltimore county, September 1 to September 30; Dorchester county, August 15 to January 1; Frederick county, August 1 to September 30; Kent county, July 16 to December 23; Somerset county, August 10 to January 1; Talbot county, August 15 to January 1, and Washington county, August 1 to September 1, the dates being inclusive in all instances. Reed, rail, ortolan, coots and gall mules may be hunted in all counties between September 1 and November 30, inclusive, and plover and snipe in all counties between September 1 and December 15, inclusive.

Shipment of game is prohibited from Allegany, Frederick, Garrett, Montgomery and Washington counties among others. Licenses will be issued by the clerks of courts in each county.

The costs, including the fee are for Allegany county, non-residents, $10.50. Frederick county, non-residents, $5.50. Garrett county, non-residents, $10.50. Montgomery county, non-residents, $5.50. Washington county, non-resident, $10.50; not required, however, if written permission to be granted by land-owner or lessee.

Guests of land owners require no licenses, except in Allegany, Baltimore, Caroline, Charles, Dorchester, Garrett, Kent, Talbot and Worcester counties. In Anne Arundel county hunting by non-residents is prohibited, except by permission of land-owners. Special licenses of residents are required. In Anne Arundel county the cost is $2.

Fair Warning.

Attention is again called to the Registration days this year, upon which a complete new registration of the entire electorate of the State of Maryland will be made, The days are October 6th and 7th. All voters are urged to present themselves for registration on the first day available, as many put off registering till the last moments causing a crowd at the registration office, which compels persons to wait in line. This some times has the effect of discouraging the lukewarm citizens. Register early in order that you will not have to wait, yourself, nor discourage others back of you who are waiting till you register. A feature which should be carefully borne in mind when registering this Fall is that it is absolutely necessary to have your political affiliation noted on the registration books in order to participate in the Primary Elections next fall. The law does not permit voters to participate in a primary election except of the party with which they are affiliated, and, as there will be no further opportunity to register prior to next year's Primary Elections it is necessary, not only to get your name on the books this fall, but also to have your political affiliation noted thereon, in order to be eligible to vote in the Primary.

Go to Church Message Twentieth Century Method of Awakening Religious Fervor

GO TO CHURCH!

In the brief time that the GO TO CHURCH movement has been so widely heralded throughout the country there has been a big increase in the attendance at churches. Clergymen declare that RELIGION NEVER WAS DEAD. All that it needed was an awakening. AND IT HAS AWAKENED.

But there are thousands today who have not yet heeded the GO TO CHURCH call. It is to these that this appeal is directed. Do you believe in a Supreme Being? If you do, is he not worthy of worship? No matter how derelict you have been in the past, the church awaits you. If you haven't been to church in a decade all the more reason that you GO TO CHURCH now.

AS A MATTER OF FACT THERE NEVER WAS A TIME WHEN PEOPLE HAD FORGOTTEN CHURCH. IN LATTER DAYS THERE HAS BEEN A WAVE OF MATERIALISM AND UNGODLINESS, BUT RELIGION ONLY REQUIRED AN AWAKENING CRY. THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT IS AS A PRAIRIE FIRE. IN EVERY VILLAGE, HAMLET, TOWN AND CITY THE CRY HAS BEEN TAKEN UP. THIS GO TO CHURCH MESSAGE IS A TWENTIETH CENTURY METHOD OF AWAKENING RELIGIOUS FERVOR. IT IS SUCCEEDING.

Do your part in this splendid movement. When you read this ask your neighbor if he has read it. KEEP BOOSTING. Some people say that GOING TO CHURCH IS GETTING TO BE A FAD NOWADAYS. If that is so there are some fads worth while, after all. When one considers that all that the churches ask is a brief time every Sunday morning it is hard to conceive how any one can refrain from performing this plain duty.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!
GO TO CHURCH the following Sunday!
GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

REPUBLICAN REGISTRATION DOUBLE THAT OF DEMOCRAT

County Returns for First Two Days Give G. O. P. Large Majority.

For the first two days of Registration, conducted throughout the county last Tuesday and Wednesday, the returns made by the officers of registration show that the Republicans registering and affiliating with that party is more than double the number of Democrats who registered and affiliated with the party of their choice, while the Progressive element of the Republican party is a negative number. The full tabulated returns are given below.

Democrats	510
Socialists	33
Prohibitionists	24
Progressives	9
Declined to affiliate	48
Total registered	1810

This total of 1810 voters is slightly less than one-half of the usual registration as shown by the old books in the office of the Supervisors.

The above result, showing that the Republicans of the country are alive to the situation, is most encouraging to every one who has the interests of their party at heart.

The next two days of registration, which will occur on October 6th and 7th, are expected to bring out a similarly increased number of adherents to that party and will mean a large vote for the Republican candidates at the election in November.

The Keyser Canning Factory is about the busiest place in Keyser at this time. They are running at their limit, having 50 people at work on extra time. They are now putting out from 800 to 900 dozen cans each day, and they have just installed another important machine which will increase the daily output. Oakland ought to have a canning factory. The splendid display of vegetables at the fair is positive proof of this fact. No better place in the world to grow vegetables.

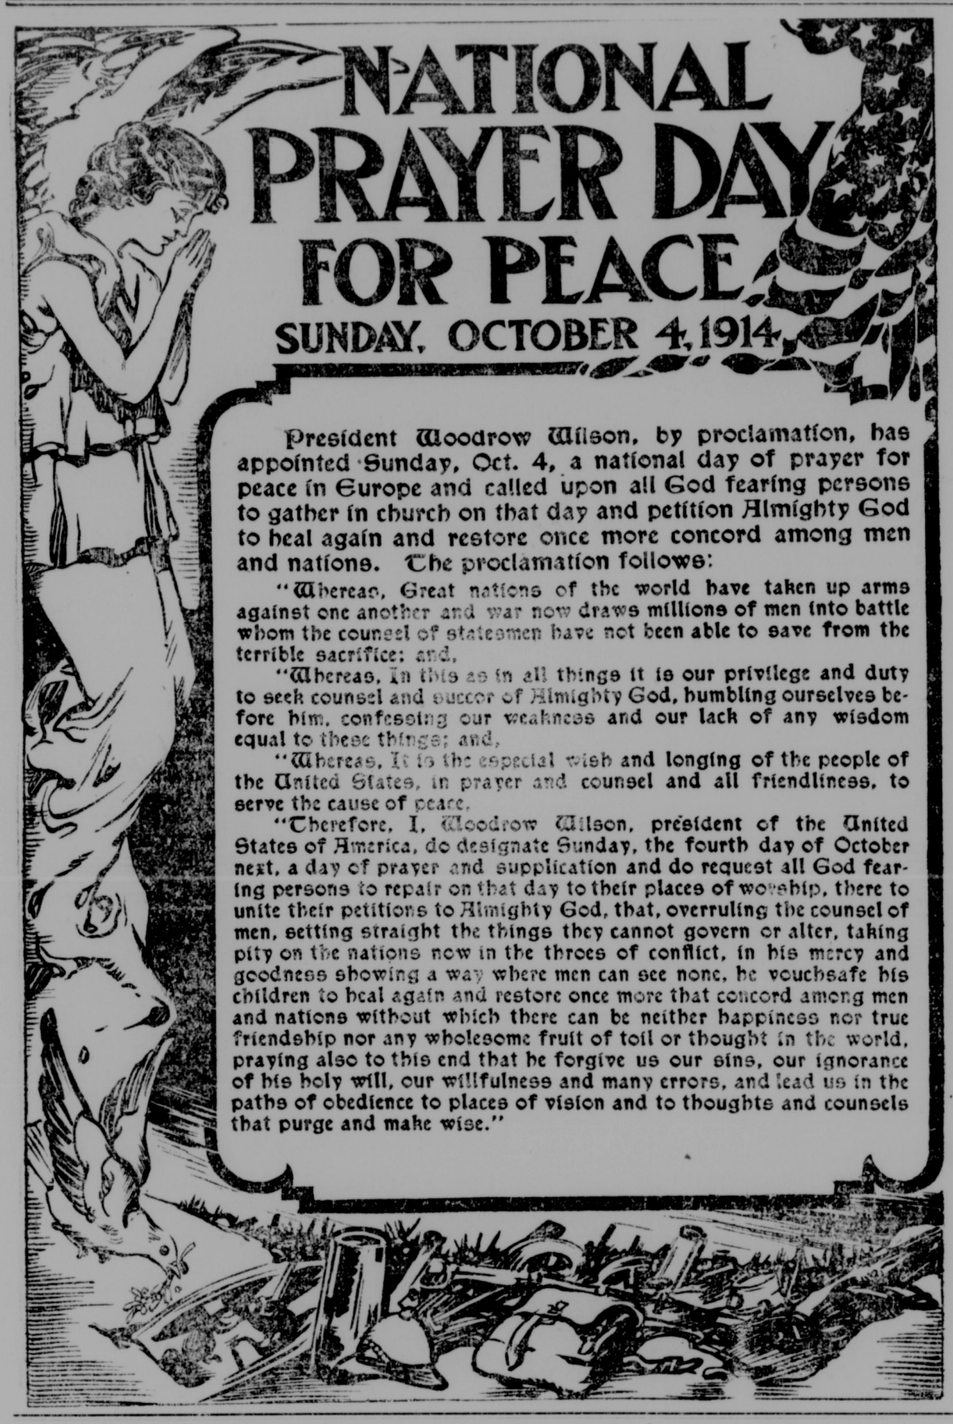
She was a true christian. For many years the writer knew this sweet, kind woman. In her home, at the church service, or in the public and social life she carried a smile that made one feel better and more hopeful. Thursday afternoon an Italian walking close to the railroad track, and when opposite the first gate at the crossing to the east bound track, this city, started to cross the tracks, and was struck by express train No. 55 and had his left arm cut off just above the elbow and was thrown on the platform, receiving a gash above his right temple, and on the back of his head, and bruised more or less about the face. Dr. Henry McComas was called. He gave prompt attention to his wounds and put in condition to be taken to the hospital at Keyser, on train No, 16.



NATIONAL PRAYER DAY FOR PEACE

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1914.

President Woodrow Wilson, by proclamation, has appointed Sunday, Oct. 4, a national day of prayer for peace in Europe and called upon all God fearing persons to gather in church on that day and petition Almighty God to heal again and restore once more concord among men and nations. The proclamation follows:

"Whereas, Great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another and war now draws millions of men into battle whom the counsel of statesmen have not been able to save from the terrible sacrifice; and,

"Whereas, In this as in all things it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and succor of Almighty God, humbling ourselves before him, confessing our weakness and our lack of any wisdom equal to these things; and,

"Whereas, It is the especial wish and longing of the people of the United States, in prayer and counsel and all friendliness, to serve the cause of peace.

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the fourth day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication and do request all God fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God, that, overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in his mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, he vouchsafe his children to heal again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world, praying also to this end that he forgive us our sins, our ignorance of his holy will, our willfulness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise."

¶ SECOND.—This is the practical way in which any competent architect would figure the load these brick will carry. He would allow a factor of safety of four; consequently he would specify these brick for a building SIXTY-THREE (63) Stories high. Do they build that high in your locality?

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A Pertenent Inquiry.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I frequently hear the question asked: "What are they doing in the county in regard to the election. The most important question comes before the voters to be settled. It means shall we or shall we not have the saloon. Is any concentrated movement being made to stir up the county against this inveterate foe?"

I have heard of one flying trip made by two of our citizens to stir up the people by addresses and of one picnic with addresses. That is good—a move in the right direction—and should be made effective in every district in the county.

I understand that plenty of good literatnre will be available and will presently be distributed all over the county. That, too, is proper and should be done by all means, but there is nothing so effective as the direct personal appeal of the speaker, who, face to face, reasons with his fellow citizens.

If West Virginia had left her campaign to the last few weeks preceding the election she would have been left in the lurch. All organizations worked together. Every school district was visited by speakers, some of them several times. Earnest women visited the schools, gave away literature to the children and urged them to ask their fathers to vote against the saloon.

They did an immense amount of work in many ways.

Apparently but little has been or is being done among us. If our neighbors in West Virginia had left it all to the Anti-saloon League, as good and as strong an organization as it is, they would not have been so successful. But everybody worked, and they did it with all their might.

Is it not high time that the forces were being concentrated for vigorous action, and this mighty foe of home, the church and civilization attacked, as if we meant business? Too much confidence may change the results. True The Republicon has many columns in it for voters to consider, but some do not read and these should by all means be reached.

The moral effect of a large majority will be far more effective than a small one. Each one is responsible to the extent of his ability and opportunity.

Awake, fellow voter, and do what you can to arouse every other voter that we make the majority for a dry county as large as possible.

News has just come of the victory in Virginia. Let us get to work distributing literature and having conferences in every district in the country.

Begin at home and let Oakland start the ball rolling by having a mass meeting and arouse enthusiasm and if a delegation from West Virginia wishes to come with band and banners to help, by all means welcome them.

Yours in the cause.
VOTER.

VIRGINIA GOES "DRY"

The adoption of prohibition of the manufacture or sale of liquor by Virginia can hardly be said to be surprising. Ninety of the one hundred counties of that State have been dry through the operations of the local option law, so the victory of the anti-saloon forces may be said to have been pretty well prepared for the plucking. The addition of Virginia to the dry column makes ten States that have declared against the liquor traffic. Four States will vote on the same question in November, Ohio, Washington, Oregon and Colorado, and it is possible that the result in Virginia may have some "moral effect" on the vote in these communities.

With Virginia dry, there will be a contiguous block of States in the South which have shut out liquor. They are West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Georgia. If all of these States consistently enforce the mandate of the majority, it will be done with less annoyance to the legal authorities than if any one of them was in propinquity to a wet State. The dryness of Virginia certainly will be a great aid to the enforcement of prohibition in the southern end of West Virginia, and an incidental relief to the Tax Commissioner's office.

The Democratic "War Tax."

The excuse of the Democratic administration for levying an enormous tax on the people in time of peace, that the situation was wholly provoked by the European war, is becoming thinner the closer the effects of the Underwood tariff law are examined into. It is asserted on competent authority that the customs revenues of the August just passed are $10,000,000 less than in August, 1913, and the natural supposition would be that there has been a decrease of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 in imports. The Treasury figures show however, that the actual decrease is only $8,250,000, or $1,750,000 less than the decrease in customs revenues. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, an independent newspaper, which has never been accused of any special loyalty to the Republican party, gives a very clear analysis of the situation:

The total imports amounted to $129,399,496; 61.8 per cent, or nearly $80,000,000, of this amount came in free, while in August of last yeor the imports were $137,651,000, and only 50.9 per cent, or $69,000,000, paid no duty. The decrease in imports is by no means sufficient to account for the reduction in customs revenues. An increase of $11,000,000 in free imports over last year and a reduction in rates of duty on scores of different classes of goods account for three quarters of the deficit. The other quarter may be said to be due to the war. The new taxes, therefore, which are to be levied cannot be truthfully called war taxes. They are taxes which the country must pay for the privilege of buying foreign-made goods and for the luxury of a Congress of financial theorists.

But this is telling only half of the story. The absolutely reckless and extravagant increase in the expenses of running the government stand against any extra burdens placed on this country by the European cataclysm. The Democratic chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives declared the other day that the appropriations by the Democratic Congress this year were $100,000,000 in excess of the high figures of the previous year. This is Democratic testimony and confession, not Republican accusuation and unsupported assertion.

Even this amount will not meet the sum total of Democratic inefficiency and criminal wastefulness of the people's money. Senator Borah, a deliberate and unexcitable observer and student of Democratic delinquences, has stated in the Senate that the appropriations to date are in excess of the Republican appropriations of the last Congress, when the Republicans were in power, by $100,000,000, and that is just what the Democrats seek to cover by their internal revenue measure, which they charge up to the exigencies of the European war. But that is not all. "The appropriations of the present Congress," continues Senator Borah, "when completed will, in my judgment, amount to $200,000,000 or $250,000,000 in excess of that which was denounced as extravagence." And this is the party that was solemnly pledged to economy in the public expenditures.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson I.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 4, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 1-11. Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text, Mark xiv, 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson consists of two parts, the anointing at Bethany and the agreement of Judas Iscariot with the chief priests to betray Him. The anointing is recorded by Matthew, Mark and John; the mention of the passover and of the sin of Judas by Matthew, Mark and Luke. According to Matt. xxvi, 1, 2, it was after Jesus had finished the sayings of chapters xxiv and xxv and two days before the passover that He spoke of His approaching betrayal and crucifixion, and we would conclude from Matthew and Mark that the supper and anointing took place at that time.

From the account in John xii it would seem that it was six days before the passover and preceding the so called triumphal entry that they had the supper and anointing. It seems impossible to arrange clearly sometimes the sequence of all the events in our Lord's life, but the gospels were written that we might know Himself rather than the order of events in His life.

It is to some confusing that, while Luke does not record this anointing, he does mention an anointing in chapter vii, 36-50, which was also in the house of a man called Simon. But that was an altogether different event, much earlier in His ministry and by a woman whose name is not given, whose sins He forgave. The event of our lesson was in the home of Martha and Mary in Bethany, whose brother, Lazarus, had been raised from the dead (John xii, 1, 2). Matthew and Mark say that it was in the house of Simon the leper, but what relation he was to Martha and Mary we are not told and therefore do not need to know. If we think of it, and it seems wise to do so, we can ask them when we see them. John says that Lazarus sat at the table with Him. What a suggestive saying! The man who had been four days in the spirit world back on earth alive and well—a man whom the chief priests consulted to put to death because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away and believed in Jesus (John xii, 9-11).

At this supper Martha served, but there is no record of her being cumbered as in Luke x, 40, so we may hope that she had grown spiritually since that incident.

In view of such words as Phil. iv, 6, 7; I Pet. v, 7, we should never be cumbered or anxious. The words "They made Him a supper" make us think of His post ascension words in Rev. iii, 20, and of the blessed assurance that if any one will open the door He will come in and sup with them.

As He sat at meat Mary came with an alabaster box containing a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and she broke the box and poured it on His head and anointed His feet and wiped His feet with her hair (verse 3; Matt. xvi, 7; John xii, 3). Not only was the house filled with the odor of the ointment, but also the whole world, for He said in verse 9 that wherever in all the world the gospel should be preached, this that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

This was real worship on the part of Mary, heart adoration, and it was very costly on her part and very precious to His heart. We are reminded of a saying of David in II Sam. xiv, 24, "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." Some one has said that in Martha, Mary and Lazarus we have a sample of a well rounded Christian life—in Martha restful service, in Mary real worship and in Lazarus the power of a risen life.

There will always be some indignant ones when more than ordinary (which is ordinarily very little) is given to Him. It will be called a waste and by other names, while all spent upon ourselves will seem all right. Judas Iscariot is called a thief in John xii, 6, but what about the thieves of Mal. iii, 8? If His love to us does not constrain us to spend more for Him than on ourselves then it is evident that we love ourselves most.

How comforting His word "Let her alone, * * * she hath wrought a good work on me" (verse 6). Would that some other faultfinding meddlers might hear His "Let alone!" If we are sure that we are doing all "Unto Him" we may be confident of His approval whatever others may say. His other word, "She hath done what she could" (verse 8), we may not be so sure of, for of how few can it be said that we have done all that we could. He is the judge and will surely give all possible credit that He can.

He said that she anointed His body beforehand for burying, and I believe that was her purpose, that she so intended it, for it was her custom, when she could to sit at His feet and hear His word. She was not found with the other women who bought spices to anoint His dead body and never used them for that purpose. She seemed to understand about His cruel death at the hand of His enemies and that she could not minister to Him then, so having made her preparation, she watched for her opportunity, and He arranged it for her, for he read her heart. How awful the contrast between the heart of Judas Iscariot and this devoted heart that loved Him so!

OUT OF TOWN HAPPENINGS

A Variety of Interesting Paragraphs for Republican Readers

Jack Alexander of near McHrnry, had a fine crop of peaches.

Rev. Zimmerman of Accident, was in Cumberland the past week, on ministerial business.

Mrs. Detrich, of Selbysport, spent last week at Gortner with her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Schlossnagle.

Mr. Dale Mosser has accepted a position as clerk for the Westernport Mercantile Co., at Swanton with Mr. W. P. Good as manager.

Mrs. F. R. Sharpless of Swanton, who was operated on in Baltimore, Md., last week, is doing nicely at this time and expects to be home in a week or ten days.

Miss Grace Ashenfelter and her brother Harry, have returned to Swanton from Youngstown, Ohio, where they had employment this summer in a prominent park.

Rev. Idleman at his home at Albright, W. Va., continues very low from complications following typhoid. His Garrett county friends will be sorry to hear of his prolonged illness.

Superintendent Kaylor, in charge of the second section of the State road to Accident is working hard to complete the work on that section this fall, and present indications are that he will do it, hence the people are delighted.

The faculty of the Friendsville High School is E. A. Browning, principal, J. W. Holman, vice principal, Prof. Chrisman, from Berwick, Pa., commercial teacher, and Miss Emma Goehringer. The Grammar school teachers are Misses Marie Ryland and Oscie Casteel. The enrollment is 143.

"There will be a white Christmas," he said. "I am positive that the holiday season this year will not be green. It is a difficult matter to say whether there will be enough snow for sleighing."

We want to urge upon every farmer of Garrett county the duty as well as the importance and advantage of bringing his family to the fair. It will be a paying investment to do so. What they will learn from this wonderful object lesson is beyond estimation. To look over this large and varied collection of fruits, grain, vegetables and dairy products, to see the large assortment of things put up by other women, the bread, cakes, pies, etc., made in other homes, will be a treat of a life time. To see the needle work, the fancy work, etc., will be a pleasure. Bring your family to the fair, Mr. Farmer, you will make a mistake if you do not.

BITTINGER.

The death of Mr. Christian J. Brenneman, at his home in this settlement, on Tuesday morning, September 22nd, robbed the community of one of its most charitable and useful citizens. The deceased was nearing his sixty eighth year, and leaves a long life record of usefulness in his church and in all commendable public enterprises Many of the large well built barns and residences for miles around, stand as monuments to his skill as a mechanic, and a family of stalwart and useful sons will continue as well as they can the useful works that they learned so well of a christian father. The bereaved family consisting of the widow, and one daughter, Mrs. Mahlon G. Baker, and five sons, Messrs. Lloyd, Albert, Simon and Clark Brenneman, of this place, and Mr. Cleaver Brenneman, of Portland, Oregon, have the sincere sympathy of the entire community, and a host of friends residing elsewhere. The funeral services were conducted from the Lutheran church, at this place on Thursday afternoon, by Rev. Young, of Salisbury, Pa., and interment was made in the village cemetery.

Rev. Peter J. Brenneman, of Iowa, who was called east to attend the funeral of the late C. J. Brenneman, his only brother, conducted services in the Amish church near here last Sunday morning.

Charles Buckle and Miss Linnie Miller were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buckel last Sunday.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun, of Oakland, was visiting schools in this neighborhood last week.

Mrs. John Walburn, of Jennings, spent part of last week with relatives in this village.

Wade H. Lohr, of Swanten, was a pleasant caller among friends and old acquaintances here a few days ago.

Messrs. B. S. Brenneman and Adam Speicher were on the sick list last week, but are able to be out again.

A TWO-BILLION CONGRERS.

Most newspaper readers can recall the campaign uproar of a decade or to ago, made by the Democratic stump orators and the Democratic organs over "a billion dollar Republican Congress!" How the flowing-maned old war horses of the Democracy, hungry and impatient at being kept so long from the crib, did neigh and stamp over the "billion dollar profligacy" of the other fellows who were voting away the people's money. Well, at last, the Democratic outs are in. The Sixty-third Congress is Democratic in both branches. And, behold! It is not a billion-dollar Congress!

Here are the figures: The appropriations during the first session of the present Congress amounted to $1,057,605,694.40. And the appropriation bills for the current session, not including the $35,000,000 of the Rivers and Harbors bill, which is being pruned down, total $189,408,777.26. Or, leaving out the Rivers and Harbors bill entirely, the appropriations for the two sessions of the present Congress sum up two billions, one hundred and forty-seven millions, and some odd thousands of dollars.

And, as offsetting the increase in expenditures, Congress is facing the necessity of devising extraordinary methods of taxation to raise more revenue. This special tax is termed a war tax. The inadequacies of the Democratic tariff as a revenue measure are charged up to the European war. It had become apparent, however, before the war began that the revenues under the provisions of the new tariff would not be equal to the increased expenditures proposed in the summarized appropriation bills. The war, it seems, is to be used by the party in power to cover a multitude of its own mistakes.

A COMPARISON.

We are drawing entirely on Democratic testimony to refute Democratic boasts and promises. The present chairman of the Democratic ways and means committee was a private in the House of Representatives in 1910, when he exclaimed in a period of party ecstacy.

Controlling both houses by substantial majorities, the responsibility for the appropriations belong to the Republicans. Try as they may, they cannot be other than "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient," There can be no hope for any reductions from the Republican party. The best interests of the country and the people demand a Democratic House.

The Democrats have full control, both branches of Congress and the executive, and what have they done with their opportunities? The same gentleman, Representative Fitzergald, of New York, whose emotions were so tragically moved four years ago, a few days ago admitted in the House that once rang with his frantic appeal for Democratic control, that the appropriations of the present session, $1,089,408,777.27, are the highest yet reached, an extravagant increase of $32,000,000 over the high figures of 1913. Who, we ask, is the "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient" party? And, again, has it been shown by these figures that "the best interests of the country and the people demand a Democratic House?"

In 1823 the United States mail stage for Wheeling by Frederick, Hagerstown, Cumberland and Grantsville left the office, adjoining Barnum's Hotel, Hagerstown, Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, arriving at Wheeling in three and a half days, where boats were ready to convey passengers down the river.

In 1826 the extra mail left Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 4 o'clock in the morning and reached Wheeling on the fourth afternoon, except the Friday stage, which arrived on the fifth day after leaving Baltimore.

The old mail lines ran as usual on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday. The fare charged from Baltimore to Hagerstown was $5.50; from Hagerstown to Cumberland, $5; from Cumberland to Uniontown, $4; from Uniontown to Wheeling, $4.25; making the total charge for the trip from Baltimore to Wheeling $18.75.

Germany Has Lost Her Colonies,

If Germany has any territory left outside of the continent of Europe after the war is over it will be because the British have overlooked it. British forces have already taken Togoland; they are attacking German Southwest Africa; they have seized the German Samoas, in the Pacific, and news has just come from Australia that a British force has taken the chief city of New Pomerania, the largest island in the Bismarck archipelago. It will not be long before the world is informed that the German part of New Guinea has been attacked, and it will be surprising if the Caroline and Ladrone Islands do not surrender to a British warship. And Japan is laying siege to Kiao-Chau on the China coast.

The Kaiser's advisers, who did not expect the British to enter the war, will have much to explain to their chief before a peace treaty is signed. They have already been rebuked for the consequences of their contemptuous allusions to a scrap of paper. And the worst is yet to come.—Phila. Ledger.

MARYLAND POULTRY RAISERS SHOULD INCREASE FLOCKS

In an interview Friday, Prof. Roy H. Waite, Poultryman at the Agricultural Experiment Station, urged that poultry keepers in the State aim to increase their production during the coming year owing to conditions abroad. He said in part, "production has been seriously crippled in a large area of the world and there is going to be a sudden demand for poultry products some time during the coming winter.

Will the Marvland Poultry raisers be prepared to step in and help furnish food for the world? Present low prices cannot long continue. The markets report that the movement of poultry is sluggish and the fact that the prices today are lower than usual at this time of year seem to indicate that poultry is being dumped on the market on account of the rising cost of feed. Hold on to all the pullets and year old hens you can for there is bound to be a reaction, but of course don't overstock and run too much risk of disease.

"On account of the present high cost of feeds it will be necessary for you to practice the most rigid economy in the matter of feeding. Economy, however, doesn't always mean cutting down on feed, but it does mean adjusting the outlay and income so that the most profit will be realized. Utilize all available waste products and when you buy, purchase the lower priced feeds, providing their feeding value justifies their use."

Miss Marie Riker Promoted.

"The Alamo College Conservatery of Music has secured the services of Miss Marie Riker of Parkersburg, W. Va., to establish and take charge of a department for the training of teachers of Public Schools music and drawing.

Miss Riker comes to her work here exceptionally well equipped, and her work in Alma should be very successful as there is a strong demand for teachers of these subjects. She has pursued her studies in the above subjects in the following schools:

Mt. Union College and Academy, 4 years. Ohio Wesleyan University, 2 years. Private study in Paris, France, 1 year.

In addition to her musical work she specialized in French, and will take charge of the French Department of the college."

GARRETT COUNTY'S FINE DISPLAY OF APPLES

Fruit In Endless Variety on Exhibition At The Fair.

It will be of interest to Garrett citizens to know that it was the opinion expressed by those who had seen other exhibits, that the recent display of apples at the fair would have done credit to most State fairs.

The quality of fruit was unusually good, and for the most part the growers used good judgment in selecting specimens.

The thanks of the public is due to those who made the numerous entries and exhibits.

At the close of the fair, Mr. W. McCulloh Brown packed the apples (nine barrels in all) and they have been sent to cold storage in Baltimore to be exhibited again during Maryland Week at the State Horticultural Society meeting on November 17 to 22, as a Garrett county exhibit.

After this second show the apples will be sent to the Baltimore hospitals and charitable institutions.

As many of the winter apples have not been picked, and there were many who did not show at the fair, Mr. Brown would still be glad to have samples brought to him at his Oakland office and they will be packed and sent to storage with the others and will be exhibited. Send in all kinds of good apples: Baldwin, North Spy, King Greenings, Fallawater, Smoke House, Mother, etc. Select, first, perfect apples with no blemish, with good blossom end, and stems on, then for color. All must be uniform and size is the last thing to be considered.

With some additions there is no doubt but that Garrett can bring from Baltimore the "Society's Certificate of Highest Merit."

THE DEATH RECORD

JOHN J. KIRKPATRICK.

John J. Kirkpatrick died at the Hansel Hotel, this city, Sunday from cancer and was buried Monday in the Oakland cemetery. Mr. Kirkpatrick came to this county in 1860. In 1862 he enlisted in the Union Army and served in Company I, Second Maryland Regiment P. H. B. He was 73 years of age at the time of his death. He lived and worked at various places in this county. For the last 20 years he made his home with the Mattingly family at Hoyes. In Hunter's raid he was captured after battle of Lynchburg, on his way across the mountains to Gauley River; was confined in Libby prison for several months. After his release he returned to Garrett county where he remained until his death.

E. A. Shaffer on Safety.

The September number of the Baltimore and Ohio Employes' Magazine contains a half tone picture of Edward A. Shaffer, third trick operator at Oakland, for this company. Mr. Shaffer has been commended by Superintendent J. K. Kelley, of the Cumberland division, for his action several weeks ago in preventing a wreck between Oakland and Rinards. Mr. Shaffer observed a drop bottom down on a wooden hopper in an extra westbound freight train, and chains dragging on another car, catching several boards in the platform in front of the station at Oakland.

He called to the man standing on the rear of the caboose, but being uncertain that he was understood arranged to stop the train at Rinards. It was through the efforts of Mr. Shaffer that a wreck was averted, and he was asked to send his photograph to the Employes' Magazine, which he did, accompanied by the following: "I wish you would say for me through the Employes' Magazine that eternal vigilance is the price of safety." Mr. Shaffer was again commended by Superintendent Kelly for his action in the matter.

SECOND ANNUAL FAIR CLOSED LAST FRIDAY

THE FIRST DAY.

Wednesday, September 30, 1914, the Agricultural Association of Garrett County opened its second annual fair. The week's preparations had been underway for the great show of the year. To bring about this magnificent exhibition of the resources of Garrett County required much hard work upon the part of those in charge of the exposition. Monday the exhibits began to come in and they continued to pour in for the next three days. Tuesday those in charge of arranging the exhibits were at work up to 9:30 p. m.

Early Wednesday morning the citizens of this mountain region began to make their appearance and as they walked over the grounds and through the building they expressed their surprise and delight at the large and varied exhibit seen, and at the general appearance of everything. It was beyond their highest expectations and made them feel more proud than ever of the county and its possibilities.

The Arion Band of Frostburg arrived on the 9:15 a.m. train, and shortly there after, were on the balcony of the second floor discoursing delightful music, and announcing to the general public that the fair was open. By noon the fair grounds and buildings were alive with people.

The automobile parade took place according to schedule. It did not receive the support it deserved from owners of automobiles, but there were beautifully decorated cars in the parade, all honor to those who took part.

Squire Floyd White deserves special mention for his decorations. It was practical, it was prophetic and up-to-date. Across the wind shield was the motto; "Garrett County Dry in 1915." The letters were made of autumn leaves. On the top of the automobile was the good advise, "Vote Dry."

Mr. Elwood Offutts car was decorated as a fruit car, and the inmates scattered apples as they moved along.

Dr. Bullard's car was decorated in a most attractive and pleasing manner. A large yellow butterfly covered the radiator of the car. The car was trimmed with yellow roses, green leaves and vines. The doctor was the fortunate winner of the auto-horn offered by the enterprising firm of Lawton Bros. for the handsomest decorated automobile in the parade. This firm has been most generous in every respect to make the fair a success. They are loyal supporters of Garrett County's best interests.

The balloon ascension and parachute drops were greatly enjoyed and appreciated and very creditable to Prof. Walter G. Flaxon. He is a success in his profession. His ascension was made from the fair grounds. On Wednesday afternoon the first ascension was made. The Professor had four parachute drops. The landing was made at Weber's green house. The first parachute, after its abandonment caught fire and was burnt up. By failing to work properly, the fourth parachute turned the Professor upside down when near the earth, he falling head first into a tree, but escaped injury. His ascension was a sight worth seeing.

THE SECOND DAY.

The weather was ideal fair weather and the public took advantage of it and flocked to Oakland by the thousands. They came by foot, on horseback, in carriages, by autimobile and on special as well as on regular trains. The first section of train No. 71 refused to take on passengers after leaving Piedmont, the second section of seven cars doing the local work. Never before had such a crowd of people assembled in this city. At noon the hotels were crowded with guests, and ere long the butcher shops had closed out their stock of meats, but the crowd was fed, and no one went hungry. It was a good natured, delighted, jolly crowd who spoke in words of highest praise of the fair and its management.

The horse parade was splendid and was greatly enjoyed. It was a gladsome surprise to the six thousand people gathered in Oakland. Garrett county feels proud of its magnificent horses, splendid cattle, and choice sheep. The yoke of oxen reminded one of the early days, when we lived back in the woods and hunted bear and deer in the wild forest of the most Western county of Maryland, or drove herds of cattle to the markets or feeding grounds. Rev. John M. Davis led one division of the parade and had on his saddle the old saddle-bags used in his earlier days when he bought and drove cattle to the eastern market. Farmer Truman Casteel led another division, like a major general.

The balloon ascension was another grand success, with its four thrilling parachute drops. The hero of the occasion landed on Andrew Helbigs' farm on the suburbs of Oakland and the balloon fell on W.A. Clarks farm adjoining this city. The ascension was a beautiful sight, witnessed by thousands of edlighted people. It was well worth the admission price to the fair. A beautiful sight was the well dressed, good looking crowd of several thousand people seated on the hill side waiting for the balloon to go up. Such a charming sight was never before witnessed in Oakland. The second day was a great, glorious day in the history of Garrett county, one long to be remembered and talked about by those in attendance at the fair.

THIRD DAY.

Another beautiful autumn day brought the great crowd back to the fair grounds. All of Garrett County must have been on the move, for all day long it was tramp, tramp, for the boys and girls and their parents and relatives were on the march, shaking hands one with another and congratulating themselves on the magnificent success of the Garrett county fair. Everybody was happy as birds.

The feature of the day, yes and of the fair was the parade of the Garrett County School children. It was one of the events in the history of the county. It was inspiring. It made the on-looker feel proud of his county, as the 1,300 or 1,500 children, led by the Arion Band, with flying banners, large flags, and each scholar carrying a small flag, marched along the streets and into the fair grounds. It was a beautiful sight, and as one glanced into the future, he saw visions of a most happy, and prosperous Garrett county filled with an industrious citizenship, loyal to their country and to their God. If the hope of the country is in childhood, Garrett county has a glorious future.

At the close of the parade, J. M. Davis & Sons handed the passers, by their booth, tin rattles, and horns; in a short time a perfect babel prevailed; there was no confusion, no rowdyism, no crowding or pushing, but a steady moving down the aisles, everybody seemingly in the best of spirits.

The balloon ascension was another pleasing success. Up, up, high into the sky went the balloon, everybody eagerly watching and waiting for the Professor to drop. "Here he comes," was heard here and there. This time the balloon sailed westward, and the operator landed safely near Crook's Crest and the balloon in the street in front of Samuel Aranholt's home. Aeronaut Flexon all through the fair delighted vast audiences of people, who felt that he was a success in his profession and that the management of the fair acted wisely in securing the services of the Professor.

The closing hours of the fair was a busy time all over the building and grounds. At five o'clock the crowd began to separate for home. Some exhibits were removed, horses and cattle were taken away, and many tired people were glad the fair was over, yet perfectly delighted with what they saw and heard and left the grounds under an inspiration to do greater and better things for and at the fair in 1915.

Those who won the prizes were happy over their success and wore the blue or red or yellow ribbons with pride and carried them home to exhibit to their friends and neighbors. They had a right to feel proud.

Those who did not win the prize in the competition were just as happy as those who did and heartily congratulated the fortunate ones.

The weather throughout the fair was delightful, could not have been better. He who had bestowed upon the county a bountiful harvest in field and orchard, had given us just the kind of weather required to complete our happiness.

The fair was a success in every respect. No accident or hurt of any kind; no disturbance of any character. It was a peaceful, orderly and well-behaved army of pleased people.

Oakland was crowded all through the fair week. Its streets were full of people, from all over Garrett County and from many near-by cities and villages.

No objectionable characters prowled our streets; the light-fingered gentry were not here. Oakland was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Some of the business houses very neatly and attractively decorated. Many private residences were decorated. Oakland had on its holiday attire and its citizenship did everything they could do to make the visit of our guests pleasant and profitable.

Squire Rudisill had the prize window, a splendid display of the fruit of the orchard, grain of the field, and vegetables of the garden. The specimens, some of them quite large.

The Second fair of the Garrett County Agricultural Association closed in the most successful manner. Everytrue, loyal citizen of the county well pleased and happy because of the very complimentary words of those from a distance. It was a farmer's fair. The father, the mother, the daughters and the sons of the Garrett county farmer had a hand in its marvelous success. We all felt, "It is our Fair", hence there was a happy, contented, gladsome people taking in the fair and its great lessons.

THE FAIR GROUNDS.

As to general appearance of a County Fair, not only as to exhibits, but as well as to the usual side shows that accompany a fair, the fair of 1914 was a great improvement over the effort of 1913. The amusement features were interesting, amusing and entertaining, and unobjectionable. The A. J. Glaze Amusement Co. pleased the general public. A ride on the Ferris Wheel was an experience never before enjoyed by Garrett countians.

There were a dozen or more stands where you invested your nickles seeing snake eaters, playing with geese, throwing balls, and doing "other things". Souvenirs of all kinds were sold in large numbers, both outside and inside of the grounds.

The new horse stable was needed to care for the large exhibit of horses and colts and with its lock box stalls was greatly appreciated by the horse owners.

A, D. Naylor & Co., of Oakland, had a large tent in which they exhibited various kinds of agriculture implements and also occupied additional ground to exhibit wagons, etc., showing the very large line of farm needs they carried in their big store-room and warehouse.

Walters, of Deer Park, dealer in farm machinery, made a very creditable exhibit, showing to the man of the soil his up-to-date line of goods.

THE MAIN BUILDING

First floor—The officers of the Association occupied Mr. Brown's office as their headquarters. Here President Sliger, Secretary Hamill and Assistant Secretary Paul E. Mitchell, transacted the business end of the fair while Vice President J. A. Kelly had his headquarters "in the field."

Harvey J. Speicher & Co., had stalls on this floor for four splendid horses,

FORESTRY EXHIBIT A FEATURE OF THE FAIR

Educational Display by State Board of Forestry Pleasing Attraction

A feature of the successful Garrett County Fair that was most interesting to visitors from an educational point of view was the display provided by the Maryland State Board of Forestry, and under charge of Mr. Chapin Jones, the Assistant State Forester.

The exhibit consisted of (1) a collection of specimens of wood from all parts of the State, showing the grain and the bark in its natural condition; (2) a collection of insects, moths and butterflies that injure forest and shade trees, and examples of their work; (3) maps of Garrett and other counties showing location, kind and amount of standing timber; (4) diagrams showing the proper way to doctor an injured shade tree, the proper way to make an improvement cutting in young timber, etc., and (5) charts showing among other things the present stand of timber in the counties of Maryland (Garrett County leading) and the reduction in the amount of damage done by forest fires in Maryland, due to the watchfulness of the wardens and patrolmen: While the damage in 1913 to merchantable timber alone amounted to $42,000 in Maryland, this was less than in previous years, and was an encouraging indication that the hard work of the forest wardens in enforcing the fire law is accomplishing results;

The free publications on forestry matters prepared by professor F. W. Besley, State Forester, were distributed to all who wished them, including the recently published forest map and report on the condition and needs of the Garrett county forests. This excellent report is being sent free to all citizens of Maryland who apply to the State Forester for it.

Mr. Jones states that while in Garrett county he selected seventeen trees on Backbone Mountain from which logs are being cut to complete the collection of Garrett county woods. This work is being done by Mr. D. W. Wilson.

An extended trip through Garrett county was also arranged, on which Mr. Jones will deliver lectures on Forestry, illustrated with colored lantern slides. These lectures will be given principally in the school houses and churches in the wooded districts.

A Sweeping Campaign.

Next week half a hundred West Virginians will invade Garrett county. They will have a brass band with them. They will come in ten Automobiles. They will drive all over Garrett county and make a noise like a temperance cyclone. They come at their own expense, giving two days to active temperance work. They will hold public temperance meetings every day. They come to help us carry Garrett county for Local Option. They will be interesting speakers. Make your plans to hear these men when they get into your locality. Get every body out to the meeting, men, women and children. Make things lively. Strike for God, home and the safety of your fellow man.

The itinerary will include: Tuesday Oct. 13th, McHenry 9 a. m.; Bittinger 10.30 a. m.; Jennings 11.30 dinner and meeting at noon; Grantsville 1.45 p. m.; Keysers Ridge 3.10 p. m.; Accident 4.20 p. m.; Friendsville 7. 30 p. m.

Wednesday 14th, Hoyes 9 a. m.; Swanton 10.30 a. m.; Deer Park 11.30 a. m.; Loch Lynn 1.20 p. m.; Gortner 2.30 p. m.; Red House 3.30 p. m.; Crellin 7. 30 p. m.

Ornamental Trees for Cemetery.

Two fine specimens of Norway spruce trees were sent by J. G. Harrison & Sons, nurserymen, of Berlin, Worcester county, Md., for exhibition at the fair, but arrived too late. Mr. Harrison left to Mr. McCulloh Brown the disposal of the trees, Mr. Brown very kindly gave them to the Oakland Civic Club and they will probably be placed on either side of the entrance gates to the cemetery. The members of the Civic club greatly appreciate the gift of J. G. Harrison & Son through Mr. Brown.

A Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our thanks through the columns of The Republican for the kindness shown us by our kind friends and neighbors during our bereavement.

from their famous stock farm. They were beauties and admired by all as rare specimens of horse flesh. Then came the chicken exhibit, which made a most excellent showing, greatly to the credit of the Garrett county poultrymen. Taking into consideration that this was only the second poultry show held in the county, the exhibit was exceptionally fine and one of which to be proud. Messrs. Harland Jones, Hugh H. Calderwood, W. S. Cormany, and J. H. Cuppett did their work well, and were on their job.

Second floor—This floor is 120 x 50 feet and was devoted to the display of the products of the orchard, field, garden, dairy, etc. The room was in charge, as it was last year, of Squire Rudisill, who arranged for the display for the various exhibit.

The decorations of the second floor were agricultural design, corn stalks, oats in sheaf, and yellow pumpkins. It was artistically arranged and presented a most attractive and delightful appearance. The arrangement of the tables for the showing of the grain, vegetables and fruit displayed much taste. Every thing was arranged in the best possible manner to show to the public the very large and choice products of Garrett county.

FRUIT SECTION.

Ex-Senator McCulloh Brown had charge of the fruit section. Table after table was filled with apples of many varieties, pears. peaches, quinces, crab apples, native wild plums and grapes attractively placed on plates. Never before had such an exhibit been seen in Garrett county, and seldom anywhere else equaled. It was itself an exposition worth traveling miles and miles to see.

There were 200 exhibits in this section. Every one was surprised to see such a display of Garrett county fruits. It was beyond our fondest dreams. The big apples called for exclamations of astonishment.

VEGETABLES.

The exhibits of vegetables was very choice and large, and called forth many words of compliments. The size of some of them astonished the public. They were mammoth productions of the soil, record breakers. There were sixty exhibits of potatoes; three of sweet potatoes; fifteen of cabbage; five of peppers; seven of cucumbers; thirteen of pumpkins; four of tomatoes; five of large onions; seven of mammoth beets; six of carrots; five of turnips; one of sugar beets; fifteen of squash; seven of cauliflower; six of cantaloups; four of watermellons; two of egg plant.

BOOTHS ON SECOND FLOOR.

J.M. Davis & Sons, Oakland, exhibiting washing machines, sewing machines, Domo Cream separators, Davis Patent Steel range, and other factory lines in which they deal, at factory prices. The walls of the booth were covered with illustrated printed matter advertising their line of goods. Mr. Charles S. Davis had charge of the booth. Special demonstrators were present to show up special lines of goods. W. P. Swartz, represented the Pittsburg, Pa., Steel Co., showing the durability and valuable points of their line of fencing. W. D. King represented the Chinamel Varnish Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. John L. Leachman, represented the Hubbard, Spencer, Butler & Co., of Chicago, hardware dealers. J. M. Davis & Sons distributed many souvenirs during the fair.

Pugh & Beaver, wholesale grocers, Terra Alta, W. Va., had a booth illustrating some special features of their house. Special attention was given to Crocker,s Best flour, arranged in three pyramids. Crocker's best is very popular in this vicinity; Purity brand of Roll Oats was artistically arranged in box form; Martin Wagner Co's high grade canned goods, was a leader, and it was a leader in the estimation of the public. This is a Baltimore firm. No wonder the goods are strictly-first-class and pure. T. A. Summers represented this special department. He is on his job and won many patrons for the line of goods put up by his firm. Samples were furnished the public—just a taste, enough to make your mouth water and create a desire for meal time. Mr.Geo. Pugh had charge of the booth.

The booth that attracted much attention was that of Mr. Thomas Gonder, Pharmacist. Much time and labor had been pleasantly and artistically put upon it. It was an "Autum Home," rustic construction, with ceiling and sides of well selected, beautiful branches of autumn leaves. Exhibition of special lines carried by Mr. Gonder was made.

Truman West and Harper Bartlett, presided over this booth, both pleasant and genial gentlemen. They had for sale soda water, in all flavors and ice cream cones.

A. D. Naylor & Co. had a twenty century bath room and outfit. The room, side and ceiling was in white, except a marble base of about three feet. From the ceiling was suspended a beautiful two light chandalier. There was a bath tub, lavatory, flush closet, gas stove and shower. Twice a day a boy took a bath which attracted a crowd. This was a splendid advertisement of Messrs. A. D. Naylor & Co's business. Mr. Paul Naylor was in charge. He always had inquiries about their line of goods. The exhibit was strictly first class.

Dixon & Kelso had a flour and steel fence exhibit in a very tasty booth, with autum leaves and Maryland colors. They exhibited flour, buckwheat flour, and corn meal ground at their own mill, and Wingold high grade flour. Also the American Steel fence posts and wire. Miss Mildred Dixon and Winnifred Weimer had charge of the booth and smiled on all who called. They gave away the Gold Medal cook book. Dixon and Kelso captured first prizes for their goods. They handle the famous Gold Medal flour.

Wade Hinebaugh, agent for the De Laval Cream Separator, had the next booth. This was a very attractive booth for the farmer's wife. A. C. Fike was in charge, to explain the advantages and possibilities of this separator. He handed out much advertising matter.

The "brick house" was occupied by D. E. Offutt & Sons. The house was decorated with autumn leaves and presented a very pleasing appearance. This booth was used to show up the popular 57 varieties of Heintz goods, for the table. The demonstrator was Mrs. J. Lindsay Reed, of Fairmont, W. Va., who had the people tasting the things put up by that firm. The samples were greatly enjoyed.

The Republican booth in the Garrett County Fruit section, gave out Wednesday the paper of the regular publication of the week, several hundred copies of which were eagerly picked up by the public, glad to read about the opening of the fair which was covered by a two column write up.

THIRD FLOOR.

Messrs. Joseph McComas and John Hart occupied a corner of the large hall for a lunch stand, where they served nice sandwiches, pies, etc. To the right as you entered the Hall was the Women's rest room.

When one entered the main room they were astounded at the magnificent picture spread out before them. Wonderful! Magnificent! Splendid! were some of the exclamations made. What else could you expect, when the Ladies' Civic Club of Oakland was back of it. It was the creation of their brain and hands. They are a mighty organization for the City Beautiful.

The Henry Weber Sons Co., had a booth of their own creation. Flowers, ferns, rhododendron, vines, autumn leaves, lillies, hanging baskets, etc, artistically arranged so as to produce the most pleasing effect. There were four massive magnificent corner pieces of vines, autumn leaves, and flowers of many bright colors; there was a space between each corner design. In the center, surrounded by walks was a square of the beautiful things grown at Weber's plant, arranged only as the Webers plan to please and astonish their patrons. "It was a thing of beauty and a joy forever".

To the right was Joseph E. Harned's booth, trimmed in Maryland colors, It was built in the form of a rectangle, 20 feet long, by 10 feet wide. It was in charge of Misses Nell Browning and Ruth Michael, and Stanley Mitchell.

In a convenient corner just outside the booth Mr. Harned had placed a settee for the accommodation of those who became fatigued, and this was occupied practically all of the time.

A very interesting display was that of a number of different kinds of spices, such as cinnamon, ginger, etc., both before and after grinding. These spices, which are prepared by Gilpin, Langdon &Co., are kept in stock by Mr. Harned.

A fully equipped soda fountain was placed in one end of the booth, and various drinks were served here.

A great many souvenirs and samples were distributed by Mr. Harned, including beautiful calendars, roses for the ladies, pencils for the children, samples of Kresol Dip for the farmers, and an excellent "First Aid" handbook, published by Johnson and Johnson.

Art White, Oakland's exclusive groceryman, was on hand with some specialties carried in his down town store, samples of some of the good things he carries. He gave out samples of breakfast food, etc. The booth was festooned in Maryland colors on black back ground.

The famous White House Coffee Company had the next booth, all done up in white, cheeful looking and inviting. The booth was in charge of E. S. Wallis Clarksburg, W. Va. Sample cups of the delicious coffee was served and enjoyed by the public.

Then came the booth of the Journal, where subscriptions and advertisements for the paper were received.

The State Foresty Department had a very interesting and instructive booth, with photographs of trees growing in Garrett County; insect, mounted on cards, that destroy the trees of our forests, samples of several kinds of trees that grow in the county, etc.

The feature exhibit is that in forestry brought to Oakland by the Maryland State Board of Forestry, of which Governor Goldsborough is president. These exhibits are educational in character, consisting of maps showing the forested areas of the State, charts describing graphically better methods of handling the farmer's wood lots, pictures of Maryland's most important native woods, etc. In order that the people who inspected this exhibit might be instructed in the different materials, the assistant State forester was sent here to answer all questions regarding the handling of wood lots and better forest management, all of which will prove very interesting to patrons of the fair.

The High School booth was artistically arranged by the students, and in it was displayed specimens of the work of the students. It was a fine illustration of the value of our school work.

D. E. Bolden's booth was unique and attractive. The walls were made of rugs and curtains, handsome enough for any home. In the room was a brass bed, and bed room suit, Hoosier kitchen cabinet, etc. It was a display hard to equal by the best store.

CLASS III. ANTIQUITIES.

This was a most interesting department and was greatly enjoyed because of the exhibition of relics of ye olden times. Mrs. Elwood Offutt, Mrs. R.E. Sliger and Miss Bess Offutt had charge of this delightful feature of the fair. They deserve much credit for gathering together so many relics of the days of the early settlers of this mountain region. The booth was arranged in imitation of a brick building, and very appropriate for the purpose used. We can mention only a few of the choice things seen.

Mrs. J. W. Leathers, of Oakland, had on exhibition the trunk Mr. Leathers' great grandmother used on her wedding trip from Washington, D. C., to Winchester, Va. The journey was made by stage. The trunk was about 24 inches in length, 10 inches wide and 12 inches deep.

A quilt made by the grandmother of Mrs. C. C. Minear, one hundred and fifty years ago, attracted much attention as did, also, a quilt made by Margaret Riley, grandmother of Mrs. S. J. Speicher, over one hundred years ago.

A dress worn by the mother of Truman Casteel, years and years ago; the dress worn by Mrs. Jane Hann, mother of Mrs. P. H. Simmons, 75 years ago; Elizabeth J. Casteel's dress, 60 years old, gave one an idea of the styles of that day.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned's mother's wedding dress was one of the nicest exhibits.

Thos. Ashby's writing, done in the year 1823, was as neat as the hand writing of experts of today.

The satchel carried by Gen. Crook, all through his campaign of the Civil war was on exhibition.

Mrs. Martin exhibited a large dinner-platter 100 years old.

Mrs. B. H. Sincell exhibited several ancient relics, among them, a plate 110 years old; a hatchet 150 years old; a tea pot, which belonged to her grand mother, 150 years old, a silver pitcher of the style of 1806.

The prize entry was the collar exhibited by Mrs. M. R. Hamill. The maker of the collar, a great aunt of Mrs. Hamill, raised the flax, spun the linen, wove the goods, knit the lace and sewed the collar.

Mr. C. C. Beachey exhibited a two headed lamb.

A tar bucket used by John Hammond as he traveled over the roads of the pioneer days, was exhibited by the Wensells.

The bedcover made in Tuam, Ireland, was the property of the late Ellen Hughes, of Hutton, this county, now in possession of her daughter Mrs. James Clark, of Pittsburg, Pa.

Wellington Crane exhibited some quilts owned by his ancestors of the early days of the county.

Fair Pick Ups.

Pugh & Beaver unloaded during the fair a car of 262 barrels of Crocker's Best flour, which was distributed among the Oakland and Mountain Lake Park merchants.

Thomas Little sold a car load of Garrett County potatoes to the Teetrich Produce Co., who had an agent at the fair for the purpose of buying ten cars of potatoes. This is what the fair is doing for Garrett County.

Dr. John Legge had to come up from Cumberland to see the glory of his Native County as shown by the exhibition made by the friends of boyhood days.

The second fair of the Agricultural Association of Garrett County closed Friday night, after three days of marvelous success, both as to the number of exhibits and persons in attendance. The exhibits were better and more numerous than those of 1913, and at the same time it was a more complete and varied assortment.

It was a fair of big things in the vegetable section. "I never saw the like", was a popular exclamation, and it was not wide of the mark. In potatoes, in cucumbers, in red beets, in pumpkins, both sweet and field, in cabbage, etc., the exhibits were simply immense and was proof positive that Garrett county soil was capable of producing the very best results and that the Garrett county farmers were capable of raising vegetables that would "astonish the natives."

The Arion band, of Frostburg, was on hand, daily. giving concerts to the delight of the patrons of the fair, and taking part in the parades. They are fine musicians, always ready and willing to do all in their power to help entertain the public. They made a host of friends during their stay in Oakland.

The judges who inspected the exhibits in the several departments were experts in their line and gave splendid satisfaction in the performance of their duty. May they often have the privilege of doing the same kind of work in future Garrett county fairs.

GREAT RUSSIAN ARMY ADVANCES

CZAR HIMSELF AT THE HEAD

Veil of Secrecy Concerning Central Russian Army Lifted as Immense Body of Men Gets Started—Tarnow Reported as Having Fallen Into Hands of Russians, While Cossacks Are Reported as Being Near Cracow.

London, Oct. 6.—For the first time there is definite news concerning the Russian central army, the great Slavish host which has been preparing for the real invasion of Germany while compaigns in east Prussia and Galicia have served to protect its flanks.

This army, estimated as of 1,000,000 men, is under the command of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, with headquarters at Brest-Litovsk, a railway junction at the intersection of the Bug and Mcukhavietz rivers.

The czar arrived at Brest-Litovsk and was accompanied to the headquarters of the commander-in-chief. It is conjectured that the presence of the monarch is for the purpose of a final conference with the commander-in-chief before the main blow against Germany is launched.

Hitherto there has been the utmost secrecy maintained concerning the presence and preparation of this force which is composed of the flower of Russia's veteran troops.

All reports signify that the most important news for the oncoming weeks will concern the advance of this army, since operations in east Prussia, south Poland and even in Galicia are really subordinate to the central campaign against Breslau.

Other news from the eastern theater of war is as follows:

In northwestern Galicia the Russians have captured the fortress of Tarnow. Cossacks are raiding within ten miles of Cracow.

In southwestern Poland in the general region of Cracow near Kielce Russian cavalry has defeated German troops sent from France to defend Cracow. Unquestionably a great battle has begun in that region, a combat which may determine the fate of Cracow and Silesia.

To the north, in western Poland, a great force of Germans striking toward Warsaw has been checked and pressed back by the Russians.

In the east Prussia-Suwalki field of operations General Rennenkampf, after routing the Germans along the river Niemen and frustrating an advance toward Warsaw from the north west, has driven a wedge between German columns acting respectively around Druskeniki and Ossowiec and has turned both flanks. Rennenkampf's large force is obviously struggling to hold at bay German strength at the east Prussia frontier so as to give time for the advance of the Russian central army against Breslau. Petrograd reports that the Russians have been uniformly successful in this strategy.

The Russians have seized all essential passes in the Carpathians and the advance of the column into Hungary has progressed fifty miles. It has crossed the river Theiss, seized the railroad to Budapest and has completely isolated the city of Szigeth.

A dispatch from the Matin of Paris says:

"The German army in the east, operating in the Suwalki region, has been cut in two. One section has been crushed between Augustowo and Suwalki, with losses amounting to 60,000 men. The second section proceeded to Mariampol, which place the Russians have occupied, inflicting enormous losses upon the Germans. The river Niemen is choked with German dead.

"An Austrian column has been decimated at Nimoukiz, leaving guns and mitrailleuses. Many prisoners were taken by the Russians."

TEDDY FLAYS WHITMAN

District Attorney Given Membership In Famous Ananias Club.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Colonel Roosevelt handed District Attorney Whitman his "credentials" as a member of the famous Ananias club in his first campaign speech for Frederick M. Davenport, the Progressive candidate for governor, at Phillipsburg.

"Mr. Whitman told me very ardently," the colonel said, "that he had voted for me in 1912. He has since denied it. He certainly couldn't have told the truth both times."

The colonel did not mince matters in discussing Mr. Murphy and Mr. Barnes and charged that the district attorney "represented machine politics, the type that tries to shield itself behind vague phrases because it lacks the courage to come out in the open."

Mrs. Goelet Now Divorcee.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Robert Goelet was given her decree of divorce from her husband, Robert Goelet.

BRITISH AID BELGIANS

King George's Soldiers Between Antwerp and Germans.

London, Oct. 6.—British troops are assisting in the defense of Antwerp Today they fought shoulder to shoulder with the Belgians in the trenches along the north bank of the river Nethe.

The correspondent of the Morning Post in Antwerp sends the following: "The Belgian field artillery is co-operating effectually with our heavy artillery. Our infantry is entrenched on the near bank of the Nethe opposite the main German forces. Two German attempts to cross the river have been smothered by our artillery."

In spite of German announcements that three forts and intermediate redoubts of Antwerp's outer defenses have been taken, reliance is placed here upon official statements by the Belgian government that no fort has been destroyed or has capitulated and that the defense is vigorous and unbroken.

Berlin (Via Wireless to Sayville, L. I. Oct. 6.—The German army headquarters issued an official statement announcing that three forts and connecting redoubts at Antwerp had been taken.

The Germans also claim that on the Nieman river they succeeded in defeating the Third Siberian and part of the Twenty-second Russian army corps in a furious battle which lasted for two days.

The Germans claim that 2,000 Russians were made prisoners and many guns were captured.

GRAIN SHIP GOES DOWN

London, Oct. 6.—Telegraphing from Ostend the Exchange Telegraph correspondent says:

"The steamer Ardmount, loaded with grain, which left Dover for Zeebruge, Holland, struck a mine. Her crew of thirty-five was saved."

The Armount was from Galveston and it is reported that when it reached Falmouth last Saturday it was ordered on to Antwerp.

The Ardmount, a vessel of 3,510 tons, commanded by Captain Ronald, sailed from Galveston Sept. 9. It was owned by the Ashmount Steamship company, Glasgow.

EXPO PAYMENTS HELD UP

Charges of Extravagance Laid Against Pennsylvania Commissioners.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—Pennsylvania has another political scandal rivaling the famous capitol scandal.

Auditor General Powell has refused to approve the recent expense accounts of the Panama-Pacific commission which went to California to arrange for a Pennsylvania exhibit at the fair. His action, with the resultant charges of extravagance, will result in an inquiry by the next state legislature.

The investigation will probe a system whereby, it is said, state funds have been squandered.

GERMANS BEND BACK FRENCH-ENGLISH LINE

Turn Comes In Battle at Roye, Hinge of Flanking Movement

TEUTONS ATTACK VIOLENTLY

Kaiser's Generals Throw Against Allies' Line at Roye Overwhelming Number of Men—Allies' Enveloping Movement Around Von Kluck's End Continues Without Interruption. Roye Assault May Check It.

Paris, Oct. 6.—Germany's harassed right wing army advanced in a series of massed attacks against the French and British north of the river Oise in the region of Roye.

General Alexander von Kluck's forces assailed the allies in new counter attacks designed to break down the pressure under which the kaiser's line of communication into Belgium has been placed in jeopardy. The French and British were driven from some positions by the fury of the German onslaught and the line is bent considerably but not broken.

Meanwhile the Germans have apparently failed to check the flanking movement, whose point, according to unofficial information, is within sixteen miles of the Belgium frontier, more menacing than ever to Von Kluck's western line.

Official admission of the first French reverse for several days, a setback in the region where success was noted on Sunday, was contained in this communique:

"On our left wing to the north of the Oise the battle continues with great violence. The result remains indecisive. We have been obliged at certain points to yield ground.

"Along the remainder of the front there has been no change."

Later this communique was issued: "The general situation is unchanged.

"On our left wing fighting still continues. In the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse we have repulsed attacks both by day and by night.

"Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian army, has sent a telegram announcing the Russian victory at Augustowa to the minister of war to be communicated to General Joffre. General Joffre has sent in his name and in the name of the French army his most hearty congratulations to the generalissimo of the friendly and allied army because of the victory as an indication of future successes."

General Joffre, as far as revealed, points to a drive at Mons and Brussels while holding fast in the main battle line. This contemplates the relief of Antwerp as well as a weakening of the German center necessitated by army corps sent from the center to support Von Kluck.

All officials here united in characterizing the general situation as satisfactory. The armies at the front are being constantly augmented, while it is certain, judging from wireless messages intercepted by the field forces, that for the present at least the Germans are at the end of their resources.

They have been compelled to send so many troops to the east to hold the Russians that there are present no additional troops to reinforce the western fighting line of Generals von Boehn and von Kluck, who have already been given every possible soldier that could be spared from the center and from Alsace-Lorraine, where proceedings are at a standstill.

Rotterdam, Oct. 6.—The Vossiches Zeitung's military expert says:

"Both wings of the German army are in a victorious advance and occupy strong positions for a decisive battle. An absolutely comprehensive plan of attacking the enemy by overwhelming pressure is now being executed."

GLIMPSES OF THE WAR

Paris, Oct. 6.—France's grain crop, according to the agricultural department, has exceeded expectations. It is estimated at from 60,000,000 to 82,000,000 quintals.

MAY BE PENROSE INQUIRY

Palmer's Charges Bring About Change of Attitude Among Senators.

Washington, Oct. 6.—The appearance of Representative Palmer, Democratic candidate for senator from Pennsylvania, before the senate committee on privileges and elections and charges he made against the use of money in the campaign in the interest of Senator Penrose caused a change in the attitude of the committee toward an investigation, and it was predicted that an investigation would be ordered.

The charge was made by Mr. Palmer that a fund of $150,000 had been raised in Pittsburgh alone by assessments upon manufacturers imposed by an organization known as the "Pennsylvania Protective union" to be used to aid the nomination and election of Penrose. Mr. Palmer charges that the union was organized to promote the candidacy of Penrose and produced letters to prove it. He charges also that the retail liquor dealers' association had sent out letters to saloonists throughout the state urging support of Penrose.

Mr. Palmer told the committee that the federal law and the Pennsylvania corrupt practices act were both being violated and the only way to get the facts would be to have an investigation.

REPUBLICANS TO FIGHT FOR PROTECTION

Candidate for Senator Defines the Leading Issue Following His Nomination.

Reaffirming their allegiance to the doctrine of protection to American industries and scoring the Democratic administration for imposing on the people additional burdens made necessary by the reduction of the tariff, the Republicans of Maryland in State Convention assembled, Friday evening announced their readiness to go before the people on this paramount issue of the coming campaign.

It was a militant body, representing every section of the state, that gathered in Albaugh's Theatre and gave voice to the demands of a people demanding a return to a sane and safe government and judged by the enthusiasm of the great assemblage and the spontaneous applause that greated the utterances of the speakers, those who have predicted and hoped for spiritless opposition are doomed to disappointment.

No convention held in recent years has been so well attended and certainly at none since the Republican party became divided, has there been such an array of representative men as on last evening, when every leader from the Governor down, announces himself as on the firing line and fully prepared to give battle to the common enemy.

The only notable absentee was National Committeeman Jackson, and he sent a telegram explaining that business matters demanding his attention prevented his attendance, but declaring his readiness to render every assistance in his power to bring about the election of the Republican ticket.

With the delegations were seated the county and city leaders, none of whom was missing. Governor Goldsborough, Collector Stone, Colonel Wilcox and other prominent in the party councils occupied seats on the stage.

It may, therefore, be inferred that the Republicans are alive to the situation and imbued with a confidence that will not be denied. The candidates for Congress, with the exception of Robert F. Duer, of the First district, who was unexpectedly called away, were present and made brief addresses, all of which were to the point. Governor Goldsborough was called upon for a speech and he responded, but the principle address was that by Col. E. C. Carrington, Jr., the candidate for United States Senator, who received a rousing welcome following his nomination and who outlined the issues of the campaign.

The oratorical ability and sound logic of men like Sydney E. Mudd and Senator Zihlman justified the expectation of statesmenlike addresses, nor was the audience disappointed; while the direct and business-like talks of Messrs. Hammond and Janetzke were all that could be desired.

Every speaker found in the policies of the Democratic administration a vulnerable spot and pound it unmercifully. They fortified their contentions with facts and figures, proving beyond doubt the accuracy of their statements. The high cost of living was traced directly to the reduction of the tariff, which fact became manifest before the war in Europe began, and Mr. Heaps made the hit of the evening when, in the course of his address, he declared that the attack on big business to reduce prices had a contrary effect, as was evidenced in the jump in the price of sugar, which prior to the cutting down the duty sold at 4½ cents, and since then had jumped to nine cents.

Governor Goldsborough also made a strong address. He said the splendid gathering of Republicans showed that the flag that had been lowered was again placed at the mast head. Every Republican, he said, should obey the call and follow the flag. He said he had no grievance against any man, and any friend of his who failed to vote the ticket in its entirety did not deserve that friendship. The election could not be won by talk, he said. There must be work, and the most important is that of registering the vote. A better showing should be made than that in the first two days, and he urged every Republican who is loyal to his party to get ont on the firing line and do his duty. The Governor also urged all the Progressives to come back. The differences were not so great, he said, that they could not be adjusted. His speech was greeted with hearty applause.

The convention was quietly organized. It was called to order by Chairman Galen Tait, of the Republican Committee, who in a brief speech, called attention to the important work to be done, and special reference to the registration.

He then called for nomination for temporary chairman, and Mr. Dawson, of Montgomery, nominated Gen. J. Kemp Bartlett. He was elected by acclamation and escorted to the chair by Mr. Dawson and ex-Congressman Kerr, of Dorchester. Ames Woodcock, of Worcester, was elected secretary.

In taking the chair, General Bartlett, after congratulating the Republican party on again being united, predicted that if the Democratic policies were adhered to the business conditions in this country would be more unsatisfactory than now, when the European war shall have ended, for there the pauper labor of Europe, made so by the war, will work at even lower wages because of conditions then prevailing than heretofore, and American industries must suffer.

When he concluded, the committees on permanent organization and resolutions were named, and it was while these were out that the candidates spoke.

Colonel Carrington spoke, in part, as follows:

About a year ago my distinguished friend, George R. Gaither, whom the Republican party in the past has delighted to honor, said that the Republican party in this state was dying as rapidly as it could. If he were here tonight and saw this gathering of Republicans and former Progressives, he would have to say that this is the livest gathering of ghosts and spectres that ever assembled in political conclave. The Republican party is not dead. In New Jersey it showed that a political resurrection had been accomplished; like in Maine.

The Republican party had its mission in 1854, when it met for its initial convention under the Oaks of Jacksontown, Mich. It had its mission in 1856, when it held its first national convention and nominated John C. Fremont for the Presidency, at which convention it adopted a resolution repudiating slavery and polygamy. It had its mission in 1860, when it nominated Abraham Lincoln and adopted a resolution guranteeing a protective tariff for the maintenance of the United States government and for the protection of the American manufacturer, farmer and wage-earner. It has its mission in 1896, when it elected William McKinley on a protective tariff platform that repudiated a debased currency proposal, and which platform was subscribed to by the voters of Maryland at the general election, at which a Republican majority of nearly 40,000 was rolled up in this state for Mckinley and Hobart. It has its mission in 1916—to wrest control from the Democratic party of the House of Representatives and the United States Senate.

The Secretary of the Treasury has sent out an S. O. S. message to the country to the effect that the banks of this country are unwilling to lend their money—and why? Because the banks of this country, the business men of this country, the farmers of this country have no confidence in the Democratic policies that have been put into effect by the administration in Washington. We do not require more money in this country—we require more credit, more confidence—in not only each other, but in those who are in charge of the governmental functions of this country. Business interests, both large and small, have no confidence in Democratic policies. If a Republican Senator is elected by the people of Marvland, together with a majority of the candidates for the House of Representatives, it will demonstrate to the whole country that the Republican party is reunited and that we are at the threshhold of good times and prosperity.

During the first ten months the tariff was in effect $102,000,000 worth of goods were imported into this country in excess of the amount of the same foreign made goods that were imported into this country during the same period the year previous, and for the ten months the new tariff had become effective the revenues from the tariff had decreased over $30,000,000. In other words, we brought into the country over $100,000,000 of goods over what we had imported the year before and made a present to the manufacturers of Europe of over $30,000,000, which would have otherwise been applied toward the maintenance and support of the United States government, and we have the spectacle of our government passing a war tax in time of peace to make up for a deficit that occurred before the war in Europe broke out.

A word to my Progressive friends who are with us tonight, as to the recall of judicial decisions. I have always steadfastly opposed these two proposals. In our frontier states, "white cap" societies were perhaps necessary instruments to effectuate form of speedy justice in localities where the law did not serve. The recall of judges in California may have been and may be now a necessary instrument of popular relief against the oppression of the ring that for many years dominated California. But in Maryland there is no reason to invoke the principle of the recall of judges or the recall of judicial decisions. Our judges are upright.

The mission of the Republican party is to restore confidence and by restoring confidence bring about the prosperity and good times that obtained in this country after the election of William McKinley in 1896.

Vote for me, not because my name is Carrington, vote for your candidates for Congress, not because those gentlemen from the various congressional districts are labelled Duer, Mudd, Zihlman, Hammond, Janetzke and Heaps, but because they bear the same label that William Mckinley bore when he lifted this country from the slough of Democratic despond to the sunny heights of national prosperity.

Let us have, my friends, four more years of the full dinner pail that obtained when Republicans were in control of the White House and the two bodies of our National Congress.

At the conclusion of Colonel Carrington's address the convention adjourned.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1914.

So far Congress has not offered to help raise war revenues by parting with that petty mileage graft.

AND what's to become of that Democratic campaing circular launding President Wilson's success in Mexico?

IT took the house seven hours to pass the $105,000,000 war tax bill, but it will take the people a good deal longer to pay the taxes.

THE State of Pennsylvania celebrates two arbor days each year—one for spring planting and one for the fall—in April and October, respectively.

PRESIDENT WILSON has decided to stay at home and write letters during the campaign, preferring the clack of the typewriter to the cheers of the multitude.

SENATOR REED of Missouri, declares the Democrats are playing the hypocrite in auti-trust legislation. As he is a shining light of that party he ought to know, if anybody does.

THE official majority for prohibition in the recent election in Virginia is 30,-765. The total vote was 148,137. Twenty-one counties voted against prohibition and seventy-one for it.

THE Pennsylvania woman who thought she had the world's record in a quilt containing 4,640 pieces has been sadly outdistanced by a Mingo, Ohio, claimant who has produced one having over 13,000. Can any Garrett county woman qualify in this contest?

THE Underwood bill in seven months caused a falling off in the balance of trade in our favor amounting to $248,-000,000. The benevolent Democratic party has robbed us of that amount of wealth, besides spreading distress throughout the land.

IT has cost Senator John Walter Smith, of Maryland, $5,500.14 to secure his renomination by the Democratic party for the United States Senate. This is indicated by further statemente of expennes submitted to the Secretary of the Senate by the Marylander.

CONGRESSMAN Lewis will spend next week in Frederick county. He will visit every election district, and will address 10 or 12 meetings, speaking often twice a day. In the meantime he will draw his $20 per day as Congressman from the Sixth Maryland district.

THE Advocate of Lonaconing truthfully says: If the United States were manufacturing the goods consumed at home, we would have prosperity, and if we had a sufficiently high import duty on goods imported, we would have sufficient revenue without question. What is needed now economy and not new taxes. War tax in the time of peace speaks of the misfit of the Democratic tariff reforms.

WITH the nomination of Lewis F. Kefauver, of Middletown, by the Progressives four tickets—Republican, Democratic, Progressive and Prohibitionist—will be in the field in the Sixth district. Mr. Kefauver ran for the Legislature on the Progressive ticket last year, and received 411 votes in the county. He is a member of the Farmers' Association and one of the original third party men in the county.

THE fair which closed last Friday was a magnificient advertisement of the adaptability of the soil of Garrett county for the successful propagation of vegetables of all kinds. It established the fact that the Garrett county farmer was on the job. The horse and cattle department was certainly a credit to the gentlemen who made the exhibits. The attendance was large, the largest number of people ever assembled at the county seat. All in all the fair was a great success.

IN making this (the war tax) a conspicuous part of their attack on the Democrats, the Republicans will not be indulging simply in buncombe. They will not be obliged to confine themselves to the mere accusation that the party in power had to resort to extraordinary need; they will be able to give weight to their charge by pointing to the obvious fact that in order to justify extraordinary taxation it should be show that the resources of economy had been exhausted before those of unusual taxation were drawn upon.

THE Republicans of Garrett county should organize in every election district, so as to get out the full party vote on November 3. The approaching election should place Garrett county in its old time place, as loyal supporters of the principles which made the United States one of the greatest nations of the world. The election of Mr. Carrington as United States Senator, and Mr. Zihlman as Congressman from this district is an assured fact, if the Republicans will be loyal to their party. There is no question about this. There is no reason why any Republican should vote for John Walter Smith rather than for Mr. Carrington, or why they should vote for David J. Lewis rather than for Senator Zihlman. The candidates of the Republican party are the equal, in every respect, to the candidates of the Democratic party. The only difference, one is a Democrat and the other a Republican. Mr. Lewis is held up as the special friend of the laboring man; that he grew up surrounded by the burdens and toils of the man who "earned his bread by the sweat of his brow." It is true, but so did Senator Zihlman. Mr. Zihlman knows by a bitter experience what it is and was to labor hours and hours to provide bread and butter for the home. Mr. Zihlman in his six years in the Senate at Annapolis proved himself a friend in need and indeed to the laboring man. He is personally interested himself in their behalf. He espoused their cause, he enthusiastically worked for the passage of laws that would be of benefit to the miner, the lumberman and others who worked for a living. He was constantly laboring in their behalf. Directly he done more for the local man of toil than did his opponent. We ought to give Mr. Zihlman 1000 majotity this fall.

SHORT RUN

Quite a number of farmers from this section attended the fair at Oakland last Thursday and it is useless to say that everyone enjoyed it thoroughly. Messrs. J. H. and Milo Wilson, who were among the exhibitors from here, carried off quite a number of blue ribbons, also a few reds and yellows.

Miss Lois Harvey left on Monday of last week for Beacon, Iowa, where she will spend several weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. Granville Harvey is spending a few weeks with his family at this place.

Professors Zeale and Marville, principal and vice-principal of the Kitzmiller high school, and Mr. Wm. Davis, manager of Miller Drug Co.'s store at Kitzmiller, spent a very pleasant Sunday at the home of Mr. J. H. Wilson.

Rev. J. E. Scott preached his last sermon before Conference here Sunday to a very attentive audience. Mr Scott was greatly liked here and we hope for his return next year.

Mr. Wm. J. Wilson, of Gorman, this county is spending a few days here visiting his brothers, J. H. and Daniel Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harvey and Miss Evelyn McNeely, of Hendricks, W. Va., have been spending a few days here the guests of Mrs. S. E. Harvey.

Those who spent Sunday at the home of Daniel Wilson were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Pool, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pool and family, all of Kitzmiller.

Mr. George Wilson, one of our most popular young men, has had his name enrolled as a member of the "Royal Entertaining Committee" of this district. It is wonderful to see the great interest George takes in the amusements of the younger set, as it seems to please him greatly to have the opportunity of showing the doll babies to Mr. Warnick's youngest,

Mr. J. T. Harvey was visiting his son at Crellin the latter part of last week.

Mr. Granville Harvey made a business trip to Pittsburgh recently.

Wm. J. and Daniel Wilson spent Sunday with the venerable Abraham Wilson, at Altamont.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Gertie Thraves and daughter left the Park Wednesday for Washington, D. C. to visit for a time, then they will go to Norfolk and Richmond to see relatives and will return to Oklahoma about the first of December, Tuesday evening they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rudisill.

P. B. Gough, the assistant of H. B. Harvey, of the peoples' store, this place, went to Baltimore Monday morning to purchase their stock of fall and winter goods.

The B. & O. fast trains do not stop at the Park unless flagged and then only for passengers to and beyond Cumberland and Grafton.

T. B. Doman, the village miller, is happy in capturing one first prize and two second prizes at the Garrett County Fair.

Rev. Marquiss is attending Conference at Fairmont this week. Several of the Methodist people are wondering whether they will have a new preacher next year or not. Mr. Marquis has a host of friends in the Park.

A. W. Miller and J. L. Widdowson have gone to the Hagerstown fair, where they will conduct a lunch stand. From there they will go to Frederick fair.

The Park friends of Harry Richardson will be glad to learn that he is building a home for himself and family in Piedmont.

Thomas Deveny and family motored from Fairmont to the Park the latter part of last week and took in the fair at Oakland.

The Park escaped a dangerous fire last Friday. While most everybody was at the fair, two children got hold of a box of matches, gathered up a lot of leaves, took them under the Miller cottage, on the corner of H Street and Oakland avenue and set them on fire. Fortunately Mr. Ford was painting the Dixie cottage at the time. He and his assistant got to the scene in time to save the property from burning and possibly prevented a general fire which would have laid in ashes Braethorn, Hotel Chautauqua and several cottages. The placing of matches within the reach of the children is a dangerous practice.

The apple crop in this vicinity is immense. A number of farmers are giving apples away to those who will go after them, others are selling apples on the tree to those who pick them at 15 cents a bushel, some have turned their hogs in to eat the fallen fruit.

The electric light plant closed down Friday night. Those who have business out doors at night time carry lanterns.

The ice man has ceased to make his usual rounds and the housekeeper has to trust to luck to keep the milk from souring.

The harvest is past, the summer is ended and we'ns have gone into winter quarters. This winter we will have to go to the station or Oakland to buy our eatings, for our store has left us. Well, thank fortune it is only eight months more until the season of 1915 will open up. We will adopt the watching and waiting policy.

In its autumn dress the Park is as pretty as a picture. The sunset last Saturday was beautiful beyond description.

Dr. Louis Prevost spent the week end here. We were all glad to see him home again.

Mrs. L. B. C. List and Miss Ruth Rudisill of this place, captured a number of prizes at the fair for preserves, jellies and spiced fruit.

Mrs. J. Grant Hayden and daughter, Miss Helen, are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Frank Arnold leaves today for Morgantown, W. Va.

Sunday School Work in State Grows.

The Maryland Sunday School Association, which had been in session at Hagerstown for several days, adjourned last week.

The Rev. B. W. Kindley, secretary of the association, submitted his report, which showed that 23 counties in Maryland have been organized.

Sixty-eight district conventions have been held. The total number of meetings in cities, counties and districts is 214, with an average attendance of 250. The report stated that the association, through its various auxiliaries, has reached at least 53,750 persons.

The report stated that the teachers training department was steadily growing, 80 classes being enrolled.

The number of accessions recorded into the church, it was stated could not be accurately determined, but but testimonials from pastors say that from 85 to 90 per cent, of accessions come from the ranks of the Sunday school.

The temperance department has to its credit 43,372 temperance pledges signed since November 9, 1913.

Thousands All Over Country Responding to "S O S" Wireless Sent Out by Churches

GO TO CHURCH!

Think for one minute what this world would be without churches. Are you doing your part to support them by your attendance? In recent years there had been a surprising falling off in church attendance figures. People stayed away from church—some because they had lost faith, but the great number simply because they had become apathetic. It was time that this apathy ceased. And it has to a large extent. With the advent of the GO TO CHURCH movement there has been a splendid awakening all over the country. Religion had only been dormant.

The GO TO CHURCH call found a ready response. New churches have sprung up in many quarters. The old churches, which for some time past were remarkable for their empty pews, suddenly took on new life. The pews were filled. Men and women who had not been to church in a decade came back to the fold. They brought with them others.

THE CHURCHES SENT OUT A "S O S" WIRELESS. NEWSPAPERS HELPED. SO DID THE TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANIES. SO DID THE TRADESMEN. NOVEL IDEAS FOR WORKING UP ENTHUSIASM WERE PLENTIFUL. IN CHICAGO, FOR INSTANCE, FIFTY BARBERS IN SHOPS ON THE WEST SIDE WERE ENLISTED. THE PLAN OF INTERESTING THEM WAS HIT UPON BY A CLERGYMAN WHILE UNDERGOING A RAZOR OPERATION. HE ASKED THE BARBER TO REFER TO THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT WHILE SHAVING HIS CUSTOMERS, AND THE ARTIST OF THE STROP CONSENTED. SHOP AFTER SHOP WAS VISITED UNTIL FIFTY AGREED TO SPEAK ABOUT THE MOVEMENT. THE PLAN WORKED WONDERFUL RESULTS. ALL THAT THE PEOPLE WANTED WAS A REMINDER. THE STORY OF CHICAGO IS THE STORY OF HUNDREDS OF OTHER PLACES. EVERYBODY HELPED THE THING ALONG. DO YOUR PART.

REV. WM. W. SHEARER ORDAINED

At the Episcopal Church In Oakland Friday Morning.

By concurrent opinion the elevation of the Rev. William Welton Shearer to the order of priesthood, in St. Matthews Protestant Episcopal Church, Oakland, Friday, October 2nd, 1914, marks an epoch in the services of that congregation exceeding in magnitude and solemnity of interest any event in its history. A serene autumn day of unobstructed sunshine lent its sober glories and bracing breezes to the fulness of a perfect day.

Ensconsed in a grove of shapely oaks crowning a lofty eminence of natural beauty, the sacred edifice has the quiet charm and restful seclusion most happy for a peaceful meditation and a sweet communion with better things. This churchly structure came into being soon after the storm and stress of the Civil War, and under its shadows are the graves and tombs of many known among its friends and founders.

A popular affection cherished in more than one diocese, attracted to the proceedings relatives and friends from Cumberland, Keyser, Piedmont and other towns and rural points. Close to the hour named a procession of surpliced priests, followed by the Bishop of Maryland, the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, in his eccleastical robes, moved slowly down the main aisle to places arranged within the chancel rail. In addition to the Bishop, seated over the chancel, were the Rev. William Welton Shearer, nominated for priestly orders, Rev. William Cleveland Hicks of Cumberland; Rev. Robert Benedict, of Pennsylvania; Rev George A. Gibbons of W. Va.; Rev. R. E. L. Streider of W. Va.; Rev. Jacob Brittingham of W. Va.; Rev. A H. Beaven of W. Va.; Rev. J. L. Martin of Maryland and the Rev. Frederick Lange of Maryland. At morning prayer the Epistle was read by the Rev. Mr. Benedict, and the Gospel was read by the Rev. Mr. Gibbons. At 10:30 o'clock A. M. the ordination sermon was delivered by the Rev. Jacob Brittingham of Wheeling, W. Va. Based upon a selection from the 1st chapter of the Gospel of Luke, 8-17, this sermon of force and thought held the strict attention of the large congregation during its delivery of forty minutes. In his impassioned peroration Mr. Brittingham charged the young candidate that if he hoped to bring perfection he must seek to find perfection, and to let alone the brilliant preaching of master minds, but serve the Lord and care for his flocks with a singleness of mind and purity of purpose that will enable him along the path of duty to keep the beacons of a spiritual service supplied and burning.

The presentation of the candidate was made by the Rev. William Cleveland Hicks, and the ordanation services with the "laying on of hands," was performed by Bishop Murray with even more than the usual earnest fervor and classic grace exceptional in the style of that famous churchman.

In the evening the sacred and solemn ceremony of the Apostolic Right of Confirmation was administered to a class of eleven by Bishop Murray.

One of the most interesting features of this occasion were the affectionate words of the Bishop to those whom he had just taken into the church.

The music and decorations were most pleasing and acceptable to those who filled the church on both the memorable occasions.

The musical program was well rendered by the regular choir, under direction of Miss Daisy Grant, the organist, assisted by several visiting singers.

Miss Almyra Traver rendered a solo at the evening service, "The Way of Peace," which was most befitting to the occasion and the times.

The audience room, chancel and altar were most tastefully decorated in autumn foliage, ferns, palms and white chrysanthemums.

The Rev. Mr. Shearer received many expressions of love and respect from Bishop Murray and visiting Clergymen during and after the ceremonies, some of whom had known him since his boyhood days. A number of visitors in the congregation also came to pay their respect and offer congratulations.

Elmer Haulenbeek, Jr., of Uplands Cottage, Deer Park, will become a Baltimore school boy on Monday, his parents taking him down on No. 16 train on Saturday. This bright little fellow has spent all his summers at Deer Park and now that school days are at hand he will only be able to spend the usual summer vacation at Uplands. His grandmother, Mrs. Geo. W. Haulenbeek, remains at Deer Park until winter is ushered in. The Garrett county climate has done wonders for her.

Unlawful Retailer Caught.

At Maysville, over in District No. 8, Newton True, against whom a former grand jury found four indictments for unlawfully selling liquor, was captured on last Saturday night by Sheriff Scott and Deputy DeWitt, who brought their man to Oakland and placed him in jail for trial in December.

Operated Upon for Appendicitis.

Mr. C. Elwood Offutt, of Oakland, was operated upon early yesterday morning for appendicitis, at the Home Sanitorium, by Dr. Hawkins, of Cumberland, and Drs. McComas and Broadwater of Oakland. Mr. Offutt was suddenly taken ill on Tuesday. The operation was successfully performed and the patient is doing exceedingly well.

In Memory.

In sad but loving rememberance, of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Sharpless, who departed this life on Sunday morning, September 27, 1914, aged 58 years, 5 months and 29 days. She leaves to mourn their loss a husband, four sons and four daughters, two brothers and two sisters, besides a host of friends. Her death has cast a gloom over our home which time can never wipe away.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still:
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

We loved her, yes, we loved her—
But angles loved her more
And they have sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were open—
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewell unspoken
She calmly entered home.

'Twas hard to break the tender cord
Where love had bound the heart;
'Twas hard so hard to speak the words;
We must forever part.

Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the days of life have fled,
And with joy in heaven to greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed.

HER HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES

Adopted By The Republican Party Of Maryland In State Convention Assembled.

We, the Delegates of the Republican party of Mary and in Convention assembled, direct the attention of the people of this State to the signal failure of the Democratic Administration to reduce the high cost of living, or to provide effective remedies for the existing prostration of business, and the attendant unemployment of labor. In its vain and misguided attempts to accomplish these highly patriotic and desirable purposes, we charge that the Democratic Administration has passed a "Tariff Law" admittedly designed to remove protection from American industry, resulting on a scale, almost unknown to this country, in the "idle factory" and the "empty dinner pail."

We are opposed to the practice of vivisection upon the great body of American business at the hands of experimentalists and doctrinaires. We charge the National administration, under the guise of attempted regulation, with enacting unnecessary and oppressive legislation, which has chilled and demoralized industrial activity.

For the first time in fifty years the country finds itself afflicted with a War Tax in times of peace. We assert that this tax is to be levied to cover a deficit in the Treasury, a condition which has previously existed only during the second administration of Grover Cleveland, fundamentlly due to Democratic extravagance and the defective financial measures of Democratic theorists.

We call the attention of the voters of this State to the fact that while a Democratic Administration is hastening to impose upon us a so-called War Tax of $100,000,000,00, the Democratic Congress, though specially pledged to economy in public expenditures, has already appropriated more than $150,000,000,00 in excess of the amount voted by the preceding Republican Congress. In this connection we lay emphasis upon the fact that by the successful opposition of a determined Republican minority the Democratic appropriation for Rivers and Harbors, familiarly known as the "Pork Barrel" Bill, has been reduced from $53,000,000.00 to $20,000,000.00.

We believe our people are ready again to intrust our Government into the hands of the Republican party under whose guidance our country has hitherto experienced abounding prosperity and our Nation taken its stand in the very front ranks of the most powerful States of the earth.

We reaffirm and declare anew our allegiance to the great Republican policy of protection to American industry, in accordance with which the vast field of American business is conserved for the benefit of the American people, and is not considered as a proper ground for exploitation by foreign capital an alien labor at the expense of the American workingman, the Americon farmer and the American business man.

We affirm our belief in such liberal advances in legislation and social justice as the just spirit of the times may demand and as are suited to the conditions and requirements of our people.

We favor the exemption from the payment of Canal tolls of American vessels engaged in Coastwise commerce. We condemn the Democratic party for having broken faith with tne American people upon this important issue. We favor every legitimate encouragement to our struggling merchant marine.

We condemn the so-called Columbian Treaty proposed by the Democratic Administration, not only as a sacrifice of National dignity and as an unrighteous expenditure of the public funds, but also as an unmerited slur upon the integrity of a former Republican Administration.

To starve the Railroads is to starve the Nation and we believe that the deplorable condition of the Railroads of the country calls for relief through the proper Govermental Agencies, fully without stint, freely without delay, for the benefit of the Railroads as public carriers and tor their hnndreds of thousands of employes.

It is with a feeling of pardonable pride that we point to the Administration of our Republican Governor, Phillips Lee Goldsborough, as being one of the most successful in the history of our State; and we affirm with confidence that no preceding Administration in recent years has exceeded it in the accomplishment of results so generally beneficial to the people of our Commonwealth.

We commend to the people of Maryland as our candidate for United States Senator Edward C. Carrington, Jr., a man entering the prime of life, charactized in an unusual degree by mental and physical energy, and peculiarly qualified by the possession of those attributes of mind and character which will enable him to fill with distinction the exalted office for which he has been nominated.

Our candidates for Congress from their respective Districts are men of unquestioned ability and undoubted integrity, successful in the various fields of endeavor in which they have been actively engaged, who will represent this State in Congress in a manner creditable to themselves and satisfactory to our people.

¶ SECOND.—This is the practical way in which any competent architect would figure the load these brick will carry. He would allow a factor of safety of four; consequently he would specify these brick for a building SIXTY-THREE (63) Stories high. Do they build that high in your locality?

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

Am I My Brother's Keeper?

A Temperance Talk to Voters

BY JASON KEP

"Am I my brother's keeper?" Cain thought not, but God thought differently and Cain had another think coming.

That Cain and Abel story was the first bible story I learned and have heard many able sermons on the subject since.

In my childhood days I looked upon Cain as the acme of wickedness, but the years of traveling up and down the earth and bumping up against all kinds of people, has caused me to modify my views, and today I look upon Cain as a pretty fair specimen.

Cain in a fit of jealous anger took a club and swatted Abel upon the coco and Abel quit business, for he was dead. Cain made excuse but it didn't go; he received punishment to fit the crime.

As to earthly punishment Cain was unfortunate. He lived about five thousand years too soon, as the lower court and slick lawyers had not been invented. Cain was a property holder. I might say that a lot of the land that Europe is fighting over today probably belonged to him; anyway you can't prove that it didn't.

Imagine Cain coming up for trial today. He would have hired a bunch of slick lawyers, put in a plea of "Brain storm" and justifiable homicide, also criminal negligence on the part of Abel. He would have had witnesses to prove that Abel unfortunately put his think tank in the place where he (Cain) was about to hit and consequently committed involuntary suicide, therefore he (Cain) was unjustly held in duress.

The ladies would have sent him bouquets and wept over him. The Yellow Journals would have printed pages of gush, and the jury brought in a verdict not guilty, but don't do it again."

Then he could have taken a trip to Europe to recuperate, come home and be received joyfully, into the best society, for he belonged to one of the oldest families.

I don't mean to say that Cain was not a bad man. His heart was not right or he would not have committed the crime. But I do mean to say that compared with a large percentage of our citizenship, who would be highly insulted if one should hint that they were not the salt of the earth, he (Cain) would loom up as a pretty good specimen of a citizen.

He in a fit of passion killed a man. While they deliberately, in cold blood help, aid and abet in the poisoning of thousands of their brothers. Yes, help to send 152,000 poor souls to drunkards' graves each year in this great Christian nation, the United States, bringing want, misery and despair to 600,000 women and innocent little children. By their vote help to perpetuate a business which produces 50 per cent of our paupers, 55 per cent of our insane, 85 per cent of our criminal court work and 90 per cent of our murders and suicides.

I tell you when it comes to the final settlement on that last great day, Cain will come just close to that diadem with the little jewels in it, as that bunch of respectable, wet voters, even if they do go to church and pray, "Oh Lord deliver us from this curse of intemperance," and sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

They are worse than the saloon keeper, for he makes no pretentions of being good, and it is their votes which permit the saloon keeper to ply his deadly trade. Giving lots of money for charity and Sunday money to convert the heathen don't help it. You can't buy your way into Heaven.

Mr. Wet Voting Church Member and Mr.-Good-Moral-Man-outsider, just take a think. Didn't the murderer on the cross make good? But say did you ever notice any place in the bible where the hypocrit ever took any prizes?

I have tried to shock you. I hope I have succeeded. It seems to take a great shock to make some of us stop and think on the evils of the saloon. With some it must strike their own family. Don't wait for that. It is to great a burden to carry through life. Join in and help to vanish old rum from your town, your county, your state and the United States and make "old glory" the stainless flag.

Don't vote for wet candidates. You know it is the only business that will cause a father to sell his baby's shoes.

Lutheran Church Affairs.

The communion services at the Lutheran church at Grantsville last Sunday morning was well attended. Accessions to the church were: By adult baptism, Harry J. Patton; by letter from other charges, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Carney and Henry Bowman. The duplex envelope system has been introduced in this charge and is meeting with approbation from most of the members. A resolution was adopted to give aid to the Lutheran church at Jennings by giving them $50 when they have themselves raised $300, said money to be used to pay a $350 mortgage still remaining on the church at that place.

New Road Completed.

A new county road has been completed recently affording a new outlet and inlet to Grantsville. It begins opposite the Casselman hotel and leads toward Salisbury extending slightly more than a mile in length, through the Dorsey, Joel J. Miller and Jacob S. Miller farms to a point near the home of Moses D. Yoder. If was built partly as a convenience to the farmers and partly because of steep grades and the deep drifts so often found on the road further west, which runs between the Gnagev and Miller farms. The new road is very even and smooth and makes a delightful driveway. Apropos of Salisbury roads the one known as the Stone House road is much frequented by automobilists, being but little longer and much better driving than the upper way. The road leads in from the National pike near the Stone House farm, and with the exception of about a mile is most delightfully well kept and the many trees afford a protection from the winter's wind and summer's heat. Several miles of this public road is in Pennsylvania and is certainly a credit to the people of that country who are keeping it in good condition.

SEED WHEAT.

One fourth year's trial of Stoner's Miracle wheat more firmly establishes our confidence in the great merit of this wheat. From our own observations we unhesitatingly pronounce it to be superior in every way to existing kinds of winter wheats.

It is a bearded variety, white chaff, grain large, plump, dark red, hard long berry type. Straw medium height, very stiff, making it almost proof against lodging. Contains more gluten than any other variety of wheat. On account of the large heads, and most of the spiklets containing 3 grains, it is a heavy yielder. Under ordinary conditions yields 10 to 20 bushels per acre more than other varieties. On account of its wonderful inclination to stool, the originator advises to sow from 1 peck to ½ bushel per acre. Our observations lead us to recommend 1 bushel per acre for this section, A smaller quantity we believe would be successful on fertile land, providing it was sown very early.

At the low cost we offer it, you can seed your land much cheaper with this wheat than with any other variety. Price $2.00 per bushel. 10 bushels or more at $1.75 per bushel. All seed recleaned and free from cockle and other impurities. Ready now.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson II.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 11, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 12-25. Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text, 1 Cor. xi, 26—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The record of this last evening on which He kept the passover and instituted what we call the Lord's supp is found more or less fully in each of the four gospels. Luke says that He sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare us the passover," and that they said unto Him, "Where wilt thou that we prepare?" (Luke xxii, 8, 9.) So should we ever ask Him concerning all our goings, and there is another question we should ask Him concerning all our doings, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts ix, 6), for we have no wisdom concerning anything, but Prov. iii, 5, 6; Ps. xxxii, 8; Isa. xxx, 21, are a very great comfort. They needed no instruction to reach the city, so He said, "Behold, when ye are entered into the city there shall a man meet you bearing a pitcher of water" (Luke xxii, 10).

They were to follow him into a house and say to the good man of the house, "The Master saith, where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?" (Verses 13, 14; Luke xxii, 10, 11.) It does not seem that the man bearing the water vessel knew what he was doing, but that he all unconsciously guided the men to the right house.

We are often unconsciously guiding people rightly or wrongly, for "Doth He not see my ways and count all my steps?" (Job xxxi, 4.)

The owner of the house must have been a disciple, for he understood and showed them the upper room furnished. Thus they found as He had said unto them (verse 16; see also Luke xix, 32).

So shall we always find it to be just as He has said. The words translated "guest chamber" are found in only one other place besides this incident, and that is in Luke ii, 7, "No room for them in the inn." There they made ready the passover. What a privilege and honor and pleasure to make anything ready for Him! Do you find it so? As He sat down with them in the evening He said that He had greatly desired to eat this passover with them before He suffered, but that He would not eat of it again until fulfilled in the kingdom of God (Luke xxii, 15-18). He Himself is our passover sacrificed for us, but as there was a great deliverance of Israel from Egypt at the first passover there will be a greater deliverance of Israel at His second coming to set up His kingdom (I Cor. v, 7; Jer. xxiii, 7, 8). After lesson verse 17 and this portion from Luke there should come in the incident of the feet washing, found only in John xiii, by which He taught them humbly to serve one another and the necessity of constant cleansing from earth's defilement. Then as they ate the passover He said that one of them would betray Him and it had been good for that man if he had never been born. No one seemed to suspect Judas Iscariot, for they said one by one, "Is it I?" Simon Peter asked John, who was leaning on Jesus' bosom, to ask Jesus who it was. He replied, "He it is to whom I shall give a sop when I have dipped it." He gave the sop to Judas Iscariot, and then Satan entered into him.

Then Jesus said to him, "That thou doest, do quickly."

Judas went immediately out, and it was night and has been night with him ever since. Before he went out he said, "Master, is it I?" And Jesus said unto him, "Thou hast said" (verses 18-21; Matt. xxvi, 25; John xiii, 25-30). According to our lesson, there followed the institution of the supper, by which, according to I Cor. xi, 26, we show the Lord's death till He come. The bread represents His body given for us and the wine His blood shed for us, and by believing we eat Himself as is explained in John vi, 47, 54, where in the one verse eternal life is the result of believing on Him, and in the other it is the result of eating His flesh and drinking His blood, so that eating His flesh and drinking His blood is just believing on Him or, according to John i, 12, receiving Him.

He said again in this connection that He would not drink any more of the fruit of the vine till he should drink it new in the kingdom of God (verse 25).

He also spoke of appointing to the twelve (some one taking the place of Judas Iscariot) a kingdom that they might eat and drink at His table in His kingdom and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel (Luke xxii, 28-30). Compare Matt. xix, 28.

While He had before Him, knowing all things, the sufferings of Gethsemane and Calvary, they were selfishly talking of who should be the greatest, and Simon was saying that he was ready to go with Him to prison and to death, not knowing his utter weakness nor that Satan was asking for him to sift him (Luke xxii, 24-34).

In His reference to swords He seems to me to be saying to them that if they could not trust Him when invisibly as well as when visibly with them they had better buy swords and take care of themselves. When He said that two swords were enough it is evident that He did not mean that each should have one.

Connect John xiii, 36-38, and xiv, 1, as if there were no chapter divisions and see how marvelous it is.

FAIR NOTES.

Ex-Senator Brown had all the apples carefully wrapped and packed in barrels. Squire Rudisill had the first prizes in grain and vegetables packed, all to go to Baltimore for use at the State fair. One of H. J. Speicher's big pumpkins will also be sent to the State fair. Garrett county will make the greatest showing at the fair in the history of the county.

Many good sales of articles exhibited at the fair were sold. One of Mr. Speicher's big pumpkins brought a dollar. The large 66 pound sweet pumpkin brought $3.

Miller McAndrews sack of buckwheat, T. B. Doman's buckwheat, graham flour and corn meal was all sold. A large amount of butter was sold. All of the maple sugar and maple syrup was sold.

Several persons attended the fair to inspect the potato exhibit. Garrett county potatoes are gaining a state wide reputation. One of these gentlemen wanted to purchase ten car loads, others one car. A number of persons purchased potatoes needed for family use.

The Swauger mill will receive an order from Baltimore city gentleman for 100 pounds of buckwheat flour; T. B. Doman of Mountain Lake Park will receive an order from the same gentleman for a barrel of graham flour.

J. M. Davis & Sons received orders for several of their patent steel ranges and for several washing machines.

Judge Kamp of Accident, stated to the reporter, that he had at least 1500 bushels of apples in his orchard and that he was feeding apples to his hogs.

The Ferris wheel, the merry-go-round and Malett's swings were the scenes of much humor and enjoyment. The usual number of fakers were on hand attracting the young folks who were eager to "try their hand" on the various opportunities to spend their money. The snake eater was watched with surprise and consternation.

The eating stands were good places to satisfy the wants of the inner man. Savage of Deer Park gave a square meal. Ice cream, hot drinks, sandwiches were served at honest prices and they were enjoyed.

Mrs. Julia Moon exhibited a sweet pumpkin that weighed 66 pounds, and pretty as a picture. She was offered $3 dollars for it.

Mr. E. W. Kelso exhibited a Florida cocanut in its hull.

An Oakland gentleman has a hen two years old, which has never moulted and has laid an egg every day for one year.

"What are you doing with that miserable looking cur, Tommy?"

"Takin' him to the dog show."

"But you can't win a prize with him!"

"Well, they may give me a special prize for showin' the kind of dog that no dog ought to be."

Thomas L. Popp, the breeder and fancier of White Wyandottes, and dealer in poultry foods, of Frostburg, attended the fair Friday.

W. G. Riley exhibited a box of potatoes, four of which weighed 10 pounds. They were, some of them, ten inches long and twelve inches in circumference.

Rev. Donachy of Friendsville, was shaking hands with his many old time friends.

One red beet, one tomato, one potato, one string bean, one cucumber, one cantaloupe and one apple would be a meal for a family. We live in a big county and produce big things.

By some misfortune a watermelon which had been on exhibition in Squire Rudisill's office window, failed to reach the fair building. The watermelon was raised by Merchant Creutzburg, of Oakland. It is six inches long and twelve inches in circumference, and is judged to be of delicious flavor. It is now on exhibition in Squire Rudisill s office. Drop around and take a look at at it. It is the only one of the kind in the county and is not for sale.

Messrs. Fred Sloan, A. S. Turner, George D. Campbell and Henry M. Hodgson of Lonaconing, drove to Oakland last Wednesday in Mr. Sloan's automobile and attended the Garrett County Fair.

There were sixty-three coops of chickens, nine coops of ducks, two of turkeys and one of guineason exhibition. They were splendid birds and spoke well of this infant industry of our county.

Temperance Sermon.

Rev. George E. Yoder, of Elk Lick, Pa., will preach a temperance sermon on Sunday night, Oct. 18, at 7.30 in the Brethren house near Accident. All are invited.

VOLUME 39. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914. NUMBER 33.

BRICK AND TILE WORKS NEAR GORTNER BURNED

The Swartzentruber Factory Destroyed Early Yesterday Morning.

About four o'clock yesterday morning the brick and tile works, apple butter factory and cider press located on the D. J. Swartzentruber farm near Gortner, were burned to the ground, along with much other material which was in the building.

The brick and tile works had been in operation for a numoer of years and just recently additional and more modern machinery was installed at a considerable cost. In addition to this industry Mr. Swartzentruber also owned and operated a steam apple butter factory and cider press, located adjacent to the tile works, which was also consumed by the flames.

The fire originated from the boiler which was located quite near a wooden partition, and had gained such headway that the men employed at the works could not subdue.

WHICH

We place at the head of the editorial column the Republican ticket to be voted upon this fall, and commend it to all our citizens irrespective of party, not alone on account of the candidates, but rather the principles they advocate, principles tried and true, born of an inspiration for "America First," put into operation years ago, and found not wanting but effective and necessary to our prosperity and progress. The Republican party of today, with its splendid achievements of the past, appeals as never before to the conservative business interests of the nation as the Monitor to guide and direct our country's affairs. The mistakes of the past have served to make it stronger and better and this is the era of its new birth, not standing upon the high wall of protection found necessary in the earlier days of the republic, nor on the other hand opening our gates of trade to compete with the meagerly paid wage earners of other nations, but occupying that strong middle ground that present conditions show is necessary, not only as a producer of reveue for the support of our government, but as a protection to our manufactures and artizans who stand at the front as splendid examples of the efficiency of our party's policies.

The Republican party today knocks at the door of common sense and reason. It points with one hand to the mistakes of the present administration, which even the smoke of battle cannot obscure, and with the other to the pages of history illumined by the record which shows how a mighty people were brought to a full measure of their destiny.

Which will you choose?

The State Roads Commission filed a motion of appeal in the case of the of the commission against threshing-machine owners of Carroll county. The commission sets forth that about a dozen owners of machines have violated the law, damaging the State highways, which cost about $9,000 a mile to build and between $400 and $500 a mile to keep oiled.

TOUCH NOT THE CUP.

SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

That mark your downward course, a mother's tears
Have fallen day by day. Her prayers go up
Each hour: Oh God, let him not touch the cup.
Wretched indeed are you; but far, far worse
Is it to follow after a dark hearse
Wherein a mother's form lies mute in death

Touch not the cup! a weeping sister pleads
As, when in shame your wayward step she leads.
A father's head is bowed because this blot
Is fallen on the name; how can you bear
To see his dear head bowed with grief and care;
His hopes denied, work of his life undone:
This yearning cry of "Absolem, my son!"

"Oh father, touch it not!" a child's sweet voice
The sound of which once made your heart rejoice,
Now pleads in tears, the dear eyes wide with fright,
Nor comprehends the terrors that each night
Brings to the home. Are they no longer dear
To you; and oh what must it mean to hear
Your own child's voice say with the good night kiss
"Dear God, don't let papa die like this!"

"O touch it not!" It is your wife who stands
A suppliant for justice at your hands.
Why let her plead for what is her's by right?
Each wretched day, each anguished, sleepless night
Is like a sword thrust in the heart; in shame
She bears her yoke, a wife in naught but name.
Will not her love suffice you to give up
The love of Rum? O, men, touch not the cup!

G. O. P. ORATORS COMING TO MARYLAND

Senator W. E. Borah and Others to Speak in Maryland Campaign.

The Republicans of Maryland are proceeding rapidly with their campaign plans, while the Democrats have not yet concluded their discussion of registration results. Monday State Chairman Tait announced a list of national Republican orators, who, he said, will be brought into Maryland during the last two weeks of the campaign. Among those expected and with whom partial arrangements have been made are United States Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho; Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota; William G. Kenyon, of Iowa, and A. G. Cummins, of Iowa. Another great leader expected is Minority Leader of the House James Mann.

With this formidable list of speakers, in addition to several others yet to be announced, the Republicans expect to offset the work done throughout the state by Secretary of State Bryan, Speaker Champ Clark and the Democratic Congressional Congressmen, who will be fired in by the Democratic Congressional Committee to make plans for the return of Democratic senators and congressmen in order that the hands of President Wilson may be upheld. The Republican orators will show by cold logic that while the President is honest that many of the policies he has enunciated and has forced Congress to enact into laws are radically bad for the general welfare of the country. The proposed federal war tax, the low tariff and other similar questions will be the issues that will be brought home to the people along with the unfulfilled Democratic promises to aid business conditions.

Meanwhile, however, the Republicans are filling in dates for meetings throughout the state with the candidates themselves and local speakers as the attractions.

Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, the Sixth district candidate, began a three-day tour through Montgomery county during which he will meet the voters in every small town and farming community. Yesterday his itinerary included Barnesville, Beallsville, Poolesville, Boyds and Clarksburg, with a windup meeting at Damascus last night.

In Washington county the Republicans also announce a plurality on the books over the Democrats of nearly 200. Incidentally there the Progressive vote fell below 60. The Republicans also claim to be well satisfied in Caroline and Carroll counties. In the two counties the Progressive totals only about 75. In Caroline county the Democrats registered 4,154, and the Repualicans 3,473, which gives the Democrats a plurality of less than 700. In Carroll the Democratic majority has also been materially reduced.

THE WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN.

The "Whirlwind campaigners" passed through Oakland Tuesday about 9 a. m. en route to McHenry. There were six automobiles and about twenty five people. Here they were joined by Mr. John W. Davis, and Attorney Jones in J. M. Davis auto, which was the pilot car on the trip. Attorney A. T. Matthews joined the campaign with his car at Accident. Mr. Harry Rasche joined the band when they arrived at Oakland and helped make the music for the occasion.

Arrangements were made and carried out for a big meeting at Friendsville. The mill at Jennings shut down at 11 o'clock so as to give the men time to hear the speeches and unite their enthusiasm with that of the campaigners.

At Deer Park the ladies of the village gave the campaigners a good temperance dinner. The two days were full of life, enthusiasm and victory, the fore runners of a most zealous campaign which was to follow. At last Garrett county has awakened to the situation and from this on there will be something doing every day.

The cars of the campaigners were appropriately decorated with the stars and stripes. The overthrow of the liquor shop means peace, happiness and prosperity to the nation.

The speakers were Rev. Dr. King, of Terra Alta, Harry N. Fisher, of Keyser, Dr. L. M. Robinson, Cameron, and Geo. W. Crabb, Secretary Anti Salool League, all of West Virginia.

The meeting at Swanton had to be dropped because of bad roads and bad weather. Mr. Fisher went to Red House and held the meeting for that place; about 75 persons were present. The other campaigners came to Oakland and held a meeting.

At Mountain Lake Park the places of business were closed during the meeting which was held in the U. B. church. A large crowd was in attendance.

The entire trip was one of enthusiasm.

Mrs. T. A. Fike is in a Pittsburgh hospital for treatment for nervous disorders. Mr. Fike, who accompanied her down was detained as a patient himself, having developed an attack of quinsy while there. He is now recovered and back at work for the firm of Davis Bros. of Davis, this county.

FREE LECTURE ON FORESTRY.

To Be Given In The Oakland Grammar School Building.

The State Board of Forestry will give a free illustrated lecture with beautiful colored lantern slides, at the Oakland Grammar school building Wednesday evening, October 21. All citizens of Oakland and of the county are cordially invited to attend.

A number of the slides illustrating points of the lecture are taken in Garrett county. Do not fail to take advantage of this chance to learn of trees and tree planting.

High School Notes.

Study was almost at a standstill during the past week, owing to the proximity of the Garrett County Fair grounds. With this annual exhibition over, however, teachers and students alike are looking forward to a long period which can be devoted to the regular routine of work.

The School parade took place on Friday morning, as advertised, schools from all over the county being represented. To the credit of the Oakland High School it may be said that only about five students were not in line, so that about ninety-five took part in this exercise.

The Oakland High School booth, on the third floor of the fair building, while not as large as the one last year, was nevertheless very attractive. A few pieces of furniture, made by the boys in the Manual Training room, were shown. The Domestic Science Department was well represented by a table covered with many different delicacies, all having been prepared by the girls who are taking this course. On the walls were displayed many specimens of typewriting, of English composition, of translations from Latin and German into English, of drawing, and of plane and solid geometry.

Rev. Otto Bremer visited the school a week or two ago, and gave two readings, "The Man Without a Country," and "Laska," which, jndging by the applause, were appreciated.

Plans for two debating societies in the Oakland High Schools are being considered, and these societies will probably be organized in the course of a few days.

The Freshmen held a meeting a few days ago, and elected the following officers: President, Robert Sliger; vice president, Clyde Dawson; secretary, Frank Lyon; treasurer, Mary May.

A number of Freshmen and Sophomores enjoyed a hay ride given by Misses Mary May and Elizabeth Willison last Friday night. Miss Mae Arnold acted as chaperon. The party started from the home of Miss Mary Drake Naylor, at eight o'clock, and returned at about eleven.

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL FOR ACCIDENT AND VICINITY

Plans Under Consideration to Establish Such.

It will doubtless be of general interest to know that the State Department of Education, the Agricultural College of Maryland and the Agricultural Education Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, have entered into a co-operative agreement for the purpose of outling a course in nature study and elementary agriculture for the public schools of Maryland, based on agricultural and school conditions in the State. During the past week Mr. E. A. Miller, Specialist in Agricultural Education of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, in company with Mr. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent, has been making a special study of school and agricultural conditions in Garrett County. This County was selected for study as typical of conditions in the Appalachian counties of the State. To the progressiveness of County Superintendent Rathbun is due largely the credit for this county having been brought to the attention of the National Department.

The outlines in nature study and elementary agriculture previously referred to are to be prepared as a guide to the teachers in the public schools of the State in teaching the agriculture adapted to Maryland conditions at the time of year when the work is or should be done on the farm. It is hoped to make simple and effective the work of the teacher.

The teachers of the county will be interested to know that the outlines mentioned are to provide lessons in nature study and agriculture after a monthly sequence plan, practical exercises, suggestive correlation exercises with other public school branches and references to adopted texts and to State and U. S. Department literature free and available to teachers.

The County Board of School Commissioners are seriously contemplating the establishment of a department of Agriculture in connection with one of the rural high schools of the county. Mr. Miller met the Board for a conference while he was in the county. A number of points was considered at this conference such as the character of a suitable location, the number of acres of land necessary in connection with an agricultural high school, the number and qualifications of the teaching staff. As a result of the conference and a visit to Accident by the County Superintendent and the Washington Specialist, the Commissioners look with considerable favor on that place us a suitable location. A body of ten acres of land lying just to the rear of the new school building is well suited to the purpose of a school farm. If the citizens of the community could see their way clear to contribute this land to the school, it is entirely probable that the the Commissioners would meet them half way by establishing and maintaining an agricultural high school. This would be one of the most important educational steps that the county could take just at this time.

Heavy Yearling Cattle.

One day last week Mr. Peter A. Chisholm, of Ryans Glade, sold to Mr. George Blamble four head of yearling cattle, which weighed 4120 pounds. The individual weights of the cattle were; 1130, 1127, 973 and 890. They were raised on Mr. Chisholm's farm and had never been grain fed.

State Senator Zihlman.

State Senator Frederick N. Zihlmann, of Cumberland, was a visitor in Lonaconing Monday of this week, says the Advocate. Through his record in the Maryland Legislature and his efforts in behalf of the working man Senator Zihlman has made many friends in this region.

He was well pleased with his visit to Lonaconing and received a great welcome in both labor and business circles. Lonaconing should show up strong in Zihlman's favor at the polls next month, when the voters will choose a representative from this district to the Congress of the United States.

O'Laughlin Brothers of Westernport, and the Messrs. Pattison of Bloomington, gave a picnic to their friends in a grove back of Bloomington, Sunday Over 150 people attended.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE COLUMN

Practical Suggestions on Local Option Campaign.

What have you done? What are you doing? What are you going to do? Three great, far-reaching questions, when applied to the Local Option question. In a few days over two weeks we will be at the polls to cast our ballot, for or against Local Option. Do you feel the mighty responsibility resting upon you?

What are you going to do about it? Vote for it? So far so good. But we want more than your vote, we want your personal influence in getting others to vote for the bill. We need your assistance in this great work of redeeming Garrett county from the curse of the liquor habit.

Get busy for the next two weeks. Take nothing for granted. Visit your neighbors and talk the matter over with them. The liquor men are doing their work in many ways, quietly, persistently. It is up to you to counteract their influence.

This is our golden opportunity. Use it to the very highest degree. Christian men and Christian women use the next 18 days for God and mankind. Get terribly in earnest. Be active in season and out of season.

Get the voters out early. Make it your personal interest to do so.

Garrett county dry after April 30, 1915. How much it means to the county, to the homes of the county, to the tempted men and suffering women.

Make Sunday a day of personal effort for the cause. Get a vigorous move on yourself. Talk, sing and pray. Be enthusiastic, awaken, arouse others to the duty of the hour. Keep things going.

If you failed to register, do the next best thing—get a vote for the bill, persuade, entreat others to vote for it. Do something while you may to drive the curse of strong drink from our midst. You owe it to your family, to your church, to your county and to your God, that you leave nothing undone that you can do to vote liquor out of the county, to get others to vote with you to put an end to liquor selling and drunkard making in Garrett county.

Be men. Show your colors. Opportunity knocks at your door. It may never do so again. This is your time to strike. This is the day of action. The hour of decision.

The citizenship of the State of Maryland is watching and waiting for your decision. They are looking for a great victory. Do not disappoint them.

Get awful busy every day up to and on November 3d. Do not wait for anyone else. Take hold and push, and push mightily. If you ever done anything in your life do it now.

Who is to blame for the havoc wrought by the liquor business? The saloonkeeper? Yes. The drunkard? Certainly. But are they the only ones? What accountability has the voter who votes for the saloon, the legislator who legislates for it, the judge who favors it in his court decisions, the property owner who rents his building for saloon purposes, the citizen who neglects to raise his voice and his strong right arm against the evil? Surely these cannot escape responsibility. This is a time to show on which side you are. You cannot escape condemnation unless you come out firmly, steadily and positively for the right against the saloon. There is no middle ground.

Wm. A. Sears, of Frederick, while drunk, ran his wife and baby out of the house into the rain. He was arrested and at the hearing, his wife told a story of cruelty and hardship. She said her husband would give her no money, declaring a woman's place was at home and she needed no clothes. He made her take in washing and give him the money. She said she had to work until half an hour before her baby was born, her husband saying: "You are as big as I am and can work as well as I can." She said her husband becomes wild when drunk and often beats her. Justice Anders sentenced Sears to thirty days in jail, but suspended sentence on condition that Sears would go home and behave himself.

Why I Intend to Vote for Local Option on November 3d.

Because: There are 865,000 liquor made orphans in the Udited States.

Because: Our annual drink bill would pay a five year's course of education for 2,000,000 children.

Because: The licensed saloon is making 100,000 drunkards annually—one boy in every five dies a drunkard.

Because: It has been proven that alcohol has no food value; it is a poison, lowers vitality, lessens efficiency, is degenerating and destructive to man.

Because: The cost of added crime, idiocy, insanity and pauperism, caused by drink is double the revenue from the saloons.

Because: Ninety per cent of the inmates of the State Home for Dependent children are there because of drink. Warden Tynan says: "Ninety-five per cent of the prisoners in the state penitentiary are there because of drink.

Because: As a defective link weakens the whole chain, so the state is weakened by its derelict citizens; and the state has a right to prohibit that which makes a man less valuable as a citizen. A strong, virile citizenship is the greatest asset of a state.

The Licensed Saloon as a Liar and Murderer.

Rev. William A. Sunday says: The saloon is a liar. It promises good cheer and sends sorrow. It promises health and causes disease. It promises prosperity and sends adversity. It promises happiness and sends misery. Yes, it sends the husband home with a lie on his lips to his wife; and the boy home with a lie on his lips to his mother; and it causes the employee to lie to his employer. It degrades. It is God's worst enemy and the devil's best friend. It spares neither youth nor old age. It is waiting with a dirty blanket for the baby to crawl into the world. It lies in wait for the unborn.

It cocks the highwayman's pistol. It puts the rope in the hands of the mob. It is the anarchist of the world and its dirty red flag is dyed with the blood of women and children and it sent the bullet through the body of Lincoln; it nerved the men that sent the bullets through Garfield and William McKinley. Yes, it is a murderer. Every plot that was ever hatched against the government and law, was born and bred, and crawled out of the grog shop to damn this country.

I tell you that the curse of God Almighty is on the saloon. Legislatures are legislating against it Decent society is barring it ont. The fraternal brotherhoods are knocking it out. The Masons and Odd Fellows, and the Knights of Pythias, and the A. O. U. W. are closing their doors to the whisky sellers. They don't want you wriggling your carcass in their lodges. Yes, sir, I tell you, the curse of God is on it. It is on the down grade. It is headed for hell, and by the grace of God, I am going to give it a push, with a whoop, for all I know how.

Hog Cholera Costly.

Hog cholera costs the United States $75,000,000 every year, according to experts of the department of agriculture at Washington. They regard the eradication as one of the most serious problems that faces the bureau of animal industry, for the loss caused by it approximately as great as that from all other animal disease combined. The loss from hogs killed outright by cholera in 1912 was estimated at $60,000,000. The loss to the hog industry indirectly resulting from the disease was about $15,000,000 more. The cholera is most common in the corn states of the West and South. The two other chief animal diseases are cattle tuberculosis and Texas fever.

The State Road.

O. E. Weller, chairman and H. G. Shirley chief engineer of the State Roads Commission last week made an inspection of the road from Baltimore to Oakland. The report, "Just west of Cumberland there is being reconstructed a mile of road which is the only break between Cumberland and the top of Meadow Mountain, near Grantsville. A mile of road is under way on Meadow Mountain and from that poini the work has been finished to Keyser's Ridge and on to within two miles of the Pennsylvania line on the old National road, while the section which connects up with Oakland has been built south from Keyser to a point within three miles of Accident and south of Accident there is but a mile to be finished to connect up with Oakland. This last mile will soon be finished, but the three miles north of Accident may not be completed this year, though it will be passable."

Maryland Week Essay Contest.

With a view of interesting the school boys and girls of Maryland in the agricultural development of the state, the officials in charge of "Maryland Week" have decided to hold essay contests, which will be open to boys or girls regularly attending the public schools of Maryland.

"Maryland Week" is the designation given the week of November 16-21, 1914, when the Maryland State Horticultural Society, Maryland Crop Improvement Association, Maryland State Dairymen's Association, and the Maryland Beekeeper's Association will hold their annual exhibition in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md.

The scholars of the public schools of Garrett county are eligible to enter the contest in which prizes will be given for the best essay, it is to be hoped that a number of them will enter the contest.

Correction in Fair Premiums.

Last week, in preparing the write up of the Fair, our reporter unintentionaly stated that the prize for the best variety of potatoes of all kinds was awarded to James Marshall as well as the prize for yellow onions. The prize for both vegetables went to James Aronhalt, of near Bayard.

It was stated that M. L. Calhoun recieved first prize for the best short horn cow 3 years old or over, grade; and third prize for the best short horn heifer between 2 and 3, grade. Both these prizes went to Ex-Senator McCulloh Brown, from his farm near Bayard. The mistake occured in picking up the wrong entry slip, some of them being duplicates.

SCHEME IS DEVISED TO PROTECT ROADS IN WESTERN MARYLAND.

State Commission Seeking a Solution of Problem That Causes it Annoyance

In their efforts to protect the state roads from damage from traction engines which have been traveling over them with no covering on their sharp cleats, Chairman Weller and Chief Engineer H. G. Shirley of the State Roads Commission have hit upon a plan which they hope will convince the farmers of Western Marylaud that they can get their grain threshed without injuring the highways.

Recently Judge Urner in the Circuit court of Frederick county refused the petition of the commission for an injunction to prevent the use of traction engines on the roads without covering the cleats. The petition for injunction followed the refusal of the local authorities to enforce the law enacted for the protection of the improved roads, and which made it unlawful to run traction engines over them without making the cleats harmless. Traction engine owners, who go from farm to farm threshing grain, had been telling farmers that they could not comply with the law, and if it should be enforced they could not thresh the grain; consequently the farmers have been bitter against the Roads Commission.

Now, what the Commission proposes to do is to equip an engine with filler blocks or other covering to make the cleats harmless to the roads and send it to the Frederick and Hagerstown Fairs, which are to be held in October. This will demonstrate that the engines can be used without the destructive cleats, which most of the engine owners have failed to put on because they cost $15 to $20 a set. After the engine is shown at the fairs it will be run over the state road all the way to Cumberland for the purpose of showing that the heaviest grade can be taken, and that it is entirely practicable for threshermen to comply with the law. A few of them have already met the new requirements and they testified at the Frederick trial that it was entirely successful.

A Word With the Farmer.

We advise the Garrett county farmers to make up their surplus apple crop into cider vinegar. There is always a market for good cider vinegar, and at a good price, too.

Farmers will do well to carefully sort out their potatoes. The sound, medium sized potato put away for a later market. There is no doubt but that potatoes will advance in price as the winter advances. It is not reasonable to expect a shipment of potatoes into this country from abroad. On the other hand, foreign nations will call on this country for potatoes, should the war continue for any length of time.

He is a wise man who pays attention to raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. There is a growing demand for all of the foregoing. From Tennessee alone over 900 horses were shipped to England and France last week. The indications are that this country will have to be the market for the old world now engaged in war. Great care should be taken of the stock on your farm.

Use this winter in preparing the ground for spring crops. Wheat and oats will be in great demand, so will hay.

We will have a call from Mexico for the supplies of life. A continuation of the guerilla warfare means no crops. Already the cry for the necessaries of life is heard.

This winter should be one of earnest work in every department of the farm. For next year at least there is no danger of over loading the market. Three large vessels are taking on 1,200,000 bushels of oats at Baltimore for Italy, at 75 cents per bushel. Fifty-eight steamships are booked to sail from the port of New York within the next five weeks. They will carry great quantities of American products to the several countries engaged in warfare.

We believe it would be wise to can up all the tomatoes possible. There will be a market for them. Well made sour kraut always finds a ready market. Apples carefully put up in half gallon jars would find a market near home. She and he who takes advantage of the abundance now in the orchard and field will enlarge her and his bank account and be a benefit to humanity.

These suggestions are worthy a most careful consideration. Much canning is being done all over Garrett county. The merchants report an unusual large sale of Masons jars of all sizes. Last Friday a number of Oakland merchants closed out their stock of these jars, while other merchants had only a dozen or two on hand.

Of course the splendid crop of wild plums, crab apples, pears, etc., are largely due for this sale of Masons jars. We know of a number of farmer's wives who put up beans, rhubarb, tomatoes, etc. Some of them to supply nearby lumber camps.

The market will be here, that is certain. Will the Garrett county farmer and his wife be ready for it?

Create a market for your own products. Make a specialty in canned goods. The demand will come and the business will grow.

A Temperance Talk to Voters

BY JASON KEP

"Twenty years ago only six millions of people lived in no licensed territory; now there are thirty-eight millions. Saloons have been closed thus far this year at the rate of thirty a day, and that rate will continue throughout the year. At thirty foot frontage for each saloon, that will be a mile frontage a week, or fifty miles frontage a year."

A pretty good record. While he was figuring he might have gone a little farther.

Thirty a day is two hundred and ten a week and ten thousand five hundred in fifty weeks. Now counting two poor wretches sent to perdition by each saloon would make a saving of twenty-one thousand poor souls each year.

As the average family is five then we have 21,000 times 4 equals 105,000 wives and little children who will be much happier for the change.

What wonderful results from a little work.

Oh, you church people, who send millions for the education of the poor heathen; oh, you business men, who give great sums for the same purpose, lend me your ears.

Here is a good business proposition. Divert your money and attention for a short period. Put your money and attention into this fight. Let us banish rum from our homes, from the State, from the United States and it will save hundreds of millions of dollars yearly. Save 152,000 poor souls from dying drunkards, 760,000 women and little children from want, misery and despair.

Then, instead of thousands for converting the heathen, there will be available millions upon millions of dollars.

Is it worth while? Well I guess Yes.

If your house catches on fire you immediately drop your other work and devote your full time and energy to putting out the fire. Then when the fire is out you can go back to your work with a feeling of safeey.

Now the liquor traffic is like a fire. If not checked it will destroy the whole edifice. Why not use good business judgment and blot it out and be done with it.

Oh, you church people, why, oh, why, do you not shake off that lethargy? When you come before the great bar of judgment in the last great day, what answer or what excuse do you expect to make when the Master will say, "I was an hungered and ye fed me not; I was athirst and ye gave me naught to drink—depart from me, ye accursed, into everlasting perdition."

Awaken before it is everlastingly too late.

The church people of a community or state or the United States, can pass any law or enforce any law, if they pull together and don't you forget it.

Prayer will help, but "Prayer without works is dead."

Now you know and must acknowledge, if honest that thousands of good people are kept out of the church by the inconsistency, or seeming hypocrisy, of hundreds of the church membership.

The doctrine of "do as I say, not as I do," does not make many converts.

You cannot expect outsiders to fight the battles of God and home, when the accredited army of the Lord turns tail and runs.

There is no neutral ground in this fight: You cannot sit on the fence—the top rail has spikes in it and would be very uncomfortable. You would be despised by the real forces of either side.

The fight is on, the forces are lining up. Which army are you going to join? The one which sends 152,000 to drunkards graves each year in the United States and brings misery and distress to 600,000 women and innocent little children, or on the side of God, on the side of home on the side of your children and your neighbors children?

Heavens! Do you need time to think it over?

Come out and work for the local option bill. A few credits on the ledger, when you make your final settlement on that last great day, will help like blazes. Any way it can do no harm:

Say, if you were judge about that time and a church member, who voted wet, voted to license saloons, voted to debauch, degrade and kill his and his neighbors' children, voted to increase crime, insanity and pauperism, came up before you and asked for a pair of wings, a halo, and a diadem with little jewels in it, where would you tell him to go?

Come now, you know you would.

John Legeer was severely hurtby a fall of coal in the John Stark mine, a ew days ago, and as yet is not able to resume his work.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brenneman drove over to Somerset county, Pa., last Sunday to visit relatives.

Amos Bittinger's family, of near Oakland, motored to this village last Sunday afternoon to call on relatives.

Mr. Noah Slabach and family, of near Oakland, are visiting Mr. Slabach's sisters here at this writing.

Miss Florence Miller, of near Grantsville, was a Sunday visitor to this place.

Only about four-fifths of the qualified voters in this district were placed upon the poll books at the recent general registration.

Farmers Gain Millions as Result of War.

Farmers of the United States will receive more money for their crops this year than ever before in the history of the country. Not only is the wheat crop by far the largest ever raised, but the returns that can be counted on safely for this crop will exceed the greatest expectations.

In virtually every important wheat raising section of the country the producer can now obtain $1 a bushel for his wheat. Three months ago in many sections farmers were not getting more than 60 cents a bushel for their wheat. And the same is true of many other articles of farm produce.

Greatness.

Some are born to greatness, some achieve it—
So says Bill Shakespeare, and we believe it;
But one might add to his moralizing
That some grow great by advertising.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE COLUMN

Practical Suggestions on Local Option Campaign.

What have you done? What are you doing? What are you going to do? Three great, far-reaching questions, when applied to the Local Option question. In a few days over two weeks we will be at the polls to cast our ballot, for or against Local Option. Do you feel the mighty responsibility resting upon you?

What are you going to do about it? Vote for it? So far so good. But we want more than your vote, we want your personal influence in getting others to vote for the bill. We need your assistance in this great work of redeeming Garrett county from the curse of the liquor habit.

Get busy for the next two weeks. Take nothing for granted. Visit your neighbors and talk the matter over with them. The liquor men are doing their work in many ways, quietly, persistently. It is up to you to counteract their influence.

This is our golden opportunity. Use it to the very highest degree. Christian men and Christian women use the next 18 days for God and mankind. Get terribly in earnest. Be active in season and out of season.

Get the voters out early. Make it your personal interest to do so.

Garrett county dry after April 30, 1915. How much it means to the county, to the homes of the county, to the tempted men and suffering women.

Make Sunday a day of personal effort for the cause. Get a vigorous move on yourself. Talk, sing and pray. Be enthusiastic, awaken, arouse others to the duty of the hour. Keep things going.

If you failed to register, do the next best thing—get a vote for the bill, persuade, entreat others to vote for it. Do something while you may to drive the curse of strong drink from our midst. You owe it to your family, to your church, to your county and to your God, that you leave nothing undone that you can do to vote liquor out of the county, to get others to vote with you to put an end to liquor selling and drunkard making in Garrett county.

Be men. Show your colors. Opportunity knocks at your door. It may never do so again. This is your time to strike. This is the day of action. The hour of decision.

The citizenship of the State of Maryland is watching and waiting for your decision. They are looking for a great victory. Do not disappoint them.

Get awful busy every day up to and on November 3d. Do not wait for anyone else. Take hold and push, and push mightily. If you ever done anything in your life do it now.

Who is to blame for the havoc wrought by the liquor business? The saloonkeeper? Yes. The drunkard? Certainly. But are they the only ones? What accountability has the voter who votes for the saloon, the legislator who legislates for it, the judge who favors it in his court decisions, the property owner who rents his building for saloon purposes, the citizen who neglects to raise his voice and his strong right arm against the evil? Surely these cannot escape responsibility. This is a time to show on which side you are. You cannot escape condemnation unless you come out firmly, steadily and positively for the right against the saloon. There is no middle ground.

Wm. A. Sears, of Frederick, while drunk, ran his wife and baby out of the house into the rain. He was arrested and at the hearing, his wife told a story of cruelty and hardship. She said her husband would give her no money, declaring a woman's place was at home and she needed no clothes. He made her take in washing and give him the money. She said she had to work until half an hour before her baby was born, her husband saying: "You are as big as I am and can work as well as I can." She said her husband becomes wild when drunk and often beats her. Justice Anders sentenced Sears to thirty days in jail, but suspended sentence on condition that Sears would go home and behave himself.

Why I Intend to Vote for Local Option on November 3d.

Because: There are 865,000 liquor made orphans in the Udited States.

Because: Our annual drink bill would pay a five year's course of education for 2,000,000 children.

Because: The licensed saloon is making 100,000 drunkards annually—one boy in every five dies a drunkard.

Because: It has been proven that alcohol has no food value; it is a poison, lowers vitality, lessens efficiency, is degenerating and destructive to man.

Because: The cost of added crime, idiocy, insanity and pauperism, caused by drink is double the revenue from the saloons.

Because: Ninety per cent of the inmates of the State Home for Dependent children are there because of drink. Warden Tynan says: "Ninety-five per cent of the prisoners in the state penitentiary are there because of drink.

Because: As a defective link weakens the whole chain, so the state is weakened by its derelict citizens; and the state has a right to prohibit that which makes a man less valuable as a citizen. A strong, virile citizenship is the greatest asset of a state.

The Licensed Saloon as a Liar and Murderer.

Rev. William A. Sunday says: The saloon is a liar. It promises good cheer and sends sorrow. It promises health and causes disease. It promises prosperity and sends adversity. It promises happiness and sends misery. Yes, it sends the husband home with a lie on his lips to his wife; and the boy home with a lie on his lips to his mother; and it causes the employee to lie to his employer. It degrades. It is God's worst enemy and the devil's best friend. It spares neither youth nor old age. It is waiting with a dirty blanket for the baby to crawl into the world. It lies in wait for the unborn.

It cocks the highwayman's pistol. It puts the rope in the hands of the mob. It is the anarchist of the world and its dirty red flag is dyed with the blood of women and children and it sent the bullet through the body of Lincoln; it nerved the men that sent the bullets through Garfield and William McKinley. Yes, it is a murderer. Every plot that was ever hatched against the government and law, was born and bred, and crawled out of the grog shop to damn this country.

I tell you that the curse of God Almighty is on the saloon. Legislatures are legislating against it Decent society is barring it ont. The fraternal brotherhoods are knocking it out. The Masons and Odd Fellows, and the Knights of Pythias, and the A. O. U. W. are closing their doors to the whisky sellers. They don't want you wriggling your carcass in their lodges. Yes, sir, I tell you, the curse of God is on it. It is on the down grade. It is headed for hell, and by the grace of God, I am going to give it a push, with a whoop, for all I know how.

Hog Cholera Costly.

Hog cholera costs the United States $75,000,000 every year, according to experts of the department of agriculture at Washington. They regard the eradication as one of the most serious problems that faces the bureau of animal industry, for the loss caused by it approximately as great as that from all other animal disease combined. The loss from hogs killed outright by cholera in 1912 was estimated at $60,000,000, The loss to the hog industry indirectly resulting from the disease was about $15,000,000 more. The cholera is most common in the corn states of the West and South. The two other cheif animal diseases are cattle tuberculosis and Texas fever.

The State Road.

O. E. Weller, chairman and H. G. Shirley chief engineer of the State Roads Commission last week made an inspection of the road from Baltimore to Oakland. The report, "Just west of Cumberland there is being reconstructed a mile of road which is the only break between Cumberland and the top of Meadow Mountain, near Grantsville. A mile of road is under way on Meadow Mountain and from that poini the work has been finished to Keyser's Ridge and on to within two miles of the Pennsylvania line on the old National road, while the section which connects up with Oakland has been built south from Keyser to a point within three miles of Accident and south of Accident there is but a mile to be finished to connect up with Oakland. This last mile will soon be finished, but the three miles north of Accident may not be completed this year, though it will be passable."

Maryland Week Essay Contest.

With a view of interesting the school boys and girls of Maryland in the agricultural development of the state, the officials in charge of "Maryland Week" have decided to hold essay contests, which will be open to boys or girls regularly attending the public schools of Maryland.

"Maryland Week" is the designation given the week of November 16-21, 1914, when the Maryland State Horticultural Society, Maryland Crop Improvement Association, Maryland State Dairymen's Association, and the Maryland Beekeeper's Association will hold their annual exhibition in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md.

The scholars of the public schools of Garrett county are eligible to enter the contest in which prizes will be given for the best essay, it is to be hoped that a number of them will enter the contest.

Correction in Fair Premiums.

Last week, in preparing the write up of the Fair, our reporter unintentionaly stated that the prize for the best variety of potatoes of all kinds was awarded to James Marshall as well as the prize for yellow onions. The prize for both vegetables went to James Aronhalt, of near Bayard.

It was stated that M. L. Calhoun recieved first prize for the best short horn cow 3 years old or over, grade; and third prize for the best short horn heifer between 2 and 3, grade. Both these prizes went to Ex-Senator McCulloh Brown, from his farm near Bayard. The mistake occured in picking up the wrong entry slip, some of them being duplicates.

State Commission Seeking a Solution of Problem That Causes it Annoyance

In their efforts to protect the state roads from damage from traction engines which have been traveling over them with no covering on their sharp cleats, Chairman Weller and Chief Engineer H. G. Shirley of the State Roads Commission have hit upon a plan which they hope will convince the farmers of Western Maryland that they can get their grain threshed without injuring the highways.

Recently Judge Urner in the Circuit court of Frederick county refused the petition of the commission for an injunction to prevent the use of traction engines on the roads without covering the cleats. The petition for injunction followed the refusal of the local authorities to enforce the law enacted for the protection of the improved roads, and which made it unlawful to run traction engines over them without making the cleats harmless. Traction engine owners, who go from farm to farm threshing grain, had been telling farmers that they could not comply with the law, and if it should be enforced they could not thresh the grain; consequently the farmers have been bitter against the Roads Commission.

Now, what the Commission proposes to do is to equip an engine with filler blocks or other covering to make the cleats harmless to the roads and send it to the Frederick and Hagerstown Fairs, which are to be held in October. This will demonstrate that the engines can be used without the destructive cleats, which most of the engine owners have failed to put on because they cost $15 to $20 a set. After the engine is shown at the fairs it will be run over the state road all the way to Cumberland for the purpose of showing that the heaviest grade can be taken, and that it is entirely practicable for threshermen to comply with the law. A few of them have already met the new requirements and they testified at the Frederick trial that it was entirely successful.

A Word With the Farmer.

We advise the Garrett county farmers to make up their surplus apple crop into cider vinegar. There is always a market for good cider vinegar, and at a good price, too.

Farmers will do well to carefully sort out their potatoes. The sound, medium sized potato put away for a later market. There is no doubt but that potatoes will advance in price as the winter advances. It is not reasonable to expect a shipment of potatoes into this country from abroad. On the other hand, foreign nations will call on this country for potatoes, should the war continue for any length of time.

He is a wise man who pays attention to raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. There is a growing demand for all of the foregoing. From Tennessee alone over 900 horses were shipped to England and France last week. The indications are that this country will have to be the market for the old world now engaged in war. Great care should be taken of the stock on your farm.

Use this winter in preparing the ground for spring crops. Wheat and oats will be in great demand, so will hay.

We will have a call from Mexico for the supplies of life. A continuation of the guerilla warfare means no crops. Already the cry for the necessaries of life is heard.

This winter should be one of earnest work in every department of the farm. For next year at least there is no danger of over loading the market. Three large vessels are taking on 1,200,000 bushels of oats at Baltimore for Italy, at 75 cents per bushel. Fifty-eight steamships are booked to sail from the port of New York within the next five weeks. They will carry great quantities of American products to the several countries engaged in warfare.

We believe it would be wise to can up all the tomatoes possible. There will be a market for them. Well made sour kraut always finds a ready market. Apples carefully put up in half gallon jars would find a market near home. She and he who takes advantage of the abundance now in the orchard and field will enlarge her and his bank account and be a benefit to humanity.

These suggestions are worthy a most careful consideration. Much canning is being done all over Garrett county. The merchants report an unusual large sale of Masons jars of all sizes. Last Friday a number of Oakland merchants closed out their stock of these jars, while other merchants had only a dozen or two on hand.

Of course the splendid crop of wild plums, crab apples, pears, etc., are largely due for this sale of Masons jars. We know of a number of farmer's wives who put up beans, rhubarb, tomatoes, etc. Some of them to supply nearby lumber camps.

The market will be here, that is certain. Will the Garrett county farmer and his wife be ready for it?

Create a market for your own products. Make a specialty in canned goods. The demand will come and the business will grow.

A Temperance Talk to Voters

BY JASON KEP

"Twenty years ago only six millions of people lived in no licensed territory; now there are thirty-eight millions. Saloons have been closed thus far this year at the rate of thirty a day, and that rate will continue throughout the year. At thirty foot frontage for each saloon, that will be a mile frontage a week, or fifty miles frontage a year."

A pretty good record. While he was figuring he might have gone a little farther.

Thirty a day is two hundred and ten a week and ten thousand five hundred in fifty weeks. Now counting two poor wretches sent to perdition by each saloon would make a saving of twenty-one thousand poor souls each year.

As the average family is five then we have 21,000 times 4 equals 105,000 wives and little children who will be much happier for the change.

What wonderful results from a little work.

Oh, you church people, who send millions for the education of the poor heathen; oh, you business men, who give great sums for the same purpose, lend me your ears.

Here is a good business proposition. Divert your money and attention for a short period. Put your money and attention into this fight. Let us banish rum from our homes, from the State, from the United States and it will save hundreds of millions of dollars yearly. Save 152,000 poor souls from dying drunkards, 760,000 women and little children from want, misery and despair.

Then, instead of thousands for converting the heathen, there will be available millions upon millions of dollars.

Is it worth while? Well I guess Yes.

If your house catches on fire you immediately drop your other work and devote your full time and energy to putting out the fire. Then when the fire is out you can go back to your work with a feeling of safeey.

Now the liquor traffic is like a fire. If not checked it will destroy the whole edifice. Why not use good business judgment and blot it out and be done with it.

Oh. you church people, why, oh, why, do you not shake off that lethargy? When you come before the great bar of judgment in the last great day, what answer or what excuse do you expect to make when the Master will say, "I was an hungered and ye fed me not; I was athirst and ye gave me naught to drink—depart from me, ye accursed, into everlasting perdition."

Awaken before it is everlastingly too late.

The church people of a community or state or the United States, can pass any law or enforce any law, if they pull together and don't you forget it.

Prayer will help, but "Prayer without works is dead."

Now you know and must acknowledge, if honest that thousands of good people are kept out of the church by the inconsistency, or seeming hypocrisy, of hundreds of the church membership.

The doctrine of "do as I say, not as I do," does not make many converts.

You cannot expect outsiders to fight the battles of God and home, when the accredited army of the Lord turns tail and runs.

There is no neutral ground in this fight: You cannot sit on the fence—the top rail has spikes in it and would be very uncomfortable. You would be despised by the real forces of either side.

The fight is on, the forces are lining up. Which army are you going to join? The one which sends 152,000 to drunkards graves each year in the United States and brings misery and distress to 600,000 women and innocent little children, or on the side of God, on the side of home on the side of your children and your neighbors children?

Heavens! Do you need time to think it over?

Come out and work for the local option bill. A few credits on the ledger, when you make your final settlement on that last great day, will help like blazes. Any way it can do no harm:

Say, if you were judge about that time and a church member, who voted wet, voted to license saloons, voted to debauch, degrade and kill his and his neighbors' children, voted to increase crime, insanity and pauperism, came up before you and asked for a pair of wings, a halo, and a diadem with little jewels in it, where would you tell him to go?

Come now, you know you would.

Made it Plain To Them.

No business man, laboring man or farmer can expect any improvement in his condition by voting to elect a Democratic congressman this year. This Democratic congress has certainly made that very plain to them.—Fayette Journal.

PRZEMYSL SIEGE ENDS IN RETREAT

Russians Abandon Attack on Austrian Fortress In Galicia

RELIEVING FORCE IN PURSUIT

Reverse to Russians In Galicia Reported From Several Sources—Austro-German Army Drives Czar's Hordes Away In Hurry and Retake Many Galician Towns—Russian Troops Acted Humanely In Captured Towns.

London, Oct. 13.—The Reuter Telegram company has received a dispatch from Amsterdam which says:

"A telegram from Vienna states it is officially announced that the Austrian rapid advance has relieved Przemysl, Galicia, of the Russians. The Austrians have entered the fortress at all points and where the Russians attempted resistance they were beaten. The Russians fled in the direction of the river San, attempting to cross at Siniava and Iezaysk, where a great number were captured."

Many towns which a few days ago were in the hands of the Russians are now again under an Austrian administration.

The message adds that the Russians did not behave so badly as the authorities had expected. Even the Cossacks conducted themselves humanely.

A dispatch from Rome says a message to the Messagero from Petrograd says that the Russians have abandoned the siege of Przemysl in Austrian Galicia in order to put themselves in a strategical position to meet the Austro-German army.

An official statement given out at Petrograd expresses the belief that the death of King Charles of Rumania removes an obstacle to the turning of Rumania to the cause of the allies, to which end recent Russian diplomatic efforts were unavailing. It is said further that the sympathies of the Rumanian people, who in the past have shown that they were opposed to the championing of Prussia by the late king, will now assert themselves.

In a dispatch from Rome the correspondent of the Central News says that Montenegrin troops are now only a few hours' march from Ragusa, the Austro-Hungarian seaport in Dalmatia, the fall of which is believed to be imminent.

Amsterdam, Oct. 13.—The Berlin Tageblatt, a copy of which has been received here, says that all prisoners captured by the Germans in Russian Poland will be compelled to enlist in the German army to fight against Russia.

BERLIN TELLS OF VICTORIES

Russian Reports Are Inventions, Says German Statement.

London, Oct. 13.—A wireless from Berlin says the German general staff issued the following concerning the operations of the kaiser's armies in east Prussia and in Poland:

"In the eastern theater we repulsed in the north all attacks of the first and tenth Russian armies on Oct. 9 and 10. The Russian outflanking efforts by way of east Prussia were repulsed and the Russians lost 1,000 prisoners. In south Poland the advance guards of our armies have reached the Vistula. Near Grodek, south of Warsaw, we captured 2,000 men of the Second Siberian army corps.

"The Russian official communication about a great Russian victory at Augustowa and Suwalki is invented. The fact that no official Russian communication has been published about the tremendous defeats at Tannenburg and Winsterburg vouches a lack of reliable official information."

It is assumed here that lack of news from Petrograd in the past two days does not indicate necessarily that the Russian advance has been stayed.

Auditor Exonerated.

Lisbon, O., Oct. 13.—Judge C. M. Wilkins of Warren, O., dismissed the case against County Auditor W. L. Crooks, charged with violating a state law. Crooks was charged with failure to make two quarterly reports of revenues collected last April and last July.

CONCESSIONS MADE VILLA

Convention of Constitutionalist Generals Meet His Views.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Hopeful reports reached Washington of the progress of the first day's work of the military convention being held at Aguas Calientes to determine the personnel of the future government of Mexico.

Not only are Generals Carranza and Villa represented, but General Zapata has sent three delegates whose credentials have been accepted.

The basis of representation agreed upon was that each delegate must prove he had command of at least 1,000 men in the army or must have been identified as a general or governor with the Constitutionalist movement before Zacatecas was captured from the Huerta government. It was this point on which General Villa had been insisting from the beginning.

General Eduardo Hay, one of the men who opposed the acceptance of Carranza's resignation at the Mexico City convention, made an impassioned speech, urging the adoption of a resolution calling on General Carranza to release all political prisoners, as General Villa had done. He was enthusiasticaly applauded as he suggested that the language of the resolution be changed from a "request" to an "order." The convention passed the resolution in that form.

Official reports further state that the prevailing spirit of the meeting is one of harmony and a unanimity of feeling exists against further bloodshed.

AMERICANS NEAR WAR ZONE

Men Who Offered Services to France Headed For Front.

New York, Oct. 13.—Six weeks ago about 200 American residents of Paris offered their services as fighting men to the French government. The offer was accepted, but since then the Americans have dropped out of sight of the American public. A local paper received an account of the movements of the detachment sent by one of the volunteers. It came from Camp de Mailley, Chalons, and in part says:

"At last we're on our way toward the fighting district and you can expect to get word of lots of action when we finally come up with the Germans.

"We are now part of the foreign legion, possibly the most famous French fighting regiment. We're just itching to see some real action and I imagine that we are going to see it soon. By the time this gets to America we ought to be in the war zone.

"Some of the men with us are pretty well known in America. There's Charles Sweeney of Pittsburgh, a West Point man. Rene Phelizot, an elephant hunter, is one of us, as is Richard MacAlester. Charles Morlea, a wealthy San Franciscan, who fought in some of the Mexican revolutions, and John Bolligny of San Francisco are with us also."

TRIBUTE OF $161,320,000

Germans Levy Heavily on Captured Towns In Belgium.

Rotterdam, Oct. 13.—What is described as an official list of the principal war contributions levied by Germans on French and Belgian towns and Belgian provinces is published by the Gazette De Holland. It follows:

Antwerp, $100,000,000; Brussels, $40,000,000; province of Liege, $10,000,000; Louvain, $20,000; Lille, $1,440,000; Armentiers, $100,000; Mons, $140,000; Roubaix and Tourcoing, $200,000; Termonde, $200,000; province of Brabant, $9,000,000; Ghent, $20,000, and Amiens, $200,000. A total of $161,320,000.

Fire Causes $300,000 Loss.

Spencer, W. Va., Oct. 13.—The entire business section of this place was destroyed by fire and for a time it appeared as if the entire town would be swept by flames. Twenty business houses and dwellings were destroyed and the loss is estimated at $300,000.

TORPEDO SINKS RUSSIAN SHIP WITH 573 MEN

German Submarine Destroys Enemy's Cruiser In Baltic

PALLADA SENT TO THE BOTTOM

Sister Ships Escape Same Fate Only Because Torpedoes Do Not Hit the Mark—Submarine Successfully Does Its Work Despite Heavy Broadsides From Cruisers' Guns—Official Report on Disaster From Petrograd.

London, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from Petrograd says that the Russian armored cruiser Pallada on Oct. 11 was the victim of a German torpedo in the Baltic sea and that the vessel, with all on board, was sunk.

The text of the communication, which was made public by the marine department, follows:

"On Oct. 10 German submarines were sighted in the Baltic sea. The same day, early in the morning, the submarines attacked the cruiser Admiral Makaroff, which had stopped to search a suspected bark flying the commercial flag of the Netherlands.

"On Oct. 11, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the submarines of the enemy again attacked our cruisers Bayan and Pallada, which were patrolling the Baltic.

"Although the cruisers opened in time a very strong fire, one of the submarines succeeded in launching torpedoes against the Pallada, whereupon an explosion resulted and the cruiser sank with all her crew."

The Pallada carried a crew of 573 officers and men. She was built in 1916 and had a displacement of 7,900 tons. She was a sister ship to the Makaroff and Bayan and was designed for light coast patrol duty.

GERMANS OCCUPY GHENT

Little Known of Move Against Ostend. Queen Still In Belgium.

London, Oct. 13.—The Daily News correspondent at Rotterdam wires that the Germans have entered Ghent. This message has been passed by the British censors for publication.

The news of German movements between Antwerp and Ostend up to the present is so fragmentary and contradictory as to be almost worthless.

The Germans are maintaining their customary secrecy and reports coming from Belgium and Dutch sources of heavy repulses to the Germans, with losses suspiciously large and round in numbers, are looked at askance nowadays.

The capture of Ostend would of course be worth the possession of many Antwerps to the Germans' plans, so it may be taken for granted that they will not enter the popular seaside resort without fighting for every foot of the way. Great events, therefore, depend upon the result of the battle now in progress on the line of Lassigny and Lenz and the other operations connected therewith, and in which three German army corps released from the siege of Antwerp will try to take part.

Definite information has been received here that the queen of the Belgians, notwithstanding the report that she had reached England, has not left Ostend for London.

In the course of the operations around Antwerp last week King Albert proceeded to St. Nicholas, an important place on the railroad line between Antwerp and Ghent and beyond the outer range of the Antwerp forts. His majesty was at St. Nicholas as late as last Thursday morning. His subsequent journey westward was in company with Belgian troops, whose withdrawal in that direction had been rendered necessary by the overwhelming forces opposed to them.

The Post's correspondent, who remained in Antwerp until noon on Friday, when the Germans were actually entering the city by the Malines gate, writes an accurate description of the fall of the city.

He says that Burgomaster De Vose on Saturday morning entered his auto waiting in front of the Hotel de Ville accompanied by three sheriffs. He announced with simple, touching dignity to those present that he was going to surrender the city. He had hardly started on his mission when the square in front of the Hotel de Ville became the object of a fierce bombardment, the aim of the gunners being clearly the city hall and the cathedral.

Houses near by went up in dust, paving stones spouted high into the air. All the windows in the east corner of the Hotel de Ville were smashed.

White House Visitor Arrested.

Washington, Oct. 13.—William Belvin, a former New York stock broker was arrested at the White House and turned over to the police. Belvin repeatedly tried to see President Roosevelt when the latter was in the White House and when he got obstreperous on being refused an audience with President Wilson he was arrested.

Considered One of England's Best Naval Fighters

PARIS AGAIN BOMBARDED

German Airmen Continue to Make Raids Over French Capital.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Another German bomb was dropped at St. Ouen, a suburb of Paris, but it did not explode.

This missile fell within a short distance of a large paint factory where there is a gasoline tank with a capacity of 30,000 gallons.

One bomb dropped between two trains at the Northern railroad station; the others fell in the Rue Pouchet and on the Boulevard Bassieres and the Boulevard Clichy.

Later a number of deputies met at the call of Deputy Ponys Cochin to consider various means of rendering the city more secure from aeroplane attacks.

The creation of aerial squadrons stationed at cardinal points to be always ready to dash after the aircraft of the enemy as soon as they should be signaled approaching the city; the arming of fast monoplanes with quick firing guns and the telephoning of warnings by residents of the capital to the French aero club, which is now under military control, were among the suggestions discussed.

ALLIES CONTINUE TO GAIN

General Joffre Sees Disaster For Whole German Line.

Paris, Oct. 13.—General Joffre reports positively that the allies are getting a foothold upon the heights of the Aisne, thereby imperiling the whole German fortified position from Soissons to the ridge of the Argonne.

While advancing at this point, the hinge of the battle line, the French are also gradually lessening the strain near Verdun and are making new progress against the Germans in the Vosges. Everywhere, from Belgium to Lorraine, the allied line holds stanchly. The official reports point to the fact that the Germans are generally on the defensive and are forced to fight for their communications and are unable to set in motion a dangerous offensive.

It is unofficially reported that the allies are massing rapidly to defend Ostend and the coast cities, and that the Germans, while threatening the new capital of Belgium, have been beaten back in several encounters.

SAYS DUTCH ARE NEUTRAL

Minister Van Rappard Tells of Holland's Attitude.

New York, Oct. 13.—Chevalier van Rappard, minister from the Netherlands to the United States, announced here that a way probably would be found by his government to send away the British soldiers who were driven across the Belgian frontier into Holland after the fall of Antwerp.

As to how this might be accomplished, the minister did not attempt to say. He added, however, that the detachment of Germans who entered Dutch territory unawares recently were still interned.

The Dutch army, said Chevalier van Rappard, will defend Holland's neutrality at any cost. Although Holland, he said, was trying to avoid an antagonistic attitude, she was alive to the possibilities of the situation and rigorous steps had been taken to prevent supplies from reaching Germany through Dutch ports or territory.

Penitentiary's Inmates Fewer.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 13.—Reports received by the state board of control from the various state penal, corrective and insane institutions show a big falling off for the past month and prohibitionists and Anti-Saloon leaguers are pointing to this as evidence of the effect prohibition is having on the state. Prohibition has been in effect for three months.

Wealthy Man's Son Tries Suicide.

Huntingdon, Pa., Oct. 13.—Frank Garthwaig, aged twenty, son of B. F. Garthwaig, president of the West Chester Construction company of White Plains, N. Y., attempted suicide by swallowing poison. Prompt action by the physicians probably saved his life. Unrequited love is blamed.

THE PURPOSE OF THE MESSIANIC KINGDOM

Earth Created to Be Man's Everlasting Home and Dominion.

Parabolic Description of the Work of the Millennium—Earth's First Judgment In Eden—Decision Unfavorable to Man—Earth's Second Judgment. Basis of Judgment—Two Lines of Character-Development—Everlasting Fire of God's Righteous Indignation.

Sept. 13.—Pastor Russell spoke today on the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats. His text was, "These shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." (Matthew 25:46.) The Photo-Drama of Creation depicts the subject of human destiny, and greatly assists in the understanding of the Biblical usage of the words Sheol and Hades, long misunderstood.

The discourse began with the statement that God's great Plan for man's salvation has set times and seasons for every feature. Each season ends with a finishing up of the work and a clearing away of rubbish, preparatory to the work of the incoming Age. The Jewish Age ended with a Harvest—a separation of "wheat" from "chaff," and a complete rejection of the chaff-class from Divine favor. With the few judged worthy a new arrangement began—the Gospel Age—and now we find ourselves in its closing scenes—the Harvest—during which "wheat" is being separated from "tares." With the wheat-class, with our Lord as Head, a new Age—the Millennium—is about to begin. At its close will also be a Harvest, in which "sheep" and "goats" will be separated, the sheep-class ushered into endless glory, and the "goats" destroyed in the Second Death.

At one time the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats was applied to the Church. We read our Bibles so carelessly as not to notice that nothing whatever is said in the parable respecting the Church, but that it is applied to the world, the nations, the heathen. The Jews were accustomed to think of themselves as God's people and to style all others heathen, Gentiles, the nations, the people; and in the prophecies God treated the subject from this standpoint. In line with this thought our Lord in this parable tells what will befall the nations after the selection of the Church to be the Bride, the Lamb's Wife.

Parable Descriptive of the Millennium.

The Pastor then pointed out from the first verse of the parable what many fail to notice—that the scene is laid after the Time of Trouble, when Satan shall have been bound, Christ's Kingdom established, and the overcoming Church seated in the Throne with her Lord. The following verses describe the work of the Millennial Age, when all mankind will be gathered before the great white Throne of Divine Justice, Mercy and Love. First the living nations, and then the dead of every nation, will appear before Christ's Judgment Seat, there to receive a fair trial as individuals under the most favorable conditions. The outcome of this trial will be a final sentence of worthiness or unworthiness of life everlasting.

Six thousand years ago in Eden Adam and his race were on trial for everlasting life. Adam failed, and was sentenced to death. His posterity shared his penalty. In due time God sent His Son into the world to die for Adam's sin, so that "as by a man came death [of the entire race], by a man [Jesus] also will come the resurrection of the dead [race of Adam]. For as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive—every man in his own order."

General Description of the Judgment.

The gathering of the world before the Throne will be the result of knowledge. The Time of Trouble will lead to great enlightenment, and the knowledge of God's glory will cover the earth ocean deep. Some will refuse to accept Christ as their Mediator, and will not enter into this judgment: After one hundred years of resistance, these will be cut off in the Second Death.

Since God is no respecter of persons, He will forgive the world when they turn from sin and accept Christ as their Redeemer. This does not mean that justice will be ignored, however. As in the Church the sins of youth often leave their sting to the end of life, so we may reasonably expect that stripes, punishments, will follow the world. From these weaknesses and frailties humanity will gradually be raised up during Christ's Millennial Reign. Two classes will be developed; one will come heartily into accord with the Divine will, but the other will merely assume an outward appearance of harmony in order to secure the desired blessings.

Meantime each individual will be making character. Ultimately the Great Judge, who will read the heart, will manifest to all the real heart difference between the two classes, all of whom will have been on trial for a thousand years. Then the sheep-class will receive the earthly dominion forfeited by Adam; but the "goats" will be cut off from life.

Merry Song of the Snowflakes.

A LITTLE SNOW GIRL.

We hurry forth
From the icy north,
A swift and silent band,
And ride the blast
In numbers vast
When the storm king gives command.

We flutter down
From the mountain's crown
And haste o'er the frozen plains,
And we dance and leap
To the winds that sweep
Through the city streets and lanes.

We bring fresh joys
To the girls and boys
Who laugh at the winter's chill,
And we make a bed
For the flying sled
As we pile on the coasting hill.

Point For Boy Scouts.

When visiting my former regiment the other day, says Baden-Powell, I found that several novel ideas were in force in the physical training of the young soldiers. One was that of teaching them to walk along a plank set up on edge at a height of about five feet above the ground. To walk along this for about fifteen feet was the test of balance, and after a little practice there was not one who could not do it, although at first trial it looked hopeless.

It might be thought to be rather a waste of time to instruct soldiers in walking the tight rope, but most curious results have been obtained from it. Not only does a lad become more well balanced, confident and plucky, but it has been found that he also develops very rapidly into a good shot. One old soldier, who was a particularly bad shot, was sent through a course of tight rope walking, and he soon gained thereby the power of controlling his nerves.

Making Sleighbells.

The sleighbells we see are round with an iron "jingle" in them. Now, you know that this little jingle could not have been put through the holes of the bell, so perhaps you would like to know how the bell is made. It is made by a man called an iron founder. First he puts the jingle inside a little ball of mud, which is just the shape and size of the metal ball. Then he makes a mold the shape of the outside of the ball. The ball of mud with the jingle in it is put inside the mold; then hot metal is poured in and fills the space between the ball and the mold. But when the mold is taken off the bell will not ring. As soon as the dirt inside the mold is shaken out the jingle is still in the bell and it will ring now. It took many years to think how to make a sleighbell.

Cerberus.

In Greek fable Cerberus is the three headed dog that watches outside the entrance to hades. Some writers assert that he has fifty heads, but generally he is said to have three, and three snakes are twined about his neck. His cave is on the farther side of the dark river Styx, where Charon, the ferryman of the dead, lands the shades. Cerberus is supposed to welcome all entering hades, but to seize all those seeking to escape.

About Common Spices.

The nutmeg tree is a native of the Moluccas.

The ginger plant grows from two to three feet high.

A Joke on John.

"I can't do this example," pouted John.

"You can do anything you want to do," replied his pa. "Even water may be carried in a sieve, if you only wait."

"How long must I wait?" asked John.

"Till it freezes," coolly answered Pa.

Ma's Mistake.

"Is it wrong to smoke, ma?"

"Yes, dear; it is a bad habit."

"I know some one that got rich smoking."

"Who is it?"

"Jim's pa. He smokes ham."

In a dispatch from Rome the correspondent of the Central News says that Montenegrin troops are now only a few hours' march from Ragusa, the Austro-Hungarian seaport in Dalmatia, the fall of which is believed to be imminent.

Amsterdam, Oct. 13.—The Berlin Tageblatt, a copy of which has been received here, says that all prisoners captured by the Germans in Russian Poland will be compelled to enlist in the German army to fight against Russia.

BERLIN TELLS OF VICTORIES

Russian Reports Are Inventions, Says German Statement.

London, Oct. 13.—A wireless from Berlin says the German general staff issued the following concerning the operations of the kaiser's armies in east Prussia and in Poland:

"In the eastern theater we repulsed in the north all attacks of the first and tenth Russian armies on Oct. 9 and 10. The Russian outflanking efforts by way of east Prussia were repulsed and the Russians lost 1,000 prisoners. In south Poland the advance guards of our armies have reached the Vistula. Near Grodek, south of Warsaw, we captured 2,000 men of the Second Siberian army corps.

"The Russian official communication about a great Russian victory at Augustowa and Suwalki is invented. The fact that no official Russian communication has been published about the tremendous defeats at Tannenburg and Winsterburg vouches a lack of reliable official information."

It is assumed here that lack of news from Petrograd in the past two days does not indicate necessarily that the Russian advance has been stayed.

Auditor Exonerated.

Lisbon, O., Oct. 13.—Judge C. M. Wilkins of Warren, O., dismissed the case against County Auditor W. L. Crooks, charged with violating a state law. Crooks was charged with failure to make two quarterly reports of revenues collected last April and last July.

Wilson Acknowledges Protest.

Washington, Oct. 13.—President Wilson said the United States had acknowledged the protest of the French government regarding alleged atrocities committed by the Germans in the present war. The acknowledgment contained no comment.

CONCESSIONS MADE VILLA

Convention of Constitutionalist Generals Meet His Views.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Hopeful reports reached Washington of the progress of the first day's work of the military convention being held at Aguas Calientes to determine the personnel of the future government of Mexico.

Not only are Generals Carranza and Villa represented, but General Zapata has sent three delegates whose credentials have been accepted.

The basis of representation agreed upon was that each delegate must prove he had command of at least 1,000 men in the army or must have been identified as a general or governor with the Constitutionalist movement before Zacatecas was captured from the Huerta government. It was this point on which General Villa had been insisting from the beginning.

General Eduardo Hay, one of the men who opposed the acceptance of Carranza's resignation at the Mexico City convention, made an impassioned speech, urging the adoption of a resolution calling on General Carranza to release all political prisoners, as General Villa had done. He was enthusiasticaly applauded as he suggested that the language of the resolution be changed from a "request" to an "order." The convention passed the resolution in that form.

Official reports further state that the prevailing spirit of the meeting is one of harmony and a unanimity of feeling exists against further bloodshed.

AMERICANS NEAR WAR ZONE

Men Who Offered Services to France Headed For Front.

New York, Oct. 13.—Six weeks ago about 200 American residents of Paris offered their services as fighting men to the French government. The offer was accepted, but since then the Americans have dropped out of sight of the American public. A local paper received an account of the movements of the detachment sent by one of the volunteers. It came from Camp de Mailley, Chalons, and in part says:

"At last we're on our way toward the fighting district and you can expect to get word of lots of action when we finally come up with the Germans.

"We are now part of the foreign legion, possibly the most famous French fighting regiment. We're just itching to see some real action and I imagine that we are going to see it soon. By the time this gets to America we ought to be in the war zone.

"Some of the men with us are pretty well known in America. There's Charles Sweeney of Pittsburgh, a West Point man. Rene Phelizot, an elephant hunter, is one of us, as is Richard MacAlester. Charles Morlea, a wealthy San Franciscan, who fought in some of the Mexican revolutions, and John Bolligny of San Francisco are with us also."

TRIBUTE OF $161,320,000

Germans Levy Heavily on Captured Towns In Belgium.

Rotterdam, Oct. 13.—What is described as an official list of the principal war contributions levied by Germans on French and Belgian towns and Belgian provinces is published by the Gazette De Holland. It follows:

Antwerp, $100,000,000; Brussels, $40,000,000; province of Liege, $10,000,000; Louvain, $20,000; Lille, $1,440,000; Armentiers, $100,000; Mons, $140,000; Roubaix and Tourcoing, $200,000; Termonde, $200,000; province of Brabant, $9,000,000; Ghent, $20,000, and Amiens, $200,000. A total of $161,320,000.

Fire Causes $300,000 Loss.

Spencer, W. Va., Oct. 13.—The entire business section of this place was destroyed by fire and for a time it appeared as if the entire town would be swept by flames. Twenty business houses and dwellings were destroyed and the loss is estimated at $300,000.

TORPEDO SINKS RUSSIAN SHIP WITH 573 MEN

German Submarine Destroys Enemy's Cruiser In Baltic

PALLADA SENT TO THE BOTTOM

Sister Ships Escape Same Fate Only Because Torpedoes Do Not Hit the Mark—Submarine Successfully Does Its Work Despite Heavy Broadsides From Cruisers' Guns—Official Report on Disaster From Petrograd.

London, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from Petrograd says that the Russian armored cruiser Pallada on Oct. 11 was the victim of a German torpedo in the Baltic sea and that the vessel, with all on board, was sunk.

The text of the communication, which was made public by the marine department, follows:

"On Oct. 10 German submarines were sighted in the Baltic sea. The same day, early in the morning, the submarines attacked the cruiser Admiral Makaroff, which had stopped to search a suspected bark flying the commercial flag of the Netherlands.

"On Oct. 11, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the submarines of the enemy again attacked our cruisers Bayan and Pallada, which were patrolling the Baltic.

"Although the cruisers opened in time a very strong fire, one of the submarines succeeded in launching torpedoes against the Pallada, whereupon an explosion resulted and the cruiser sank with all her crew."

The Pallada carried a crew of 573 officers and men. She was built in 1916 and had a displacement of 7,900 tons. She was a sister ship to the Makaroff and Bayan and was designed for light coast patrol duty.

GERMANS OCCUPY GHENT

Little Known of Move Against Ostend. Queen Still In Belgium.

London, Oct. 13.—The Daily News correspondent at Rotterdam wires that the Germans have entered Ghent. This message has been passed by the British censors for publication.

The news of German movements between Antwerp and Ostend up to the present is so fragmentary and contradictory as to be almost worthless.

The Germans are maintaining their customary secrecy and reports coming from Belgium and Dutch sources of heavy repulses to the Germans, with losses suspiciously large and round in numbers, are looked at askance nowadays.

The capture of Ostend would of course be worth the possession of many Antwerps to the Germans' plans, so it may be taken for granted that they will not enter the popular seaside resort without fighting for every foot of the way. Great events, therefore, depend upon the result of the battle now in progress on the line of Lassigny and Lenz and the other operations connected therewith, and in which three German army corps released from the siege of Antwerp will try to take part.

Definite information has been received here that the queen of the Belgians, notwithstanding the report that she had reached England, has not left Ostend for London.

In the course of the operations around Antwerp last week King Albert proceeded to St. Nicholas, an important place on the railroad line between Antwerp and Ghent and beyond the outer range of the Antwerp forts. His majesty was at St. Nicholas as late as last Thursday morning. His subsequent journey westward was in company with Belgian troops, whose withdrawal in that direction had been rendered necessary by the overwhelming forces opposed to them.

The Post's correspondent, who remained in Antwerp until noon on Friday, when the Germans were actually entering the city by the Malines gate, writes an accurate description of the fall of the city.

He says that Burgomaster De Vose on Saturday morning entered his auto waiting in front of the Hotel de Ville accompanied by three sheriffs. He announced with simple, touching dignity to those present that he was going to surrender the city. He had hardly started on his mission when the square in front of the Hotel de Ville became the object of a fierce bombardment, the aim of the gunners being clearly the city hall and the cathedral.

Houses near by went up in dust, paving stones spouted high into the air. All the windows in the east corner of the Hotel de Ville were smashed.

White House Visitor Arrested.

Washington, Oct. 13.—William Belvin, a former New York stock broker, was arrested at the White House and turned over to the police. Belvin repeatedly tried to see President Roosevelt when the latter was in the White House and when he got obstreperous on being refused an audience with President Wilson he was arrested.

Considered One of England's Best Naval Fighters

PARIS AGAIN BOMBARDED

German Airmen Continue to Make Raids Over French Capital.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Another German bomb was dropped at St. Ouen, a suburb of Paris, but it did not explode.

This missile fell within a short distance of a large paint factory where there is a gasoline tank with a capacity of 50,000 gallons.

One bomb dropped between two trains at the Northern railroad station; the others fell in the Rue Pouchet and on the Boulevard Bassieres and the Boulevard Clichy.

Later a number of deputies met at the call of Deputy Ponys Cochin to consider various means of rendering the city more secure from aeroplane attacks.

The creation of aerial squadrons stationed at cardinal points to be always ready to dash after the aircraft of the enemy as soon as they should be signaled approaching the city; the arming of fast monoplanes with quick firing guns and the telephoning of warnings by residents of the capital to the French aero club, which is now under military control, were among the suggestions discussed.

ALLIES CONTINUE TO GAIN

General Joffre Sees Disaster For Whole German Line.

Paris, Oct. 13.—General Joffre reports positively that the allies are getting a foothold upon the heights of the Aisne, thereby imperiling the whole German fortified position from Soissons to the ridge of the Argonne.

While advancing at this point, the hinge of the battle line, the French are also gradually lessening the strain near Verdun and are making new progress against the Germans in the Vosges. Everywhere, from Belgium to Lorraine, the allied line holds stanchly. The official reports point to the fact that the Germans are generally on the defensive and are forced to fight for their communications and are unable to set in motion a dangerous offensive.

It is unofficially reported that the allies are massing rapidly to defend Ostend and the coast cities, and that the Germans, while threatening the new capital of Belgium, have been beaten back in several encounters.

SAYS DUTCH ARE NEUTRAL

Minister Van Rappard Tells of Holland's Attitude.

New York, Oct. 13.—Chevalier van Rappard, minister from the Netherlands to the United States, announced here that a way probably would be found by his government to send away the British soldiers who were driven across the Belgian frontier into Holland after the fall of Antwerp.

As to how this might be accomplished, the minister did not attempt to say. He added, however, that the detachment of Germans who entered Dutch territory unawares recently were still interned.

The Dutch army, said Chevalier van Rappard, will defend Holland's neutrality at any cost. Although Holland, he said, was trying to avoid an antagonistic attitude, she was alive to the possibilities of the situation and rigorous steps had been taken to prevent supplies from reaching Germany through Dutch ports or territory.

Penitentiary's Inmates Fewer.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 13.—Reports received by the state board of control from the various state penal, corrective and insane institutions show a big falling off for the past month and prohibitionists and Anti-Saloon leaguers are pointing to this as evidence of the effect prohibition is having on the state. Prohibition has been in effect for three months.

Wealthy Man's Son Tries Suicide.

Huntingdon, Pa., Oct. 13.—Frank Garthwaig, aged twenty, son of B. F. Garthwaig, president of the West Chester Construction company of White Plains, N. Y., attempted suicide by swallowing poison. Prompt action by the physicians probably saved his life. Unrequited love is blamed.

THE PURPOSE OF THE MESSIANIC KINGDOM

Earth Created to Be Man's Everlasting Home and Dominion.

Parabolic Description of the Work of the Millennium—Earth's First Judgment In Eden—Decision Unfavorable to Man—Earth's Second Judgment. Basis of Judgment—Two Lines of Character-Development—Everlasting Fire of God's Righteous Indignation.

Sept. 13.—Pastor Russell spoke today on the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats. His text was, "These shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." (Matthew 25:46.) The Photo-Drama of Creation depicts the subject of human destiny, and greatly assists in the understanding of the Biblical usage of the words Sheol and Hades, long misunderstood.

The discourse began with the statement that God's great Plan for man's salvation has set times and seasons for every feature. Each season ends with a finishing up of the work and a clearing away of rubbish, preparatory to the work of the incoming Age. The Jewish Age ended with a Harvest—a separation of "wheat" from "chaff," and a complete rejection of the chaff-class from Divine favor. With the few judged worthy a new arrangement began—the Gospel Age—and now we find ourselves in its closing scenes—the Harvest—during which "wheat" is being separated from "tares." With the wheat-class, with our Lord as Head, a new Age—the Millennium—is about to begin. At its close will also be a Harvest, in which "sheep" and "goats" will be separated, the sheep-class ushered into endless glory, and the "goats" destroyed in the Second Death.

At one time the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats was applied to the Church. We read our Bibles so carelessly as not to notice that nothing whatever is said in the parable respecting the Church, but that it is applied to the world, the nations, the heathen. The Jews were accustomed to think of themselves as God's people and to style all others heathen. Gentiles, the nations, the people; and in the prophecies God treated the subject from this standpoint. In line with this thought our Lord in this parable tells what will befall the nations after the selection of the Church to be the Bride, the Lamb's Wife.

Parable Descriptive of the Millennium.

The Pastor then pointed out from the first verse of the parable what many fail to notice—that the scene is laid after the Time of Trouble, when Satan shall have been bound, Christ's Kingdom established, and the overcoming Church seated in the Throne with her Lord. The following verses describe the work of the Millennial Age, when all mankind will be gathered before the great white Throne of Divine Justice, Mercy and Love. First the living nations, and then the dead of every nation, will appear before Christ's Judgment Seat, there to receive a fair trial as individuals under the most favorable conditions. The outcome of this trial will be a final sentence of worthiness or unworthiness of life everlasting.

Six thousand years ago in Eden Adam and his race were on trial for everlasting life. Adam failed, and was sentenced to death. His posterity shared his penalty. In due time God sent His Son into the world to die for Adam's sin, so that "as by a man came death [of the entire race], by a man [Jesus] also will come the resurrection of the dead [race of Adam]. For as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive—every man in his own order."

General Description of the Judgment.

The gathering of the world before the Throne will be the result of knowledge. The Time of Trouble will lead to great enlightenment, and the knowledge of God's glory will cover the earth ocean deep. Some will refuse to accept Christ as their Mediator, and will not enter into this judgment: After one hundred years of resistance, these will be cut off in the Second Death.

Since God is no respecter of persons, He will forgive the world when they turn from sin and accept Christ as their Redeemer. This does not mean that justice will be ignored, however. As in the Church the sins of youth often leave their sting to the end of life, so we may reasonably expect that stripes, punishments, will follow the world. From these weaknesses and frailties humanity will gradually be raised up during Christ's Millennial Reign. Two classes will be developed; one will come heartily into accord with the Divine will, but the other will merely assume an outward appearance of harmony in order to secure the desired blessings.

Meantime each individual will be making character. Ultimately the Great Judge, who will read the heart, will manifest to all the real heart difference between the two classes, all of whom will have been on trial for a thousand years. Then the sheep-class will receive the earthly dominion forfeited by Adam; but the "goats" will be cut off from life.

For the Children

Merry Song of the Snowflakes.

A LITTLE SNOW GIRL.

We hurry forth
From the icy north,
A swift and silent band,
And ride the blast
In numbers vast
When the storm king gives command.

We flutter down
From the mountain's crown
And haste o'er the frozen plains,
And we dance and leap
To the winds that sweep
Through the city streets and lanes.

We bring fresh joys
To the girls and boys
Who laugh at the winter's chill,
And we make a bed
For the flying sled
As we pile on the coasting hill.

Point For Boy Scouts.

When visiting my former regiment the other day, says Baden-Powell, I found that several novel ideas were in force in the physical training of the young soldiers. One was that of teaching them to walk along a plank set up on edge at a height of about five feet above the ground. To walk along this for about fifteen feet was the test of balance, and after a little practice there was not one who could not do it, although at first trial it looked hopeless.

It might be thought to be rather a waste of time to instruct soldiers in walking the tight rope, but most curious results have been obtained from it. Not only does a lad become more well balanced, confident and plucky, but it has been found that he also develops very rapidly into a good shot. One old soldier, who was a particularly bad shot, was sent through a course of tight rope walking, and he soon gained thereby the power of controlling his nerves.

Making Sleighbells.

The sleighbells we see are round with an iron "jingle" in them. Now, you know that this little jingle could not have been put through the holes of the bell, so perhaps you would like to know how the bell is made. It is made by a man called an iron founder. First he puts the jingle inside a little ball of mud, which is just the shape and size of the metal ball. Then he makes a mold the shape of the outside of the ball. The ball of mud with the jingle in it is put inside the mold; then hot metal is poured in and fills the space between the ball and the mold. But when the mold is taken off the bell will not ring. As soon as the dirt inside the mold is shaken out the jingle is still in the bell and it will ring now. It took many years to think how to make a sleighbell.

Cerberus.

In Greek fable Cerberus is the three headed dog that watches outside the entrance to hades. Some writers assert that he has fifty heads, but generally he is said to have three, and three snakes are twined about his neck. His cave is on the farther side of the dark river Styx, where Charon, the ferryman of the dead, lands the shades. Cerberus is supposed to welcome all entering hades, but to seize all those seeking to escape.

About Common Spices.

The nutmeg tree is a native of the Moluccas.

The ginger plant grows from two to three feet high.

A Joke on John.

"I can't do this example," pouted John.

"You can do anything you want to do," replied his pa. "Even water may be carried in a sieve, if you only wait."

"How long must I wait?" asked John.

"Till it freezes," coolly answered Pa.

Ma's Mistake.

"Is it wrong to smoke, ma?"

"Yes, dear; it is a bad habit."

"I know some one that got rich smoking."

"Who is it?"

"Jim's pa. He smokes ham."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR U. S. SENATOR,
EDWARD C. CARRINGTON.

FOR CONGRESS,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

CARRINGTON and Zihlman is the slogan for this campaign.

AMERICA buys ten million dollars' worth of millinery a year from Paris.

THERE is no reason under the sun why a Republican should vote for Lewis, or Smith. No, not one.

FOUR million pounds of cigarette paper were imported last year into the United States from Spain.

SINCE the war begun in Europe the stream of immigration into this country has almost ceased to flow.

VOTE for Carrington, Zihlman and local option. A magnificent trio. Nothing better in the campaign of 1914.

REPUBLICANS of Garrett county should, to a man, vote for Senator Zihlman as Congressman from the Sixth District.

NOW that the registration is over, let every Republican interest himself in getting every Republican to vote the full ticket Nov. 3.

IN 1912 the Democrats blamed the protective tariff for the high cost of living and now they will have to explain why the Underwood bill made the cost of living higher.

THE benefits accriung to the United States through the war in Europe discredit the Underwood bill and strengthens the Republican protective tariff policy with reference to the home market.

THE REPUBLICAN is receiving many complimentary remarks upon the most excellent paper it published last week. We appreciate these kindly expressions, but enjoy the new subscriptions coming in much more. The Republican believes in gathering all the news fit for publication. It is a booster and not a kicker.

THE Democrat of last week says: "Congressman David J. Lewis put the Sixth Congressional District on the map." Let us see. What has Congressman Lewis done for Garrett county? The county which gave him such a large majority. The space alloted to Garrett county on the Lewis map is indicated by zero.

THE Preston Republican asks this pointed question: Did you ever hear of a Democratic administration that did not have to issue bonds or impose a "special tax" in order to get funds with which to run the government? If you have we want you to come in and tell us about it right quick. We never did, neither did any one else.

THE new registration in Garrett county shows that the Republican party is largely in the majority. On November third every man who has registered as a Republican should vote for Col. Carrington for United States Senator and Senator Zihlman for Congress. They are two splendid gentleman. They are men of honor. They are men whom you can fully rely upon. They are loyal Republicans.

FOR a few weeks politics will require more or less use of our columns. This paper, for more than a third of a century, has stood for Republicanism and as it grows older it is more firmly convinced that the principles of this great party are right and stand for the best interests of the whole country, hence, just now, advocates the election of Messrs. Carrington and Zihlman, tried and true men, worthy of the confidence and support of the electors of this county.

THE National Park Bank, of New York City, loaned the State of Tennessee $1,400,000 at the suggestion of Senator Lea, backed by Secretary of Treasury, McAdo. The Secretary to help the bank out loaned the bank $400,000 government funds at 2 per cent. interest. The bank charged the State of Tennessee 6 per cent. interest, 4 per cent. more than they pay the United States. Of course Father Wilson approved this financial transaction of his son-in-law.

REPUBLICANS of Garrett county rally to the standard of the grand old Republican party. We can elect our ticket this fall if we do our full duty. Forget all past differences. Stand by your party and its nominees. They are good men and true. They are men who have accomplished things and will accomplish much for the country, state and the district, if you elect them to the offices they seek. Do your duty as men, as loyal citizens, as true Republicans. Vote for Carrington and Zihlman on Nov. 3d.

PRESIDENT WILSON, Postmaster General Burleson and other big Democrats want Congressman Lewis reelected. Why? Because he is a Democrat. Of course they claim he has done so much to save the country from dire disaster. But, do they advocate the reelection of Republicans who have done valuable service for the country? Not at all. Only Democrats do big things, in their estimation, and only Democrats get their assistance. The Republicans want and will vote for a change. Senator Zihlman meets their approval.

U. S. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is an expert in NEW financeering, as illustrated in loaning to a New York City National bank $400,000 at 2 per cent interest, that it might loan the money to the State of Tennessee, which was about to default in the payment of interest. The government will receive $8,000 interest and the bank will clear $16,000 on the loan. Does the President approve of this loan made by his son-in-law? If a Republican administration had done such a thing, what a howl there would have been from the Democrats. The bank clears $16,000 on $400,000 of the United States money. No wonder we have to have a tax for revenues. The loan was made at the request of a Democratic Senator.

THE Democratic Congress is advocating the purchase of Thomas Jefferson's old home for use of the President of the United States for a summer home, for the sum of halt a million dollars. It seems as if the Democratic administration had no idea of ecomony or the value of money. Half a million dollars for a summer home for the President; a loan of $400,000 to a New York bank at 2 per cent. to help the Democratic State of Tennesse out of trouble and the bank to clear $16,000 by using government money. No wonder President Wilson and his son-in-law are advocating the selection of Democratic Senators and Congressmen. No wonder we need an extra tax of $100,000,000 to to cover up deficiencies in the government revenue. Profligate waste is too weak a term for the extravagence of Democracy.

FOR more than thirty-eight years THE REPUBLICAN has stood for and on the side of Temperance. Never in its history has it published a whiskey advertisement, although offered a liberal price to do so. During the present local option campaign it has used many columns of the paper to advocate the freedom of Garrett county from the sale of liquors. It has been a pleasure as well as a privilege to do so. We shall continue to urge the voters of the county to cast their ballots for local option until election day. We greatly desire to see a large majority in favor of the bill. There ought to be a very large majority for local option. Voters of Garrett county do your whole duty and get out every vote possible for the overthrow of whiskey and its terrible results. This is our opportunity; let us avail ourselves of it by doing our level best to secure a large majority.

VOTERS this year can get their best campaign arguments right at home. Are times better? Are money conditions easier? Is the cost of living lower? Are bankers more ready to lend money? These are questions that can be answered without the assistance of campaign orators, or campaign text-books. The voter has only to ask himself and some of his friends these questions and others like them and then decide for himself whether he is going to vote to continue the conditions which now surround him.

The Philadelphia North American hits the nail squarly on the head when it says: Had the present tariff, or laws similar to it been in existence for the past few years, this country would now be in a deplorable condition. This fact should be remembered in the elections of November. The men who helped to make this law should be retired from Congress. A Republican majority should be chosen, which act in itself would serve notice upon the world that the present unfair and unsafe policy will be tolerated no longer than the shortest time within which the restoration of the Republican party to power in the nation can be accomplished.

ONLY 18 days until election. Only sixteen days to do earnest work for the success of the Republican ticket. Each and every Republican should consider it his duty to give some personal work to carry Garrett county by the largest possible majority. It is a duty we owe to our country, as well as to the candidates on our ticket. They deserve our most earnest support. The only reason the Democrats can ask for the support of a Republican is that Mr. Smith is the present United States Senator and Mr. Lewis is the member of Congress, that to re-elect them is to cast a vote in favor of the destructive legislation of the Democratic congress and is a vote of confidence in the policies of President Wilson. Mr. Carrington is every whit as capable a man, as honest a citizen and worthy of public confidence as Mr. Smith. The same comparison is true of Congressman Lewis and Senator Zihlman. In every respect he is the equal of Mr. Lewis. Every good point Mr. Lewis has Mr. Zihlman possesses. Lewis is a Wilson Democrat, is for free tariff, is for all the laws passed by Congress as directed by Mr. Wilson. Mr. Zihlman is a Republican through and through. He deserves and should have the vote and earnest support, we repeat, of every Republican of Garrett county. We admit Mr. Lewis is a good man, Mr. Zihlman is as good. Mr. Lewis has had experience in political life. So has Mr. Zihlman. Mr. Lewis favored special laws for the working man in Congress. Mr. Zihlman did the same thing in the Senate at Annapolis, for the past six years. Garrett county working men received more direct benefits from State legislation than they did from Congressional enactments. Mr. Lewis is a good fellow, Democrats say; so is Senator Zihlman—a royal good fellow. None better anywhere and he is a Republican. What more could you ask? Vote for Carrington and Zihlman.

THE DUTY OF REPUBLICANS.

In an interview yesterday Ex-Senator Jackson, of Maryland said:

"Every Republican ought to support Col. Carrington. Thousands of Democrats and Progressives will vote for him, but as to Republicans, it is peculiarily a duty they owe to themselves, to Col. Carrington and to their party.

"How can a Republican be loyal to his party which really means his principles, if he give not the party nominee his enthusiastic support? Loyalty to party is a virtue, ninety-nine times out of a hundred. Let no man mistake personal feelings or private jealouses for conscionce, but I am first in believing that there can be no conscientious objection in a real Republican when a candidate of the mental calibre of Col. Carrington, and of his close adherence to party principles, is nominated. Therefore, if loyalty be ever a virtue, if party principles are ever personal convictions, Republicans owe it to themselves as men of honor and integrity, to give Col. Carrington that same measure of support they themselves would expect were they candidates.

"Again, every Republican owes a duty to Col. Carrington. He entered the primaries as every man had the right to do. I felt then that, as National Committeeman, my position should be neutral, in order that the voters might have the fullest opportunity to select their candidate. Col. Carrington alone came forward. He is, therefore, as truly the party's choice as it is possible for one to be. Nor should anyone think that because Col. Carrington supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1912, he is less a republican in 1914. Many of us were Democrats until Mr. Bryan denatured that party of sanity and wisdom. Col. Carrington was invited back. He has returned. He has done his best to reunite the party. He rendered valuable service in our campaign last year. I maintain that any former Progressive who returns to the party and sincerely works for its benefit is more entitled to be called a Republican than he who, while nominally a Republican, holds back or hesitates disloyally to support the party's choice. Are not reunion and harmony the supreme needs now? Let us not then discourage a return to the fold.

"Finally, every Republican owes a duty to his party to support Col. Carrington. Make no mistake. This is a critical time for our party. It is a campaign of preparations for the future, as well as of victory for the present, which must put us in condition for 1915 and 1916. To those who need the sight of triumph as a stimulant to those more valiant soldiers who can fight on even without hope, I affirm that we have a most excellent chance to win this fall. Have you not observed that our opponents, discouraged in their attempts to appeal for support on the merits of their candidate, and conscious of the weakness of their cause, have steadily tried to create the impression that we are disorganized and divided? Have not their clever newspaper men constantly magnified every friendly difference of opinion among us into an open, hostile breach? Let us not play into their hands. Our candidates are worthy. Not only does Col. Carrington deserve all the help that we can give him; but Mr. Duer, in the First District; Prof. Heaps in the Second; Judge Janetzke, in the Third; Mr. Hammond, in the Fourth; Mr. Mudd, in the Fifth; Senator Zihlman, in the Sixth, are men of exceptional merit and are entitled to the support of the good citizens of Maryland as any candidate we have ever nominated. Our principles are right. We will have only ourselves to blame if we do not win. We ought to forget self for the next month and plan only for a vigorous, harmonious party."

WHERE THE BLAME LIES.

No clearer statement of the country's financial predicament has been made than that of the Republican leader in the House of Representatives. By Democratic admissions that party stands convicted of the most outrageous extravagance in the disbursement of the public funds, and at a time of peace, and with the industries of the country largely paralyzed and labor out of employment the party is about to impose additional taxes—imposts which are considered unnecessary. Mr. Mann points out that the deficiency in our customs revenues can be met by a proper pruning of the improvident appropriations, and the exercise of strict economy in government expenses.

The financial difficulty can be traced directly to the deficiencies in the Underwood bill, under which the Democrats promised increased prosperity to the country and a decrease in the cost of living. It has performed neither function. For the seven months of this year ending with July 31, before the European war began, our imports from foreign countries were $122,000,000 more than they were for the same period last year, while our exports were $126,000,000 less. That is caused by the Underwood tariff. The balance of trade in our favor for these seven months in this year was $60,000,000. For the same seven months last year the balance of trade in our favor was $308,000,000. This shows a failing off in the balance of trade in our favor in seven months before the war commenced of $248,000,000, which is equivalent to a demand on us of $248,000,000 in gold. That is one of the main troubles with the country now, and is the result of the new tariff law.

If we were manufacturing the goods we use instead of importing them, we would have prosperity; and if we had a sufficiently high import duty on the goods we bring in from abroad, we would have sufficient revenue without question. What we need now is economy and not new taxes. What we have under the Democratic administration is extravagance and additional taxation.

MORE ECONOMY.

The Intelligencer, of Wheeling, W. Va., has no objection to surrounding the presidential office with all the modern conveniences and appointments. The whole country, in fact, should take pride in having its President living as well as the best and enjoying all the comforts of the most comfortable. The Democratic party, however, has held to strict Jeffersonian simplicity. But severely Spartan as it may be in its professions, it has been Lucullian in its tastes and performances, after the molasses platforms it serves the people have done their work.

For a party pledged to economy, and especially at a time when the government is short of revenue, it seems rather odd, to say the least, to read of the arrival at the White House of a new 66-horse power touring car for the President, costing $6,000, and authorized by Congress. We are also told that in a short time two other new cars from the same shop are to arrive for the President. One of these is to be a limousine costing $7,000. A new car of the same make—a limousine—also has arrived for Secretary to the President, Tumulty. We don't so much object to the President being well provided with the means of easy locomotion and rapid transit, or keeping up with the prevailing styles, but only desire to point out the hyprocisy of the party and its representatives in trying to make the people believe that it is something it isn't. Congressman Lewis supports this novel plan of economy. The Democrats do love the pork barrel. A Garrett county farmer is satisfied with one Ford, but Mr. President and family are to have three expensive machines, costing as much as 30 or 40 Ford cars and his Secretary must ride in a car costing as much as 12 cars used by Garrett county farmer's. It is perfectly lovely the way Senator Smith and Congressman Lewis and their party practice economy!

AN EXTRAVAGENT CONGRESS.

The Philadeiphia Ledger is one of the most independent newspapers published in this country. It speaks from an unbaised standpoint. Here is what it says in a recent issue:

Congress can do two things which will be a benefit to the entire country. One is to put into operation a new regime of economy. The other is to adjourn and go home.

The United States government has become our most watchful institution. It squanders even more money uselessly than the extravagant governments of large cities. While every individual and every corporation has been driven to reduce expenses to the utmost limit our federal government swings recklessly ahead with its waste.

There is no attempt at Washington to reduce expenses. There is a vast deal of talk among public officials about lack of efficiendy in operating railroads and other business, but the government does nothing to improve its own efficiency.

Bureaus multiply, and, while official salaries are not high, it is also true that the amount of work produced by the average government employe falls far short of what is expected in any private enterprise.

If Congress practiced the economy it preaches to others it would not now be driven to tinkering with a new form of taxation at the very moment when the people are overtaxed.

COMMENTS OF THE FAIR.

Some Corrections in Premium List Made and Management Return Thanks.

In our very complete but hurriedly prepared report of the Fair as published in these columns last week, several errors have been noted which the management desires corrected.

In the awards on live stock an error is noted in the exhibit made by Ex-Senator W. McCulloh Brown, who was the exhibitor of a herd of thoroughbred Shorthorns and who carried off the first premium on a three year old cow.

Mr. P. A. Dixon is credited with an exhibit of thoroughbred Jersey cattle, when he should have been credited with an exhibit of Aberdeen Angus cattle, which carried off a number of premiums.

In the home product and fancy work exhibits, a number of errors were made which have been corrected and which were of minor importance.

Little was said of the very excellent Fruit exhibit, which was one of the chief attractions of the Fair and which brought exclamations of applause from all who looked upon it. Ex-Senator Brown and his able assistant, C. F. Dawson had charge of this featnre and showed their ability in its arrangement in an orderly and attractive manner. Nine barrels of this exhibit were packed for cold storage by Mr. Brown and were sent to Baltimore to be exhibited at the State Horticultural show.

The comments on the Fair have been nothing but praise and one of the strongest in its praise comes from Prof. Taliferro, Dean of the Agricultural College who was one of the judges of our live stock, who in a letter to President Sliger says:

"It was a great pleasure to be at your Fair and to study your splendid exhibits. Your county ought to loom larger in the public eye than it does. Its merits entitle it to a high standard from an agricultural view point, as well as from others."

Miss Mildred Dixon was awarded first prize on devils food cake.

The silver cup offered by James D. Hamill for the best pen of Rhode Island Reds was won by Louis Bush. In error last week W. McCulloh Brown was named as the winner of this cup.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mr. John Close and daughter, Miss Della, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., visited relatives in this vicinity recently. Mr. Close for years supplied the Park with excellent milk and cream, and ran the first livery stable in the Park.

It is surprising to note the way the leaves are falling from the trees. The careless dropping of a match would in a very short time cause a very heavy loss. Be careful where you throw matches.

The Parson Advocate has this to say of one of our former pastors: Rev. P. Z. Musgrave, of the local M. E. church, left Tuesday for Fairmont, where the annual conference of the church will be held. Rev. Musgrave is an earnest worker and is well liked by his people and it is hoped that the conference will see fit to return him to his work here.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson are at home to their friends at Piedmont.

E. F. Freeland, who has been employed by the Mountain Lake Park Association for the past several years as general foreman, has resigned his position to take effect Nov. 1st. Mr. Freeland took great interest in his work and energetically carried forth everything he laid his hands on. He will be greatly missed next summer. Mr. Freeland advertises a public sale in another column. Read it.

Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Allie Haymond, Miss Kathaline Bishop are in the Park for a few days. Lindsey Frame was here over Sunday.

Peter Murdock, who for some months supplied a circuit in West Virginia, spent a little time in the Park, en route to Buckhannon, W. Va., to enter the Methodist college at that place.

Mrs. Ella B. Sheets has returned to her home in Pittsburgh, from her vacation among the islands of Canada. She expects to start for California on the 27th, where she will spend the winter.

Dr. Carr and wife will close their cottage in a day or two. We are sorry to see them leave the Park.

The weather the past week has been perfect and the foliage of the trees is beautiful beyond description.

Mrs. Edward Friend visited the conference, at Fairmont, W. Va., Saturday, having spent Friday at Grafton, with Rev. Bolton's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lape, and family, of Saoyestown, Pa., motored to the Park Monday and are guests of Rev. Henry Friend and family, for a few days.

Monday at the United Brethren parsonage, near Loch Lynn, Wilmer Crane was married to Miss Mabel Coaster, by Rev. H. D. Barnhouser.

The Park Methodist church was fortunate in securing as pastor Rev. W. T. McKain, one of the strong men of the conference. Rev. Marquess the former pastor and his wife will have the best wishes of a host of friends as they leave for their new appointment.

Party Leaders Jubilant.

Senator Zihlman and other party leaders in Allegany county are elated over the splendid showing of the Republican party. A total Republican vote of 6,800 in Allegany county gives the grand old party a majority over the Democrats of about 2,300, while the party can count on at least half of the several hundred who declined to state their party preference. So the heavy party registration is taken by party leaders to indicate a landslide for Zihlman and Carrington in November.

"The showing of the Republicans in enrolling such a magnificent number indicates in my mind," said a party leader last night, "that Allegany will give an unprecedented majority vote to Senator Zihlman, the congressional candidate from this district, at the election. I believe hundreds of former Democrats have enrolled under the Republican standard in this county because of the discontent with the Wilson administration. The Sixth district and Allegany county primarily is an industrial centre, and therefore, quick to feel the depression resulting from the Democratic tariff. Many Democrats have endorsed Zihlman's candidacy because of the failure of their party to redeem their pledges to reduce the high cost of living, and the general business depression resulting from their injurious policies."

Joy Riders Come to Grief.

One evening last week Arter Meyers familiarly known as "Kid," of Addison, Pa., had a crowd of friends out for a joy-ride in his Oakland car. At a point on the mountain near Grantsville they met with a serious accident when the car plunged into a board fence and knocked down a telegraph pole of the Postal Telegraph Co. Meyers was badly bruised about the face and neck. The other occupants of the car were Frank Lowdermilk, cut about the eyes and taken to Grantsville where he received medical aid; Lewis Dishi, left hand hurt; John Hetz, bruised on the head, and Edward Whetsell, bruised about the head. The party returned home in a car from the Grantsville garage. The car was almost demolished and later was taken to Grantsville for repairs.

Allegany County Registration.

Complete returns of the four days registration in Allegany county carry the total of those registered to 12,717, much larger than had been hoped for. The Republicon majority was further increased by the late returns: The final registration now stands:

Republicans	7,041
Democrats	4,665
Socialists	191
Progressives	54
Prohibitionists	75
Unaffliated	215

Republican majority in the county 1901.

Young Man Who Goes to Church Regularly Is Sure to Be Successful In Life

YOUNG man, GO TO CHURCH!

The young man, more than any one else, is in need of spiritual strength to do battle with the world. He is beset with temptations. The lessons he is taught in the house of God will guide him in the path of rectitude. And they will be an asset to him in the daily strife of the material world.

NOT ONLY WILL GOING TO CHURCH HELP THE YOUNG MAN IN A SPIRITUAL WAY, BUT IT WILL BE OF APPARENT WORLDLY BENEFIT. A YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH REGULARLY IS BOUND TO MAKE A FAVORABLE IMPRESSION IN THE COMMUNITY IN WHICH HE LIVES. HE WILL QUICKLY GET A REPUTATION FOR HONESTY AND UPRIGHT LIVING. HIS EMPLOYER WILL BE QUICK TO NOTE HIS EXEMPLARY HABITS. IF THERE IS A POSITION OF TRUST TO BE FILLED HE IS THE MOST LIKELY CANDIDATE. GOING TO CHURCH BRINGS ITS REWARD NOT ONLY IN THE LIFE TO COME, BUT IN THE PRESENT ONE. AND THEN THERE IS THE SOCIAL SIDE. THE YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH IS CERTAIN TO BE INVITED TO THE MOST EXCLUSIVE FUNCTIONS. THOSE WHO MAKE UP THE INVITATION LISTS NEVER OVERLOOK HIM. HE IS IN CONSTANT DEMAND. THERE ISN'T A GIRL IN TOWN WHO IS ASHAMED TO BE SEEN IN HIS COMPANY.

All young men will have to admit the truth of these statements. Surely it isn't unmanly to GO TO CHURCH. Read the lives of any of the great men, and invariably you will find that in early life they JOINED THE CHURCH. It was in the church that they laid the foundation of their great careers. Think of the happiness it gives your parents to see you at divine service and for them to know that you are on the right road.

Young man, if you want to be successful in life JOIN THE CHURCH, GO TO CHURCH.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

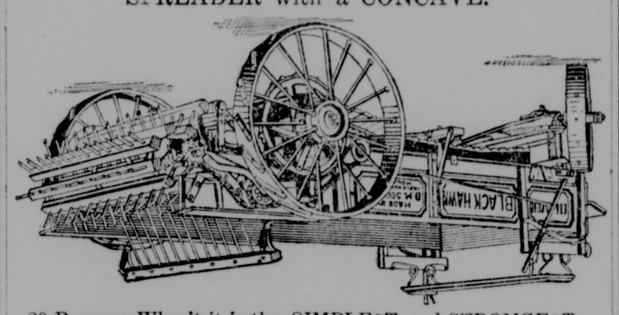
THE NEW

Black Hawk Manure Spreader

The latest improved LOW DOWN. The only SPREADER with a CONCAVE.



20 Reasons Why it it is the SIMPLEST and STRONGEST—the most satisfactory one to buy

REASON No. 1—Because it has an AUTOMOBILE front axle. What advantage is that.
REASON No. 2—It Provides a short turn and short wheel base, which means a short spreader. This means light draft.
REASON No. 3—It means there is no neck weight and no side lash of the pole, and has the most simple and convenient set-over pole ever seen on a spreader; readily adapted to the use of 2, 3 or four horses.
REASON No. 4—It means the wheels are under the spreader, where they should be; not projecting out on each end.
REASON No. 5—This spreader is from 6 to 8 feet shorter than other LOW DOWN spreaders of the same capacity, while the extreme heighth from the ground to the top of the side boards, midway between the wheels, is under 11 inches; our style of construction gives a clearance of several inches more under the machine than is possible on the long coupled LOW DOWN spreaders. This feature is very desirable in trashy fields or in rough traveling, and is also a great convenience when it is necessary to load manure from under the machine.

At the Farmers Institue this year figures were given which showed that Garrett county could supply better seed potatoes for the South than those grown in Maine. To bring our products to general notice it is desired to make up a fine exhibit for Baltimore. Farmers are asked to bring in samples in peck lots which can be shown. Select of uniform size and type. Do not send large or oversized potatoes, they are not wanted in the trade. None over six inches in length. Send to Mr. W. McCulloh Brown, Oakland, and he will ship in name of grower in a general county exhibit.

The collection of the dog tax is a difficult matter. Constables in several districts have resigned rather than collect the taxes and so far no one has been found to accept the position vacated It looks as though some districts would escape paying the tax. This ought not to be. The taxes should be paid as required by the dog law. The constables are not to be blamed for the passage of the law. The duty is forced upon them. They must act or resign or be put out of office by the County Commissioners.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun has been availing himself of the delightful weather of the past weeks by visiting the public schools all over the county, making glad the teachers, speaking a word of cheer to the pupils and giving advice and encouragement to those needing it. With a progressive board of school commissioners, a live county superintendent and a splendid lot of teachers, what else could one expect?

According to a report from Allegany county, former United States Senator George L. Wellington and his son, who was a former Republican treasurer of the county, both of whom have been ultra-Progressives, have this year registered as "declined." Last year Mr. Wellington was the Progressive candidate for United States Senate and polled 7,033 votes in the state. He started his political career as a Republican, serving successfully as a Republican treasurer of Allegany county, subtreasurer, congressman, United States senator and chairman of the State Central Committee. In 1900 he supported W. J. Bryan for president in preference to Mr. McKinley. When the Progressive party was organized he was among the first Marylanders to climb aboard the band wagon.

In six weeks Thanksgiving will be here. Garrett county will have a great time on that occasion. The election will be over, the battle will have been fought and the county will be voted Dry. We will observe that day as it has never before been observed in the county. It will be a gladsome, happy, thankful day. Get the turkeys fattened, have the pumpkin pies ready, and the doughnuts in the jar, and Garrett county celery well bleached and some oysters from the Maryland oyster beds, and the table spread so that when we return from the House of Worship, after the service of thanksviving and praise we may sit down with our friends and neighbors and partake of a dinner such as Garrett county produces this year of our deliverance from the saloon and saloonism. Say, don't you begin to feel the spirit of Thahksgiving already?

TREES AND ADVERTISEMENTS.

State Forester After Lawbreakers, Roadside Ads. To Go.

A State law passed at the Maryland Legislature during the session of 1914, makes it unlawful to cut, trim, mutilate, or in any manner injure any roadside tree, without the permission of the State Board of Forestry or its duly authorized agent. Any tree along any highway is under state supervision, and offenders are punishable by a fine of not more than fifty dollars for each offense.

Section 9 of the law provides that, any person who in any manner paints, puts or affixes any advertisement, sign, notice, or other written or printed matter, other than notices in pursuance of law, on or to any stone, tree fence, stump, pole, building or other structure which is in or upon a public highway, or which is the property of another, without obtaining the written consent of such owner thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punishable by a fine of not more than ten dollars.

Beautify the state highways has become the slogan with the Forestry Board. Roadside advertising is on the decline, and in a short time all will disappear from view.

Startling Figures.

Democratic prosperity is shown by the following figures, quoted from Dunn's Review showing that there were 8,334 failures during the first six months of the present year, with liabilites of $185,099,730, and that for the month of April, May and June, 1914, the average liability of firms failing was $15,135, the largest since 1893, and double the average of all the years since 1893.

Quoting from the Railroad Employer showed that on June 1st, 1914, there was from 175,000 to 200,000 railroad employes idle, in addition to the large number whose working hours were reduced and their income lessoned. That there were 50,908 idle cars on May 31st, 1913, and 241,802 on May 31st, 1914, exceeding the previous year by 160,000 more than were idle before the Underwood Simmons tariff law went into effect.

It is contended that there are today 3,000,000 working men idle and that American wage earners were losing $6,000,000 each day the Democratic party was in power, and this loss was effecting every branch and artery of our financial, industrial and commercial system.

The West Virginia Drys had their inning Tuesday and Wednesday. Instead of suit cases they had a brass band and a glee club. They traveled via automobile. They were sober, not drunken. They dined not, nor supped or lodged at Hotel de Scott, at the expense of Garrett county. They traveled first class, paid their bills and returned home with clear breath, clean clothes and in good physical condition. Come again, gentlemen. The county is yours. Your crowd was hard on police officers and justices of the peace, and lawyers. Such as you would send the above to the county poor house or drive them out of business but you'r welcome all the same. You should have stopped in Oakland as other Virginians do,—the whisky drinking, jail filling, drunken visitors do—just to show a contrast, just to let us see how a dry West Virginian looks and acts. We have seen the drunken, staggering kind and are disgusted. They are a mighty poor sample of the citizenship of your State. We'll send them home sober after April 30, 1915.

Young Man Who Goes to Church Regularly Is Sure to Be Successful In Life

YOUNG man, GO TO CHURCH!

The young man, more than any one else, is in need of spiritual strength to do battle with the world. He is beset with temptations. The lessons he is taught in the house of God will guide him in the path of rectitude. And they will be an asset to him in the daily strife of the material world.

NOT ONLY WILL GOING TO CHURCH HELP THE YOUNG MAN IN A SPIRITUAL WAY, BUT IT WILL BE OF APPARENT WORLDLY BENEFIT. A YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH REGULARLY IS BOUND TO MAKE A FAVORABLE IMPRESSION IN THE COMMUNITY IN WHICH HE LIVES. HE WILL QUICKLY GET A REPUTATION FOR HONESTY AND UPRIGHT LIVING. HIS EMPLOYER WILL BE QUICK TO NOTE HIS EXEMPLARY HABITS. IF THERE IS A POSITION OF TRUST TO BE FILLED HE IS THE MOST LIKELY CANDIDATE. GOING TO CHURCH BRINGS ITS REWARD NOT ONLY IN THE LIFE TO COME, BUT IN THE PRESENT ONE. AND THEN THERE IS THE SOCIAL SIDE. THE YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH IS CERTAIN TO BE INVITED TO THE MOST EXCLUSIVE FUNCTIONS. THOSE WHO MAKE UP THE INVITATION LISTS NEVER OVERLOOK HIM. HE IS IN CONSTANT DEMAND. THERE ISN'T A GIRL IN TOWN WHO IS ASHAMED TO BE SEEN IN HIS COMPANY.

All young men will have to admit the truth of these statements. Surely it isn't unmanly to GO TO CHURCH. Read the lives of any of the great men, and invariably you will find that in early life they JOINED THE CHURCH. It was in the church that they laid the foundation of their great careers. Think of the happiness it gives your parents to see you at divine service and for them to know that you are on the right road.

Young man, if you want to be successful in life JOIN THE CHURCH, GO TO CHURCH.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

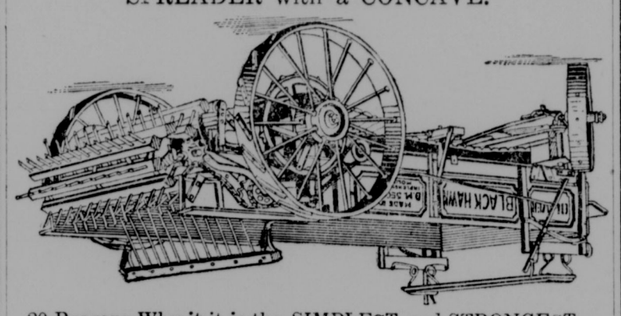
THE NEW

Black Hawk Manure Spreader

The latest improved LOW DOWN. The only SPREADER with a CONCAVE.



20 Reasons Why it it is the SIMPLEST and STRONGEST—the most satisfactory one to buy

REASON No. 1—Because it has an AUTOMOBILE front axle. What advantage is that.
REASON No. 2—It Provides a short turn and short wheel base, which means a short spreader. This means light draft.
REASON No. 3—It means there is no neck weight and no side lash of the pole, and has the most simple and convenient set-over pole ever seen on a spreader; readily adapted to the use of 2, 3 or four horses.
REASON No. 4—It means the wheels are under the spreader, where they should be; not projecting out on each end.
REASON No. 5—This spreader is from 6 to 8 feet shorter than other LOW DOWN spreaders of the same capacity, while the extreme heighth from the ground to the top of the side boards, midway between the wheels, is under 41 inches; our style of construction gives a clearance of several inches more under the machine than is possible on the long coupled LOW DOWN spreaders. This feature is very desirable in trashy fields or in rough traveling, and is also a great convenience when it is necessary to load manure from under the machine.

Points for Mothers

Care of the Nose and Throat.

"Improper conditions of the nose and throat are not only dangerous to health, but stunt the physical and mental development of the child," says a well known physician. "Colds in the head, catarrh, adenoids and enlarged tonsils are the most frequent of these improper conditions found in little children.

"Adenoids are small masses of soft tissue normally found in every child's nasal passages between the back of the nose and the throat, which through catarrh or other causes may become enlarged and block up the air passages, interfering with breathing through the nose and forcing the child to breathe through the mouth, preventing proper inflation of the lungs and stunting the development of the chest. They keep up a constant catarrhal condition near the ventilating tube leading from the throat to the ear and in this way impair the hearing of the child.

"Another common throat disease is enlarged tonsils. The tonsils are small, almond shaped bodies situated on each side of the throat. They have a certain purpose, and I do not believe in the indiscriminate removal of all enlarged tonsils. In fact, I condemn what I unhesitatingly call the 'massacre of the tonsils' so often chosen as the treatment of enlarged tonsils. The cause is in many cases not in the tonsils, but in the general condition of the patient. Proper medicine and hygienic treatment will cure many cases without an operation. Only when the tonsils are enlarged, hard and fibrous, seriously interfering with speech and swallowing, should they be removed.

"Prevention is better than a cure. If a child catches a cold, do not let the cold 'wear itself away.' Treat it at once or it may lay the foundation for adenoids and enlarged tonsils."

Cover For Baby's Feet.

Children who are too small to walk out of doors nearly always suffer from cold feet, but this will never happen if mothers will wrap the plump little limbs of their youngest in a bag cover, which may be made as follows:

The size of the cover must vary according to the shape of mail or push cart which baby uses. Take careful measurements and then cut an oblong piece of cloth, making it twice the length you require the bag.

For lining you will need a piece of satin or sateen cut two inches smaller each way than the cloth and wadded with a thickness of cotton wool. This must be stitched firmly to the cloth. Then double the whole thing and sew up the sides so as to form a bag.

Cut a piece of cloth two and a half inches larger all the way round than one side of the bag, scallop it with silk to match the cloth and lay it on the front of the bag, stitching it firmly. If you like you can also work baby's initials in the corner, surrounded by some simple floral decoration.

Last of all add a small brass ring to each upper corner, sewing it on very firmly. When baby's legs are snug between the layers of cotton wool and the rings are slipped over two hooks screwed at the back of the cart you will have good cause to feel satisfied with your handiwork.

A Nerve Soother.

Fractiousness and restlessness on the baby's part are frequent results of cutting back teeth, and often the child is given to starting and screaming during the night. Try the following plan before putting the little one to bed: Get a bath ready with the water deep enough to reach to the child's waist when sitting down. Fasten a shawl or small blanket around the neck to keep the top of the body warm. Neither shawl nor hands should be wet. Keep the baby in the water five minutes. A board may be fixed across the bath at one end to hold a few toys to amuse the child. The temperature of the water should be 104 degrees. The lower part of the little body will be quite red when taken out. Give it a good brisk rubbing and pop the child into a warm bed. It should sleep quietly and soundly till morning.

Rainproof Hood.

My children never carry umbrellas, writes a friend. Instead each one is provided with a rainproof hood, which when not needed is buttoned into an inside pocket of the overcoat.

If rain comes on the hood is buttoned on to the buttons sewed under the collar of the coat. When the collar is turned up and the hood drawn over the head the little one is as cozy as possible and takes no harm from the rain.

The hood can be quickly dried afterward. I find it a far better plan than providing umbrellas, which are always getting damaged.

An Appeal to Pride.

Though smoking cigarettes is really harmful for boys, they smoke not because they are basically bad, but in imitation of their elders. It is the parents' duty to prove to the boy that smoking may prevent his becoming an athlete and that it will affect his chest expansion and muscular development. See to it that he distinguishes the real from the cheap sport and desires to imitate the right kind of older fellow.

IMPROVED WHEAT VARIETIES RETURN HIGH YIELDS

Practical Tests In Many Sections Of the State Demonstrate Higher Yields From Selected Wheats.

No question is more frequently heard among farmers at this season than, "What is the best variety of wheat and where can I get the seed?" The State Experiment Station undertakes to answer this question as a result of many tests with varieties it has conducted in various parts of the State on private farms and on its own experimental fields where uniform conditions of soil, climate, and fertilization have enabled such tests to be carried out with accuracy. During the past six or seven years there have been about one hundred varieties in test under these conditions.

A GOOD STAND.

Some of these varieties have been found to be very inferior and in consequence have been discarded. Others have been found that yield well in a favorable season, but to not stand up well when conditions are unfavorable Still other varieties produce well almost every year regardless of conditions, and even in a very unfavorable season maintain a much higher yield than the poor varieties. It is in these last varieties that we are the most interested, since the record of their yields has been uniformly high, and they have proven their yielding qualities not only at the Experiment Station, but in many sections of the State, where they have been grown on private farms side by side with the native varieties.

Compare these figures, and the wheat grower will see that the better varieties in a test of five years have lead the poorer and more commonly grown wheats of the State by an average increase of five bushels per acre, surely a gain worth considering, if, as we believe, it can be obtained by the seeding of improved varieties.

FLY IN WHEAT MAY BE CONTROLLED BY TIMELY SEEDING.

T. B. SYMONS.
Maryland Agricultural College.

The Hessian fly can be controlled largely by late planting, rotation of crops and not allowing volunteer wheat to grow on fallow ground. The treatment is essentially one in which the host plant is kept away until the last fall egg-laying brood of the insect has disappeared. The date of its disappearance depends on the latitude, altitude and weather conditions. A wet September may cause an early disappearance, while a long fall drought and warm weather may cause a much later disappearance. Taking all into consideration, wheat should not be sown in the vicinity of the following cities and towns of the State before the dates given:

Oakland, September 12 to 19; Hagerstown, October 1 to 7; Frederick, October 3 to 10; Westminster, September 26 to October 5; Rockville, October 3 to 8; La Plata, October 9 to 18; Cockeysville, October 3 to 10; Elkton, October 2 to 9; Belair, October 2 to 9; Chestertown, October 6 to 16; Easton, October 9 to 19; Salisbury, October 10 to 17.

It frequently happens in Southern Maryland that wheat does not yield well, and experience inclines us to believe that winter oats could be profitably grown in its place Winter oats should be seeded in the fall, about the first of October and unless the season is particularly unfavorable, we ought to expect a heavy crop of grain.

The varieties of winter oats that are proving most successful in Maryland are Culberson, 206, Dewey, and Virginia Gray. The average yield at the Experiment Station farm for several years past has been close to 50 bushels per acre, with grain weighing from 34 to 37 pounds per bushel.

Supply Europe's Needs.

The first thought of the nations at war was of their food suply, and when their armies took the field in Belgium and France, Americans at once felt the effects of higher prices for many of the necessaries of life. As soon as the lanes of the Atlantic were made safe for shipping, enormous cargoes of wheat and flour and sugar were started on their way to British and Continental ports.

With a winter campaign and a long war in sight, a different class of orders from Europe is pouring in for the relief of American manufactures. The British, French and Russians want huge quantities of blankets for the men in the trenches and for horses. France and Great Britain are asking for bids for shoes for their armies. There is a sudden demand for sheepskins for overcoats. Our mills are urged to hurriedly supply underwear, socks and gloves in preparation for the cold weather. Harness, leather and saddle-trees are needed at once. A thousand automobile trucks, said to be for the Russians' use must be produced without delay. Half a million reels of barbed wire, measuring approximately 125,000 miles, are to be delivered within the next few months. The shortage of hospital supplies can be met only from America. Even large quantities of clocks are demanded.

When millions of men are engaged in wholesale destruction and the industries of Europe are paralyzed by war, it has no choice but to turn to the one great nation where peace prevails and labor and materials are plentiful.

Twenty Miles of Warships.

The whole Atlantic Fleet of war vessels, it is said, may be mobilized on the Delaware River. If so, we shall have here soon the greatest naval array ever seen in America.

SEED WHEAT.

One fourth year's trial of Stoner's Miracle wheat more firmly establishes our confidence in the great merit of this wheat. From our own observations we unhesitatingly pronounce it to be superior in every way to existing kinds of winter wheats.

It is a bearded variety, white chaff, grain large, plump, dark red, hard long berry type. Straw medium height, very stiff, making it almost proof against lodging. Contains more gluten than any other variety of wheat. On account of the large heads, and most of the spiklets containing 3 grains, it is a heavy yielder. Under ordinary conditions yields 10 to 20 bushels per acre more than other varieties. On account of its wonderful inclination to stool, the originator advises to sow from 1 peck to ½ bushel per acre. Our observations lead us to recommend 1 bushel per acre for this section. A smaller quantity we believe would be successful on fertile land, providing it was sown very early.

At the low cost we offer it, you can seed your land much cheaper with this wheat than with any other variety. Price $2.00 per bushel. 10 bushels or more at $1.75 per bushel. All seed recleaned and free from cockle and other impurities. Ready now.

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

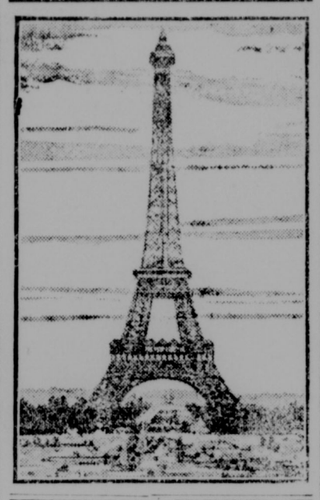
Eiffel Tower In Paris Now Used as Wireless Station



GLIMPSES OF THE WAR

Paris, Sept. 15.—"The Germans are in mortal fear of our black troops," said a wounded soldier. "So we blackened our hands and faces with burnt cork. You should have seen those Germans run the next day when we charged them! We uttered piercing shrieks and they took us for real blacks."

Since yesterday morning twenty-one trains laden with captured war material have reached Paris. Among the war captures they brought were eleven cannon, seven automobile trucks loaded with ammunition, two large auto trucks filled with helmets, rifles, swords, cartridges, belts, mitrailleuses, commissariat wagons, three aeroplanes, one of which had its wings pierced, and many projectiles.

Berlin, Via Copenhagen, Sept. 15.—The war office made public today the most complete list of casualties yet published. It gives the names of 784 killed, 2,190 wounded and 814 missing. This brings the total German casualties which have been published to 4,184 killed, 15,985 wounded and 5,070 missing.

Rotterdam, Sept. 15.—A dispatch from Berlin says that the German general staff announced that a plan of campaign in the western theater of war of which no details had been made known had led to a new engagement which so far is favorable to the Germans.

Paris, Sept. 15.—The correspondent at Troyes of the Havas agency says a Troyes newspaper announces that an army surgeon who cared for a wounded German prisoner stated that the soldier lately had had nothing to eat but oats.

Paris, Sept. 15.—One of the wounded German privates brought in the American hospital yesterday had in his pockets fifty pocketbooks, a string of pearls and many small articles of jewelry.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The official Belgian commission which desires to lay before the United States government charges regarding the conduct of German forces in Belgium will be received by President Wilson at the White House at 2:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Bucharest, Via Rome, Sept. 15.—The cabinet has resigned, a new ministry is being formed and it is strongly rumored here that the change will be a prelude to a Rumanian alliance with Russia.

Rome, Sept. 15.—An official Berlin dispatch states that a submarine sunk the cruiser Hela, German. A majority of the crew was rescued. The Hela is a small protected cruiser having a displacement of 2,040 tons and a complement of 178.

Go! Pool Unnecessary.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The federal reserve board has for the time being abandoned the consideration of the bankers' plan to form a gold pool for $150,000,000 to meet the country's obligations abroad. This action is taken in view of the fact that the situation has been so materially relieved by the arrangements in New York city to meet its $82,000,000 foreign indebtedness.

Railroads Ask Rehearing.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The railroads have given notice that they will petition for a rehearing on their application for a 5 per cent increase in rates.

WEATHER EVERYWHERE.

	Temp.	Weather.
Pittsburgh	78	Clear
New York	60	Clear
Boston	62	Clear
Buffalo	66	Clear
Chicago	76	Cloudy
St. Louis	76	Clear
New Orleans	76	Cloudy
Washington	64	Clear
Philadelphia	62	Clear

The Weather.

Fair tonight and Wednesday; fresh south winds.

Zihlman's Good Work.

Friends of Senator Frederick N. Zihlman and other Republican leaders are jubilant over the registration returns in Allegany county, which give a plurality of over 2,400 for the G. O. P. over the Democrats. The Republican rank and file throughout the county worked like heroes and success crowned their efforts.

Another gratifying feature is the almost complete disintegration of the Progressive vote in this county. Only 28 voters registered as Progressives in the city of Cumberland and the number throughout the county totaled 58.

Allegany county is one of the largest industrial centers of the state, and irrespective of party, the voters have felt keenly the business depression which has thrown hundreds of men of the section out of work and which has resulted in the cutting down of the salaries of thousands of others.

Chapter 377 Laws of Maryland.

"Any person who shall disturb any public school in session shall, upon conviction thereof before a justice of the peace, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall forfeit and pay twenty ($20.00) dollars, to be collected as other fines, to be paid to the board of district school trustees for the benefit of the school house district; or said offender shall be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the justice of the peace."

Columbus Broadwater of New Germany, knows and knows that he knows that his corn is the best ever raised in Garrett county. County Commissioner Otho Fike says his corn will make them all hustle for the prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hochman and family of the Cove, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ringer at Grantsville.

Any traveler between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh cannot fail to be struck by the spectacle of long lines of empty cars. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loechel have moved into their beautiful new home, at Grantsville, which is as comfortable as modern convenience can make it, and is a delightfully convenient farm house, having hot and cold water, a prettily equipped kitchen, a bath-room, four bedrooms and four rooms on the first floor, besides a capacious cellar. Later Mr. Loechel means to introduce electric lights also in his home. The house is a credit to Petry Brothers, the builders, and to the owners, and everyone is happy in their possession of it. Mr. and Mrs. Loechel are young, hardworking people and have the warm esteem of their neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Reppert left Grantsville for Frostburg after a most delightful visit with their parents. They will reside at Frostburg.

J. O. Getty, of Grantsville, is having his house remodeled and a kitchen added and the rear part of the old building is being torn down, also several partitions in the front of the house. Petry Bros. from Elk Lick, are the carpenters and the work will be completed early this fall, making a decided improvement.

William Ravenscraft was picked up on one of the streets of Frostburg, Saturday and taken to Dr. Griffith's office by Policeman Bone. Owing to the seriousness of his condition he was later taken to the hospital and his condition is thought to be very serious. Mr. Ravenscraft is about 70 years of age. He is a uncle to John Ravenscraft, a former resident of Frostburg, and boards in Garrett county. Mr. Ravenscroft was on his way to the doctor's office when he collapsed from fatigue.

A number of folks of Eglon gathered together one night last week and husked quite a lot of corn for P. S. Fike. Mr. Fike was very much pleased when he arose the next morning and saw what had been done in his corn field, while he slept.

An escaped lion it is reported has been terrorizing the farmers near Cross, W. Va. A large number of hunting parties have been trying to kill it, among whom was Col. Wm. H. Seaber. It killed a 300 pound hog near Cross on Friday of last week.

Temperance Notes.

Vote dry Nov. 3.

Then we will have a saloonless county May 1, 1915.

Won't it be a glorious change?

The day of our redemption draweth nigh.

The day for which we have long prayed.

As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.

After April 30, 1915, it will be a long way between drinks and rather expensive.

Say, you fellows, what are you doing out there in the wet? Don't you feel lonesome? You had better get in the dry before Nov. 3.

Oakland has to day nine saloons.

May 1, 1915 it will have nein (no) saloons.

The same letters but arrange differently.

In the first, nine, spelled in the wet way. We prefer the dry spelling. How about you?

The next move of the wets will be to Westernport. They (Westernport) have our sympathy, in the day of their tribulations.

Only a week or two over six months and the day of Garrett county's deliverance from the whiskey curse will be here.

April 30, 1915, will be the last day in which intoxicating liquor can be sold legally in Garrett county. Another indication of the county's prosperity. The days of the drunkard making, home destroying, misery producing manufactories are numbered in this county. In nineteen days the voters of Garrett county will put their veto upon the saloon. November 3d will be a memorable day in the history of this county.

Game Laws of Maryland.

The acts of 1914 provide a state game season, which is the first uniform season law the state of Maryland has ever had. This act repeals all other laws providing or prescribing seasons for game animals, and it will, therefore, be understood that all seasons prescribed by county or local laws, which conflict with the said act, are null and void.—Following is the State wide law:

It is unlawful to fish with anything other than a rod, line and single hook. Any kind of artificial bait must have one hook only. Dip net season is open only from February 15th to April 15th, and one-inch mesh is required. (The law does not make any provisions to catch bait with a net.) No person shall catch or in any manner take or kill at any time less than the following sizes: Rock or striped bass, 10 inch; tailor or black bass, 8 inch; white or yellow perch, 7 inch; pike, 14 inch; white catfish, 7 inch. Any person fishing with hook and line must return to the water any undersized fish.

For all game fish the season closes from April 1st to June 15th in main river and tributaries. Dynamite and other explosives are not to be used in the water, nor can lime, poison, acid, sawdust, shavings or other substances deleterious to fish be put in or near streams.

The game laws are state-wide as follows: No person shall shoot, trap, catch or kill or gun or hunt for any partridge or quail, English or Mongolian pheasant, pheasant or ruffled grouse, rabbit, squirrel, wild turkey, wood-cock or deer between the 24th day of December and the 10th day of November in any year exclusive of both dates, nor upon Sunday or when the ground is sufficiently covered with snow to track the above birds or game mentioned and there shall be a daily closed season on all the above game animals with the exception of rabbits, between sunset and sunrise. Doves closed all year. No license is required by residents of the county; for non-residents of State, including the clerks of the Circuit Court fees, $10.50.

A bounty of $2.00 for every wild cat destroyed. $1.00 for every fox and 50 cents for every hawk or hoot owl.

No person shall in this state at any time shoot or in any manner catch or kill, expose for sale, sell, or buy or have in possession, alive or dead any turkey buzzard, wren, bluebird, aegret, humming bird, blue jay, heron, migratory or other thrush, wood robin, red breasted robin, martin, mocking bird, cat bird, swallow, oriole, red bird, lark, indigo bird, joe wink, pewitt, sapsucker, whippoorwill, goldfinch, yellow breasted chat, cedar bird, herring gull or mackeral gull, or gull of any description, or have in his or her possession, offer for sale or wear the skins, plumage, wings or feathers of any of the birds above mentioned.

The following can be killed any day (except Sunday) in the year: fox, ground hog, mink, ferret, skunk, wild cat, coon, opossum, hawk, owl, crow, blackbird, or English sparrow, (or other bird destructive to domestic poultry.)

Number of animals to be killed in one day by one person: Partridges (Quail) 15, Pheasant 6, English Pheasant 4, Doves 25, Woodcock 12, Jack Snipe 12, Rabbit 12, Spuirrel 12, Wild Turkey, 2, Rail 50. 1 Deer all season.

Waterfowl, ducks, geese, swan, or brant season from November to January 31, both dates included.

Rails—open season on rails, coots and gallinules, September 1st to November 30th, both dates included:

Shore birds—open season on black breasted and golder plover, jacksnipe and greater and lesser yellow legs, September 1 to Dec. 5. Both dates included.

FLOUR MILL ON FARM.

How One North Dakota Man Gets Greatest Return From Crops.

A North Dakotan realizes the maximum returns from his wheat and rye crops by converting these grains into flour which he sells at $3 a hundred pounds. In his locality it was practically impossible to obtain good rye, graham or whole wheat flour, so this farmer started growing and grinding his own grain. As he became proficient the quality of the flour improved until finally his neighbors were annually demanding his surplus at handsome prices. This keen demand for high quality flour increased until he decided that it would pay him to equip a small mill thoroughly and to embark in the business on a commercial scale.

A stream of considerable velocity flows through his farm and furnishes the power with which to operate his machinery. He equipped his miniature mill with a crusher, a grinder, a cleaner and an elevator. The income from his flour business during the first two years paid for his plant and equipment and yielded him a good net profit.

This miller eliminates all the charges that usually go to the middle man. He annually raises about eighty acres of wheat and thirty-five acres of rye. Some of this grain he sells as a cash crop on account of inadequate bin room in which to store it, but more than half of the crop is converted into flour to be used for human food.

A gasoline engine is also maintained as a reserve source of power in case the water power should give out. The marketable flour is neatly sacked and sells for $3 a hundred pounds. Annually the rye and wheat have a farm value of about 60 and 82 cents a bushel respectively where they are sold as cash crops. At a slight expense as regards time and labor this shrewd farmer converts his raw wheat and rye—that in the bulk are worth approximately $1.07 and $1.10 a hundred pounds—into excellent flour that sells for $3 a hundred pounds.

Yearly this progressive farmer is gaining an attractive income from his milling operations, since he also grinds grain for his neighbors. This labor in nowise interferes with his farm work, as the greater share of the mill work is done during the period when field work is relatively slack.—Country Gentleman.

Plowing In Winter.

There is a diversity of opinion as to the advisability of plowing in winter.

It is generally conceded, however, that sod lands should be plowed in the winter season. The freezing and thawing of the soil put it in much better condition than it can be put by the plow and harrow after the spring has opened.

Winter plowing also destroys many insects that would damage crops if they were allowed to live.

There will be much more moisture laid up in the soil and saved for the use of the growing crop the next year if the plowing is done during the winter season than there would be if it were left until spring.

The capillary connection with the subsoil will have time to be renewed if the plowing is done early.

FARM MANAGEMENT.

Agriculture Should Be Handled as the Merchant Handles a Store.

By ANDREW BOSS.

Farm management, in its best interpretation, means the application of progressive, scientific and business principles to the business of farming. The farm manager holds the same relation to the farm and its business as does the business manager of the store or other business enterprise—that is, he is the one responsible for the success or failure of the enterprise from the financial point of view; therefore he must know every detail of crop growth, of cost of production, of marketing, of operating and of all business transactions performed in connection with the farm.

Farming is a business, and the one who can grow the largest crops of the best quality and at the same time produce them at the lowest cost, sell them at the highest price and make the best investment of the money received should rank as the best manager. While farming has not commonly been regarded as a business, the fact remains that the successful financial operation of a farm presents even a more complex problem and involves at least as much business ability and tact as are required in operating a store.

A farmer must have a knowledge of the elements of soil fertility, of the principles of the movement of soil water, of soil bacteria and their action, of plant growth, of varieties and species of plants, of the effect of one crop on the crop following and of the care of the seeds and forage. He must also understand animals and how to feed and care for them, and in addition he must know how to buy and sell to advantage, to make contracts, plan his buildings and farm so as to economize labor and distribute it to advantage.

The farm manager who would successfully conduct his business may profit by the example of the merchant.

The merchant takes an inventory of his stock, considers the demand for his goods, both present and prospective, notes the supply and cost of each article of commerce, the labor required to operate his business and any other items of expense that may be legitimate to the business, regulating his purchases and prices accordingly.

The farm manager should likewise take an inventory of his capital stock and equipment. He should consider the fertility of the soil and the demands that will be made upon it by the crops grown, the sources from which fertility may be renewed and at what cost; he must study the market and demands for the various crops and the possibility of handling them at a profit, the cost of producing each of the crops and the probable net profit that will be returned; the labor supply, the interest on investment and similar expenditures which must be made that affect the final result. Large farms may likewise be organized into departments and accounts kept with the cows, the pigs, the grain crops, the garden and similar enterprises. The business statement at the end of the year will then show which lines have been most profitable and will enable the manager to drop out those that are unprofitable.

TIMELY POULTRY NOTES.

Cabbages, beets and mangels make ideal greens for hens during the winter. Small potatoes and specked apples are also relished, particularly when the fowls are confined to their indoor quarters.

To keep the hens healthy provide a dry floor, plenty of dry litter, plenty of dry air and no draft; keep the house clean, feed well, water regularly and provide a constant supply of artificial grit, oyster shells, cracked bone and charcoal.

Hens should be dusted with insect powder occasionally, but the presence of a good dust bath will make these necessary occasions far fewer. Mix about one pound of powdered sulphur with each bushel of dust for the best results. — A. C. Smith, Poultryman, University Farm, St. Paul.

Potash Scarcity Need Not Alarm Farmer

Liberal Use Of Lime Will Free Enough Soil Potash To Supply Average Farm Crops, Such As Corn And Wheat

H. J. PATTERSON.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The supply of potash for our fertilizer mixtures is now cut off by the war and since we depend largely on Germany for this material, it will probably be sometime before it will be again available. While much of the potash for the fall trade has been shipped or is in this country, the fact that there is no more in sight will cause this supply to be used sparingly and at an advanced price.

This scarcity, however, need not seriously concern the average Maryland farmer, particularly, the grower of corn and wheat. Most of our soils contain a plentiful supply of potash, which can be made available for the coming wheat crop if a liberal application of lime is used; since lime beside sweetening sour soils and liberating nitrogen from organic matter also makes the unavailable potash compounds in the soil available for the use of the crop.

Experiments carried on at the State Experiment Station through a series of years have proven that the use of lime answers the same purpose as the application of fertilizers containing potash, but only so long as there is plenty of potash in the soil. Since we find most Maryland soils rich in potash, we need not be concerned that liming will exhaust the supply for some time to come.

Bearing this fact in mind, growers are advised to dispense with fertilizer mixtures containing potash if the advance in price is due to the rise in the cost of potash. For his wheat and corn, the grower cannot afford to pay much more for his potash supply than he has in the past. In some sections, where tobacco stems and stalks can be secured, they may be used to supply potash as they contain a considerable amount. The chances are, however, that the supply will soon be exhausted under present conditions, and for the average farmer looking for a cheap source of potash for his wheat crop, no better method can be followed than liming his field before seeding.

MORE AIR NEEDED HERE.

ROY H. WAITE.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Many poultry raisers are too much afraid their chickens will not be warm enough. When the air gets a bit chilly they close all the doors and pull down the windows to keep the heat in. It's all well enough to keep the house as warm as possible, but when you attempt to get it warm by closing it up, you introduce a factor which is many times more detrimental to the birds. Fowls can't stand dampness any more than you can, and when you "bottle up" a lot of them in a close room the moisture they breathe out soon fills the air and causes a damp, disagreeable house; one that induces colds, roup, rheumatism and other ailments.

If your house is like the one in the above picture, get out your saw or axe or maul and make a good generous opening; one at least taking up half the front. Then cover it with wire netting and hinge up a muslin curtain to let down on the coldest nights, if you wish. The ventilation will then be good and the moisture will have a chance to get out.

Peach "yellows" is showing up abundantly in many Maryland orchards this season. Indications are that this disease has spread much farther south than in former years. It now occurs in all parts of Maryland except Calvert, St. Mary's, Wicomico, Worcester, and Somerset, having recently been found in Northern Charles and Dorchester Counties.

The commonest symptoms of the disease are prematurely ripened fruit with peculiar red spots, and the narrow yellow leaves that show up on some branches. All trees showing signs of the disease should be cut down and burned to prevent its further spread. The most opportune time for doing this is directly after the peach harvest. Complete distruction of the diseased trees is the surest way to keep the balance of your orchard in a healthy condition

HANDSOME LAMPS INSTALLED

Yesterday—at the Foot of the Court House Steps.

Yesterday afternoon Messrs. A. D. Naylor & Co. completed the installation of two clusters of natural gas lamps at the foot of the steps leading from Third street up to the front entrance of the court house and last night the additional illumination afforded by the lamps was noticeable to those who had occasion to pass that way.

Each cluster contains four lamps, surmounted by a fifth one, all doubly equipped. The Commissioners in providing these lamps are to be commended from several viewpoints, chief among which is the fact that the court house grounds are made more attractive in appearance.

A PRAYER: AND AN ANSWER.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

All through the night the tempest raged, the Tempter held his sway
Within the heart of one who knelt, despairingly to pray:
"O send me peace, dear Lord," he cried, "and do thou quell for me
This storm as thou didst still the waves in ancient Galilee?
Not that I am worthy, Lord; alas, too well I prove
Each day that nothing I have done doth merit Thy dear love;
But for my wife and little ones who day by day must bow
In shame and bitterness for me, who love them even now,
Yet lack the strength to free myself from Rum's accursed hold,
And be again to my dear ones as I had been of old.
Just this once more, O God, I ask, wilt Thou send help to me
And from this cursed bondage, in pity, set me free?"

Long hours he fought the Tempter thus, in agony and fear,
And then a voice, so sweet and low that none but he could hear
Breathed through that room; it said, "peace; be thou not afraid;
If thou but bring thy cares to to Me, thou need'st not be dismayed."
"Father," he cried, "how can I know that this conflict is o'er?"
His fainting heart heard in reply, "Go thou, and sin no more."
"Help Thou my unbelief, O Lord; I consecrate to Thee
From this time forth this life which Thou hast spared again to me.
No more again shall my dear wife shrink when my step she hears;
No more again for my sake shall her dear eyes fill with tears.
God helping me, I'll be to her as I have been of yore,
And put the wine cup to my lips no more, dear Lord, no more!"

TEMPERANCE MEETING

IN OAKLAND, FRIDAY, 7.30 P. M.

Tomorrow, 7.30 P. M., a Local Option Temperance Meeting will be held on the street corner in front of the First National Bank. The band will be present. Dr. HARE will be the speaker. Let everybody turn out.

CIDER AND LOCAL OPTION.

Will the Adoption of Local Option deprive the Farmer of His Cider?

The opponents of local option have been making use in certain sections of the county of a story that in case local option is adopted this fall it will hereafter be against the law for any one to keep cider on his premises. They have been telling a wonderful story about how the vinegar business in the county will decline and how farmers will be prosecuted for keeping upon their premises soft or hard cider for the customary and usual purposes. That such a report is the rankest kind of a fabrication is easily seen when once the new law is read and studied and a comparison made with the terms of the law, under which Garrett county has been living for these several years. A study of this shows that the friends of the liquor business have not been slow in trying to make dupes of the farmers of the county and that they have tried to put over a plain case of deception and fraud. With them it has been anything and everything to keep the temperance cause from being successful. Let us see how the matter really stands and what the law says.

Section 5 of the Local Option bill provides as follows:

"And be it enacted, That no person, house, company, manufacturer, association or body corporate, shall deposit, keep or have in his or its possession, any spirituous or fermented liquors, or alcoholic bitters, or intoxicating drinks of any kind, or hard cider, tonic beer, lager beer, schnapps, or gin, or any article used or sold as a beverage, in the composition or compounding of which whiskey, brandy, high wines or alcohol or any spirituous or fermented liquors shall be an ingredient, with intent to barter or sell or give away the same in violation of the provisions of the preceding sections (which refer to the adoption of the measure) or with intent that the same shall be bartered or sold or given away in violation thereof within the limits of said county."

A study of this provision of the law shows clearly that there is no prohibition against keeping cider on the premises for the customary uses. The only prohibition laid down is that no one shall keep hard cider for the purpose of selling, bartering or giving it away and it is merely classed the same as any other fermented or intoxicating drink. To contend that from this there is room for a statement such as has been made around over the county is to insult the intelligence of the people of the county. The clause given above is the one that will control in case local option is voted upon favorably and is adopted. In case the county should go wet another provision will control that is equally stringent if not more stringent. This reads as follows:

"Sec. 21. And be it enacted. That any person who shall sell directly or indirectly at any place in Garrett county, or give away directly or indirectly at any place of business in said county, any spirituous, fermented or malt liquors, without first having obtained a license as required by this act upon indictment and conviction thereof for the first offense forfeit and pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars or more than five hundred dollars and cost of prosecution, and failing to pay such fine shall be sentenced to be confined in the Maryland House of Correction, etc."

Hard cider is purely and simply a fremented liquor and whether or not it is directly mentioned in the last section quoted has nothing to do with the case. Being a fremented liquor, its sale at any place in Garrett county will be prohibited, should the county go wet, unless the person wishing to sell the same shall first have taken out the regular liquor license and as under Sections 14 and 15 no one can take out a license except in an incorporated town and under very stringent conditions even then, it would be impossible for any farmer in the country to sell hard cider. The same thing governs with regard to the giving away directly or indirectly of spirituous, fermented or alcoholic liquors, of which hard cider is clearly one kind. It cannot be given away directly or indirectly at any place of business in GarrettCounty. Now the place of business of the farmer is his home or his farm and should the county go wet he cannot give hard cider or anything of its kind away without first having secured a license and this under the terms of the law is impossible.

There is nothing new in these provisions of the law. The old law under which Garrett Countians have been living for these sevaral years specifically states that "it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, house, corporation, campany or association, to sell spirituous or fremented liquors or alcoholic bitters, directly or indirectly at any place within the limits of said county." For anyone except a legally licensed person to dispose of hard cider or any other kind of fermented liquors to be used as a beverage has been absolutely against the present existing law. Nothing new has been added here by the new law and it merely specifies a number of the fermented or alcoholic drinks while the old law was content with classing them all together.

Taking the three provsions together what do we find? In none of them is there anything said about making cider or keeping it on the premises for the usual purpose. It has always been unlawful to sell it as a beverage except in a legally licensed saloon whether the sale may be made directly or indirectly. If the county goes wet this fall the same provisions will exist with the added clause that fermented liquors cannot be given away at any place of business without the giver having taken out a saloon license. If it goes dry, no one can keep fermented or intoxicating liquors on hand with the intent to barter, sell or give away the same in violation of law. He may make and keep on hand all of the hard cider or other fermented liquors he may choose but he cannot do so with the intent to violate the law. Certainly this is plain enough and we are adding practically nothing to the severity of the present law in that respect. There is nothing in this to which any temperance and law abiding man should object and any statement that has been made relative to the making and keeping for ordinary uses of cider, soft or hard, that is contrary to this statement of the law is an absolute prevarication. With the county dry, the farmer can continue to make and to keep on his premises all of the cider he may wish but he cannot do so with the direct intent to violate the law with respect to selling or giving it away in a fermented and intoxicating state.

Painfully Hurt This Morning.

Charles Wagley, employed on the State-aid Road as a teamster, was thrown from a horse as he was going to work this morning and suffered severe injuries. In addition to having two ribs broken his right collar bone was also broken and he suffered other painful injuries about his lower limbs. He was brought to the office of Dr. McComas in Oakland where he was given surgical treatment and later removed to his home in Mt. Lake Park.

Grain Dealers to Fight War Tax.

A nation-wide fight on war tax of one cent on every $100 grain transaction was started at the 18th annual convention of the grain dealers, a National Association, when the report of the legislative committee was presented and adopted. A telegram was sent to President Wilson, which set forth the attitude of the grain dealers. It was pointed out that the proposed tax of one cent would subject the same grain to repeated taxation and that under the plan there was no limit to the amount of taxation. The Government might tax a single shipment. The tax, it was asserted, might paralyze the grain market.

Father Connell's Temperance Sermon

To the Editor of The Republican:

On last Sunday morning at high mass at St. Peter's church Rev. Father Connel took for his text the words of St. Paul to the Ephesians: "Be ye not drunk with wine, wherein is luxury," &c., and preached the strongest, most practical and most convincing sermon on temperance to which we have ever had the pleasure of listening. He pictured in clear and chaste English the sinfulness of drunkeness and the sure fate of drunkards and vividly portrayed the effect of drink upon the drunkard himself, spiritually, as well as upon his family, his friends and the community in general.

Father Connell spoke with special stress upon the spiritual phase of the question and upheld his contention in favor of total abstinence by strong scriptural proof and religious argument. He urged upon his hearers the need of personal restraint and self denial and thrilled them greatly by the power of his glowing eloquence. He held his audience spell bound and was intently listened to by a very large and appreciative congregation who hung upon his every word and evidently felt deeply the force of the truth which he so beautifully expounded.

HEARER.

The Maryland Week Exhibition will be held at the Fifth Regiment Armory on November 17-21. It will be, as last year, under the auspices of the Maryland State Horticultural Society, and affiliated with this organization will be the Maryland Crop Improvemeet Association, Maryland State Dairymen's Association and Maryland State Beekeeper's Association. In the order named, these organizations will hold their annual meetings on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with three sessions daily in the Armory gymnasium. The formal opening on Tuesday night will be with an appropriate program in which national government, State, City and various rural interests will be represented. Plans are under way to make Maryland Week this year a record breaker in point of attendance from the counties of Maryland.

S. O. S. CALL SAVES HUNDREDS FROM DROWNING

In a dense fog which hovered over New York Friday afternoon the steamer Netapan of the United Fruit Company, inward bound from Colon, was rammed by the steamer Iowan of the American Hawaiian Company outward bound, northwest of Buoy No. 1 in Ambrose channel. The Metapan carried a crew of 60, all of whom were saved.

As soon as she was struck the Metapan sent out a S. O. S. Its flashes were picked up by the British cruiser Lancaster patrol outside the Hook and the United States revenue cutter Seneca, which immediately went to the aid of the stricken vessel. The dredge Atlantic, the liners Croonland, Delphic and Alamo, and a couple of small fishing boats also went to the assistance of the Netapan. When the captain of the Netapan saw his vessel sinking he beached her on the north side of Ambrose channel, where the vessel is resting on the bottom, but almost entirely submerged. The passengers and crew were all taken off by the small vessels which went to the liner's assistance.

The wreck occured about 3 p. m., sharp. Among the passengers on board the steamer were Mr. and Mrs. James P. Treacy on their way home from Panama. Five minutes after the steamer was struck the front was almost under water. The Captain ordered the boat "beached." The life boats were lowered, and among the first passengers to get into one of the boats was Mrs. James P. Treacy. She was followed by her husband, who slipped down the rope on the side of the steamer and got into the boat. For about an hour and a quarter they were in the boat before they were rescued by one of the boats which had responded to the call and taken to the shore. Mr. and Mrs. Treacy repart a delightful honeymoon and tell of the wonders of the Panama Canal and country in a most enthusiastic manner.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Rev. W. F. McKain, the new Methodist preacher, is expected to preach here next Sabbath morning. He is said to be one of the best preachers in the West Virginia Conference.

Mrs. C. M. Rathbun visited her son, Prof. F. E. Rathbun, and family, in Oakland Monday.

Mr. Emory Freeland will remain at the Park, instead of moving away, as announced in this paper last week. Mr. Freeland will remain in the employ of the Park Association. The public sale he advertised for tomorrow will take place as announced. See adv. in another column.

The Maxwell cottage was closed last Friday.

The Park is thickly covered with leaves; should some one carelessly drop a match, great damage might be done. William White is raking off the lots in his care and burning the leaves. A very wise move on his part.

Rumor says that several thousands of dollars will be expended in improving the water works so as to provide sufficient water for this community. The receivers are doing some good work in this direction.

Charles Friend and wife of Piedmont, were week end visitors at the Park, guests of his brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Friend.

Miller Doman is supplying home ground graham flour to the public. It is fine for muffins.

H. B. Harvey's new stock of goods is coming in. Mr. Gough says he bought a splendid line of goods for their trade. Something specially nice.

This part of Garrett county is almost solid for Zihlman. You could count the wets on your fingers.

Miss Sarah Harris has gone to Franklin, Va., for the winter. Her presence in any community is a blessing.

Rev. P. W. Metheny a former Park pastor, has been returned to Tunnelton, W. Va., for another year by the conference, which has just closed at Fairmont. He is also the principal of the Denver school this year.

A very delightful and enjoyable surprise party was given to Mrs. J. L. Echard, at her home Monday evening by her many friends.

A temperance rally will be held in the U. B. church Sunday evening Let everybody attend this meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevenson move this week from their farm to the Pollock cottage in the Park. Welcome.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE COLUMN

Practical Suggestions on Local Option Campaign.

Only twelve days more until the voters of Garrett county will decide the greatest question ever submitted to them. Shall the sale of liquor be prohibited in Garrett county? It is up to YOU, Mr. Voter, to answer that question. Do YOU realize this fact? THE RESPONSIBILITY of the rum traffic in Garrett county IS PLACED UPON YOU. There is no dodging the issue.

The legislature, by enacting the Speicher local option bill into a law, the Governor by placing his signature to the enacted bill, wash their hands of all responsibilty and places it upon YOU, Mr. Voter.

Your individual vote decides the question.

If whiskey is sold in Garrett county after April 30, 1915 IT WILL BE YOUR FAULT. It will be because YOU betrayed YOUR trust, because YOU failed to do YOUR duty. Get this fact into your head.

Never before has there hung so much power to your ballot as today, for good or evil—tremendous good or tremendous evil.

There is no valid excuse for your not doing your whole duty. Because someone else fails to discharge his obligations to God and his country, is no reason why you should fail to do your duty.

You personally must answer for your vote and no one else.

There is no dodging the issue. YOU are either For or Against Local Option. There is no neutral ground. There is no escape from this PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY. It is either YES or NO.

The great question stares you in the face. SHALL INTOXICATING LIQUORS BE SOLD IN GARRETT COUNTY? That is the question. There is no getting around it. There is no getting away from it.. It is there. Yes or No. It will be decided Tuesday, November 3. It will be decided by YOUR vote. The legislature has proclaimed it. The Governor of your State has laid the responsibility of deciding the matter upon your shoulder? It is there. It is on YOU. It is with YOU. YOU are on the firing line. Will YOU loyally do YOUR duty?.

The widow's tears, the orphan's cry, the drunkard's sobs appeal to you. Shall they plead in vain? Can you kneel in your morning or evening devotion and say, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," and fail to vote Dry?

Not to vote is a vote for the continuation of this awful business of ruining mankind. Silence is consent, is a recognized maxim the world over.

Do not forget the fact YOU ARE FOR or YOU ARE AGAINST Local Option. As you value your happiness here and in eternity act like a man and brother. Go to the polls early and vote DRY.

Then to develop your manhood, to get in a real good healthy condition go after your neighbor and persuade him to vote Dry. Do something good, noble and manly between now and election day. Be a power for good; be useful in the uplift of mankind, help the fallen brother to his feet, help him help himself. He needs your assistance.

What are YOU going to do about it?

You failed to register. YOU ARE sorry, sure. Now, there is only one thing else to do. You have lost your vote, but you have not lost your influence, you have your voice. Use it for the cause. Get others to vote in your place. Get a substitute. Better get two votes. One to take your place the other to advance the number to Dry voters.

You will feel much better, you will feel more manful, more patriotic. You will have a part in this great conflict. It is too late now to register. Thank God it is not to late too get a vote on the right side. A word from you may influence some hesitating voter to do his duty.

Some one may need your cheerful word, your encouragement. Mr. Voter do your best, get busy, be up and doing while it is day, tomorrow may be to late.

This is your opportunity to do something grand and good. It is the opportunity of a life time.

Christ died to make men free. Will you vote to do the same? YOU are the man interested. If you can't vote get another man to vote Dry. Show some interest in your fellow man, in his family, in the welfare of your country. If you could hear, as I have heard, the plea of the poor drunkard, the plea of his suffering wife, as she held her babe in her arms, husband and father in jail, and she without money or food; the plea of the gray haired mother for her debauched boy, you would do your duty, you would get desperately in earnest. You would vote and you would go after other votes.

"Right is Right since God is God,
And right the day will be."

Some persons with evil intent are circulating a report that if the local option measure is adopted farmers cannot make cider or vineger. This is a clear, deliberate falsehood, and infernal in design. Its circulation is to catch the farmer vote. Do not be deceived. Pay no attention to their false reports. The devil is busy, so are his agents and that company will be busy up to election day.

You can make all of the sweet cider and vineger you want to make.

The enemies of Local Option find fault with the bill because it does not provide for the closing up of the Miller distillery at Accident. They rub their hands and sigh because of this oversight. It is sad, awful sad, that this distillery is not wiped out of existence by the bill. What a pity. How sad these calamity howlers look as they express their regret of this omission. Now what are the facts in the case? HAD THAT IDEA BEEN INCLUDED IN THE BILL, THE BILL IF ADOPTED BY THE VOTERS WOULD HAVE BEEN TAKEN TO THE COURTS AND THE COURTS WOULD HAVE PRONOUNCED THE BILL UNCONSTITUTIONAL. The closing of the distillery can only be accomplished by a constitutional amendment. By including Milier's distillery it would have proven a snake to kill the bill. Beware of wolves in sheep's clothing. They are in our midst. They are busy with their evil insinuations. Vote Dry. Take no risks.

Be prepared to hear all kinds of reports, for the devil is always at work. He takes no vacation. The past week some very ridiculous STORIES were put in circulation.

1. That under local option liquor could be sold in the county by the purchaser buying five gallons or more at a time. This is false.

2. That a man could go to Miller's distillery with a barrel, leave it there, have it filled and then whenever dry drive up to the still house and tap his own barrel. Rank nonsence. Millers will have to ship every drop of liquor they make outside of the county if they want to sell it. THEY CANNOT EVEN GIVE IT AWAY in the county. This is an indisputable fact.

3. That if Garrett county goes dry, there will be no fair held in Oakland next fall. The father of that thought is a —. What is the use of saying it. It is "rot" of the filthiest kind. On the other hand there will be a fair —the greatest fair ever held in the county and some of the magnificient, glorious exhibits will be a saloonless county seat, an empty jail and no specimen of the work done by saloons—drunken men staggering on the streets.

The rummies might as well predict that cobble stones will grow on the apple trees, that when it rains little red devils will fall from the clouds, that the cows will give blood instead of milk and water will run up hill, and water become so scarce that it will have to be purchased at an exhorbitant price. Do not forget, "The fools are not all dead."

Political Paragraph.

The New York Herald the other day editorially declared without reservation that "proper economy at Washington would have removed the excuse for a 'war' tax levied upon the people of a nation that is not at war. War is being made to play the part of charity," says the Herald, "in furnishing covering for a multitude of sins, and one sin unforgivable is Democratic extravagance."

A solid party vote will be given Senator Zihlman and Col. Carrington from Allegany in November from the present indications. The county vote alone will serve to elect Zihlman to the House of Representatives, for the party will poll a solid 2500 majority on election day, as indicated by the registration returns.

Returns from all the other counties in the Sixth district show heavy Republican gains, and substantial majorities in each, indicating that the party is united again and on November 3 will give its candidates a party vote that will serve to carry them into Congress by large majorities and bring this district back into the place it formerly held as a rockbed in Maryland of the party that stands for protection and prosperity.

Frederick County for Zihlman.

With the G. O. P. in the lead in registration in Frederick county the leaders are predicting a majority for Zihlman of from 400 to 600. The leaders figure that Zihlman will not only receive the bulk of the Republican vote, but also the support of many unaffiliated and Democratic voters. Certainly it is true that many Democrats in the county have already pledged themselves to vote and work for Zihlman in the last hours of the campaign. The candidate has won hundreds of friends in the Frederick section by his arguing that the present low tariff is wrong and that he proposes, if elected, to work to better business conditions and thus increase the pay of the workingmen. Likewise he has pointed out to the farmers the explanation of the low prices for their products and the relief that can be obtained through a change in administration.

Not To Be Trusted.

The party which has made such a conspicious failure in National affairs by curtailing the revenues through an industry destroying tariff, and by increasing expenses when economy was needed, thus causing the imposition of a war tax of the hundred millions in times of peace, is not the kind of a party to trust with the management of this country. Vote for Carrington and Zihlman.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Mount Nebo, Garrett County, Md.,
October 12, 1914.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to air some of our moss-back views. My neighbors and I have just come in from looking after our razor back hogs on Nebo mountain, and unexpectedly a copy of the Cumberland Times fell into our tired hands, and what did we read, low and behold you. In that magnificent sheet we read, that Hon. David J. Lewis was going to carry Allegany county with its 2517 Republican majority and even carry Garrett county with its 1000 majority as shown by the poll books. Not only that, but the Hon. D. J. Lewis is the father of the parcel post law. Now in all honesty and sincerity and for the benefit of us who do not know, did the Hon. D. J. Lewis draw the bill of the parcel post fame? Or was a Democrat Congressman from Ohio, amended by a Republican Senator from Oregon, amended by a committee of the House, of which Mr. Lewis was a member, which gave the Postmaster General Hitchcock the power to make rates and zones, which was put into effect by a Republican postmaster general.

It does begin to seem to us that the Hon. D. J. Lewis has lived in the Sixth District for a hundred years as some of his over anxious friends try to make it appear that he has done everything good that has been done in the Sixth District. We would not, or at least we do not think we should be blamed if we give him credit for the bumper crops that Garrett county produced this year or the large chestnut and acorn crops which are helping us to fatten our razor-back hogs, also for the copious showers we are getting at present, but also we resemble Rip Van Winkle. We have awakened from that dangerous lethargy, and we are willing to give Hon. D. J. Lewis credit for what he has done. We give him credit for aiding and assisting the parcel post bill for which he claims so much credit; we also give him credit for standing for, working for, voting for and helping to enact laws that have paralyzed the industries of the United States, which has thrown countless thousands of men out of employment. We give him credit for assisting with his influence, voice and vote to place a war tax on the people when the country is at peace with the world. We give him credit for aiding and abetting all the other ills which the Democratic party his brought upon this country. Then tell me why one single Republican should vote for Hon. D. J. Lewis?

THE DEATH RECORD

MRS. JESSE BROWNING.

Mrs. Jesse Browning, 77 years old, died Oct. 14, at her home near Flintstone, Allegany county, from infirmities of old age. Her husband, a decendant of Meshack Browning, the famous hunter and trapper, died nine days ago. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Perdew, of Pratt, Md. The funeral was held at 11 o'clock Friday morning from Mt. Pleasant church, near the Baltimore pike. Burial was in the church cemetry.

WHY THE WAR TAX.

A Pertitent Question Asked by a Democratic Editor.

William R. Hearst a Democrat, an able editor and a successful business man, in his Chicago American asked the above question, and then enters his protest against such a tax. Hear him

"The most peaceful nation in the world is to be asked to pay a war tax of a hundred million dollars. The United States is not at war, and is not in reality a sufferer of the European war, or even mainly by the war. The deficit in the income of the United States goverment is due partly to the reduction of the amount of imports into this country, but also largely to a reduction of the tax upon imports into this country.

"The reduction in the amount of the imports the party in power at Washington is not responsible for, but the reduction in the amount of the tax on imports the party in power at Washington is resposible for. Why can not the Democratic party, which has many claims upon popular confidence abandon the visionary and impractical policies which will, if persisted in forever deny it popular confidence and support? War or no war, the Democrrtic party tariff are proving failures. A tariff for insufficient revenue only as well.

"Why can not the Democratic party abandon its theories, which have proved false, its policies which have proven false? Why can it not cease forever taxing our producers, forever restricting, restraining, and retarding our production? Why can it not embark upon a new enlightened policy of intelligently encouraging our production, of adequately transporting our production, and of constantly enlarging and retaining the markets for our production at home and abroad?"

Remember, the foregoing are words of a Democrat and not of a Republican.

The Lutheran Synod Meets.

The Third Annual Convention of the Synod of West Virginia of the Evangelical Lutheran church was formally opened Thursday evening of last week in the Trinity Lutheran Church of Keyser, W. Va.

This Synod was organized in Fairmont, W. Va., on April 16 and 17. The Synod being new is naturally not very large, but each succeeding year is evidencing some growth, two new charges having been admitted in the past two years, and two flourishing missions having been organized under its direction.

This Synod is composed of the Lutheran congregatians of W. Va., and Garrett County, Md., each charge being represented by the pastor and one lay delegate.

The Synodical Sermon was preached by the President of the Synod, Rev. W. S. Dysinger, D. D., of Wheeling, from the text taken from John 10:20 "Why Hear Ye Him?" Following the sermon the Synodical Sacrament of Holy Communion was administered.

Brief remarks were made by the General Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the General Synod of the Lutheran Church Rev. L. B. Wolf, D. D., of Baltimore, pointing the churches of this synod to the great crises that confronts the missions of the world and especinlly those directly influenced by the present great European War.

Dr. W. A. Granville, president of Pennsylvania College presented the work of that institution which has rapidly come to the front as one of the leading educational institutions of the Lutheran church in the East.

The Business Session was opened at 9:00 o'clock Friday morning by the President. After the report of President and Treasurer, which showed wonderful advance in the work of the synod the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Rev. W. S. Dysinger, of Wheeling, President.

Rev. A. F. Richardson, of Grafton, Secretary.

J. J. Brochard of Wheeling, Treasurer.

The work of the Lutheran Publication Society and the Home Mission Work of the General Synod of the Lutheran church in America was presented by Rev. Fred Sigmund and Rev. A. Stewart Hartman, Superintendent and General Secretary respectively.

Art Merit Recognized.

L. J. Beachy the Mt. Nebo artist, Grantsville, had the distinction of being awarded first prize for amateur photography at the Oakland Fair. Mr. Beachy's work has been attracting favorable notice for some time, and the honor was deserved. Among his pictures on exhibibition was an admirable portrait of Senator Speicher of Accident, which was a splendid likeness, also a very charming portrait of Mrs. E. H. Reppert (nee Beulah Getty) of Frostburg, taken at sixteen, which the artist has very appropriately named "A Girl of the Maryland Hills."

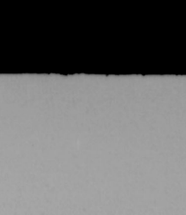
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1914.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.



FOR U. S. SENATOR,
EDWARD C. CARRINGTON.

FOR CONGRESS,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

ANYTHING to beat Zihlman, is the cry of the Democrats. They are badly scared up and are getting desperate.

THE tariff question may not be an issue with the Democratic party, but it certainly is with the unemployed and the country at large.

GARRETT Countians will remember 1914 as the year of a Great Fair, the adoption of the Local Option law and the big majority given to the Republican ticket.

GET the spirit of the slogan of the Republican candidate for the United States Senate over in Ohio: "Prosper America First." That is the spirit of Republicanism.

THE Democratic orators who are insisting that there is prosperity in the land are like Patrick Henry's celebrated exclamation: "The people cry peace! peace! but there is no peace."

CHAIRMAN Vandiver of the Democratic State Committee proposes to pay the Democratic Congressman and Senators their $20 per diem, if they will vacate the Halls of Congress and go on the stump in Maryland, to save the party from defeat.

THERE is talk about repealing the resolution docking Congressman $20 for every day they are absent from the House. It is too expensive, and then what's the use? Are we not to have a war tax? If a Democratic Congressman goes home for a month whose business is it? We can increase the war tax, you know.

THE Republican party has always been a great constructive party. It has, in its wisdom, developed policies which have built up a strong general government. It has been broad and national, rather than narrow and sectional, and in the development of its protective tariff policy it has built up a prosperous industrial republic, which is now assailed by the forces of free trade.

THE Republicans in Garrett county deserve credit for taking so much interest in the new registration, solidly for Carrington, Zihlman and Local Option. If we do, it will be the proudest day of our lives. There is nothing to be gained by voting for the Democratic ticket and much to lose. Stand by your candidates. They are worthy of your best efforts and vote. Vote as you registered.

IN former campaigns the Democratic speakers were want to yell their heads off by shouting to the multitudes, "The Tariff is a Tax," but it remained for a Democratic administration to fulfill the truthtulness of that assertion by imposing a $105,000,000 revenue bill on the country in a time of peace, working under free trade schedules. That's the only kind of tariff that taxes the people —taxes their wits to make both ends meet.

HON. David J. Lewis is spending this week in Garrett county trying to explain to Republicans why they should vote for him, as the representative of President Wilson and his policies. If he is elected it must be by the Republican voters and he knows it. He deprives Congress of his very valuable services (?) to try to persuade Republicans to vote for a Democrat. He spends the whole week in a county where the Republican majority is greater than the entire Democratic vote. Lewis represents Democracy. Zihlman represents Republicanism. The Republicans will not be dseceived.

THE entire Democratic party will be watchfully waiting on the night of November 3.

"SUSTAIN the President" is the pathetic plea of the Democratic orators, because they know the people will not sustain the Democratic Congress.

THE Democratic Congress is debating about a war tax and at the same time talking about giving $25,000,000 to Columbia. Better help home folks first.

LOOKING at the record of the unfilled tonnage of the iron and steel industry, why not shout the cry of "buy a ton of steel," as well as "buy a bale of cotton."

WILL "Our Davy" tell us who he is going to name for the Oakland postmaster? He is in Garrett county now and ought to have time to answer such a little question.

THE first session of the present Congress, not yet closed, is the longest in the history of the nation, and likewise the most disastrous to the material interests of the country.

THE proposition of the Southern members of Congress to inflict a $250,000,000 bond issue on the country at this time to aid the cotton planters is absolutely the climax of the woeful record made by the Democratic party since it came into power.

WHY isn't the crippled wool industry, nearly destroyed by the Democratic free trade tariff, entitled to help as well as the embarassed cotton industry? Is it because wool growing flourishes in Republican States and cotton in reliably Democratic States?

WILSON'S administration advocates a war tax and at the same time proposes to buy medals worth several thousand dollars to present to the Peace Commissioners in the Mexican muddle for their valuable services some months ago. This is an economical administration.

IT used to be "Our Davy," when the Democrats spoke about Congressman David J. Lewis. But now it is, David John Lewis, according to printed matter sent out from Washington, D. C. It is printed in large, heavy black letters, "David John Lewis Making a Name." Quite a step from "Our Davy" to David John Lewis.

CONGRESS is right not to levy on quite everything in its new tax bill. This administration has a little over two years to run yet: and if it continues its policy of waste and extravagance it will be necessary to pass at least one more tax bill before it gets through. It would be in hard luck if there were nothing whatever left to tax.

ACCORDING to reports received at Republican headquarters at Columbus, Ohio, that State is sure to go heavily for Willis, Harding and the whole ticket. In fact, it is confidently predicted that the Ohio Tammany boss will lose over 100,000 Democratic votes, and that for the first time in history a number of Democratic counties will vote Republican on the head of the ticket. The reports are that Republicans are absolutely solid for Willis, that thousands of Republicans who have not voted for years will be out, and that the state ticket will win out by a good majority and the indications are that the state will vote for statewide prohibition.

THE advertising merchant is the one who does the business in these days of push and enterprise. There are more newspaper readers than ever before in the history of the world. The newspaper place your business under the eye of the buyer. He sees what he wants, and, knowing where to find it, looks up the wide awake merchant who asked him to come and see him. Success in these days of sharp competition calls for eternal vigilance. There is no better advertising medium in Western Maryland than THE REPUBLICAN. It is the paper that brings results, the paper that reaches the homes of the people. Moral: When you advertise use THE REPUBLICAN.

TAKE the price of sugar which we are using every day of our lives and you get an idea of the Democratic reduction in the price of living. The high cost of this article, according to our worthy friend the President, is not real, it is only psychologically existing in your minds. Such conditions could not arise we are told, the Underwood Tariff bill destroyed that. No difference as long as it helped the average man, but what benefits are to be derived, how can any country benefit if part of its resources are destroyed? With the protection off our national resources, is the effects felt, real or psychological? The Underwood bill killed the best industry of the Northwest and the sugar plants of Louisana, thus lessened the supply from home prodtcte.

THERE are six candidates for the Senatorship in Maryland and almost the only satisfaction four of these will get out of the election will be that produced by seeing their names on the ballots. The candidates to be voted for next month are as follows: For United States Senator, John Walter Smith, Democratic; Edward C. Carrington, Jr., Republican; Dr. M. V. Reichard, Progressive; Richard Henry Holme, Prohibition; Charles E. Develin, Socialist, and Robert W. Stevens, Labor. Sixth Congressional District Congressman—David. J. Lewis, Democrat; Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican; Lewis F. Kafauver, Progressive; William M. Purdum, Prohibition; H. Clifford Wright, Socialist.

SECRETARY and Son-in-Law McAdoo who presides over the United States Treasury, is getting into hot water over that "directed loan" to the State of Tennessee, the details of which were given in The Republican of last week. The salient features of that loan stamps it as a very reprehensible performance. Two reputable banks stood ready to loan Tennessee the money she needed at a 4.28 per cent rate. The Secretary knew of this readiness and willingness, yet he induced the State to borrow of another bank at the rate of six per cent, the Treasury helping the bank to make the loan by depositing $400,000 with it at two per cent. By this transaction the bank makes a profit of four per cent. on the government deposit or $16,000 and the State of Tennessee has been mulcted in the difference between an interest charge of 4.28 and 6 per cent rate. Lovely financiering that.

THE Postoffice Department of which Mr. Burleson is at the head, has discovered that there will be a deficit of $40,000,000 at the end of the year in the Rural Delivery service. The Carroll Record in speaking on this subject says:

Now, it becoming apparent that the system not only "does not pay," but that it creates a deficit of some $40,000,000. Parcel Post is another enterprise that has been spoiled by Congressional interference, and by visionary know-it-alls, and the actual deficit in this department—when the railroads get fair pay for handling the increased business—will likely run up into many millions a year.

The Postoffice Department, as an expert and authoritative branch of the governmental service, is largely a figure head. Some of the legislation by Congress, on postage rates and departmental regulations, is simply absurd, and is bringing "governmental ownership" generally into first-class disrepute. The fact is, Congress has made rather a bad mess of running our postal service, and the Postmaster General has a pretty hard time of it trying to make the financial end look good. He now intimates that the carrier service ought to be put out by contract, something like the old Star-route service.

FACTS WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

Ever since being admitted to the bar Mr. Lewis has either been in office or has been striving to get in, and has belonged to all the various political parties in the meantime, and yet we want to ask if any one in Garrett county or the Sixth District feels that he has been benefited by any legislation which Mr. Lewis has helped bring about.

Prior to his election to Congress he promised the people cheaper commodities, in that he promised to reduce the high cost of living. Let us see briefly if he has done this. When Mr. Lewis was elected the first time the wholesale price of bacon was 10½ cents per pound. It is now 14. Ham was selling wholesale at 9½ cents. It is now 18. Sugar was $5.05 per 100. It is now 10 cents, wholesale. Flour was $5.70 per barrel. It is now $7.40. The prices which prevail now as quoted increased every year during the time Mr. Lewis had been in office and are not due to the European war, as the advocates of the latter would try to make you believe. Therefore you see, if any one is profiting by the free trade policy of Mr. Lewis, it must be the middleman, as it certainly is not the consumer.

Mr. Zihlman, a man, true to labor, and who toiled in glass factories for twenty-one years and not later than two years ago, could have been seen blowing glass at the Potomac Glass Works.

Mr. Zihlman stands for a policy that will rekindle the fires in the workshops, which Mr. Lewis helped to put out. He stands for a policy that always has kept the manufacturing plants in full operation, and brought about good times.

In other words Mr. Zihlman stands for protection for the miners and every other industry, as against free trade. Vote for Mr. Zihlman—"there is a reason."

EVERY REPUBLICAN FOR ZIHLMAN

An entnusiastic Republican meeting was held at Shaft. We clip the following item from the News of Cumberland:

When the announcement was made at a Republican meeting at Borden Shaft last night that the new registration in Allegany county would show a majority for the Republicans of over 2400, enthusiasm reached a high pitch. In fact the meeting at the Shaft was one of the most successful so far held in the county. The attendance was extremely large and the audience was jubilant, as it was the general opinion that taking the great showing that the Republidan's made at the recent registration that Mr. Zihlman would have a majority in Allegany county over Mr. Lewis of at least fifteen hundred. The feeling all along the Creek for Mr. Zihlman is such that Republicans in that section among those who are capable of making near correct predictions is that Zihlman will receive one of the largest votes accorded any candidate in years. It is certain that at the Shaft, where there were 181 Republicans registered, as against 44 Democrats, that Zihlman will get a great vote, and those present at the meeting last night who are acquainted with political conditions, state that in their opinion that it would be impossible for Mr. Lewis to stem the tide. It was claimed that the hard times caused by the free trade policy of the Democrats had caused many Democrats to register as Republicans and the opinion was also expressed that when people have sworn to their party affiliation that they would to a very large extent vote as they had registered.

Mr. Shaffer said that he was not a public speaker but what he should say would be for the benefit in so far as he was able of the whole people. He said that the people of Allegany county knew Mr. Zihlman's record in the Senate of Maryland, where he gained a great reputation of treating all alike, and having the interest of the laboring class at heart.

Mr. Shaffer referred to the way that Mr. Zihlman had burned the midnight oil in order to gain an education, having been compelled to labor in a glass factory during the day time in order to earn a livelihood.

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT

To vote against the Saloon evil and all it stands for, mark your ballot thus:

FOR LICENSE
AGAINST LICENSE	X

THE glass-blower who made good—Senator Zihlman.

CONGRESSMAN Lewis was called to Washington last night from Friendsville to help impose upon this country President Wilson's one hundred million dollar war tax.

THIS has indeed been a memorable Congress. It has promoted a mass of legislation without parallel, and, despite a plank in the Baltimore platform scoring Republican extravagance and pledging economy, has voted the hugest expenditure of public money in the history of the republic. Mr. Lewis cannot successfully deny this statement, for it is an indisputable fact.

THE DIFFERENCE.

One man went to jail the other day in a Kansas county jail. The jailer remarked: "This is the second man to go into this jail in twenty years." Kansas has had Prohibition thirty years. In one evening last week five men were put in the Oakland jail, for drunkenness. Our town has ten saloons. Two men put into jail in twenty years in Dry territoy. Five men inside of a few hours in a wet town. That's going some. What are you going to do about it?

THE President, the Postmaster General, and other officials are telling wonderful stories about Congressman Lewis as a post office man. The Postmaster General calling him the Fifth Assistant Postmaster General. Of course, all this wonderous love for Lewis happens just before the election. How does it come that if he is such a brilliant light on postoffice affairs that Speaker Clark did not make him chairman of the Post office Committee? Why did not the Post Master General make him First Assistant Postmaster General instead of dubbing him "Fifth" Assistant Postmaster General? There is a reason.

THE DEATH RECORD

G. N. EMORY.

Mr. G. N. Emory, father of Mr. J. B. Emory, late treasurer of this county, died suddenly on a train between Keyser and Cumberland Friday of last week. The body was taken to Keyser, where funeral services were held Monday in charge of the Odd Fellows. Rev. R. G. Hammond, of the U. B. church conducted the services. The remains were interred in Queens Point cemetery by the side of his wife who died several years ago. All of his children were present at the funeral.

JONAS C. BEACHY.

On Sunday, Sept. 6th, the funeral of Jonas C. Beachy took place at Accident, Md. Mr. Beachy was a very successful business man. He engaged largely in cattle and sheep, and was very well known throughout the county. He was highly respected by all who knew him. His word was his bond. He was a member of the German Baptist Brethren church of which he became a member in early life and lived faithful until the end, which came on Sept. 4, 1914.

The funeral was preached by his pastor, Elder G. E. Yoder, of Elk Lick, Pa., and was one of the largest funerals ever witnessed at Accident.

Mr. Beachy was born June 30th, 1857, and January 25th, 1885, he was married to Annie Miller, daughter of Abraham Miller, who made him a noble companion. May 18th, 1909, he had a paraletic stroke from which he had been entirely helpless until death. During this time his devoted wife waited on him like a child. She was continually by his side until he passed quietly and peacefully away. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, two brothers and three sisters, namely: Silas C. and Christian C., both on the old homestead and Mrs. Amelia Fike, of Eglon, W. Va., Mrs. M. M. Schrock, of Mt. Lake Park, Md., and Mrs. Phineas Fike, of Missouri.

A FRIEND.

MRS. MARGARET WRIGHT.

Mrs. Margaret Wright, of Garrett county, died Saturday afternoon after a prolonged illness with nervous prostration. She was 95 years old and the widow of the late Charles Wright, who died four months ago.

She is survived by the following children: Messrs. William, Oscar and James Wright and Mrs. Norman Wilhelm, all of Garrett county.

The funeral took place Tuesday. Service was held at the family home at 11 a. m. Burial was made in the family lot in Allegany Cemetery.

ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS WAR TAX

Will Prove a Sieve Through Which the Resources of the Nation Will be Strianed.

Let it be fairly understood by all that the Republican party and its representatives in Congress do not stand opposed to any financial move that may be pressed upon the government through the extraordinary condition that exists in Europe. The war tax, were it in fact such, would be a patriotic tax. But the spectacle of the country seeking to raise a hundred million of dollars of additional revenues by means of internal taxation, is one that causes statesmen and economists to issue their challenge and that should cause the general citizen to reflect upon the outcome of Democratic administration of the revenues of the country. Here is a war tax proposition in times of peace. The people of the United States will support it in any form it may be assessed because they see the plight of the Treasury. But they do not and will not concede that it is a tax that should be necessary. The figures show that the reduction of revenues, despite the exaction of an income tax have been shamefully below what they were before the Democratic so-called competitive tariff went into effect. The reduction of revenues from the tariff prior to the outbreak of war were such as to lead the administration seriously to consider a bond issue to make good the loss. It is an open secret that no administration in recent years has been more popular with the element that is styled distinctively Wall Street, the element that knows no party and is in business for the sake of securing from the government all the benefits that it can secure. A big bond issue would have been fat for their frying pans and they see that this must eventually be resored to if the Democratic administration of the country is maintained.

The war tax will prove a sieve through which the resources of the country will be strained. The money will run out and the needs for more money will arise. In a word, the tariff is a deficit producing measure and the Democrats have neither the courage, nor the loyalty nor the patriotism to confess it so and to go about revising it. Such revision would not need to be upon the basis of war conditions in Europe, as revision was imperatively called for prior to the outbreak of the war. The condition has simply been aggravated by the situation arising from that conflict. Here then is the Democratic administration seeking to put through—and will put through—a special war tax that will prove to be only of emergency value and furnish no permanent relief.

Senator Borah says the present tariff and the practice of extravagance will inevitably lead to the passage of another revenue measure. One of the serious additions to the cost of government that he points to is the creation of an Interstate Trade Commission that will cost the government not less than a million dollars annually. He also pointed out that the cost of running the departments of the government was three million greater than for the average of all the years of Republican administration.

The sifting of the facts is going on and the public is becoming enlightened. It is not a question of whether the so-called war tax is not necessary. But it is not primarily required as an outgrowth of the failure of Democratic financial measure and administration. The people must not be deluded as to the facts. They must appreciate the necessity for a return to the principles of government of the Republican party and through these to lift the nation from the slough of deficit in which it is floundering. The tide of extravagance must be stemmed and the country can be saved in these respects only by an emphatic denouncement of Democratic results, through the coming election.

B. F. Green, who is called the apple king of Garrett county, one of the founders of the Farmer's Fair of Allegany county and vice president of the organization, had 26 varities of apples on display at the Oakland Fair and won nine premiums.

On Sunday, November 1, Mr. Scott T Jones will address the people of District No. 8, at 10:30 a. m. at the Fairview church, Rev. Isaac Abernathy, pastor, on the subject of Local Option. Let everybody in that vicinity turn out and hear Mr. Jones. You will enjoy the meeting.

P. H. Rodaheaver, of near Oakland, has just completed a cellar 16x20 feet under his farm house, concrete walls and floor. Water will be piped into the cellar and kitchen. Pat is going to make things as handy as possible for the women folks. There is nothing like keeping up with the times.

Mr. J. Roy Hammond, who has been associated with Mayor Matthews in the practice of law for the past year, has opened offices for himself in the First National Bank building and will continue the practice of law. In the absence of State's Attorney Renninger Mr. Hammond is acting State's Attorney.

Rev. and Mrs. Otto A. Bremer left Oakland last Friday night for Cincinnati, Ohio, where on Wednesday Mr. Bremer was ordained a minister of the Lutheran church at the session of the Miami Synod, of which he is a member. They expect to return to Oakland Tuesday, being now at Springfield, Ohio, where Mr. Bremer recently graduated from the Seminary. In the absence of the minister no preaching services will be held in the local church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Garrett of Deer Park entertained Monday night in honor of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Treacy. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Treacy, Mr and Mrs. Jerry Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Peddicord, Miss Annie Treacy and Mr. Eddie Pendergast. It was a real enjoyable occasion.

Last Tuesday was the National apple day. Did you eat an apple, or an apple dumpling or an apple pie? You can't beat a nice baked apple or some fried apples for breakfast; a good piece of apple pie for luncheon, and some good, old-fashioned apple dumplings, either baked or boiled, will bring a smile to any man's face.

An intoxicated man stopped at the office of one of Oakland's Justices of the Peace and began to argue against local option. During his remarks he turned to the justice and said, "If local option wins out, you'll go out of business." Say, isn't that a good reason why you should vote for local option? He came pretty near knowing what he was talking about.

The people are the same as they were centuries ago. If you will turn to II Chronicles, xvi, 12, 13, you will find these words: "And Asa in the thirty-ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet until his disease was exceedingly great, yet in his disease he sought not the Lord, but to the physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Miss Irma Workman, a studennt of the West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, W. Va., and daughter of Rev. J. B. Workman, and sister of Mrs. Grover Stemple of this city, is representing the college Y. W. C. A. of the State of West Virginia at the national conference now in session at Cincinnati. The honor conferred upon Miss Workman is considered a high one.

A poor fellow came to Oakland last Friday with $230.00 in his pocket which he intended to put into bank. Before he reached the bank he entered a saloon and got a drink or two of Oakland's famous booze and soon lost control of himself and was landed in jail, but only after his $230.00 was gone. When sober he had $3 left. Truly the saloon leaves money in the town.

The registration shows that the Republicans have a majority of 1125 in Garrett county. That fact ought to enthuse us for a great victory at the polls November 3. Let us be on the job and give Carrington and Zihlman 1125 majority. They are the nominees of the Republican party, our party, the party with which we affiliate. They deserve our vote. Let us stand by the ticket to a man.

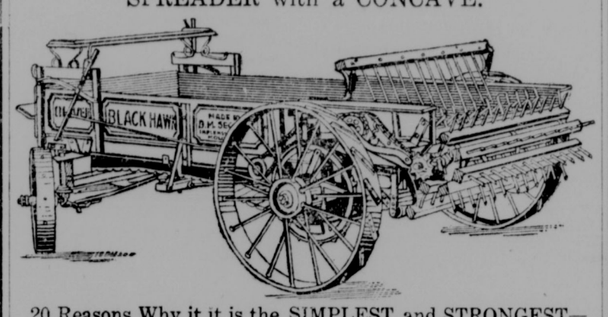
ESTABLISHED 1884. NAYLOR HAS IT, AND SELLS IT FOR LESS

THE NEW

Black Hawk Manure Spreader

The latest improved LOW DOWN. The only SPREADER with a CONCAVE.



20 Reasons Why it it is the SIMPLEST and STRONGEST—the most satisfactory one to buy

REASON No. 6—The rear wheels do not project out behind the cylinder, to be filled up with manure on windy days and when working on hillsides.

REASON No. 7—The cylinder is not on the rear axle. The rear axle has enough to do to carry the load and furnish the power. This means small rebair bills.

REASON No. 8—Because it is the only spreader that has a CONCAVE which is the greatest improvement ever put on a manure spreader.

REASON No. 9—The CONCAVE will regulate the backward movement of the load, so there can be no racing backward when going up hill or driving over rough ground.

REASON No. 10—You can drive up a hillside as steep as a house roof and the load will not slip backward and choke the cylinder.

FRIENDSVILLE

Merchant Walter Savage made a business trip to Pittsburgh, Pa., last week.

Mrs. Charles Frederick received word early Saturday morning of the sudden death of her father, the venerable J. N. Emory. Her husband motored from Cumberland Friday night, reaching here early Saturday. After a short rest, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick started for Cumberland.

The farmers of this vicinity have been busy gathering in and caring for their bountiful crops.

The Odd Fellows of this vicinity had a big banquet last Friday night. There were two hundred guests present. The banquet was prepared and served by the Daughters of Rebecca. It was pronounced a feast of good things. Our band furnished, as it always does, splendid music. A quartette also delighted those present. Short addresses were made by Grand Lodge Officers, Jones and Arthur, and by Rev. Donachi, of this place. The occasion was a most enjoyable affair and a great credit to those having it in charge.

Senator Zihlman has a host of friends in this vicinity and the indications are that the Republican ticket will receive a strong vote, as it should. Senator Zihlman deserves our hearty support for his vote and assistance in getting our local option bill through the legislature.

The former Methodist pastor carries with him, to his new appointment, the best wishes of many friends. Rev. Helmick was a faithful preacher.

C. V. Guard's saw mill near Friendsville was destroyed by fire last week.

Prof. Chrisman enjoyed a visit from his parents.

Rev. Young's wife attended the Lutheran conference at Keyser, W. Va.

The young ladies of this place have two basket ball teams.

DEATH IS THREATENED

Villa Warns U. S. Secret Service Men to Keep Out of Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 20.—Orders posted by General Villa's agents in Juarez threatening death to all persons "who give information to the enemy" were supplemented by the posting of new orders of the following sensational character:

"We have good reason to believe that many detectives and United States secret service men are coming to Juarez and taking notes of our southern military movements. We hereby give notice that it will no longer be tolerated and should they be caught they will be forced to face a firing squad without the formality of a military trial, regardless of nationality."

Every indication points to further strained relations between Villa and Carranza. The Carranza officials announced that they had given up their suite of offices in the Mills building and were seeking others. When pressed for a reason they said that they had reason to believe that Villistas had access to their rooms and were getting at their secrets.

News from the south is to the effect that General Villa has everything in readiness for fighting at a moment's notice.

JAIL LOOKS GOOD TO THEM

Unemployed Court Prison, Says Mayor Curley of Boston.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Raising $100,000 or more to provide work for thousands of unemployed mechanics and laborers is proposed by Mayor Curley. He would act in conjunction with the National Civic Federation of Women.

The money would be used for street construction and other municipal improvements during the winter.

"Boston's jails and charitable institutions are overcrowded," said Mayor Curley. "So hard is the working class being pinched by the European war that married people are actually conspiring to get money and board at the expense of a prison record. In many cases men have been committed to jail for minor crimes to get board and lodging while their wives receive 50 cents a day from the city. Already we have paid $12,000 in this way, which is 25 per cent more than we paid during the whole of last year."

TURKEY SAYS NO

England's Demands Regarding German Cruisers Refused by Porte.

Constantinople (Via London), Oct. 20.—The porte has declined to discharge the German crews of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, which have been in Turkish waters since early in the hostilities, and which are said to have been sold by Germany to the Turkish government.

This reply was given in answer to the British representations regarding the continued presence of Germans on board these two vessels.

The government has now shelved the matter, declaring it to be a domestic question, although it had previously given repeated assurances that these Germans would be repatriated.

BRITISH WARSHIP DAMAGED

Triumph Hit by Shells During Bombardment of Tsingtau.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The German embassy received from San Francisco a report that the British warship Triumph was heavily damaged by the forts of Tsingtau. The announcement issued at the embassy was as follows:

"British battleship Triumph heavily damaged while bombarding Tsingtau together with Japanese ships by shell fire from the howitzers and had to withdraw immediately."

OSTEND RECAPTURED, REPORT

London Paper States That Allies Are Now in City Recently Occupied by Germans — Belgians Distinguish Themselves by Driving Foe Northward and Taking Town of Roulers. French Gain Ground in Alsace.

London, Oct. 20.—A Morning Post special correspondent in the north of France says that he is informed on excellent authority that the allies have retaken Ostend. There is no confirmation here of this report.

British Fleet Helps Land Forces.

Paris, Oct. 20.—British warships are officially reported to have given effective aid to the Belgian army against the Germans between Nieuport and Dixmude on the Belgian coast.

The German cavalry fruitlessly cannonaded the Belgian front from Nieuport to Bladsloo. East of Dixmude the Belgian army not only drove back the German attack, but pushed ahead as far as Roulers.

The long range guns of the cruisers are holding the Germans back from the coast, nullifying the occupation of Ostend and forcing the Germans to give battle on ground chosen by General Joffre.

The official news that a British squadron now composes the extreme left wing of the allied force and has already made itself powerfully felt is a totally new development of the war.

The commander-in-chief reports that the Belgian army distinguished itself in the day's fighting, moving northward from the river Ypres despite cannonading by the heavy guns of the Germans, capturing Roulers and standing impregnably on a greatly advanced battle line.

The northern section of the left wing of the allies is advancing toward Lille, the Germans giving way but fighting desperately. General Joffre describes the fighting in this region as a house to house advance.

There is an unofficial report that the Germans have evacuated Lille, unable to hold the city after Armentieres was retaken by the allies.

Along the fortified center of the Champagne hills there is desultory artillery duelling, neither side strong enough, apparently, to menace seriously the defenses of the other; each waiting the issue in northern France.

But in the east the French, after regaining the left bank of the Meuse, are now advancing on the right bank. In Alsace they have made progress and strong forces are active all along the barrier fortress line.

In the region of Arras and toward Roye the battle has taken on new violence. The government reports show that the allies are driving the Germans from outer entrenchments and have carried the fighting to the barbed wire defenses. In this quarter the allies press forward with unimpaired confidence after nearly two weeks of night and day fighting.

Further southward toward the hinge of the line the Germans made a new attempt to break through, at Chaulnes, but were repulsed and lost ground.

Germans Hold Fast Near Lille.

Berlin (Via London), Oct. 20.—The following announcement was given here: "The attacks of the enemy to the west and northwest of Lille have been repulsed by our troops with the infliction of severe losses. In the eastern theater of war the situation remains unchanged."

CHEERS FOR THE VICTORS

Great Demonstration In Harwich, England, When Fleet Returns.

London, Oct. 20.—The light cruiser Undaunted, Captain Cecil Fox, and the destroyers Lennox, Lance, Legion and Loyal steamed proudly into the harbor of Harwich bringing details of the naval engagement off the coast of Holland on Saturday, when they sent four German destroyers to the bottom and escaped virtually unscathed themselves.

The enthusiasm with which the inhabitants of Harwich greeted the victorious squadron was unbounded. Both ashore and afloat the feeling ran high. From every ship in the port the British flag was flung out and cheers were sent sounding across the water as the Undaunted led her cohorts to anchorage.

Sailors, soldiers and civilians swarmed to the piers and filled every point of vantage in windows and roofs and balconies. The military hospital and the quay side were filled with rejoicing men who themselves bore marks of service.

Japan Cruiser Sunk by Mine.

Tokyo, Oct. 20.—It is officially announced that the Japanese cruiser Takachio was sunk by a mine in Kiauchau bay on the night of Oct. 17. One officer and nine members of the crew are known to have been saved. The Takachico was a vessel of 3,700 tons. She carried a crew of 284 men, only 12 of whom were saved

NEW COUNTRIES MAY JOIN

Roumania and Turkey Reported Ready to Go to War.

Rome, Oct. 20.—The explosion in the east which will precipitate Roumania and Turkey into the war of the nations is expected within the week.

Official steps taken recently by the governments of Germany and Turkey on the one hand and the government of Russia, Roumania and Great Britain on the other point unmistakably to the entrance of at least two more nations into the conflict, with Italy probably ready to abandon her attitude of neutrality.

The most significant news was that the Russian ambassador at Constantinople has removed the embassy archives from Constantinople. Roumania has seized and holds, despite the protests of the German envoy, a train load of artillery and ammunition passing through Roumania on the way from Germany to Turkey.

Further governmental acts which show how near the time is for Turkey to ally herself with Germany were Turkey's demand that the head of the Greek church in Constantinople leave the country; the movements of the Turkish fleet, cleared for action in the Black sea, and Turkey's disregard of the British request that the German crews of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau be sent home.

WAR TAX BILL BLOCKED

Congressman Henry Fights For Legislation For Relief of South.

Washington, Oct. 20.—A situation developed in the house that may delay the passage of the war revenue bill. It was brought about by Representative Henry of Texas, who has determined apparently to resort to every expedient to force congress to pass legislation for the relief of the southern cotton planters.

Leader Underwood called up the revenue bill immediately on its receipt from the senate and moved the house disagree and ask for a conference on the senate amendments. It was Mr. Underwood's hope to put the bill through by tomorrow night. Mr. Henry objected to the reference of the bill to conference and moved it be sent to the committee on ways and means. Mr. Underwood acquiesced and the bill was referred to the committee.

Plan to Aid Unemployed.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—Suggestions that Pennsylvania municipalities undertake public works as far as expedient as a means of providing work for unemployed are made by Dr. John Price Jackson, state commissioner of labor and industry. Recently the bureau of statistics of the department undertook an inquiry into the state of employment in the state, supplemental to its study of the immigration problem which had been in progress for several months. The results showed a large number of men out of work.

100,000 Face Starvation.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—More than 100,000 men, women and children of Albania will die of starvation before Christmas unless succored by the United States," declared Rev. W. W. Howard of New York, a missionary.

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

Lesson IV.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 25, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxvi, 47-50; xxvii, 3-10—Memory Verses, Matt. xxvii, 3-5—Golden Text, Matt. xxvi, 24. Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Here is another instance of God and the devil face to face, as in the temptation in the wilderness (chapter iv) after the baptism at the Jordan. But there it was the devil in his own person, while here it is the devil in Judas Iscariot. First the devil put the thought into the heart of Judas, and later he entered in himself (John xiii, 2, 27). If we would be overcomers we must resist the thoughts that are evil. It is encouraging to know that if we resist the devil he will flee from us (Jas. iv, 7; I Pet. v, 8, 9). We must bear in mind that our great daily conflict is not so much with the visible in the form of people or circumstances as with the rulers of the darkness of this world, wicked spirits in the heavenlies (Eph. vi, 12), and we certainly need the whole armor of God to be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

Some one has said that as this was the greatest piece of work the devil ever undertook he could not trust it to any of his followers, and so entered into Judas himself. It was a host of the devil's followers, including the chief priests, elders and scribes, who came with Judas as their leader, for our Lord had said to them earlier in His ministry, "Ye are of your father the devil" (John viii, 44).

It is written that the way in which the betrayer knew where to find Jesus was because He ofttimes resorted thither with His disciples (John xviii, 2). "The wicked (one) watcheth the righteous and seeketh to slay him" (Ps. xxxvii, 32), and he seems to know our resorts and our weaknesses. Judas had told the band of followers that he would indicate the man they wanted by kissing Him. This he did, and Jesus suffered it, simply saying, "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss?" (Luke xxii, 48.) How much He bore for our sakes, but how little we seem able to bear for Him! Knowing all things that should come upon Him, He went forth to meet His enemies and said, "Whom seek ye? They answered, "Jesus of Nazareth," to which He replied, "I am."

Then happened a wonderful thing, an instance of His power, an illustration of the fact that not all the soldiers on earth could take Him if He had not been willing. They went backward and fell to the ground (John xviii, 4-6). They would never have risen again if He had not permitted, but would have been like the army of Sennacherib, all dead men (II Kings xix, 35). He allowed them to rise up and come again and take Him. It was then that Peter in his zeal blundered with his sword and took off a man's ear, but our Lord gently rebuked Peter and healed the ear.

How often by our blunderings we hinder people from hearing the gospel! It may be by untimely zeal or by some inconsistency or some un-Christlike word or deed suggested by the devil.

In following lessons we will take up the story of Jesus and Peter and Jesus before Pilate, but now we are asked to continue the story of Judas until the end of his earthly career as recorded in chapter xxvii, 3-10, this portion of the record being found only here. The seeming change in Judas was when he saw that Jesus was actually condemned. Is it possible that, having seen so much of the power of Jesus Christ and remembering the day when He quietly slipped away from the hands of the people of Nazareth and perhaps recalling His words that no man could take His life from Him (John x, 18), he did not believe that He would ever let His enemies kill Him? He could make a little money and then fool the high priests and others by seeing Jesus take Himself out of their power.

I cannot tell what His thoughts were, but I cannot forget the words, "It had been good for that man if he had not been born" (Matt. xxvi, 24). The pieces of silver remind us of the money received by Joseph's brethren when they sold him, and also of the prediction in Zech. xi, 12. Verse 9 of our lesson is a little perplexing, as it is said there that the words about the pieces of silver were spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, yet we find them written in Zechariah, not Jeremiah. Our lesson does not say they were written, but spoken, by Jeremiah. If Jeremiah spoke them and Zechariah wrote them, that would clear it all up. Some day we will know, if necessary.

The words of Judas in verse 4, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood," are to my mind one of the strongest testimonies on record to the holiness of the Lord Jesus—the testimony of one possessed by the devil, who was in a sense one of the twelve and knew the inner life of the little company and would have seen any flaw in the life of the Lord Jesus if there had been any.

I have often wondered if he was chosen that he might leave this testimony on record. The elders and high priests seemed glad to have dealings with him when he offered to betray Jesus, but now that he seems to have changed his mind they throw him off with the words: "What is that to us? See thou to that."

ADVANCE GUARD CUT TO PIECES

Russians Employ Old Ruse to Trap Germans

MACHINE GUNS SWEEP RANKS

Russian Army Along the Vistula Is Being Reinforced With 500,000 Men, According to Reports From Petrograd—Bad Weather Interferes With Operations In Poland—Muscovites Showing Strength In Galicia.

Rome, Oct. 20.—Withdrawing their infantry from the Vistula after concealing batteries of field and machine guns, an old ruse but a uniformly successful one, the Russians cut to pieces a German advance guard which attempted to cross the river.

Believing that the enemy was in flight when no infantry could be seen, the Teutons threw a pontoon bridge across the Vistula and a good sized column of soldiers was placed on the opposite bank.

Suddenly the Russian artillery opened fire at close range. The machine guns did fearful execution, sweeping the pontoons and literally annihilating the column which was crossing.

As the accuracy of the Russian artillery developed the pontoons collapsed and hundreds of Germans who had escaped death by machine gun fire were thrown helplessly into the river. The Russian infantry returned to the river and completed the victory.

Hundreds of German prisoners, hardly a man of whom was not wounded, were taken to Warsaw together with a convoy of captured guns and stores.

Rains Hold Back German Advance.

Petrograd, Oct. 20.—The general staff is rapidly reinforcing the armies in Poland in anticipation of a new attempt by the Germans to reach the river Vistula and bombard Warsaw and Ivangorod.

Troop trains have been moving westward for several days and the belief here is that Russia is sending at least 500,000 fresh troops to the battle front.

There is no official statement as to the situation, but the reports tend to show that Russia is preparing for another general advance.

Dispatches from Warsaw say that the Germans are not expected to repeat their former progress toward Warsaw. Two reasons are given. The first is that continuous rains make it difficult for the Germans to support their infantry with artillery. The district over which their troops spread is flat and marshy. There is only one railroad over which the Germans could transport their heavy guns, without which an attack on Warsaw would be futile.

It is not doubted, however, that General von Hindenburg, whose ability and energy are recognized, will try again to cross the Vistula in spite of most difficult weather conditions. For this anticipated move the Russians are preparing with nature fighting on their side.

The German army invading Poland from the northwest is now near Mlawa and has masked the fortress of Novo Georgievsk. But the Russians have intercepted its advance in the region of Plotsck. A second German force operating from the line of Thorn and Posen is following the left in the Kutno-Lowicz district. The German army from Silesia has had no success in its approach to Ivangorod.

All operations in Poland slackened in the past two days because of bad weather and because it was necessary for each side to recuperate after the desperate fighting of Oct. 13, 14 and 15.

The Russians are showing more strength in Galicia, although it is admitted that their Hungarian campaign was unsuccessful, cholera having compelled the abandonment of the northwestern counties and the surrender of several passes in the Carpathians.

But at Przemysl the Russians are still in strong force, are pressing the siege and have been able to throw back every Austrian attempt to relieve the fortress. There was a report of heavy fighting south of Przemysl.

Oil Man's Body Is Found In Mine.

East Liverpool, O., Oct. 20.—Disappearing from his home near Ohioville, Pa., late Saturday night, Ollie Wright, aged forty-five, an oil operator, is believed to have committed suicide by exploding a charge of dynamite in a coal mine near the Ohio-Pennsylvania state line. His body, torn to shreds, was found in the mine by a searching party. Wright, a hunchback, owned several oil wells in Beaver county and the production of the wells of late is said to have been in large quantities. The man, however, has been in ill health for the last several weeks and is thought to have been despondent.

Still Good Hunter at 75.

Parnassus, Pa., Oct. 20.—Parnassus is believed to have the distinction of having the oldest hunter in Pennsylvania in the field this year, at least he is the oldest man to apply for a hunter's license in Westmoreland county. He is Uriah Erb of this place and he is seventy-five years old. He gets his share of pheasants.

EMPTY DINNER PAIL A PAINFUL REALITY

The Tens of Thousands of Workingmen out of Employment Confirm it.

One explanation of the remarkable showing the registration figures for the Sixth Congressional District make is a showing of a large majority for the Republican ticket can be found in the fact that "The Empty Dinner Pail Makes Republicans Hustle." This tells the whole story. There is but one explanation of this exceptional Repuolican gain—there can be but one interpretation of this unusual circumstance —"The Empty Dinner Pail Makes Republicans Hustle."

It is safe to assume, also, that not all of these Republicans have always voted the Republican ticket, and that some of them have registered as Republicans for the sole reason that they may consistently vote for the Republican candidate for congressmen this year. They have observed the failure of the Democrats to make good their ante-election promises of two years ago that they would give the country improved conditions. They have witnessed the futile efforts of the Democratic congress and the Democratic president to continue the prosperity the country was enjoying—that the country always enjoys—under a Republican regime, and they have concluded to do their part at the November election to bring about a return of that prosperity just as quickly as it can possibly be done, and they are going to begin right away.

The voters of Garrett county and Western Maryland are not going to be confused by any prismatic halo the Democratic cabinet members may place over the alabaster brow of the Democratic congressman from the Sixth District; they are not going to be again lulled into a quiescent condition by such claptrap as "Washington Needs Mr. Lewis." They are not going to allow either Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, Post-master General Burleson, Secretary of Labor Wilson or anyone else, whether he wears the Administration purple or not (not excluding Mr. Lewis himself,) to divert them from the commonsense viewpoint of the situation. They know that the essence of this campaign is contained in these questions which they will insist upon having answered.

"Has the Democratic party in the two years of its ascendancy kept the dinner-pail full—with the aid of Congressman Lewis?

"Has the Democratic party brought about the employment of the idle workmen of this country—with the aid of Congressman Lewis?

"Has the Democratic party fulfilled the much-heralded promise to reduce the prices of the necessities of life—has it reduced the high cost of living—with the aid of Congressman Lewis?

"Has the Democratic party improved conditions to the point where increased wages to the workingmen is possible—with the aid of Congressman Lewis?

"Has the Democratic party lighted the furnaces, or has it banked their fires; has it enlarged the markets of the home manufacturer and producer, or has it curtailed them; has its revised tariff law brought in sufficient revenue for the legitimate expenses of the Government, or does a deficit stare us in the face; and isn't a hundred million dollar war tax knocking at the door—and all this with the aid of Congressman Lewis?"

This is why the voters of Garrett county have come out during the registration days to get their names on the books as Republicans, and this is why they intend not only to register, but to vote on election day—and vote for the Republican candidate for congress—Hon. F. N. Zihlman—a party and a candidate in whom they can have the fullest confidence; in whom they have heretofore placed their trust and have never had their trust betrayed.

Nothing is so poetical to make Republicans hustle as the empty dinner pail; the empty dinner pail is making others besides Republicans hustle this year, at that. They want no repetition of Democratic failure and incompetency.

They intend to take no chances for a continuance of Mr. Lewis and the empty dinner pail.

"Zihlman and Prosperity" is the music to which they are marching toward the ballot box this year.

BITTINGER.

A party of wide-awake enthusiastic temperance workers, from West Virginia, known as "The Flying Squadron," made a brief stop in this village on Tuesday of last week, and strongly as well as intelligently addressed the people in the interest of the local option movement. The speaking and the music was greatly enjoyed and much good to the cause will inevitably follow.

County Commissioner Otho S. Fike, of Avilton, was calling in this neighborhood last week.

Henry Wiley and family motored over to Somerset, Pa., a few days ago, for a brief visit.

Mrs. Albert Brenneman returned last Sunday from a week's visit over in Pennsylvania.

C. E. Ellithorp left early this week for Minnesota where he was called upon some business matters in connection with the settlement of the estate of an uncle recently deceased.

The largest remaining white pine tree in this section was cut on last Saturday by the Jenning Brothers Lumber Co. The tree measured six feet across the stump and was perfectly sound.

For several days past we have been experiencing frequent showers of rain which will relieve the long continued drouth.

GORTNER

Miss Laura Sanders leaves today for Keyser, W. Va., where she will visit relatives and friends.

L. J. Swartzentruber, one of our progressive citizens, met with a loss on Wednesday morning of last week by the burning of his cider press, apple butter factory and part of the tiling factory. The loss will probably not exceed $3,000. He was doing a good business and may re-establish the factory in the near future. If not, no doubt he will engage in something which will be equally as profitable for himself and the neighborhood.

The watchword at Gortner is VOTE DRY.

The living squadron of West Virginia who are interested in having Garrett county dry visited Gortner Wednesday a little later than schedule time. Six cars, conveying twenty six men (the squadron), were greeted by an enthusiastic audience at Gortner's store. All present enjoyed the speaking and music notwithstanding the rain and mud. Just before the arrival of the squadron the teacher of the Swan Meadow school and her pupils marched from the school house to Gortner's store singing "Temperance boys and girls are we" and "Touch not the cup." They carried a banner "Vote Dry." Miss Savage has greatly increased the interest of her pupils in the temperance cause by offering a prize to the one who secures the most Dry Votes before Nov. 3 including that day. All are working earnestly.

We have had delightful weather this autumn and good crops of fruit and grain. Then we should not feel blue if we have a gray day of mist occasionally, after so many glad bright days.

The question of today is: "Will you help vote Garrett county dry?" The youth, the middle aged and the aged are helping to fight this awful curse. Yes, even the school boy and girl have the song on their lips, "Will you help vote Garrett county dry?" You who have the power to vote, if not for your own sake, will you not help save the boys and girls of the future?

Mr. and Mrs. John Stutzman of Johnson county, Iowa, have been visiting relatives at Gortner. Mrs. Stutzman was formerly Miss Slabaugh, and it was a great pleasure for her to revisit the scenes of her childhood days. Before their visit to Gortner they visited Johnstown and other points in Pennsylvania being absent from home more than four weeks.

W. C. Welch, Earl Hauger, Mrs. Fannie Gower and O. S. Ridder motored to Hagerstown Tuesday to attend the annual fair of that city.

N. C. Slabaugh and family spent the past week with relatives in the vicinity of Bittinger.

W. H. Smouse, dealer in cattle and sheep, shipped several car loads of fine lambs, such as Garrett county can boast of, to Baltimore recently.

G. J. Hardesty of Ottawav, is in this vicinity with his gasoline bailer and is doing good work.

Sunday, Nov. 1st, Rev. Metzler, of Pennsylvania will conduct services in the Union church at Gortner. At that time if possible, Rev. Mutzler expects to have a series of meetings. We wish to call special attention to these services, as he is an able speaker, and will be remembered by many as such. Further announcement will be made later.

A card from P. F. Gortner, one of our former Garrett county boys, tells us that he is still in Shabbona, Ill., and always glad to see a Gortner letter in the home papers.

We are glad to learn of Miss Emma Burkholder's (who is still in Lancaster, Pa.,) improved condition. Her many friends hope for her return home in the near future.

Mrs. F. S. Irwin and Mrs. Ella Johnson contemplate a visit to relatives near Belington, W. Va.

A. T. Baker is erecting a new residence adjoining his father's and expects to move his family therein in the near future.

J. J. Schlossnagle, who has been in ill health for some time, we are sorry to say, is not much improved.

I have a customer for a farm near Oakland. Who has the farm to sell—L. A. Rudisill, Ravenscroft building, Oakland. Adv. 40

A LONG ROAD.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The Question Uppermost In the Minds of The People.

MR. EDITOR:—Will you allow me space to speak a few words to the voters of the county.

In a few more days we will be called upon to face one of the most important questions that can confront us as citizens. We want, of course, to do our whole duty. We cannot afford to make a mistake. We have no more right, legally or morally, to do an injustice to, or wrong the saloon man than we have any other man. Have we a right to vote away his business? A right to rise up and say to them, you can't sell any more of the stuff, or traffic in intoxicating liquors in our midst? Have we as citizens a right to say to the man who attempts to run a slaughter house in our midst that he must move out at once? It would be condemned as a nuisance. Would we tolerate a mad dog on our streets and thus endanger our children, or a wild beast at large and thus expose our children to danger? Yet we tolerate saloons which are a constant menace to good morals, a snare to our youth and a temptation to manhood to debauch itself. Why? There's some money in it. That is, the license they pay goes into the treasury and it looks big; it keeps the machinery of government running.

Let us be honest and look at the other side of the question. What does it cost to maintain them? It increases the taxes you pay every time. It is claimed by some that this town will not amount to anything—it will have no life if it goes dry. From such evidences of life as the saloon gives us, "Good Lord deliver us." It's the kind of life that makes our streets at night unsafe for ladies to walk without escorts; that brings here anywhere from ten to sixty "suit casers" from other places to fill up their skins and cases and go back home to deal it out to suckers. This is especially true on Saturday nights, when bums and cases are so in evidence at the depot that a decent woman shrinks from being seen there. The conditions in Oakland now are a disgrace to a civilized community. Every good citizen who loves order and decency ought to do all he can to correct it. Autos unblushingly load up the stuff in daylight and whirl it away across the border.

No rational man of business will claim that it helps his business; he can't in the face of the facts at hand. The indisputable facts prove that the tax rate in dry towns is lower than in wet ones. The controller of the State of California shows in his report for 1912 that in 10 wet towns the tax rates averaged $1.43, while in 10 dry towns $1.15, but when you subtract the bonded debts of the city, which are usually for permanent improvement, the average was $1.10 for the wets and 89 cents for the drys.

If the traffic aids business, why do commercial organizations and railroads when advertising a city, community or a state tell about the schools, churches, banks, mills, farm products, timber, mines, climate, scenery and natural resources and fail, every time, to tell about the saloons, gambling houses, breweries, distilleries, brothels and their products. Can you tell why they do this? But they do.

We are up against the high cost of living. Destroy this traffic and you reduce the cost of living. How so? It is responsible for 50 per cent of our insane, 60 per cent of our paupers, 70 per cent of our criminals, for the destruction of homes and the corruption of politics. The report of the Allegany county, Pa., workhouse for 1913, says that in forty-four years 156-230 prisoners were committed to the work house for crime, 91 per cent of these were drinkers. Only 9 per cent were abstainers. During the year 1913, 3,798 were committed and of this number 3,482 were drinkers, or more than 91 per cent. The same results will be found in other places. Greene county, Pa., is dry and Elk county is wet. The Auditor's report for 1909 says the cost of crime in the dry county was 47 cents per voter, while the cost per voter in the wet county was $1.84. The population in the dry county was 28,882 and in the wet was 35,871. Does it pay to have it wet?

The deaths due to alcohol in one year in the United States and the number who died of wounds in some great wars and great battles is significant. Gettysburg cost 32,800 men. The Civil War per year, 49,239. Waterloo, 51,000. The Franco-Prussian war, 122,000. King Alcohol, as usual, comes out ahead and destroys 152,781 per year.

Over 95 per cent more accidents occur to workman who drink than to workmen in general. Can you conscientiously contribute to endangering your fellow men by voting wet. Think of it and act as you will wish you had when you come to render your account to God, the just Judge, at last.

Doctors say alcoholism is a disease. Lawmakers build hospitals to cure this disease. Judges send those who are sick of alcoholism to hospitals to be cured. Isn't it the part of wisdom, isn't it common sense and good business too, to prohibit the traffic which produces the disease? And brother man, you who swing the small, but mighty instrument—the ballot—does it pay to license a traffic which lessens the demand for food, clothing, houses and tools, but which increases the cost of production and diminishes the purchasing power of the people? Isn't it manly, isn't it better business, higher morals and true Christianity to kill the liquor traffic? Or, have you a boy or two that you want to turn over to be debauched and destroyed by the saloon? That's its chief business, and for the money that is in it. That's all.

Some cities prohibit the sale of deadly concealed weapons without a permit of the chief of police. Why not include Booze, which is infinitely more deadly? What consistent mortals we men are, anyhow! What will not some men do for money. They will sell all the interests of society, all the blessedness of home, all the honor of manhood and all the virtue of womanhood—in a word, will sell their souls to the devil for a bit of money.

I have given in the above the sentiments of some tracts that have fallen into my hands. Ponder them well. What will we do on the day of election? Shall it be wet or dry? Look at that little boy in your home whom you love, or that young man, your pride, then cast your vote in their favor.

Yours truly,

VOTER.

POLITICAL FORECAST OF NEW YORK WORLD.

Gives Sixth Distric to Senator Zihlman Because of Personal Popularity.

In a political forecast of the Senatorial and Congressional election for the whole country the New York World Sunday conceded the Sixth Maryland Congressional district to the Republicans. Although the World has Democratic leanings and has backed the Wilson administration through the thick and thin, the forecast gives both the Sixth and Fifth districts in this state to the Republican candidates. Of the Sixt districth the paper says: "Zihlman is personally popular and Lewis, who ordinarily would have an easy victory has a hard fight. Lewis is fighting against considerable odds against Frederick N. Zihlman," the report states. The forecast was made after a careful investigation of conditions by correspondents of the paper and with the assistance of six other papers.

Pertinent Questions Asked.

Frederick N. Zihlman, the Republican candidate in the Sixth Congressional district of Maryland, addresses the following pertinent questions to the voters of this district:

1. What laboring man in this district has had his wages raised in the last eighteen months?

2. What working man has had more and continued employment during the same period?

3. What manufacturer in that time has increased or enlarged his plant?

4. What railroad in this district has increased its tonnage during this period?

5. What business man in this district has extended his credit or enlarged his business in the same time?

6. Last, but not least, who would not deliberately and willingly go back to the days, to the good old days of the Republican party, insted of the present and unsettled condition of laboring capital?

FELL 3000 FEET

An Aeronaut Killed in Presence of 5,000 People.

In the presence of 5,000 people at the Fincastle Fair, in Botetourt county, Va., Geo. Hilder, an aeronaut, fell 3,000 feet to his death, the parachutes he carried for his descent failing to work.

The young man had planned to make a triple drop by the use of three parachutes, but the cords evidently caught, and when he came down he was doubled up in a knot, holding to the bundle of cloth.

Hilder, who had been making balloon ascensions over a circuit of fairs, lived at Gloucester, N. J. The body was sent to his home. The deceased was assistant to Walter Flaxton who made three successful ascensions during the fair at Oakland, the first part of the month. He was a very pleasant gentleman.

A Special Invitation.

All who are interested in the question before the voters are invited to hear the presentation of the subject of temperance at the Presbyterian church on Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock. A square deal will be given everyone. All interested in the saloon are invited to hear.

Regular Worship at Lutheran Church Sunday.

There will be the regular morning and evening worship in the Oakland Lutheran church Sunday, with the afternoon worship at Deer Park. On Sunday November 8th, the Holy Communion will be administered to both Oakland and Deer Park congregations. It is the sincere prayer of the pastor that every member will come to this table of our dear Lord and partake of this Sacrament, which was instituted for the forgiveness and strengthening of believers. THE HOME THAT RUM MAKES.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

Men and boys, who have just begun drinking,
Who "take a drink and then let it alone;"
Careless, lighthearted, gay, little thinking
That we each one must reap as we've sown;
That the seed which today you so thoughtlessly sow
May bring you a harvest of bitterest woe.

Will you go for a moment and enter
A poor drunkard's home, and behold
How the inmates are dwelling, the center
Of want and privation untold?
This is no fancy picture I'm drawing for you,
There are thousands who cry, "it is true; it is true."

The patched roof in places is leaking;
Through each crevice the winter winds blow.
See the cold, barren rooms! all are speaking
Of the depths of a poor drunkard's woe!
And the man who thus wasted his substance away
Was once loved and respected, as you are today,

On the floor are the little ones huddled;
What questions their frightened eyes hold!
Those babies he once fondly cuddled
Now suffer from hunger and cold!
Look, father! and then promise God with bowed head
That for this cause your children shall never want bread!

Do you see the poor, weary wife bending
Over work she had not known before?
Rubbing! stitching! her labors unending
To keep the gaunt wolf from the door.
Oh, husbands, you who love your wives, stop and think!
Will you bring yours to this for the sake of a drink?

Oh, men and boys, who have been drinking,
Stop now, e're forever too late;
Lest you into the depths should be sinking,
And a drunkard's sad grave be your fate.
Men, work to save yours and your neighbors' boys; think
Of the woe of the thousands who took their first drink!

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

FELLOW VOTER:—Let us consider a little further the question that confronts us and which we as men and citizens we must settle. We must admit that all the money that is in it has a preponderating influence with some minds, while with others it is the love they have for it as a beverage. But does it pay from a financial standpoint? True, the revenue received from the traffic amounts to $225,000,000 per year. That is a large amount, but over against this put the traffic which is vastly larger. Does it pay to spend from $10 to $20 to get one? No one would advocate such reckless waste, such unbusinesslike methods with any other business. It costs $55 each for every one in the United States. It cost 53,000 murders. It caused 92 per cent of the crime and produced one-half of the convicts in our prisons yearly. It is killing nearly 1,000 men daily. Are you willing to help in this destruction of human life that is more appalling than that caused by the war in Europe. Every vote for the saloon is that much in favor of this wholesale destruction. Do you think the saloon will add to your business and give you more money? Suppose it does. Are you willing for the pittance thus gained to help debauch the young manhood of the country? The saloon is the worst debaucher in existence. It is always mixed up with corrupt politics and that is a curse to any community. Two-thirds of the area of the United States, or two million square miles, are now under prohibition. About one-half of the population are under some form of prohibition. Ten states now have state-wide prohibition. Many more have it in part. Nearly all the counties of Kentucky have local option. I know it is said it does not prohibit. Do the laws against horse stealing prohibit it absolutely? Should then the laws against stealing horses be repealed and every thief be allowed to steal all he wants to. An ax, no matter how sharp it is, will not cut unless there are a pair of strong arms to swing it. A gun, no matter how good it is, will not shoot unless there is a man behind it. It drives it into the corners and makes it the outlaw it is in reality. That it is a great help any man who is willing to investigate can find out; or if he is willing to accept impartial evidence and trustworthy he must be convinced, if he is capable of being convinced. An operator of one of the West Virginia coal mines wanted to see the difference in the working power of some of his drinking men under wet and dry conditions. He selected eight miners, all drinkers, and the pay roll for June, wet, and August, dry, tell the difference in the earning of the eight men. They worked under the same conditions both months. They had as great opportunity to earn money in June as in August. Some of them doubled and some of them nearly trebbled the amount which they earned. They were more efficient; they were better workmen. Sobriety gave them more money not to be spent on liquor, but on wives and children.

Mr. Farmer, would'nt you register a kick—yes some hard ones—if a man were to drive a lot of foot-rot sheep through your farm, even on the highway? Yet you allow your boy to be exposed to the awful temptations of the saloon without a kick. You say it makes a good market for corn. The amount of corn that goes into whiskey would not raise the price of your crop the fraction of a cent.

I was crossing a bridge one evening over one of the canals in Niagara that feed the various industries. The body of a man suddenly came to the surface. A number of people were on the bridge. The cry was at once ruised, "Man in water, get him out!" A woman seeing the body floating screamed to a man nearby to save him. His reply was. "Oh, hush, woman; it is not any of yours." "But it's somebody's; save him." Thousands are floating down the awful stream of drunkenness but a general indifference prevails.

I plead for the children of the land. There are 24,000,000 of school age in our country. Let them have the benefit of scientific instruction concerning the effects of alcohol on the brain and body of the drinker. Enforce the law. No law will enforce itself.

Sometime ago a distinguished Japaneee officer visited New York and a member of the city government, who had been in Japan, wanted to show him around. A man stopped a milk wagon. "Is that an officer making an arrest?" asked the Japanese. "No, he is a milk inspector and his duty is to see that no impure milk is sold."

"What is impure milk?"

"It is mixed with chalk and water."

"Is the chalk a poison?"

"Oh, no; it impairs the quality of the milk, that is all."

"Does water in milk make anybody sick?"

"Why, of course not; but when we pay for milk we do not want water."

"But you say no one is hurt by it. Feelings are hurt; that is all."

Soon they passed a low corner saloon, when the door opened and a man came staggering out, tripped, struck his head against a lamp post and fell on the sidewalk, where he lay as one dead.

"What's the matter with that man?" asked the man from Japan.

"Full of benzine."

"Benzine! What is that?"

"It's a name we have in this country for poor liquor—poison whiskey. Bad whiskey is a poison? Deadly poison sometimes."

"Has the man a license to sell whiskey same as the milkman has to sell milk?"

"Of course, or he could'nt carry on business."

"And do you inspect the whiskey as you do the milk?"

"Never."

"Yet there may be poison in it, while the milk is adulterated with chalk and water, which, you say, do no harm,"

"Ahen," said the city official, "let's look at the markets."

There they saw officials inspecting the meat which was on sale.

"What do they do that for?" asked the Japanese.

"To see that it is healthful."

"If a man should eat a piece of unhealthful meat would he stumble on the sidewalk and split his head open against the lamp post, as the man did coming out of the saloon? Would watered milk do that?"

"Certainly not."

"Yet you inspect the meat and the milk and let men sell poisoned whiskey, which kills people, as much as they please. I can't understand your country."

It is a puzzle to many people beside the gentleman from Japan.

Before your next issue appears we will know the result of the election. I trust it will far exceed our most sanguine expectation. There will then be no occasion for my using your space on the subject. Are you in doubt, my fellow voter? Vote yes and evermore be satisfied with your act.

Thank you, Mr. Editor.

Yours in the cause,

VOTER.

It having been brought to my attention that the Democratic party in this county, in an effort to break into our majority, is circulating a report that I am connected with the liquor business, I take this method and opportunity of stating to the voters of Garrett County that I am not directly or indirectly connected with the liquor business in any shape or form, and I brand this statement as a malicious falsehood circulated for the purpose of obtaining votes for my opponent.

Last Saturday about ten minutes after one o'clock p. m. Mr. W. S. Groves, proprietor of the Hicks house, this place attempted to get on a west bound freight train, he stumbled on the brick walk, opposite the post office and fell between two cars, finally falling on the track, his head was cut off from the body, as was also one of his arms. The remains were taken to D. E. Bolden's undertaking rooms Oakland and prepared for burial. Mr. Groves is survived by his father, Mr. Thomas Groves, of Selbysport and his widow. The deceased was about 35 years of age. The interment took place in the Oakland cemetery Monday afternoon. The deceased was on his way to Oakland to deposit $172.00 in the bank. His watch stopped at 1:08 p. m. The death of Mr. Groves was a shock to the community. He was a very pleasant, quiet gentleman. All who knew him speak well of him.

The new Methodist preacher occupied the pulpit of his church Sunday to the delight of those present. They speak of him as a strong preacher. His introduction to his new charge has been a very pleasant one.

Mr. and Mrs. Marquess have moved to their new charge, followed by the best wishes of their friends. Mr. Marquess will return to cast his ballot against license.

Next Sabbath, 7:30 p. m., a local option meeting will be held in the Methodist church. There will be appropriate music and an address by the pastor. It will be a meeting well worth attending. Dr. McKain is one of the ablest speakers in the State.

The people of this vicinity are much pleased with Senator Zihlman and are doing all they can to secure his election. Men who supported Mr. Lewis two years ago, are now actively working for Senator Zihlman's election.

Vote against license.

See that Garrett County Goes Dry, Dry, Dry, and Don't Forget It.

To the Editor of The Republican:

I have never lost interest in old Garrett, for every great event of my life occurred in her borders, except being born in her and that was not my fault, and as I have read The Republican ever since it has existed, I am still reading it and keeping in touch with the passing events of the old county.

The greatest opportunity that has ever come to the good people of Garrett is at her doors now. The opportunity to kill forever the slimy snake that has crawled within her borders long before she became a county is given her on the third of November. Let no man's heart fail him, for if Garrett should loose that opportunity the liquor politicians will see to it that another one will not come for many years.

You have won golden opinions from all the good and honorable people everywhere, for the manly stand of your paper on the liquor fight. Keep it up. Give'm hail; go in boys, the fighting is good: I am sorry I am not in it on election day.

Hurrah, for Tom Hare, the man that knows how to chase the whiskey devil and does it.

With the kindest personal regards, I am sincerely yours,

G. W. KEPLER.

What Democrats Think of Senator Frederick N. Zihlman.

His opponent, Mr. Zihlman, has served a term in the Maryland Senate from Allegany county. Perhaps he was handicaped by being in the minority, but that fact is not sufficient to account for his failure to rise to a position of real leadership in his own party except in his county. We are not advised of any measure of general public concern that he orignated or of which he became the advocate; nor has he shown any signs of ability to take the lead in council or in debate. So far as the records disclose, there is not one qualification of a Congressman in which he is not, by long odds, inferior to David J. Lewis.—Oakland Democrat, of last week.

There is an old adage, "Great men differ" in their opinions. The editor of the Democrat, in the above paragraph gives his estimate of Senator Zihlman. Let us see what Mr. Lewis, the Democrat candidate, thinks of Senator Zihlman.

Congressman Lewis writing to Zihlman in connection with the passage of the miners' relief bill, says: "You must know that whatever happens your services and devotion have been the best that a human being could give—your record is made and will endure." (Signed.) David J. Lewis.

The Evening Times of Cumberland, Democrat paper of Allegany county does not think as the editor of the Democrat thinks. The Times says:

"He deveioped an aptitude and resourcefulness which gave him a ranking position with such leaders of the opposition as Pres. Price, Senators Campbell, Harper and Lee, the shining oratorical lights of the Upper House, with whom he was always able to hold his own in arguments, and give a good account of himself in parliamentary debates, and his work in the Senate forms a record unexcelled by any predecessor, Democrat or Republican, and will be remembered with pride by himself and many friends, and which will serve to commend the efforts of Senator Zihlman to his constituents, whom he served with such distinction and zeal, regardless of political affliation or belief, for many years to come."

These two quotations prove that the editor of the Democrat is not posted as to Senator Zihlman. Congressman Lewis says: "Your record is made and will endure." The Times gives him a "ranking position with such leaders of the opposition as Pres. Price, Senators Campbell, Harper and Lee, the shining oratorical lights of the Upper House." The Times says, "His work in the Senate forms a record unexcelled by any predecessor, Democrat or Republican." The editor of the Democrat is in a class by himself.

At the 16th Annual Encampment, Department of Maryland, Grand Army of the Republic, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved by the officers and delegates here assembled, that we extend to the Hon. F. N. Zihlman, State Senator for Allegany county, our heartfelt thanks and unbounded appreciation for the intelligent, earnest and successful efforts by which he so expeditiously passed Senate Bill No. 76, providing for the burial of the Union dead of this State."

WHAT THE COMMITTEE ON THE HOUR LAW THINKS OF ZIHLMAN.

"I might also say that our committee feels that your splendid support of the bill did much to insure its passage through the Senate, and to you must belong great credit for this legislation."
(Signed) THOMAS H. BUCKDER,
Chairman, Committee on Ten-Hour Law.

WHAT THE SCHOOL TEACHERS THINK OF ZIHLMAN.

"We the undersigned, principal and teachers of the Union Street School hereby express our highest appreciation of your successful efforts in the passage of the Pension Bill for the teachers of Allegany county.
(Signed) H. G. WEIMER, Principal.
Here follows the names of the other teachers of the Union Street School.

WHAT LABOR THINKS OF ZIHLMAN.

Baltimore, Md., April 15, 1614.
Baltimore Federation of Labor,
To all whom it may concern.—

Whereas, Frederick N. Zihlman, State Senator from Allegany county, has consistently manifested an active interest in the welfare of the laboring people, and

Whereas, he ably advocated the enactment of legislation best calculated to improve the working conditions of those employed as wage workers in the State of Maryland, and has at all times proven himself a true friend of the organized workmen of our State.

Now, therefore be it resolved, that the Baltimore Federation of Labor expresses its hearty approval of Senator Zihlman's zealous and conscientious efforts, that we congratuiate the Cumberland Trades Council and the people of Allegany County in general on having had such an able representative during the past three sessions of the General Assembly of Maryland.

And be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Cumberland Trades Council and Senator Frederick N. Zihlman.
(Signed) JOHN H. FERGUESON, Pres.
JOHN E. MOORE, Sec.

Mr. Editor, you had better get posted on Senator Zihlman's standing and record, or you will be a "back number."

Frederick N. Zihlman was born in the year 1879, at Carnegie, Pa., his family moving to Cumberland three years later. At the age of eleven years he entered the glass factory, and later learned the trade of a glass blower.

In 1901 he was elected president of the Local Union of Glass Workers, and held the position for five years, serving during the labor troubles of 1904. In 1904 he was elected National Delegate, a position he also held for five years, during which he served two years as National Executive Board Member.

In 1904 he was elected President of the Allegany Trades Council and was re-elected for four consecutive terms.

In 1906 he assisted in organizing the State Federation of Labor, and was its first President, and was unanimously elected for a second term.

In 1909 he was elected to the State Senate by a majority of 2,350. During the term covering two sessions of the General Assembly the Baltimore papers state "he won an enviable reputation and became one of the leaders of the Senate."

In 1913 he was re-elected to the State Senate from Allegany county by a flattering majority. His parlimentary training immediately was recognized and he was made unanimously the floor leader in the Senate of the Republican party.

SENATOR JOHN WALTER SMITH

Facts in His Senatorial Record Upon Which He is Silent.

Col. Carrington in a publicletter to Senator Smith said:

You have not made any public statements whatever as to your position on many public questions, and when I consult your record in the Senate I am also disappointed, for I find that you have on most questions—particularly those affecting the rights of labor and humanity—simply failed to vote at all.

For example: On May 31st, 1912, you are recorded as not voting on the passage of a bill restricting the services of day laborers for the United States Government to eight hours per day.

On May 6th, 1912, you failed to vote on the Employer's Liability and Workmen's Compensation Bill.

On March 29th, 1912, you failed to vote on the Service Pension Bill.

On August 13th, 1912, you failed to vote on the amendment to the Post office Appropriation Bill, which established the Parcels Post.

On March 2nd, 1913, you failed to vote on the amendment to the socalled Seamen's Bill, which provided for government inspections for the qualification of life boat hands. You will recall that this bill again came before the Senate in September, 1913, when you again failed to vote, although the provisions of the bill are of vital interests to a large number of the people of Maryland.

On January 31st, 1912, however, you did vote in opposition to the establishment of the Children's Bureau; and on September 6th, 1913, against the establishment of a Tariff Board.

On August 9th, 1912, you failed to vote on the amendment to the Canal Bill, giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to deny the use of the canal to steamship lines owned by competing railways. On the same day you voted in favor of the Canal Bill, which contained the provision exempting vessels engaged in a coast-wise trade from the payment of tolls. On June 11th, 1914, you voted to repeal this provision.

On September 8th, 1913, you are recorded as not voting on a proposition for Federal aid to good roads construction.

Col. Carrington might have added that on May 24, 1909, Senator Smith voted not to place lumber on the free list, and on the same day against a ropositionp to place a duty of $1.00 per thousand feet on sawed lumber, and in addition 50 cents per thousand feet for each side planed. On June 23, 1909, he voted for the Aldrich amendment, placing a duty of $1.50 per thousand when planed on one side, $2.25 per thousand when planed on two sides, and so on upwards. On the same day he voted twice not to reduce this duty, and again on June 26 not to place it on the free list. We have heard that Senator Smith owns saw mills.

BITTINGER.

A few citizens gathered at the cross roads last Thursday afternoon to hear the address of Congressman David J. Lewis and the lively selections played by the Browning string band.

A goodly number gathered to hear the address of Rev. Thomas Hare, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. The meeting was held in the Lutheran church and the address was pithy and to the point, being well received by the audience.

Deputy Treasurer B. H. Wiley, of Oakland, visited his mother here Sunday.

C. W. Emory, of Indianapolis, Ind., spent a day or two with his brother here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walburn, of Jennings, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Walburn's mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Compton, of Oakland, visited relatives here last week.

Messrs. William and Peter Kahl, of Accident, are doing some nice jobs of painting in this neighborhood.

It continues dry before the election, and it is hoped that it may be "Dry," so far as the liquor traffic is concerned, forever after the election.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE COLUMN

Practical Suggestions on Local Option Campaign.

Tuesday morning next at 8 o'clock the election polls will be open to the citizens of Garrett county and the election officials will be ready to receive your ballots. It is the most important election ever held in Garrett county. We shall settle the question, "Shall the saloon and the business of drunkard making be forbidden in Garrett county?"

What are YOU going to do about it?

YOU are the man, Mr. Voter, who will settle this question. Upon YOU hangs the responsibility of deciding this question. What does the best interests of your county demand of you? What duty do you owe to your neighbor?

Next Tuesday YOU cast a ballot For or Against this ruinous, disgraceful business.

By YOUR vote you close the saloon or YOU keep it open. It is the individual voter who will settle this question.

YOUR vote, YOUR influence is needed to rid the county of this great evil.

What are you going to do about it?

Will you vote Against license? Will you do your part and duty in getting others to vote Against License?

The christian, sober citizens of Oakland plead for your help, to relieve them of the disgrace they suffer from the saloons of the town, Oakland is called the "boozeville," the "drunkard's town," the "dumping town of the West Virginia wets."

As Oakland suffers, every town and citizen of Garrett county suffers. This advertising of our county seat as a "booze rendezvou," is enough to arouse the righteous indignation of every christian man and woman. Shall this con tinue? Aye, increase as it is increasing. In one night, on one train 72 suit case boozers left Oakland for West Virginia. The county jail at times nearly filled with drunken men, picked up on the public streets. The victims at times robbed of their money, be it little or much. In one case $230. Drunkenness and robbery is bad enough—but drunkenness and robbery and jail is the filling of the cup of misery.

What are YOU going to do about it, Mr. Voter.

IT'S UP TO YOU to decide the question. Shall this sin contiune in Garrett county? Shall it develop more largely? More disastrously?

Realize the situation. Try to estimate the loss, the suffering, the awful consequences that result from the liquor business to our country.

Look into this question. Investigate the subject. The time is short. In five more days we shall cast the ballot that will tell the story. Let these be days of earnest prayer, earnest talk, and earnest work, by the men and by the women of Garrett county.

Wage an incessing war fare against license during these remaining five days, from morning until night, in the home, in the store, in the church, on the public highway, whenever two or three get together, agitate the question. Get tremendously interested and busy.

Last week the Local Option Committee mailed a copy of the Local Option bill to every voter in Garrett county. The Committee wanted the voter to read, for himself, just what the bill provided for, it is one of the most clear, comprehensible bills ever offered in the Legislature of Maryland. It is just what Garrett county needs to protect it from liquor and the liquor seller. Its adoption means the greatest prosperity of Garrett county; the greatest happiness of its inhabitants, men, women and children.

It tells the man who dares to violate the law just what he may expect. It is straight forward in its statements, so that the law can be enforced against the violators of the bill. The bill was prepared and enacted for a purpose—and that purpose was Total Prohibition of the sale of liquor in Garrett county. The bill is before you.

What are YOU going to do about it? The day has come, when it is up to you to do something. You have been talking about local option for Garrett county; you have been praying for local option; you have reached the place and time when you can have it.

What are YOU going to do about it?

You are the man of the hour. Resting it with YOU. THE TIME FOR ACTION IS HERE. You are the factor in the case. YOU! YOU!! YOU! It is you.

What are YOU going to do about it?

This the last appeal to your manhood. Before the next issue of this paper the question will have been answered. Your part in the great effort to make Garrett county sober and happy will be completed. As you look into the past and see the result of the vote, may you be able from a full heart to say, "Thank God my county is delivered from the bondage of the saloon, and that by my vote and through my influence, I was faithful to my God and the best interes of my neighbor."

Garrett County Dry in 1915. Blessed privilege, to have a hand in bringing about this result. How many prayers of thanksgiving will ascend to the throne of our Heavenly Father next Tuesday night from the drunkards' home, as well as from the homes of the victorious men who voted dry. Our last words are. VOTE AGAINST LICENSE.

The Inglorious Record:

Nineteen months of inefficiency and profligate waste of the people's money is one of the indictments against the Democratic party. The indictment of extravagance was written in the first place by prominent, conscientious leaders of its own party. The Democratic chairman of the house committee on appropriations early in the session of Congress, the Hon. John J. Fitzgerald, of New York, gave out this warning cry:

Whenever I think of the horrible mess I shall be called upon to present to the country on behalf of the Democratic party, I am tempted to quit my place * * * Do not continue to vote for these improper and improvident appropriations. Those who propose to continue to do so should at least have the courage openly to assert upon the floor of this house that the professions of the Democratic party have not been made in good faith, that they cannot be carried out, and that we are not entitled to power because of those professions.

Later on, when the log-rolling became fanatical, a Souther member of the same committee, who had personal knowledge of the character of the raid that was being made on the Treasury, Representative Sisson, of Mississippi, lifted up his voice in protest, as follows:

This is the most outrageous and criminally extravagant Congress that ever sat on the American continent. I want to apologize to the Republicans for having called them extravagant when they were in control of the house. They were modest in comparison with the appropriations we are now making.

The revenue bill which passed the Senate, Saturday night, in spite of the Republicans and a fair jointure of Democratic votes, represents in part the extent of the woeful extravagance of improvident Democracy. The sum total of the appropriations shows an excess of over $190,000,000 of that made by the last Republican Congress, which the Baltimore platform condemned in the most unmeasured terms and promised a rigidly economical administration when the Democrats came into power. Here are the exact words of that most wholly repudiated platform: Read them closely:

We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of the recent Republican Congress, which have kept taxes high and reduced the purchasing power of the people's toil. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useful offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people.

Since when in the history of the nation has there been such fair promise and foul performance? Is it any wonder that one of the leading Democratic Senators (Reed, of Missouri), exclaimed in anguish: "We have played the part of the hypocrite." Here is the comparative record of Republican "extravagance" and promised Democratic "economy":

1912	995,799,462.72
1913	988,353,340 41
1914	1,057,605,684.40
1915	1,089,408,777.26

These figures do not include the amounts carried by rivers and harbors appropriation bills; and in comparing them it should also be taken into account that the Panama appropriations for the present fiscal year are only about $21,000,000, while in former years they have been much higher, in one year reaching $48,000,000. What would have been the score had the rivers and harbors "pork" bill been allowed to stand at $53,000,000, but which was cut down to $20,000,000 by the filibuster of a Republican, Senator Burton, of Ohio? Then President Wilson himself insisted that the ship-purchasing bill must pass this session, which provided for a bond issue of $30,000,000 but which he was compelled to give up on the threatened revolt of the frightened Democratic members of Congress. Extravagance, extravagance, not only in throwing away the people's money, but in adding to the total charges of government, as Senator Borah has shown, without contradiction, what the expenditures for running the departments of government last year were $3,000,000 a week greater than for the average of the last year of the Republican administration. It is remarkable with such a record confronting him that Representative Sisson, of Mississippi, wanted to apologize for having called the Republicans extravagant? The only safe thing for the country to do on November 3 is to repudiate the repudiators.

With this fact before us, why should Republicans vote for David J. Lewis?

For Senator From Maryland.

It is the general opinion that Col. Edward C. Carrington, Jr., Republican candidate for For Senator, is making good progress in his canpaign.

Col. Carrington is well fitted to represent Maryland in the Senate of the United States. It is not too much to say that in the important matter of fitness he possesses a marked advantage over his Democratic rival. The Marylander who prefers Republican to Democratic times, and who remembers that the prevailing business depression began some time before the beginning of the war in Europe, will be pretty sure to vote for Col. Carrington on the 3rd of November.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS

is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out. The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

The Farmers "Friend."

The Democratic party, among its other false pretentions, has affected to be deeply concerned about the agricultural class. It so loved the farmer that it has chastened him by giving his Canadian neighbor the advantage over him in his own market. It also swept away his grazing flocks of sheep with free wool. It has done other things. with the hope of reducing the high cost of living, with its arm around the farmer's neck in loving embrace. the Democratic party gave him a swift upper cut by removing the tariff off many of the products of the farm, regardless of effect. Then as a slave it offered him immunity from prosecution, in the Clayton bill, for combining for self-preservation, which doesn't protect him at all. Oh, yes, it has helped the farmer—helped him to hustle harder. This is how it has done it. Compared with 1913, when the Payne-Aldrich law was in effect, the increases in imports for the 11 months of the fiscal year 1914 were as follows: Cattle, $11,967,347; corn, $9,774,179; oats $7,984,053; meat and dairy products, $30,453,388; vegetables, $4,791.535; wool, $30,136,171, and wheat $1,473,040.

One of the essential needs of the farmer is long time loans at a low rate of interest, and the Democratic party was so impressed with the system of rural credits adopted in other countries that it said, here is another chance for getting the farmer vote. So it spread this molasses in its Baltimore platform. "Of equal importance with the question of currency reform is the question of rural credits or agricultural finance." Sure. The President emphasized this in his message to Congress, December 2, 1913, when he said: "I present to you in addition the urgent necessity that special provision be made also for facilitating the credits needed by the farmers of the country."

How did the farmer fare? He was ignored. The currency act was passed. Depend on the Democrats for increasing the flow of money. They needed it. Here was a real opportunity to help the farmer, a chance to redeem the platform pledge, but the President turned his back on the rural credit bill and had it killed by his pliant tools in caucus. These are some of the things that Democracy has done for the farmer, who it professed to hold in such affectionate regard. We can see the farmers fighting to get to the polls first on November 3 to vote to "uphold our President,"

Deficiency Tax Bill.

Mr. Lewis has lent himself to the pious fraud of calling a deficiency revenue measure a war tax. He knows as well as anything that the Underwood Tariff as a revenue producer is a failure and to supply the deficiency, a tax never before resorted to except in war times is imposed on the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of banks at the rate of $1.00 per $1000.00; a stamp tax from two cents up is provided for bonds, certificates of indebtedness, promissory notes, telegraph and telephone messages, costing fifteen cents or more, deeds and many other articles which the user will learn of in due time. If Mr. Lewis thinks that the people of Garrett county are going to throw up their hats and yell for him for imposing added taxes at a time of business depression, he has another think coming. The Republicans of Garrett county know of a better way of raising revenue than the methods suggested and advocated by Mr. Lewis.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1914.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR U. S. SENATOR,
EDWARD C. CARRINGTON.

FOR CONGRESS,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

IT is all over but the shouting.

GARRETT county DRY after April 30, 1915.

WORK and vote for the Republican ticket.

MARYLAND Republicans should work to send Republicans to Congress.

THE election of a Republican Congress will be a move toward prosperity and business revival.

VOTE for Zihlman and you will have done a good day's work, one that you will always feel proud of.

IN a number of respects Senator Zihlman is a superior man to Congressman Lewis and in none his inferior.

THE outlook from Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Kansas, Illinois and other states is encouraging for a great Republican victory.

BE Republicans Nov. 3d. Let the slogan be: "Every Republican voter for Carrington and Zihlman." Work to give that ticket the full Republican vote.

If the beet and sugar cane industry had not been practically destroyed by the Democrat tariff policy, we would not now be paying 8 cents a pound for sugar.

UNDER Republican rule the balance of trade was in favor of the United States. Under nineteen months of Democrtic management it is decidedly against us.

CONSTITUTE yourself a committee of one to see that your Republican neighbor votes next Tuesday. A full vote for Carrington and Zihlman means a fuller victory.

GARRETT county, next Tuesday will give the Saloon men six months notice to close up their Saloons and quit selling liquor in this county. A legal notice you know, according to law, signed by at least two-thirds of its citizens.

THE election returns will show Allegany county, Frederick county, Garrett county and Washington county, for Zihlman. Montgomery county for Lewis. The Sixth Maryland Congressional district back in the Republican column.

So hard pushed are the Democrats in their desire to defeat Senator Zihlman for Congress, that certain Oakland Democrats are busy circulating a story that "Senator Zihlman owns two saloons in Cumberland and one in Frostburg. That he is the president of a Distilling Company in Cumberland." This statement is a malicious falsehood, purposely circulated, with the hope of injuring Senator Zihlman. See Senator Zihlman's statement in another column.

FROM Washington county comes this cheering word:

Washington county, usually debatable grouud, will give a clean majority for Frederick N. Zihlman in the congressional election on November 3. Among some Republicans' the estimates of the G. O. P. candidates majority exceed 300, but this figure may be a trifle excessive. On the other hand, Zihlman has obtained the edge throughout the county on Lewis, and the Republican leaders are hustling with an enthusiasm which bids fair to bring out the full party vote on election day.

VOTE early. Get your neighbor to vote early. Let Tuesday Nov. 3, be the busiest day of your life. Give that one day to your county's best interest by working for the success of the Republican ticket.

IN former years our Democratic friends had much to say about the extravagance of Republican administrations but we haven't noticed any comment by them upon the fact that the first fiscal year of the Wilson administration cost the people $47,000,000 more than Mr. Taft's administration cost for the preceding twelve months.

THIS country is about to indulge in the remarkable distinction of paying a big war revenue tax, says the Carroll Record, while our country is not at war; so, no matter whether Europe fights, or is at peace, we must pay for their convenience. In the one case a war tax because they are at war; and in the other, a lowered tariff because they need it in order to beat us in a business way. On the whole, we are excessively liberal in our charity to the foreigner.

EXPENDITURES authorized and proposed by the Democratic administration this year exceed the expenditures of the corresponding year of the last Republican administration by over $100,000,000. This is the real reason why the American people are to bear the burden of a $100,000,000 war tax. This is one reason why Smith and Lewis should not have the vote of the Republicans of Garrett county November 3d.

REPUBLICANS of Garrett county let us rally around our standard bearers like honest men. Vote as we registered. Send from Garrett county next Tuesday night the good tidings of a great Republican majority. Forgetting the things of the past, let us stand by our ticket to a man. We should vote for them because they are Republicans; because they are clean and true men; because they are tried men and found not wanting. There is nothing offered to you better, if as good.

WHAT can be gained by voting for Mr. Lewis? He is a Democrat. He makes no promises to the Republicans. He is a full fledged supporter of the administration principles, hence does not deserve the support of any Republican. He left Garrett county to vote for the war tax, which will greatly increase the cost of living Spent a few hours in Washington and then came back to this county. In the meantime Congress remained in session and Mr. Lewis drew his $20.00 per day pay, and he devoted his time trying to persuade Republicans to vote for him.

THE Saturday Evening Post, says: "That there will be many changes in the membership of the House and a decided reduction of the present overgrown Democratic majority seems highly probable". In speaking about the Congress which closed its session last Saturday, the Post says. "So many startling utterances and proposals have emanated from its membership, as a whole that it gives one the blues to reflect upon what it would do if left to its own guidance." Remember the Saturday Evening Post is not a Republican paper.

VOTERS this year can get their best campaign arguments right at home. Are wages higher? Are times better? Are money conditions easier? Is the cost of living lower? Are bankers more ready to lend money?

These are questions that can be answered without the assistance of campaign orators, or campaign text books. The voter has only to ask himself and some of his friends these questions and others like them and then decide for himself whether he is going to vote to continue the conditions which now surround him.

PAY no attention to the falsehoods of certain men (?) who are by low down, mean, contemptible statements trying to defeat Senator Zihlman. The reports that they are circulating are unworthy of credit and the sly way in which they are put in circulation, by way of insinuation, are beneath the dignity of a gentleman. Hogs root in the dirt but gentlemen never. We have heard of some of these malicious, foul insinuations and from personal knowledge know them to be false and used only to dishonor and disgrace Mr. Zihlman if possible. The Republicans are not conducting that kind of a campaign.

IT has been asked. What has Senator Zihlman ever done for Garrett county? He has done two things Garrett county citizens should never forget. 1. He worked to make the Garrett county Local Option bill a law. 2. He voted to give you and I the right to vote on the question of local option for Garrett county. These facts entitle him to our most earnest support. He stood by us in an hour when we needed a friend with influence. Can we honorably refuse him our support? Can we be so ungrateful as to vote against him? This local option law means much for Garrett county, more than you or I can estimate. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." Vote for Zihlman! Vote for Carrington!

WHAT has the Democratic party ever done for a Republican? Nothing. Then, why should Republicans vote for and elect a Democrat, David John Lewis Congressman, over Senator Zihlman, a loyal Republican, an honest man, a man faithful to his promises, a man whom you can depend upon, a man who has made an enviable record, a man who like David John Lewis, by a hard struggle in early life educated and equipped himself for the tomorrow of life, the friend of the working man, a man qualified, well qualified to represent the sixth district in the halls of Congress?

WHEN the administration needed votes to pass the war tax bill, where did they find David John Lewis? Not in the halls of congress, where he is paid $20.00 a day to be; not where he was expected to be, at such an important hour, not at his post of duty, but at Friendsville, Garrett county, trying to persuade Republicans to reelect him to Congress. The officials of the House had to telegraph him to return to his post of duty, to sustain the President and impose upon the people the so-called war tax, to meet the extravagence of a Democratic Congress. Republicans do not be deceived. Vote for Frederick N. Zihlman, a Republican.

LET the voter of Garrett county, when he comes to cast his ballot, next Tuesday remember that whenever we have a Democratic administration in this country, it means a bonded indebtedness, or a special war tax. During Cleveland's administration the country had to borrow $200,000,000 to pay the running expenses of the Government, and today it is a war tax and no war. Let him also remember that when the Republicans turned over the reins of Government to the Democrats the treasury of the United States was full to overflowing, and today, after two years under a Democratic administration, the treasury is empty. Let him also remember that David J. Lewis, the Democratic candidate for Congress, has been supporting and if reelected will again support this suicidal policy of free trade Wilson. Vote for Frederick N. Zihlman for Congress.

NEXT week more attention will be given to local matters. This is the last issue of The Republican for the political campaign. For the past two weeks we have given large space to the political situation, believing that the time had arrived when Garrett county should resume her place in the Sixth Maryland congressional district as a Republican county by a large, old time majority.

Col. Carrington, candidate for United States Senator is a practical man, well qualified for the office he seeks, as is also Senator Zihlman. The man who casts his ballot for these two gentlemen makes no mistake. It every sense of the word they are the equal of the Democratic candidates.

The Republican has taken an earnest part in the local option campaign, believing that the best interests of Garrett county will be served by the adoption of the local option law, hence has urged the voters of the county to cast their ballot against license.

Shall Garrett county have a County Home? The answer to that question will be given next Tuesday. Let the subject be carefully investigated and vote as your judgment directs.

Vote for the amendment to the Constitution. It relates only to Baltimore City. It is but right that they should have what they ask for and the fee system be abolished.

Vote the straight Republican ticket next Tuesday.

THE Oakland Democrat last week said, "Mr Zihlman has served a term in the Maryland Senate from Allegany Co. Mr. Zihlman served his county in three sessions of the Senate, or six years. The Democrat goes on to say "but that fact is not sufficient to account for his failure to rise to a position of real leadership in his own party except in his own county." Mr. Zihlman was the able floor manager of his party during the last session of the Senate; was a hard working member of a number of most important committees, of the Senate, a man whose advice and assistance was asked by Democrats and Republicans. He is so much a leader in his party in the Sixth District, as to have had no opposition for the place he occupies on the Republican ticket. He is such a leader in Western Maryland politics as to fill the Democrats with alarm. So much a leader as to cause President Wilson, the Postmaster General, Congressman Underwood and other Democratic leaders to plead for his reelection. So much of a leader that West Virginia Democratic newspapers are called upon to plead for his opponent, Mr. Lewis reelection. So much of a leader that Congressman Lewis had to leave his seat in the halls of Congress and make a personal canvas in this district (while drawing $20 a day pay for his services) to plead for reelection. So much a leader that all over the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland he has awakened great enthusiasm and united the Republicans in this campaign. Mr. Zihlman is a man of energy, enthusiasm and success, He is a common sense, practical every day man. He is your friend, the kind of a man you can tie to and feel safe. He has proven his friendship for Garrett county by his vote for our local option bill.

THIS is a marvelous year in the history of Garrett county. A year of remarkable crops in field and orchard. Ours has been a bountiful harvest. A year in which we have the privilege to vote the sale of liquor out of our county. A year in which we shall, by our ballot make Garrett county dry. It is our Jubilee year.

Next Tuesday the mountineers shall rise in the dignity of their manhood and cast their vote against liquor selling in in the county. This most western county of the state shall declare its freedom from intoxicating liquors. It is a glorious privilege we shall enjoy next Tuesday, and how greatfully we will enjoy it.

What a glorious future is before us. A saloonless county. What blessings, what happiness, what peace and what comfort it will bring to us. No drunken men on our streets, no poverty stricken families, no suffering womanhood or childhood, no drunken brawls, but in their stead an empty jail, peace and plenty, well clad children, well fed families, sober men. What a vision appears before us, of a better, grander, richer and healthier county.

Next Tuesday is the great day of our redemption. The day for which we have long prayed. It is almost here. We will cast our ballot as never before. There will be such a satisfaction, such a realization of our duty as never before. A consciouness that our vote means so much for the tomorrow of our county.

And, while we vote dry, we will not forget to cast our ballot for the man who voted for us at Annapolis and helped us to secure the glorious privilege we shall have on Nov. 3d.—Senator F. N. Zihlman, candidate for Congress. He was with us. He was for us, and he aided us in obtaining this boom of county wide happiness. He voted for us. We will vote for him. We can do nothing else.

THE WAR TAX EXPLAINED.

The Washington Star, says: President Wilson's new touring car has arrived at the White House, and was used by the President yesterday for the first time. It is a sixty-six horse power of the most modern type. A new car of the same make, but a limousine, has arrived for Secretary Tumulty, and is also in use. In a short time two other new cars from the same shop are to arrive for the President and his family. One is to be a limousine. The cost of the touring car, authorized by Congress is $6,000, and of the limousine, $7,500. The Superintndent of the Public Printing department has also received a car for his use, and the end is not yet. Who cares for expenses? A vote for David J. Lewis means a continuation of these expenses.

WHAT YE'ER GOIN' TO DO FOR REVENUE?

One of the most commenly used arguments by the saloon backers is that the state cannot do without the revenue arising from the liquor traffic. This is a notable example of argumentum ad ignorantiam.

Where do the saloons get the cash to pay license fees, taxes, operating expenses and the enormous profits the business. Out of the pockets of the citizens every dollar of it comes. If the people did not spend their money for liquors they could pay the saloonkeeper's license fees and taxes and have his operating expenses and immense profits left in their pockets, to say nothing of expenses saved in prosecuting the criminals produced by the saloon and caring for its defectives and paupers. The saloon is an enormously losing proposition for any community. Have we not an illustration in the saloons of Oakland. Vote against license

A CONVINCING STATEMENT.

A Columbus man is one of a company operating a West Virginia coal mine. The saloons closed in that state the first of July under state-wide Prohibition. This operator wanted to see the difference in the earning power of some of his drinking men under wet and dry conditions. He picked out eight miners, all of them drinkers, and the payroll of the company for June, wet, and August, dry, tells the difference in the earning of these eight men. Here is the comparison:

	June	Aug.
Avery	$ 25.02	$ 32.94
Beck	35.10	74.50
McLaughlin	35.75	73.25
Gray	22.75	93.67
Hicks	*16 00	*27.00
Wellington	24.80	38.40
Popp	26 35	64.00
Hopkins	29.00	46.20

*One-half month

These men worked under the same conditions both months. They had as great opportunity to earn money in June as in August. Some of them, it will be noticed, doubled and trebled their earnings. They were more efficient. They were better workmen. Sobriety put more dollars into their pockets to be spent, not on liquor, but on wives and children.

AN IMPORTANT CAMPAIGN.

This present campaign is the most important voting test this country has experienced since 1896. In that year this country was redeemed from the prostration, poverty and distress wrought upon it by the mistaken and misguided legislation of the terrible Wilson-Gorman-Cleveland administration. This year the voter faces the opportunity to cast his vote to save this great nation from any further business depression, to save it from the threat of hard times, slack business and idle factories, (this last being already upon us) with their attendant evils of nation-wide poverty, distress and starvation. The voter has to choose between casting his vote in this election for candidates for congress who represent the Democratic party and its principles. If you believe that the business and tariff ideas and principles of the Democratic party are sound and proper, and to the best interests of the nation, that if the workngs of the Democratic administration so far have resulted in the business, commercial and manufacturing welfare of this nation, together with their resultant effects upon American labor, then you should go to the polls and vote for the Democratic candidates.

If on the other hand, you believe that the vast majority of wide-awake business men, financiers and intelligent working men believe that this country has ever prospered and thriven and advanced and progressed best under the administration and guidance of the Republican party and through its principles; that the Republican policies and beliefs and principles relative to the great business law of the protective tariff for American labor and capital are right, if you desire bounteous prosperity in every walk of American business and labor world; if you believe that American labor, American merchandise and American manufactures and American capital is worth a little more than that of the foreigner, and would rather see it working and building for the uplift and enrichment of America, then you must go to the polls and vote for Republican candidates.

DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION'S FISCAL RECORD.

The Underwood tariff law was approved October 3rd, 1913. From that time until July 31st, practically ten months elapsed. Let us note the results of this law within this period. Note that the European war had not begun on July 31st. In October, 1913, the imports of the United States were $132,878,896, the exports $271,855,054. The balance of trade in favor of the United States during the month being therefore $138,975,158. With slight fluctuations, the imports during each of the succeeding months have increased, the exports decreased, until in July the imports were $159,677,261, the exports $154,238,947, and the former balance in favor of the United States has become a balance against the United States of $5,538,344. That is, the imports in July were 27 millions more and the exports 117 millions less than in October. Thus we are buying more and selling less. Is this good business?

The appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, were $1, 019,412,710.91; for 1914, $1,098,673,789.40; for 1915, $1,115,908,777.25; that is an increase of 1915 over 1913 of 96 millions dollars. The amount of the increase is practically the amount determined to be raised by the so-called war tax. The war tax could be saved by economy notwithstanding the failure of the tariff law even as a revenue producer now note how it has failed.

From October 1st to July 31st, the total income from the tariff was $229,461,967.00. For the same ten months in the preceding year the total income was $260,122,037. Thus the Underwood law yielded 30 millions less than the Payne law, though the imports during the same ten months were $1,606,120,312, as against $1,503,816,993.00 during the corresponding ten months under the Payne law.

Imports have increased, revenue has decreased, prices have not decreased, thus aside from the loss to our own industries we have simply sacrificed 30 millions of dollars of revenue.

Consider this brief digest and ask yourself whether the Democratic fiscal policy is a success.

WHO CARES FOR EXPENSES?

Republican Congresses have been called "billion-dollar Congresses" by the Democratic newspapers and speechmakers in the past, but they have given the country a fair sample of what they can do along the same line by going the Republicans a few better. The Democratic Congresses hereafter will be known as "Billion-Dollar Congresses" with a "Hundred Million-Dollar War Tax" thrown in!

Herein is a partial explanation of the increasing high cost of living and the "empty dinner-pail!"

This is the party and the Congress to wheih Hon. David J. Lewis belongs, and this a part of his and his party's record that the voters of the Sixth District of Maryland will make sure is not repeated.

Will they vote for a continuance of or for safe and sane Republican policies and "the full dinner-pail?"

Wait and see!

DEMOCRATS CRUSHING THE FARMER.

Hon. Porter J. McCumbe, United States Senator from North Dakota, says: The extreme hostility of this Democratic administration to the American farmer is astounding. One would naturally suppose that if the legislative arm of the government should be extended to any class of its citizens it ought to be to raise the agricultural interest up to a plane of equality with other great industries. But this is the record of the Democratic administration as it affects the American farmer.

Out of twenty-two leading agricultural products which have heretofore received a fair protection under Republican tariff laws, seventeen of them were placed on the free list, and the other five given but a mere pittance which in no instance amounted to protection.

Can any farmer, Republican or Democrat who understands the simple law of supply and demand, doubt for a moment that the excessive importations nearly all along our northern border prevented him from receiving what he otherwise would have received for his product? Can the northwestern farmer fail to understand that an importation of over 22,000,000 bushels of oats in nine months must necessarily have had a disastrous effect upon the price he was entitled to receive for his oats?

The northwestern farmer must be blind indeed who did not observe that from the beginning of the operation of this tariff law until August 1, the trend of prices was downward all along the line of agricultural productions; and had it not been for the European war he would have received today less for his agricultural products, with the possible exception of cattle, than he has received since the previous Democratic administration.

This war will come to an end, and unless this Democratic tariff act is repealed before that time, the prices of our farm products will drop to the level recorded during the stagnant years of 1893 to 1897.

The Republicans of Garrett county are feeling jubilant, thank you. They are delighted in having such a splendid ticket to vote for. Men who are above reproach; men who have accomplished much good; men who have won the respect of their fellow men; and they are going to vote solid for Carrington and Zihlman.

The Democrats see that there is no chance of Lewis being elected by a square deal, hence they get busy circulating lies about Senator Zihlman, traveling here and there to do so. Wonder if they will continue their slander after learning about Senator Zihlmans positive denial, in no unmistakenable terms, of their falsehoods.

The dreadful hog cholera has broken out in Howard county and members of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board are making a hard fight to prevent spread of the epidemic. Keep a close watch on your hogs. At the first sign of their being out of condition give them special attention. Pork this fall means money for the man who has it to sell.

The Republican has been complimented upon the splendid paper of last week. It contained 133 inches of Republican political matter; 110 inches of local option matter; 7 local items with heads; 3 special items of church news; 4 death notices; 432 lines of local paragraphs; 451 lines of county wide local interests, besides the usual miscellaneous reading matter.

The Cumberland Times predicts that Lewis will carry Garrett county by 700 majority. There is another guess coming to the Times. He may get a few more votes than 700, but as to carrying Garrett county, there is not the slightest possibility of his doing so. Senator Zihlman is as sure of carrying Garrett county as there is to an election held November 3d.

In about ten days the state road will be completed to Accident. That sounds good, and the work on the road from Accident to the Cove is being pushed rapidly towards completion. "If any man here," said the temperance orator, "can name an honest business that has been helped by the saloon I will spend the rest of my life working for the liquor people." A man in the audience arose and said, "I consider my business honest, and it has been helped by the saloon." "What is your business," said the orator. "I, sir," replied the man, "am an undertaker.

Rev. G. W. Kepler, who at one time was pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church of Oakland, and who served with much success as the Field Secretary of the Permanent Trust Fund Association of his Conference, has been appointed to that work for another year. He sometimes visits Oakland in the interests of the business he represents and will be here some time this winter. He makes his home and has his headquarters at Sistersville, W. Va.

Garrett county will be dry next Tuesday—dry for one whole day—then the saloons will open up for six months more. We can look ahead and see the end of the curse now on us. Day by day the time will grow less, until April 30, 1915 will dawn—the last day of booze and "boozeville" will have arrived—the day will close and a new and better May day will dawn. The day for which we have prayed and sighed. Like the Isralites of old we will sing. "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." The saloon will be no more in Garrett county.

REASON No. 6—The rear wheels do not project out behind the cylinder, to be filled up with manure on windy days and when working on hillsides.

REASON No. 7—The cylinder is not on the rear axle. The rear axle has enough to do to carry the load and furnish the power. This means small rebair bills.

REASON No. 8—Because it is the only spreader that has a CONCAVE which is the greatest improvement ever put on a manure spreader.

REASON No. 9—The CONCAVE will regulate the backward movement of the load, so there can be no racing backward when going up hill or driving over rough ground.

The Cumberland Times predicts that Lewis will carry Garrett county by 700 majority. There is another guess coming to the Times. He may get a few more votes than 700, but as to carrying Garrett county, there is not the slightest possibility of his doing so. Senator Zihlman is as sure of carrying Garrett county as there is to an election held November 3d.

Rev. L. K. Young, pastor of the English Lutheran church, in Accident, delivered Sunday afternoon last, a strong temperance sermon, to a large congregation. It was a forcible statement of the evils of intemperance and the loss sustained by the public through the saloon.

In about ten days the state road will be completed to Accident. That sounds good, and the work on the road from Accident to the Cove is being pushed rapidly towards completion. The road from Keyser Ridge to the church in the Cove, we are informed, is completed. Good weather means a State road to Grantsville by Thanksgiving.

The first snow of the season fell Monday night, coming with a stiff northeastern wind that swept over the city. For a short time the ground was covered with snow. Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock the mercury in the thermometer registered 30 degrees above zero. Tuesday was a real wintry day.

"If any man here," said the temperance orator, "can name an honest business that has been helped by the saloon I will spend the rest of my life working for the liquor people." A man in the audience arose and said, "I consider my business honest, and it has been helped by the saloon." "What is your business," said the orator. "I, sir," replied the man, "am an undertaker.

Rev. G. W. Kepler, who at one time was pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church of Oakland, and who served with much success as the Field Secretary of the Permanent Trust Fund Association of his Conference, has been appointed to that work for another year. He sometimes visits Oakland in the interests of the business he represents and will be here some time this winter. He makes his home and has his headquarters at Sistersville, W. Va.

Garrett county will be dry next Tuesday—dry for one whole day—then the saloons will open up for six months more. We can look ahead and see the end of the curse now on us. Day by day the time will grow less, until April 30, 1915 will dawn—the last day of booze and "boozeville" will have arrived—the day will close and a new and better May day will dawn. The day for which we have prayed and sighed. Like the Isralites of old we will sing. "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." The saloon will be no more in Garrett county.

REASON No. 8—Because it is the only spreader that has a CONCAVE which is the greatest improvement ever put on a manure spreader.

REASON No. 9—The CONCAVE will regulate the backward movement of the load, so there can be no racing backward when going up hill or driving over rough ground.

GERMAN GUNS SHELL NIEUPORT

Allies Do Not Flinch Under Withering Fire by Enemy

INVADERS' ADVANCE HALTED

Germans Do Not Go Far Beyond River Yser—Petrograd Reports Say That Germans Have Been Stopped In Poland and Austrians Are Checked in Galicia—Vienna Dispatches Report Austro-German Armies Holding Own

Paris, Oct. 27.—The smashing tactics of the Germans along the North sea coast line continued incessantly when the big guns were turned on Nieuport and the allies had to withstand constant attacks of masses of troops.

Very little progress, however, was made by the Germans, who were faced with the strongest resistance.

The crossing of the Yser apparently had only a moral effect, as the Germans were confronted by solid lines of allied troops and were prevented from advancing without overwhelming forts further toward the channel ports.

Along the sea coast the British and French fleet kept the Germans three miles inland.

The toll of dead and wounded has grown to a staggering feature. General Joffre referring to the German losses as "considerable."

It would appear from the late communiques that the Germans have diverted troops from the south flank to strengthen their onslaught toward the north, between the Oise and the vicinity of Verdun.

There is an unofficial report that the French have wedged themselves between the army of the crown prince and the army of the Grand Duke of Wurtemburg and that the prince is once more in real danger of being enveloped.

The fleet continues its operations along the coast from Nieuport to Ostend, the heavy naval guns constantly raking the German positions, which have now been withdrawn inland from two to five miles.

In consequence of the deadly nature of the shell fire from the coast the Germans have abandoned most of their positions along the main roadway connecting Ostend and Nieuport. They, however, have batteries posted at all points where a hostile force could be landed from the sea so no attempt has yet been made to try a flanking assault under cover of the guns of the warships.

There is much complaint over the increasing meagerness of the official news from the front. Officers and men who are brought here wounded are sternly enjoined not to talk.

It is certain that the losses are increasing every day and that in the last ten days of fighting the allies must have had fully 10,000 in killed, wounded and prisoners each day.

Many of the crack Scottish and Irish regiments, whose places along the Somme have been taken by fresh troops and who are now fighting far in the north, have lost fully 40 per cent of their enlisted strength in the last ten days of fighting.

The incessant alternatives of advance and withdrawal on the part of the allies and the Germans, particularly in the north, furnished no basis for a summing up as to a general result. The Germans, judging from their frightful sacrifice of men, seem determined to force the battle to an issue. Nevertheless the French public, after analyzing the situation as indicated in the latest war office statements, continued optimistic.

While there is a satisfaction in the certainty that the Germans have suffered much more severely the appreciation of the terrible toll the war is now taking has had a melancholy effect on everyone here.

Germans and Austrians Checked.

Petrograd, Oct. 27.—The war office definitely announced that it has received information from the front that both the German advance on Poland and the Austrian advance in Galicia have been checked.

It says that the Germans have been using the Austrians to cover their retreat. The Russian center and right continue to advance while the left wing is maintaining the new positions taken on the west bank of the San river.

Austrian Official Statement.

London, Oct. 27.—A dispatch gives the following official statement issued in Vienna:

"A telegram from the northeastern theater of war says Austrian and strong German forces have taken a position in a nearly uninterrupted line from the northern spurs of the Carpathian mountains by way of Stary and Samber, before the fortress of Przemysl, to the Polish part of the Vistula and to the district of Plock, against the main army of the Russians, who have been reinforced by troops from the Caucasus, Siberia and Turkestan.

"The Austrian offensive across the Carpathians attracted strong hostile forces.

"In Russian Poland strong forces are facing one another. There has been no recent fighting north of the Vistula between Ivangorod and Warsaw."

Belgians Face Famine Unless Help Comes From Outside.

Brussels (By Way of London), Oct. 27.—Nearly 7,000,000 people in Belgium face famine unless they receive help from the outside at once.

The American minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlock, says that fewer than two weeks' supply of food remains in the city, while conditions in the country districts are even worse. Although Germany has seized the food in some cities for her soldiers, she still disclaims responsibility for feeding the Belgians.

Mr. Whitlock has had on hand only peasants' black bread for two weeks and the supply of that is short. One hundred soup kitchens are feeding more than 100,000 needy ones in Brussels. Families formerly rich are discharging their servants because they are bankrupt. Noblemen may be seen slipping into the soup kitchens.

The factories are closed. Many stores remain open, but have no business. The street cars are being operated, but the railway train service has been suspended. The supplies of tea, coffee, flour, rye and salt are practically exhausted.

TRENCHES DUG IN ENGLAND

Possibility of German Invasion Indicated by Activity in Essex County.

New York, Oct. 27.—Farmers in the vicinity of Harlow, in Essex county, England, are preparing for possible German invasion by digging trenches, according to James S. Cowlin of Newark, N. J., who arrived here on the steamship Minnehaha.

"The digging of these trenches, which are located so as to be of use in resisting the advance of a German army, indicates that British authorities do not consider that a German invasion is beyond the range of possibility," Mr. Cowlin said.

"The work is being done by order of city and county officials and it is generally understood that these officials issued their orders by direction of Lord Kitchener. My personal observations were made only in the vicinity of Harlow, but I heard that the farmers of other sections of Essex were similarly occupied."

SHIPS BACK IN BOSPHORUS

Goben and Breslau Take Refuge When Threatened by Russia.

Athens (Via Rome), Oct. 27.—The former German cruisers Goben and Breslau have re-entered the Bosphorus from the Black Sea owing to the recent warning which Russia recently sent to Turkey that she regarded the cruisers as German despite the fact that they are now flying the Turkish flag.

Russia announced that they would be destroyed by Russian warships if overhauled outside of territorial waters. The Russian fleet is now cruising in the Black sea watching for the two vessels.

MINE SINKS STEAMER

Thirty Drowned When French Passenger Ship Goes Down.

Dover, Oct. 27.—The French steamer Admiral Ganteume was sunk by a mine just outside Boulogne harbor. Most of the women passengers were peasants from Pas de Calais.

Two Dead Taken From Ruins of Building In Youngstown, O.

PLAYHOUSE BEING ERECTED

Rescuers Struggle With Thousands of Tons of Concrete and Steel to Get at Workmen Trapped by Collapse. Building Goes Down Without Any Warning Whatever—Workmen Are Thrown In Many Directions.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 27.—Scores of men are working to dig their way through tons of concrete and steel under which about twenty men were buried when the third floor of the new Hippodrome building collapsed and crashed through the two lower floors into the cellar.

Two unidentified dead bodies have been recovered, and two probably fatally wounded men are in the hospital.

The collapse came without warning. Most of the men were from other cities. Some were hurled across the street, others escaped miraculously with minor hurts, and some succeeded in clinging to jutting steel and beams until assistance came.

The great mass of material was packed into an almost solid mass, the steel reinforcements being intertwined and twisted through the huge masses of concrete. Firemen, police and citizens desperately attacked the debris. Until all of the stone is removed it will not be known how great the casualty list will be, nor will the names of the victims be known.

The first workman rescued from the ruins was Joseph Hammond of this city. Hammond, with several other men, was working on the third floor when it collapsed. His fellow workmen fell through the gap that opened and disappeared. He was the last to drop and was pinned on top of the debris by a big piece of concrete. His condition is said to be favorable.

The second person dug out was Botto Marino, also of Youngstown. Marino was jammed into a corner of the first floor at the rear and the frantic rescuers were attracted to him by his calls for help. He was given first aid treatment at the Youngstown hospital and later removed to his home.

ORDER TO KILL WAS GIVEN

French Have Proof of General Stenger's Instructions to Slay Wounded.

Washington, Oct. 27.—German prisoners of war taken by France have made affidavits confirming reports that General Stenger ordered them to shoot all prisoners and finish all wounded, according to a statement issued at the French embassy as follows:

"The report appeared in the press some time ago that General Stenger, commander of a brigade of the German army in France, had issued an order to his troops prescribing to them to give no quarter to any prisoners, but to shoot them all and to finish the wounded.

"An 'official statement' from Berlin via Sayville was issued thereupon, declaring that this was an 'impudent lie.'

"The atrocious order had been given and carried out and proof of it is in the hands of the French government. More than 200 German prisoners are now held in France. They have been declared under oath before the magistrate that this order was actually issued on the twenty-sixth of August and that in accordance with it all French wounded found that day were at once dispatched."

SUBMARINE TRANSPORTS

Germans Said to be Building New Ships to Carry Soldiers.

London, Oct. 27.—A dispatch from Copenhagen to the Times says the Germans are building at Elbing and Hamburg a new type of large submarines which are to be used for the transportation of troops.

The object is for the troops to reach shore without being detected by the forces of land. The new boats can also be employed as pontoons on the surface.

Two Boy Hunters Killed.

Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 27.—Two boys were almost instantly killed in hunting accidents in Cambria county within fifteen hours. Vincent Steen, aged sixteen, hunting near Barnesboro, bled to death in five minutes when accidentally shot by his shotgun. Regis Howell, aged eighteen, discharged his own gun and the shot tore a hole almost through his body.

Men Thrown 100 Feet and Killed.

Fairmont, W. Va., Oct. 27.—Peter Lewis of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Morris Ruth of Bethlehem, Pa., bridge workers, were instantly killed when a crane on which they were employed fell throwing the men a distance of 100 feet to the ground and breaking nearly every bone in their bodies.

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

Free Trade and The Farmers.

For a number of years we have had a constant back-to-the-farm agitation. The best efforts of the government have been directed towards the improvements of agriculture, reclamation of waste lands, and the development of farming interests. In spite of these highly effective efforts, and an enlightened administration, the production of farm products in the United States previous to 1912, had barely kept growth with the population. At the very time the American farmer most needed to be encouraged, and at the very time he most needed the stimulus of a highly developed home market, Democratic legislators framing a Democratic tariff law, wiped out every vestige of protection enjoyed by the American farmers, put all his products on the free list, and invited the whole world to compete with him, and to take his market.

What have been the results?

In the months of October, November, and December, 1912, and January 1913, the total importation of corn into the United States was only 258,679 bushels valued at $139,766.

One year later, under the operation of the Underwood-Simmons law, in the same four months of 1913 and 1914, the importation of corn into the United States amounted to 7,034,159 bushels, of a value of $4,656,213.

In other words, $4,500,000 of American money went to pay for foreign corn, and that much money was taken away from the American farmers.

In the same months, namely October, November and December, 1912, and January 1913, before the operation of the Underwood-Simmons law, we imported $11,704 worth of oats. One year later in the same months, under the free trade provisions of the Democratic tariff bill, we imported $5,628,405 worth of oats. Again $5,615,000 of American money spent to pay for foreign oats, and taken away from the American farmer.

In the same four months before the operation of the free trade Democratic law, we imported $122,309 worth of butter into the United States. One year later, in the same months, we imported $1,031,759 worth of butter. Over $900,000 taken from the American farmers and used to buy foreign butter!

In the same four months of 1912 and 1913, before the Democratic law became effective, we imported $84,641 worth of potatoes. One year later, under the Underwood law, we imported in the same months, $1,478,819 worth of potatoes. $1,400,000 taken from the American farmer and used to buy foreign food products.

In the same four months, before the operation of the Underwood law, we imported $3,468,392 worth of cattle. One year later, when all the farmer's protective tariff duties had been removed, we imported $12,278,166 worth of cattle. Nine million dollars sent abroad to buy cattle. Nine million dollars taken from the American farmer.

In the same four months, namely, October, November and December, 1912 and January 1913, under the old tariff law, we imported $5,364,523 worth of bread stuffs. One year later, after the protective duty that the American farmer had enjoyed was removed, we imported $18,434,956 worth of bread stuffs! Thirteen million dollars taken from the American farmer and sent abroad to enrich his Canadian and Argentine competitors.

For the months of October, November and December, 1912, and January, 1913, absolutely no eggs were imported into the United States. In the same months, one year later, when the protective duty on eggs had been removed, we imported $612,750 worth of eggs. Over $15,000 a month on eggs alone taken from the American farmer and sent to enrich his Canadian competitors.

Of nine leading farm products, in the four months of October, November and December, 1913, and January, 1914, as compared with the same months a year before, there was an increase of $40,000,000 in importations into the United States. Ten million dollars a month, or $120,000,000 a year, taken from the American farmer and sent to enrich his Canadian, Argentine and Australian competitors.

How long are the American farmers going to submit to this kind of legislation?

Four Facts to Remember on the Deficit Tax.

Four facts to remember about the special deficit tax of $100,000,000 the Democratic Congress is about to levy on us:

1. The falling off in revenues is not due to the reason given by the Democrats for levying the tax—the war in Europe—but to the failure of the Underwood tariff law to produce income.

2. The extravagance of the Democratic Congress has plunged the country into an expense that cannot be paid unless special measures are taken.

3. President Wilson has never suggested to Congress the necessity of economy in the expenditure of the people's money.

4. There has been no systematic attempt on the part of either Congress or the Administration to observe an economy which would have made the deficit tax unnecessary.

WOW!

A Temperance Talk to Voters

BY

JASON KEP

My mother was a Scotch Presbyterian, (and an angel, if there ever was one); my father a Lutheran, my sister an Episcopailan and if there had been any more of us, some of the other churches might have had a look in.

Well, I learned the Presbyterian catechism so that I could repeat it backward or forward, I could sing it or even whistle it. I learnod bible verses by the score, I had a regular stunt to learn so many verses each Sunday and I thumbed my bible over and over until it was a physical wreck, hunting out short verses.

I remember at the age of eight, I won first prize, a bible with pictures in it, for learning and reciting the greatest number of bible verses for the quarter, in the Sunday school of three hundred scholars. You can imagine I needed some urging. Well that little Scotch mother was right there on the job. My nearest compititor, a boy of eighteen, took second prize, a bible with no pretty pictures.

I will never forget that great Sunday when we were called up to the rostrum to receive our prizes. The superintendent made a little presentation speech, a lot of nice things; you know about what, and I felt so proud. Why, even to this day I can't quite figure out why I did'nt just swell up and burst.

Looking back over the awful task, I feel it was worth the effort, for I believe it was one of the happiest moments of my mother's life.

Now I wasn't so awful good. You see I read hundreds of Sunday school books and I soon discovered that the good little boys always died young and the not quite so good ones always carried flowers and wept over the good little boy's grave, so I just played safely.

Time went on, mother died. Then college and the world.

I was of an inquiring torn of mind—wanted to see things, and also had a streak of—"I'm from Missouri."

Well, I went to the different churches sometimes and sometimes I didn't, more often I—well, you know. I went through the general course like many others on the religious question. Mental philosophy, Darwin, Paine, Ingersol, all the creeds, Mohammadism, higher Chriticism, Praymatism, Christian Science and Pastor Russell, and by the time I got around the circle I was up a tree and so darned high that I was sort of dizzy. I wasn't sure whether I was created or just evolved. I was considerably worried. But you know how it goes, the cares, hustle, pleasures, and such sort caseharden a fellow and he lets it run, puts it off and just drifts, yet back of it all,—there is not one of us but who expects that at some time, some how or in some way to skip that brimstone route and secure those wings, starry crown 1914 model halo, and the diadem with the little jewels in it—we haven't figured out just how but we expect to make good.

But, say, isn't it sort of dangerous to put it off so long? There might be a wreck and we'd miss the connections and then his satanic majesty would be to pay.

Would'nt it be a good plan to work up a few credits on the ledger that will be used when we come to make our final settlement on that last great day? A little balance in our favor would look mighty handsome just about that time.

Have you ever stopped to figure out whether you are adding enough credits each day to balance the debts? How is your balance today? Ouch! Running behind is mighty dangerous business, one's clock might stop unexpectedly and then there would be no time. All those thinks and a lot more percolated through my thought reservoir.

You know there are all sorts of opinions about the hereafter, some think there is no hell, others vary from hell fire to a state of mind, some say God is too good to damn a soul, others that the soul is too good to be damned and a thousand other thinks, so where should I begin to square away. Somebody is sure to miss his guess.

The wise man carries fire insurance, not because he expects a fire, but for fear there might be one. Now if that is good judgment on goods and chattles that we have gathered together, then in this more important case why not also play safely. If there is no hereafter or no hell or future punishment of any kind, then we are as well off as the other fellow. But, if those boys had slipped a cog, made a mistake, as it were, you would have them skinned a mile. Those were some more thinks evolved from my coco. So I said old boy, it is up to you to get busy and take out that fire insurance and see to it that there is'nt any clauses in it that would invalidate it.

The first thing is to quit speculating, quit trying to criticise and judge God's plans of running the Universe, (He has done pretty well so far and will be able to pull through without our assistance,) and hunt up a job more in keeping with our limited capacity.

What shall I do to be saved?

Let as travel together now:search the scriptures; yes, I know you are a busy man, but the Lord boiled down and condensed, as it were, the plan of salvation just to fit busy people.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self."

"On these two commandments hang all the Law and Prophets."

There you have the plan of salvation in a nut shell.

You know the wonderful love of our earthly fathers and mothers for their children. Now if our little weak insignificent minds can develop such, an abundance of love for our children, oh, the abundance of love of an All Wise, All Powerful, All Loving Father. Just look upon our Heavenly Father as a loving Father, talk it over with him, make an honest to goodness prayer, and if you really want to get into line, you will be surprised how easy is the road. The reason why so many prayers don't rise higher than the ceiling is because their wires are down. You can't fool God.

"By their works ye shall know them." You must show you mean business by your works; now we all know that our neighbor is our brother. We are all brothers. If you love your brother you will try to make his life brighter, to make his pathway easier, to remove the pitfalls, snares and temptations from before his face.

Try it and then get your prayer factory into action and see how much better you will feel. You can then work up a real case of happiness.

And that brings us to the greatest question, the greatest evil, the greatest menace, which confronts our brothers, our children and ourselves: The Liquor Evil, Rum and the Saloon, and it is up to us to help blot them out forever from this fair land. Work up a few credits on that ledger.

Don't try to work in any sophistries or excuses. "It can't be did;" you can't fool God, you can't regulate a thing that is inherently wrong.

You know it corrupts the morals, makes thousands of widows and orphans, it jeopardizes the soul, and in its train is want, misery, dispair and death.

On every side you see the blight: why can you not see the responsibility which rests upon you. Don't look at your neighbor, look at the fellow under your own hat. He's the galoot I am firing at.

Mr. wet voter, just stand Cain, Judas Iscariot, Benedict Arnold and yourself up in a row and see if you can pick the winner.

Cain killed one man, Judas Iscariot betrayed his Master once, Benedict Arnold betrayed his country once, while you - - - - - , all right, you win.

JASON KEP.

GRANTSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ringer, of Grantsville, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives at Guard.

The Republicans of this district are going to prove their loyalty to the party and vote for Carrington and Zihlman. Senator Zihlman is well and favorably known hereabouts as the friend of the laboring man.

Mrs. Henry Wisseman and mother, Mrs. J. E. Bealman, spent several weeks in Johnstown and Somerset with relatives.

Misses Minnie and Winifred Bonig, Ethel Broadwater and Beulah Engle, of Grantsville, attended the concert given by the Princeton Players at Salisbury, Pa., making the trip in Meno Miller's car.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Shirer, of Grantsville were visitors at Addison, last week.

The apple crop in Garrett county has been one of the most abundant for years. The farmers about Grantsville have been gathering apples all through the autumn and are not yet through. A number of the village boys and girls have found lucrative employment in picking and packing apples at the Yoder, Miller, Hershberger and many other farms in the Amish settlement, where this delicious fruit grows in such toothsome profusion. The prices paid for this work range from $1 to $2 per day. The cider mills of H. P. Zook and the late John P. Miller have both been running night and day, the latter being in charge of Mrs. Miller's sons and hired help. Barrels of sweet sparkling cider have been made each day, while the spicy aroma of dark brown applebutter heralds the appetizing contents of rows and rows of jars tied and labled, upon the floors of the cider mills. Besides the cider and applebutter, and fruit stored away for winter consumption, hundreds of barrels of apples have been shipped to other states. The crop on the Urias Yoder farm is estimated at easily 5,000 bushels, while many of the others are almost if not equally as large.

Frederick County for Zihlman.

Frederick county will give Frederick N. Zihlman 400 votes over David J. Lewis in the approaching congressional election, according to conservative estimates made there. The Republicans are united so far as the candidacy of Senator Zihlman is concerned.

Many independent voters in the county believe that Congressman Lewis has failed to carry out his campaign pledges. These voters want a change, and the candidacy of Senator Zihlman has struck them in the right place. Zihlman has rigidly carried out his campaign pledges at Annapolis and has remained true to the people without claiming credit for legislation in which he had no part. Hence the voters of that section believe in him.

Illiteracy Among State Rurals.

The need of more and better rural schools in Maryland is made manifest by conditions revealed in a recent census report showing the percentage of illiterates among the native white farming class of this State. The figures show that the percentage of the illiteracy in the rural districts of Maryland is 4.2 and less than one per cent in the cities and villages of the State. Maryland has 73,397 illiterates and 48,031 of them live on the farms. There are 25,880 boys and men and 22,152 girls and women on the farms of this State that can neither read nor write. The parents ought to see that their children go to school every day. A good education is due to every boy and girl in Garrett county. The way to keep the boys and girls on the farm is to give them an education through the public schools, and by placing in the family some good papers. A farm journal, a church paper and THE REPUBLICAN placed in each farm home would greatly add to the development of a happier, more useful life.

WHAT HAS LEWIS DONE?

Ask a partisan Democrat—a Lewis enthusiast, "What has Mr. Lewis done for the people during his two terms in Congress?" and he will look off into the distance, relight his cigar, clear his throat, and reply, "What did you say?" Repeat the question "What has Mr. Lewis done for the people during his two terms in Congress?",—this time in such a manner that it cannot be misunderstood. The forced answer then comes something like this:

"Hasn't he made a national reputation for himself; isn't he known all over the country; hasn't his picture been in all the newspapers from Podunk to Honk Kong, and hasn't he been spoken of for a cabinet position and as Blair Lee's successor in the United States Senate? What has he done—huh!"

Tell the Lewis sentimentalist that all this is the work of a very competent press agent and the manipulation of the Democratic politicians who hope to keep the Republican Sixth District of Maryland represented by a Democrat, and again force the question home—"What has Mr. Lewis done for the people during his two terms in Congress?"

Seemingly imbued with a divine inspiration the Lewis man will come at you as if he is sure of "flooring you" without further ado something like this: "I'll tell you what Lewis has done for the peoole, he is the author, the father of the parcel post; he originated it, had it passed by the House and Senate, and made it a law—that's what he has done,' and he will chuckle confidently and imagine he has at last found something Mr. Lewis has actually done for the people during his two terms in Congress.

Ninety-nine of every hundred Lewis Democrats do not know that Mr. Lewis is no more the father or the author of the parcel post bill than Broncho Billy is, and that he is entitled to no more credit for the passage of the parcel post law than the man who is alleged to have struck the notorious Billy Patterson. Of course, not having been told all this, and not having had it proved to them, they are not wholly to blame for what they say. Yet the Democratic orators—curbstone and other kind—the Democratic press, the Lewis men everywhere shout "Parcel Post" at you before you can complete a request for a list of Mr. Lewis' actual accomplishments as a Congressman.

Ask them what has Mr. Lewis done to keep the dinner-pail full? and then cry, "Parcel Post!"

Ask them what has Mr. Lewis done to make good the Democratic promise to reduce the high cost of living, and they shout, "Parcel Post!"

Ask them what has Mr. Lewis done to increase the wages of the laboring men throughout the country and they sputter, "Parcel Post!"

Ask them if Mr. Lewis and the Democratic party have lighted the furnaces or have they banked the fires of factories; have they enlarged the markets of the home manufacturer and producer or have they curtailed them; has their revised tariff law provided sufficient revenue to meet the Democratic extravagances, or has it brought about a deficit, to meet which one hundred million dollars is demanded as a "war" tax—ask them what has Mr. Lewis done that is a real, bona fide, substantial achievement through which the workingmen, the manufacturers, the laborers, the mechanics, the masses of the people have been practicnlly benefitted, and they fairly shriek, "Parcel Post!"

And they never let up harping on that onelong string of Mr. Lewis' accomplishments during his two terms in Congress. Let us see how much credit is due Mr. Lewis for even that wonderful enactment:

In the Congressional Record, page 4166, giving the proceedings of the second session of the Sixty-third Congress, will be found the following except from the remarks of Senator Bristow, of Kansas, who was speaking on the parcel post provision which was written largely and offered by Senator Bourne, of Oregon, then pending in the Senate, the bill passing the Senate with the Bourne provision. Senator Bristow said:

"I was somewhat amused yesterday to hear a Senator state that a member of the House—Mr. Lewis—was the father of the parcel post. As I remember, Mr. Lewis is not even a member of the post office committee, and had nothing to do with preparing the House provision. I know that he did not draw a line of the parcel post bill as it passed the Senate. If anybody deserves the credit for the parcel post system, it is ex-senator Bourne, of Oregon, who spent fourteen months in working it out and accumulating a fund of information that is now on file in the committee on post offices and post roads of this body, which will stand as a monument to his energy as lon gas the records of that committee are preserved."

Aside from Senator Bristow's remarks, has anyone ever seen or read a copy of Mr. Lewis' parcel post bill? Has anyone ever known anyone who has ever seen or read a copy of Mr. Lewis' parcel post bill?

Thus, reverting to the question the people—the voters—are asking and are going to continue to ask until it is answered correctly—"What has Mr. Lewis done for the people during his two terms in Congress?"—we may very appropriately receive that forceful and potent interrogatory-sloan which some years ago was effectively employed against a certain candidate for Congress in this district: "What has he done?" This man, Lewis, what has he done?

Furnished employment for the idle? No!

Increased the wages of the laborer and machanic? No!

Increased manufactnring in the country and the sale of our produce abroad? No!

Reduced the high cost of living? No!

Filled the empty dinner-pail? No!

And now—

Is it Lewis' Parcel Post? No!

Not even that!

Why keep on with this senseless and sentimental twaddle about "making a reputation for himself," "the brainiest man the Sixth District ever sent to Congress," the "father of the Parcel Post," and all the rest of it, ad nauseum?

Let us get down to brass tacks in this campaign—

"This man, Lewis, what has he done?"

Much of the welfare of this county is in the hands of the young men on the farms. If they remain there and prosper the county will prosper in like manner. But if they forsake the fields and rush off to the overcrowded cities it will be a sledgehammer blow to the weal of the nation.

The contractors in building the road from Grantsville to Keyser Ridge have had many obstacles to overcome. The five mile stretch between "Shades of Death" and Keyser Ridge, three miles east of Grantsville, is under construction. This break has been a difficult task in road building on account of being unable to get the proper kind of stone and other material used in macadam construction. Water has also been a problem to the contractor, and it has been necessary to haul water several miles to sprinkle the macadam that is being laid, and to operate the stone crusher on top of Meadow Mountain.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 39. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1914. NUMBER 36.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN LOOSES OUT IN THE SIXTH DISTRICT

David J. Lewis Returned to Congress By 727 Majority.

In the Sixth District of Maryland Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican candidate for Congress, was defeated by David J. Lewis by a majority of 727.

Garrett came back into the fold by giving Zihlman a majority of 5[illegible] over Lewis. Garrett county was a hotly contested battlefield by the Democratic candidate and his friends, who claimed that Lewis would carry the county by a majority of from 700 to 1000, but they figured wrong. Garrett county proved its loyalty to the Republican party.

Zihlman carried Allegany county by a majority of 170. This is the first time in three congressional elections that Allegany county was carried by a Republican candidate for Congress. Lewis owes his election to Montgomery county.

The Prep football team of Keyser was entertained Saturday afternoon after the game at Terra Alta, by Mr. and Mrs. Grimes at their summer home in Deer Park, the boys getting off the train at Oakland, and making the trip to Deer Park in automobiles. Upon their arrival at the Grimes home the boys were invited into the dining room where a splendid turkey dinner awaited them, to which they did full justice. The return trip to Keyser was made on No. 4.

Favorable weather, will complete both bridges this season.

Never before have the business men of this Nation made such an effort to extend its trade all over the Western hemisphere.

This cruise will extend to the West indies, around South America, stopping at all important cities on the East and West coasts, returning through the Panama Canal. The slogan will be. "Made in the United States."

The South American countries are being largely developed, machinery of all kinds will be needed in the further development of the country.

Citizens of this country are opening up new industries, business houses are bidding for the trade of that great country, and we will get it.

Potato News.

The total potato crop of Main is placed at 333,000,000 bushels for this year, a gain of 16,000,000 bushels over last year. The area harvested in Pennsylvania and Ohio, owing partly to drouth, is somewhat short of last year. The main yield is far above normal, and it is expected that the Minnesota yield now being harvestad, will bring that state further to the front in totals. In Arrostook county, Maine's famous potato section, farmers are marketing at from 35 to 40 cents per bushel while Michigan and New York farmers are realizing 40 to 45 cents.

DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE MAJORITY OF 7 IN HOUSE.

Complete Returns Show What Great Raid Republicans Made On House Majority.

Belated returns from Tuesday's election show that the Democrats came perilously near losing control of Congress. It is not yet absolutely certain that they escaped that danger, but the probalties are that they will have a small working majority to sustain President Wilson in his program. The Senate is under Democtatic control.

According to revised reports received the makeup of the next House of Representatives will be as follows: Democrats, 221; Republican, 204; Progressives, 8; Socialists, 1; Prohibition 1.

If the Progressives, the Socialists and the Prohibitionist should join the Republicans on any issue before the Sixty-fourth Congress, the Democrats would have only the narrow margin of seven votes on which to count. The Democratic majority in the last Congress was 141.

The party lineup in the sixty-third Congress was as follows:

Democrats, 285.
Republicans, 129.
Progressives, 15.

There were six vacancies in the last Congress due to resignations of Democrats.

Republican leaders were jubilant today over the results of the congressional elections and the defeats suffered by the Progressives in New York and Pennsylvania. They declared the great Republican gain in the House of Representatives was a rebuke to President Wilson and the Democratic party for their legislative programs, and that the great G. O. P. victories in the Empire and Keystone States showed that the leadership of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt had been spurned by the party's fold to enlist under his banner.

That the Republican party will present a united front in 1916 and overthrow the Democratic administration after only four years of service was made by the G. O. P. leaders. They intimated, without directly saying so, that, even if Colonel Roosevelt became a presidential candidate, he would be unable to prevent a national Republican sweep.

Surprise was caused by the strong showing of the Republicans in Pennsylvania and New York, where there were agencies at work, particularly the Progressive party to weaken Republican strength. The result in Connetticut also caused astonishment. In the Nutmeg State the Republicans elected their candidaie for governor, Marcus H. Holcomb, by a majority of landslide proportions.

Massachusetts elected a Democratic Governor by returning Governor Walsh to office, but his plurality was reduced more than 40,000 votes.

One of the few distinct administration victories was in Indiana, where United States Senator Benjamin Shively a warm supporter of the policies of President Wilson, was re-elected.

The Republicans lost Tennessee, according to late returns, Gov. Ben W Hopper, Republican, being defeated by his Democratic opponent, Thomas C. Rye.

In Wisconsin the Independent Progressive Republicans led by Senator Lafollette got a jolt. Later returns indicated that "stand pat" Republicans had been elected for both Governor and senator.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, one of the "lame ducks" of 1912, goes back to Congress from Danville, Ill.

Former Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a "stand pat" Republican, gets back into public life once again as a congressman.

Another of the old-time Republican figures in the House, William B. McKinley, of Champaign, Ill., is elected. For years he was chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee and was active as an old line follower of the G. O. P.

The return of Boies Penrose to the United States Senate from Pennsylvania was a direct slap at Colonel Roosevelt and his Progressive followers. Colonel Roosevelt went into Pennsylvania and made a series of speeches for Gifford Pinchot, the Progressive candidate for the Senate, attacking Mr. Penrose in all of them.

The Republicans made big gains in New Jeresy, the home state of President Wilson. One reason for this, however, was because of the factional fight among the Democrats there.

There is an echo of the teriff question in more than one of the results. For instance, James W. Wodsworth, the newly elected senator from New York, who succeeds Elihu Root, made his fight partly upon a high tariff and protection platform.

Two reform features of the general election were hard hit. They were prohibition and woman suffrage. In Ohio, where prohibition was the real issue at stake, the "wets" claim to have won. In Colorado the prohibition issue was close, and at late reports both sides were claiming victory. William Sulzer, the Prohibition candidate for governor in New York state, ran third among four gubernatorial candidates.

On top of the Republican landslide exceeding even the most optimistic predictions of the party leaders, political talk among the leaders in Washington consists largely of speculation on the Republican nominee for President in 1916. The Republicans believe that Tuesday's showing against the Wilson Democracy gives them the White House two years hence and that it remains only for them to decide who will be the man to occupy it.

These are the possibilities mentioned: Charles S. Whitman, Governor-elect of New York; Martin B. Brumbaugh, Governor-elect of Pennsylvania; James R. Mann, Republican leader of the House of Rapresentatives; William E. Borah, U. S. Senator from Idaho; Charles E. Hughes, associate justice of the Supreme Court. The Republicans believe that Theodore Roosevelt is completely in eclipse and does not have to be considered in the 1916 race.

WASHINGTON SALOONS.

The Number, by Act of Congress, Was Cut to 300.

There were 409 saloons in the District of Columbia, but on last Monday there was only 300. An act of the last Congress provided that on and after November 1, 1914, the number of saloons in the district of Columbia should be limited to 300. The newly created excise board has been at work for more than a month weeding out the excess, and last monday morning gave the public its findings.

As a result, saloondom in Washington is considerably aroused. No intimation has come from the board as to the lucky and the unlucky ones, and an air of gloom prevades the atmosphere.

WITH LOCAL OPTION AFTER MAY FIRST

What Next For Garrett County To Make It a Leader.

Having solved the liquor question in a most happy and profitable manner, the question naturally aries, what next important move shall be made in Garrett county?

Garrett county has been steadily moving to the foreground. The citizens of the county have been busy cleaning the land and putting it in a good state of cultivation, building for themselves comfortable homes, and surrounding themselves with the conveniences and comforts of life.

As one travels over the county he is impressed by the many neat and attractive churches, parsonages and houses, indicative of a prosperous and happy people. There is seen an improvement in the village and county neighborhood school houses. Better church buildings are keeping pace with better homes. This is a healthy sign of a progressive and prosperous people. It is a step in the right direction. It is to the greatest credit of the people of the country.

Our public road system is becoming better as the years come and go. This follows next to the church and school house. Good roads means better teams, better farms, happier people and an increase in the bank account. The state road from the county seat to Grantsville, almost completed, will prove a great advertisement of Garrett county. Hundred of outsiders will be attracted to the county because of this road. The Oakland-Gortner road is progressing nicely, it will prove a great public convenience and will afford a delightful driveway to many pleasure seekers, and a great help to the farming community through which it passes.

Garrett county needs good roads. They are needed, badly needed. The citizens of every part of the county are entitled to the best roads possible. The road from McHenry to Friendsville has had some real attention the present year. Splendid work has been done, some improvement has been made. The work should be continued along the same line, until the county road to Friendsville shall be as good as to Grantsville. There should be a good servicable road from the county road via Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park to Swanton, thence to Kitzmiller. A beginning has been made. Something has been accomplished. So far so good.

The good work must be continued until the county is covered. True, the county is large, the largest in the state, but that is no reason why the county should be satisfied with the horse killing, wagon destroying roads found in some parts of the county. It is true, that while we are the largest county in the state, as far as square miles are concerned, we lack in population and tillable land, but we are growing. Farm land is increasing, our people are becoming more wealthy and better able to do and pay more for better roads.

THE REPUBLICAN congratulates the industrious, successful inhabitants of this mountain region over what they have accomplished. They have transferred the wilderness into a place of beauty and profit. They have outgrown the day of the log cabbin and moved into the home of comfort and convenience. The ox cart has disappeared and in its place is the automobile.

The forests are disappearing and orchards of fine fruit are taking their place. The Garrett county of today was seen at the fair last October. It was a magnificient picture of what had been accomplished in the year of our Lord 1915; it was a fore-runner of what was to come.

What of the future? The local option campaign, which closed last Tuesday, shows the value of co-operation and determination, It was a glorious victory because of the united action of the friends of ordor and sobriety. It illustrates how new ideas are to be pushed to success; shows that where there is a will there is a way.

What shall be the next move to advance Garrett county one grade higher? What one thing shall occupy our thoughts and attention?

Why not all unite in the completion of our good road system? Have a good road day or two days, as in West Virginia and other states, when every one shall turn out and give their service for road betterment, in addition to the work done by the County Commissioners. This would not be a hardship to any one, but it would greatly improve road conditions.

As much time and thought given to this subject as was given to the local option question, would see such a great improvement in our road systems as would astonish even the most enthusiastic good road advocate.

Why not take the matter up in every election district, appoint road committies who shall co-operate with the county commissioners and road overseers, for the betterment of our road system. Hold meetings in the public school houses, where the subject shall be disussed and plans formulated to carry this idea out.

What district will take the lead in this important matter? All we need is some one to start the movement going. Once started success will follow.

OUT OF TOWN HAPPENINGS

A Variety of Interesting Paragraphs for Republican Readers.

Even the weather went dry last Tuesday.

Everybody up this way is singing the long meter doxology.

George Turner, of Avilton, last Saturday lost one of his fine horses. It was valued at $250.

Miss Gladys Hamill, of Kitzmiller, spent the week end with Miss Mary Davis at Frostburg.

Miss Maggie Cleary and Mr. Jacob Stump were the only candidates for the post office examination at Bloomington.

Mrs. Elizabeth Albright, step-mother of W. A. Smith of Hoyes, is quite ill at the home of her daughter, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Everybody is shaking hands with Senator Speicher when they meet him. Do you wonder at them doing so? There is a reason for it.

Mrs. Clary, of Deer Park, who has been visiting friends at Antioch, W. Va., is now the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Grayson, at Cumberland.

Daniel Switzer has returned to his home at Eglon, from Baltimore where he had been in a hospital for some time, but received no benefit as his condition is about the same.

A number of Grantsville ladies took an active part in the local option campaign last Tuesday. They kept a respectful distance from the polling both, but did excellent work.

Hunters get your guns in shape as the hunting season will soon begin, as it is reported that game is plentiful this season. Be careful, avoid accidents and don't violate trespass laws.

The school house at Hutton was slightly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. Loss about $75. The origin of fire is supposed to be from a spark from the Crellin Lumber Co's engine.

Mr. Cramer was in Eglon a few days ago for the purpose, of buying lumber from Mr. Tanner, who has a saw mill in the glades and has bought a fine tract of timber there which will take some time to work up.

Are all the children going to school? The greatest gift parents can bestow upon their children is a good edncation. You make a great mistake every day you keep your boy or girl away from the school room.

The state road from the stone house to Piney Grove has been completed. This completes the state road to Cumberland. Everybody is delighted in having this work finished. It will now be a pleasure to drive to Cumberland instead of a hardship.

The Reitz applebutter factory of Salisbury, Pa., has been running day and night for the past several weeks, and many barrels of cider have been made, as well as thousands of gallons of applebutter, many farmers coming from Avilton and New Germany.

According to the contractors, the Vang Construction Company, the concrete work on the new three-mile section of road on the National Pike from the Six Mile House to Narrows Park has been completed, but the road will not be open for traffic for about ten days. On both sides of the concrete section, which is fourteen feet wide, two feet and a half of earth is being leveled off and rolled even with the serface of the concrete road, adding about five feet to the width of the road. In other words there will be about two feet and a half of rolled earth road on either side of the concrete work. This will afford all the room necessary for automobiles and other vehicles to pass safely. This will pracitically complete this portion of the "Cumberland road," or Old Trails road, from Cumberlrnd to the Pennsylvania State Line, thence to Wheeling. The first road built by the government was this Old Trail road, the most historical and picturesque highway on this continent, and is to form a part of the great "Ocean to Ocean" highway, no where upon which is there more beautiful scenery than that between Frostburg and Grantsville.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

The timber production of Garrett county is at the present time more than double that of any other country in the State. It is not only the largest county, but has the largest area of forests, and since there is so large a portion of mountain land better adapted for growing timber than any other purpose, timber production must continue to be one of its chief sources of revenue. A forest survey of the County was made during 1908 and 1909 and furnishes the basis of this report. It was found that, while the timber resources of the county were much more important than any other natural resource, the revenue from the woodlands was far below its natural production, due to destructive methods of cutting and the prevalence of forest fires. It is the purpose of this report to show the importance of the forest resources and how the highest degree of usefulness for the forest lands may be attained by conservative management.

Garrett county is in the shape of a right-angle at the northwest corner. There are four prominent mountain ridges in the county, all having a northeasterly and southwesterly trend. The most important is Backbone Mountain and its continuation as Big Savage Mountain, the two being separated by the gorge of the Savage River. This ridge attains an elevation of about 3400 feet in the southwestern end of the county with an average height of nearly 3000 feet throughout its length. For about half its length it separates the drainage of the Potomac River from that of the Youghiogheny River, a tributary of the Monongahela River. Meadow Mountain, the next ridge to the west of Backbone Mountain and Big Savage Mountain, extends about half way across the county, having an average elevation of about 2800 feet. It is characterized by an even out line as viewed in profile and is more or less flat topped, yielding soil of sufficient depth in some places for farm lands. In consequence, some clearings extend over the crest of the mountain, which otherwise is well wooded. Between Meadow Mountain and Big Savage Mountain is a succession of irregular shaped hills, densely wooded. Negro Mountain lies to the west of Meadow Mountain and has about the same elevation. Both extend from the Pennsylvania line southwestward to a junction point near Thayerville where Cherry Creek flows into Deep Creek. Winding Ridge with its extension of hills along the Youghiogheny River forms the fourth principal elevation in the county. This ridge is less marked because of a lower elevation and numerous breaks, in which it contrasts sharply with Meadow and Negro Mountains. The southern boundary of the county is a natural one formed by the Potomac River. While the county has no navigable waters, there is an abundance of streams, some of which have great water power possibilities, as yet undeveloped. With the exception of glade lands all the soils of the county will support a good timber growth. The soil along the crest of the mountains is generally thin and less productive, but on the lower slopes and in the valleys is invariably found a sandy loam of considerable depth. The best agricultural soils are in the valleys between Backbone Mountain on the one side and Hoop Pole Ridge and Meadow Mountain on the other, and also between Negro Mountain and Winding Ridge. These are the shale and sandstone soils of the Hampshire and Jennings formations. It is in these sections that most of the clearing has been done. Woodland here sells for $10 to $15 per acre after the timber has been cut. Land in other sections not suited for agricultural uses has been sold for 50 cents to $1.50 per acre after the merchantable timber and mine props were removed The average price, however, is much higher than this. Land once cleared is seldom allowed to grow up again in forests, and some clearing is constantly going on. It is estimated that 2000 acres of land has been cleared in the past five years.

The glade lands occupy considerable areas in the central and western parts of the county. These are upland swamps devoid of tree growth, covered with a growth of coarse grass, making them favorite grazing ground upon which hundreds of cattle and sheep feed during the summer. During the wet season the glades are practically covered with water. Where the glades have been thoroughly drained they make good farm land.

The different types of land in the county may be divided into farm land, woodland, and glades. Since the settlement of the county, the clearing of land has gone steadily forward, with the result that at the present time practically all of the good farm land has been cleared of a forest growth, and represents 145,357 acres. The present area of woodland in the county is 274,483 acres, and while small areas will no doubt be cleared, it is quite likely that the present wooded area will change but little. The glades cover about 16,000 acres of poorly drained, nearly level land in the valleys, which are underlain with an impervious sub-stratum of clay. They are covered with frequent patches of plum brush and alders.

The woodlands of the county comprise 63 per cent of the total area, which is the highest percentage of woodland of any county in the State. Practically all of the prominent mountain ridges are covered with forests, and woodlots of varying sizes are well distributed on the farms in the valleys. It is quite certain that the entire county, with the exception of the glades, was formerly wooded. The good quality of the land early attracted settlers, and under the constant influx of immigrants, the best of the suitable lands have been cleared. The forests, have, theretore, receded from the valleys and are now mostly confined to the mountains and rugged slopes. The bulk of the woodlands is in large holdings, usually in the hands of lumber or coal companies. As a rule the woodlands in the valleys are held by farmers in woodlots or small timber areas. Some of the best timber of the county is in these woodlots that have, by reason of greater isolation and better care, suffered less from forest fires.

The county at one time contained a magnificent virgin forest of white pine, hemlock and mixed hardwoods, principally oak, maple and chestnut. The period of most extensive cutting of the pine and hemlock culminated about 35 or 40 years ago, when nearly all of the white pine forests disappeared. The cutting of the forests growth increased the fire danger and in consequence culling, combined with fire damage, has largely prevented the cut-over lands from producing forests. Today there are only a few small areas that remain in the virgin condition. Most of the woodlands have been cut over more than once, the number of times depending upon the intensity of the first cutting. In most cases, however, logging railroads were built to get out the timber and under such conditions, especially within the past twenty-five years, the cutting was done with the object of leaving nothing that would pay for the cost of removal. For the past ten years most of the cutting has been to a small enough limit to include mine props, which will ordinarily take trees as small as six inches on the stump. The forests consist, therefore, principally of young growth with a large scattering of old, mature, unmerchantable trees, not considered worth cutting when the lands were cut over.

The present condition of the young growth depends upon whether or not fires have damaged it. Where fires have run through the woods the result is usually a scrubby, inferior growth, but where fires have been excluded the stands are generally very thrifty and promising. There are striking differences in the forests of different sections of the county, due to drainage and composition of the soil. Along the high plateau in the vicinity of Deer Park, Mountain Lake Park, and south of Oakland, there are many pure stands of white oak. White oak generally forms over 50 per cent of the stands in this section, while in the eastern section of the county, this species constitutes only a small per cent of the stand. Outside of the white oak tpye of forest, which occurs on the clay soils in the west central part of the county, the forest types are determined largely by the drainage conditions and the exposure. Along the crests of the mountain such trees as chestnut, chestnut oak, scarlet oak and birch predominate, while on the lower slopes and along the ravines sugar maple, beech, white oak, basswood, and cucumber, and in the moist situations, particularly on the north slopes hemlock is frequently found. Between these extremes a number of forests types occur, depending upon the character of soil and moisture conditions. On the thin soil near the mountain tops, especially in exposed situations, the trees are short and scrubby in appearance. It is in these situations also where the fire damage is greatest.

The first meeting of the Ciceronian Literary Society took place on last Friday. It was a decided success, as practically everyone who was asked to take part in the exercises did so. If everybody responds as readily in the future, all the programs will undoubtedly prove of interest, and of great benefit to the members of the society as well.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

NO reader of this department need fear that purely theoretical farming is urged at the expense of practical methods. These articles are written for the benefit of established landowners as well as amateurs, and much commendation has come from experienced men who realize the shortcomings of ordinary farming.

For instance, while I urge the advisability of growing fruit in localities which have the advantage of good markets, I should dislike to see farmers in the central states or anywhere else devote themselves to this single industry. That would be about as foolish as exclusive grain raising or dairying. The orchard belongs in a scheme of mixed farming, together with poultry and hogs.

Important facts for fruit growers are that orchard land may be made to pay double and the fertility of the soil maintained without extraordinary effort. While the trees are coming to maturity land earns nothing for five or six years unless there is a plan of vegetable raising, when a return of $100 an acre is easily secured and the soil is benefited by the necessary cultivation. Unless such a system of cropping is established a nonbearing orchard is apt to be neglected, and this results in waste of time, investment and land.

The cultivation of vegetables or small fruit in an orchard is therefore for the purpose of securing immediate profits and keeping up the quality of the soil. It goes further than this, however, for it makes the land return a living income even in unfavorable fruit seasons, when late frosts, insect pests or other destructive agencies have spoiled the apples, pears, plums and cherries.

Apple and cherry trees should be planted thirty feet apart; plum, pear and peach trees twenty to twenty-five feet apart. The trees need to stand in straight rows to permit the free use of a horse cultivator in the vegetable and berry patches. One of the most common mistakes in farming is to plant trees too near together.

Nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium are necessary for the fertilization of fruit trees and plants in general. Nitrogen can be obtained in stable manure, but the principal source is air, and we may obtain it by growing legumes. Vegetable gardening carried on with the aid of barnyard manure is an excellent treatment for orchard land. Phosphorus may be obtained by the use of raw rock phosphate or bonemeal. Potassium is contained in large amounts in our ordinary soils in a more or less unavailable state. To get more potassium in such a shape that the plants can use it we can either apply soluble potassium salts or unlock that which is already present in abundance. Experiments have shown that it does not pay to apply potassium to ordinary soils, provided decaying organic matter in the form of manure or cover crops is worked into the soil. The decaying organic matter will liberate the potassium.

It may not be generally known that apples are about as hard on land as wheat or corn, except they do not take from it as much phosphorus. A 425 bushel apple crop will remove from the soil about the same amount of nitrogen and potassium and half as much phosphorus as fifty bushels of corn or twenty-five bushels of wheat. Therefore a thorough system of gardening not only makes the orchard land do double duty, but restores the soil fertility.

If for any reason gardening cannot be carried on in a thorough way in an orchard I should recommend legumes in place of manure as the source of nitrogenous organic matter. It is shown that a cheap way to grow legumes is to apply ground limestone and rock phosphate. The cost of this treatment would not exceed $2 per acre per year, which should not seriously interfere with this system of fertilization.

POTATO NOTES.

To secure an early supply of new potatoes next season plant the tubers of any good early variety in pots and start them in the house. Four or five inch pots can be used, filled only about two-thirds full of soil, leaving room for a top dressing of soil to be supplied as the plants grow, after the manner of hilling up potatoes when grown in the garden. One potato is sufficient for each pot.

Time the planting so the plants will be well started in the pots when they are to be transplanted in the garden at the time the tubers are usually planted outdoors.

If there is a well ventilated, cool, light place, such as a cold frame or cool greenhouse, in which to grow them potatoes can be raised in pots and full sized tubers developed very much earlier than the first crop from the garden.

Ten inch pots will be sufficiently large. Rub off all the eyes except the strongest for pot culture.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

STRONG DRINK IS CONDEMNED

Day Is Rapidly Passing When Alcohol Is Considered of Value in Producing Better Work.

It is not generally known that the vast majority of men of genius are strong in their condemnation of intoxicating liquors, writes T. Darley Allen in the Cumberland Presbyterian. Thomas A. Edison is a total abstainer. Mistral, the poet of Provencal, says that, although he is in the habit of drinking a small quantity of wine with his meals, he is convinced that the use of intoxicating liquors in any form is fatal to intellectual effort. Jules Claretic says he never drinks anything of an alcoholic nature when he has intellectual work to do. Pierre Loti is a total abstainer, and Paul Bourget declares alcohol in every form and in the smallest quantities to be detrimental to creative labor. Jules Lemaitre gave up wine drinking because he found it interfered with his work.

George Bernard Shaw is a total abstainer, and the late George Meredith was an abstainer and a strong advocate of total abstinence for others. Alfred Russell Wallace, the scientist; William Huggins, the astronomer, and John Gorst, the physician, are eminent octogenarians who, through their lives, have condemned the use of alcoholic drinks.

Vincent d'Indy says: "I have never regarded alcohol as of the slightest value in producing musical ideas. I would even go further and add that creation, if due to artificial means, like alcohol, has every chance of being vitiated.

The testimonies of many other men of genius should be added to the foregoing to show that the day is rapidly passing when alcohol is considered as of value in helping one to produce better work than when in his normal condition. Alcohol is not helpful to men of genius or talent in the production of their work, but, on the contrary, is a detriment. And this is rapidly being recognized by thinking people everywhere.

ALCOHOL HURTS THE MEMORY

hysician Who Drinks Beer Regularly Is Unable to Follow New Range of Ideas and Retain Facts.

A medical writer in a recent issue of the "Journal of Inebriety" makes the following striking statement regarding the effect of alcoholic indulgence on the memory:

"A physician who drinks beer regularly is unable to follow any new range of ideas and retain the facts. The impressions made at the time seem to be very transient and quickly disappear. The men, one an abstainer and the other a moderate drinker, were sent on a commission to examine and report on the watershed of a large lake.

"The abstainer saw many things and gave a minute, accurate report. The moderate drinker's report was very imperfect and omitted important facts and failed to put down several data that were necessary. Both wrote the reports the day after the examination. The difference was the fault of memory.

"It has been noted that moderate drinkers more frequently carry notebooks to put down items of facts and information which they fear may escape their attention. Men who are engaged in absorbing business requiring exact attention to details always depend on notes made at the time and place, and this is frequently the indirect result of spirits and a damaged memory."

Good Reason for Condeming.

"The Provident Savings Life Assurance Society of New York has this year issued to its policy holders a health bulletin for the correction of popular fallacies in favor of drink by a plain statement of the scientific facts. The Sunday School Times in its last temperance number published an article by the medical director of the same company setting forth some of these scientific facts which he declared show "that in addition to such moral objections as may exist to the custom of alcoholic indulgence, we now have well-grounded scientific and economic reasons for condemning it."

Proper Living.

Religion does not consist of jumping out of hell to get into heaven. Some folks say that being good to the family, square in business, courteous in social intercourse, is the proper life. I agree with them. I agree with all socialistic movements that have for their object the betterment of man, but they generally make the great mistake of not taking the right step first. Ye must be born again. Sign your name. Put yourself on record. Salvation. That is first and then the code of good and proper living comes. —Rev. J. W. Chapman, Evangelist, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cure Melancholy by Madness.

Wise men mingle mirth with their cares, as a help either to forget or overcome them; but to resort to intoxication for the ease's of one's mind is to cure melancholy by madness.—Charron.

ALFALFA A MONEY MAKER.

Success Is Assured if Proper Directions Are Followed.

By H. D. HUGHES,

Chief of bureau of farm crops, Iowa agricultural experiment station.

Success does not always come with first attempts with alfalfa, but that should not be discouraging. The per cent of failures in securing a stand of alfalfa is not so great as with many other crops commonly grown. Very simple measures turn failure to success. For instance, in a number of cases where the seeding of alfalfa failed without inoculation, the mere addition of 300 pounds per acre of soil from an alfalfa field or from a sweet clover patch brought success. After inoculation the soil produced a fine growth of alfalfa. In other sections of the state, particularly in the south central, the application of from 1,500 pounds to 3,000 pounds of lime per acre brought success when various other trials without lime failed.

Perhaps the most important thing in securing a stand of alfalfa is the liberal use of manure even on soils above the average in fertility. Its application before plowing has increased the yield of alfalfa notably. On all soils below the average the use of manure has been absolutely essential to securing a satisfactory stand and yield.

In buying alfalfa seed, as in buying seed for other crops, the highest priced seed is usually the cheapest. In order that the seed may all be sowed under proper conditions for germination, it should preferably be put in with an ordinary grain drill, and in average soil covered to a depth of about one inch. To distribute the seed uniformly it is a good plan to set the drill so as to sow only about ten pounds per acre and then to go over the land twice—for example, crossing the field north and south first and then east and west.

There has been much discussion regarding the variety of alfalfa best suited to Iowa conditions. Since the per cent of winter killing has been comparatively low and seed of the hardier varieties is very high priced and also uncertain as to purity the only variety which can well be recommended for general use is that known as the common American. This is grown almost altogether in such states as Kansas and Nebraska. Seed grown on nonirrigated land, under conditions so nearly as possible the same as are found in Iowa, is usually preferable.

No hay should be removed the year that the alfalfa is seeded. Spring seeding may be clipped once or twice when necessary to keep down the weeds, but a good growth should cover the ground when freezing weather comes on in the fall.

Usually the alfalfa should be cut when about one-tenth of the heads are in bloom, which generally is early in June, as this is about the time that the new shoots begin to appear at the bottom of the stalk.

Much has been said regarding the difficulty of handling and curing the first cutting, but reports from those men in Iowa who have the largest acreages state that alfalfa is not more difficult to cure than red clover. A number have said that it is easier to cure.

Various methods of curing have been used successfully.

In dry, sunny weather alfalfa cut one afternoon may be raked the following day, put in bunches and much of it stacked the same day.

It is important that as few of the leaves as possible be lost. In order to save the leaves many growers rake the alfalfa into windrows as soon as it has wilted and before the leaves are dry, bunch the hay with a rake as soon as dry enough to stack and haul it at once. This method also eliminates the labor of cocking the hay, a feature which has been found desirable by a number of men who handle large acreages.

Where one has much alfalfa hay to cure a side delivery rake will be found to be of the greatest value.

Where the hay is to be cocked it is cut late in the afternoon or the morning, raked before dinner and put in cocks in the afternoon. Here it should be left for two or three days. The use of hay covers assures one of little difficulty in curing even the first cutting and produces a hay of very excellent quality.

The Care of Eggs.

The perishable nature of an egg is too little understood. Dampness, heat above 60 degrees, strong odors, drafts, delay in marketing, are factors which very quickly destroy freshness and good quality of eggs.

Protect Small Trees.

See that the grass is pulled away from the base of small trees. Better put wire protectors about them so mice or rabbits cannot injure them during the winter.

BITTINGER.

The temperance rally held in the Lutheran church, in this village last Sunday morning was well attended and appreciated. The speakers were Mr. John Davis and Atty's A. T. Matthews and Roy Hammond all of Oakland.

Republican candidate for Congress, Frederick N. Zihlman, and a party of friends, held a republican mass-meeting here last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Zihlman and Atty. E. H. Sincell, of Oakland, delivered very forceful addresses.

Prof. Jones, of the State Board of Forestry, delivered an illustrated lecture on forestry in the school house at this place one evening last week, which was interesting and well attended.

Mrs. Sharps of Jennings, who recently died at a Baltimore Hospital, was brought to this village for burial last Friday morning.

Silas Platter, was taken from his home here, to Cumberland, where he will be treated for typhoid fever in one of the city hospitals.

Many sheep and lambs were driven out of this section last week, to be shipped to eastern markets.

Prof. B. E. Callis of our public school attended the teachers institute at Accident last Saturday.

The first real foretaste of winter came upon us last week when for two or three days snow and ice were much in evidence.

ACCIDENT.

Charles Newman of Oakland, took in the sights of this vicinity Tuesday and was delighted with our cozy little city and well developed farms. Mr. Newman has not been in Accident for years.

There was not a more hotly contested fight for local option than was fought out in this district last Tuesday. It had been predicted that the district would go wet, or if carried, it would be by a scant majority. Here is located the only distillery in the county; to this distillery some of our farmers sold their grain for cash, hence the outcome was uncertain. The Drys made a fight, a steady, personal fight and they won out by a vote of 64 for license and 142 against license a majority of 78.

Mr. Hileman, of Somerfield, Pa., a salesman of Harvey J. Speicher & Co., who has just closed up a deal for one of the fine horses of the company, passed through this village Tuesday on his way to vote.

One of our citizens took apples to the cider mill and had them worked up into cider and apple butter. Monday he called at the factory, loaded his apple butter into his vehicle and started home dreaming about good bread, butter and apple butter meals during the long cold winter days. On his way home he dropped into the distillery and tanked up somewhat, and whether through the influence of the spirits or not, when he arrived at home, after putting up his horses fell into a ditch and sprained his ankle. He had to be hauled to the polling booth on Tuesday. Doubtless this fact may account for part of the large majority cast against license.

Mr. Kayler who superintended the building of the concrete road to Accident, will finish his work this week, thus completing the road from Accident to Oakland.

Last Sabbath Rev. Isaac W. Abernathy, of the Fairview church, preached one of the strongest temperance sermons ever listened to in the Accident district. It was delivered in the church of the Brethren, to a large and appreciative audience. It was a convincing, forcible presentation of the duty of the hour, and its effectiveness was seen in the dry vote of Accident district last Tuesday. During his sermon Mr. Abernathy paid a glowing tribute to Senator Speicher for the splendid work he accomplished for Garrett county, in securing the adoption of the bill bearing his name. He complimented the Senator's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Speicher, on the honor of having a son, who had given the people of his native county the opportunity of saying what shall be done about the sale of liquors in the county. He spoke of the far reaching benefits of the adoption of the local option bill, of its calculable value to the people of the county, of the happiness and peace it would bring forth, of the sorrow and suffering it would remove.

The annual election of officers of the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association was held at the New Howard Hotel Baltimore. All of the officers were re-elected for another term. They are: Dr. B. Holly Smith, Sr., president: Felix R. Sullivan, Jr., first-president; L. M. Levering, second vice-president; J. R. Hartman, secretary and treasurer.

MOUNTAINS SWEPT INTO THE DEEP SEA

Divine Power to Be Exercised at Inauguration of Kingdom.

Many of the Psalms Messianic—Figurative Descriptions of the Work of the Millennium—Passing of Sin and Selfishness—A New Order of Peace and Righteousness—The Heavenly Over-Lord Master of the Situation—Glorious Outcome For All Mankind.

Sept. 20.—Pastor Russell discoursed today on the symbolic language of the Psalms. His text was, "Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, and the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea." (Psalm 46:2.) Those who have seen the beautiful film, "Christ Walking on the Sea," in The Photo-Drama of Creation, will readily appreciate the Pastor's line of thought.

The Psalm from which this text is taken is Messianic; that is, it applies to the time of the inauguration of Messiah's Kingdom, said the Pastor. Prophetically and symbolically it relates to the trouble incident to the passing of sin and selfishness and the inauguration of righteousness and peace under Christ's Mediatorial Kingdom. Whether the events predicted come to pass in our day or not, they were surely written for our instruction.

The Psalm opens with the blessed assurance that "God is a very present Help in trouble." Those in covenant relationship with God through Christ may feel serene in every situation. Not merely in the final trouble, when Satan shall be bound, when sin and sorrow shall be brought to an end, will God be a Refuge for His saints, but at all times and under all circumstances.

"Therefore will we not fear." Fear is the great torment of our race. It is the lash which the Adversary uses to drive away from God those who need His sympathy and love. God would have us love Him as our Father. As love, more love, perfect love, comes into our hearts, it correspondingly casts out the fear which the Adversary would inculcate and which has burned into men's minds and consciences the "doctrines of demons," mentioned by St. Paul.

God's people might well be in trepidation if the Psalmist referred to literal mountains and seas; but the language is figurative. Under the Lord's guidance His people will not be in darkness, that the Day of the Lord shall overtake them as a thief, although as a snare will it come upon the whole world.

Biblical Symbology Explained.

In Scripture symbology the term earth represents the social structure; the mountains symbolize kingdoms; and the sea the restless, turbulent, dissatisfied masses that lash against the social structure and continually seek to swallow it up. The removal of "earth" symbolizes the disturbance of the social order; "the mountains carried into the sea" represent the overwhelming of great kingdoms by anarchistic uprisings.

The Pastor explained that we are not to understand that the Bible counsels revolution or anarchy. On the contrary, God's people are instructed not to use carnal weapons, but to suffer injury; for God, the great Over-Lord, is Master of the situation, and at any time can overthrow all opponents.

The Psalmist goes on to describe the tumult of that day of overwhelming trouble when God's Kingdom will be established. Of the sea that will swallow mountains he says, "The waters thereof roar and be troubled; the mountains shake with the swelling thereof." Probably such socialistic and anarchistic roarings have many times caused kingdoms and kings to tremble; but some day the final catastrophe will occur. Who can tell how near that day may be! Many Bible students hold that according to prophecy such a climax will be reached in 1915.

Rather than harass men's minds with fear, the speaker would point them to the glorious "silver lining" of Millennial joy behind this cloud of trouble. He would encourage God's consecrated people to faithfulness and zeal. Christ's Gospel is not a message of damnation, fear and torture, but "Good Tidings of great joy unto all people."

The Deliverance of the Church.

In verses 4 and 5 the Psalmist pictures the Church as the City of God and the Truth as a river. The proclamation is made, "God shall help her early in the morning"—of the Millennium, when her salvation as the Bride of Christ shall be accomplished.

Beginning with verse 6 is a synopsis of the Time of Trouble, its consummation and the inauguration of universal peace. Angry voices will arise from all classes; but God will answer the clamor of greed in both rich and poor, for their correction. As a result the social structure will disintegrate. But God will be with His people.

The Psalm closes with a picture of the world-wide devastation resulting from human selfishness and blindness. This trouble, however, will convince all that earth needs a strong Government that will enforce righteousness—the Messianic Kingdom.

DRUG STORE RUM KILLS 12

Four More Men Probably Dying—Forty Drink Wood Alcohol.

Middlebury, Vt., Nov. 3.—Dr. H. D Bisbee, the Bristol druggist, arrested following the deaths of four men from drinking liquor said by the authorities to have been purchased at his store was rushed to the county jail here by Sheriff Farr for safe keeping, the Bristol townspeople being in an ugly mood because eight more men died of the same cause.

Three or four more are in a dangerous condition and are not expected to live.

Wood alcohol, mixed with ether and water, is said to have been the concotion made by Bisbee and sold to about forty men Saturday and Sunday. The men range in ages from twenty-four to seventy years and most of them leave widows and families.

Bisbee has been arrested and convicted twice within the past two years of illegal liquor selling. He formerly had a drug store here and is also a practicing physician. As the victims died one after another intense feeling arose against the druggist and there was strong talk among the citizens of lynching him. It is believed the man intended to use grain alcohol but poured in the contents of wood alcohol by mistake.

The little village of Bristol is panic stricken and the seventy or more who are known to have purchased whisky at the drug store in the last day or two are wondering "who next?" Nearly every resident of the town has lost either a relative or a close friend, and it is possible that a total of nearly a hundred may pay the toll.

KAISER'S HAIR TURNS GRAY

English Woman Just Returned From Berlin Vouches For Story.

London, Nov. 3.—An English woman who has just arrived from Berlin says she lived under tolerably normal conditions since the outbreak of the war, but she has seen an astonishing change in the attitude of her German friends. One of these in bidding her farewell said:

"We began by fighting for colonies. We are now fighting for our existence."

This English woman said Berlin was a dumping ground for all sorts of rumors. She could vouch for the absolute truth of one story and that was that the kaiser's hair had turned gray since the outbreak of the war.

Pipe Line Company Reduces Dividend.

Franklin, Pa., Nov. 3.—The Southern Pipe Line company has declared a dividend of $6 a share, a reduction of $2 from the declaration of three months ago. The dividend is payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 16. This is the first reduction made by the Southern Pipe Line company since the dissolution of the Standard Oil company and brings the total list of pipe line companies which have reduced their dividends this year up to seven.

Carnegie Statue Pelted by Crowd.

London, Nov. 3.—A dispatch from Dunfermline, Scotland, says the local sentiment against Andrew Carnegie, because of his alleged pro-German attitude, is so strong that the statue of Mr. Carnegie, which was erected by the citizens of his native town last June, was pelted by a crowd.

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 8. 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Gal. vi, 1-10—Memory Verses, 1, 2—Golden Text, Gal. vi, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The Golden Text is awfully true, even for redeemed people, that "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." We have recently seen in our studies Judas Iscariot reaping something of the reward of iniquity. But we have also seen Jacob doing some bad sowing in the way of deceiving his father, and we have seen him suffering for over twenty years by reaping of the same kind through the deceit of his own sons.

The reaping is generally more than we sow, as it is written in Hos. viii. 7, "They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind." Again, in Hos. x. 13, "Ye have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity; ye have eaten the fruit of lies, because thou didst trust in thy way." Again, in Prov. xxii. 8, we read, "He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity." But there is a sowing to the Spirit and a reaping to life everlasting (verse 8).

The two aspects are seen in Jer. xvii, 5, 7, "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man and maketh flesh his arm and whose heart departeth from the Lord." "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord and whose hope the Lord is." From beginning to end of the Bible story it is God or the devil—God's way or man's way. The one is life; the other is death.

According to the epistle in which we find our lesson, the age is evil. The devil, who is the god of this age, has a gospel of his own and enough religion to satisfy most people. But all mere good works of men leave all under the curse, for the law requires absolute perfection in every detail and is intended to turn us from ourselves to Christ. Nothing that man can do avails anything. Men must become new creatures in Christ (chapters i, 4, 8, 9, 13, 14; iii, 10, 24; vi, 15). In the fullness of time God sent forth His Son to redeem them that were under the law, hopelessly trying to save themselves by doing the best they could, listening to the devil's gospel of good works and character and aiming to be like Christ without being born again (chapter iv, 4, 5).

Not until we see Christ crucified for us, made a curse for us, bearing our sins in His own body and, receiving Him, see ourselves as crucified with Him, are we new creatures (chapter ii, 20; iii, 13; John i, 12). Then we will gladly say, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the world is crucified unto me and I unto the world" (vi, 14). Whatever form of sin may have been our specialty as listed in chapter v, 19-21, the sin that is greater than all others and greater than all put together, the sin that causes eternal loss is the rejection of Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the only Saviour of sinners (John iii, 18).

When we are made free from the curse and have become children of God by faith in Christ Jesus then it is our privilege to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and not do the things which the flesh that is still in us would have us do (chapter iii, 13, 26; v, 1, 16, 17, 18, 25). Those who are in the flesh live unto themselves; self is their center; they mind earthly things (Phil. iii, 19). The new creature in Christ lives no longer unto himself, but is able to say, "To me to live is Christ," "Not I, but Christ, who liveth in me" (II Cor. v, 15; Phil. i, 21; Gal. ii, 20).

When we see others overtaken in a fault, as all are apt to be at one time or another, it is not for us to condemn them, but meekly restore them, remembering that we might some day need similar kindness and restoration. Thus we would manifest the Spirit of Christ, who freely forgave and said: "Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more" (lesson verses 1, 2). When Noah became drunken it was more Christlike to cover up his shame, as Shem and Japhet did, than to tell it, as Ham did. We have no right or reason to think anything of ourselves or to think that we know anything as we should (verse 3; I Cor. viii, 2). A proper attitude is that of Rom. vii, 18, "I know that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing."

There is a sense in which we must bear our own burden (verse 5), "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. xiv, 12). If we have been redeemed from the curse of the law we are here to do good unto all as we have opportunity, having reference first to believers, the household of faith; never weary in well doing, knowing that the reaping time is sure and that our labor is never in vain in the Lord (verses 9, 10; I Cor. xv, 58). We may not see nor do the reaping, for we may sow for another to reap, or we may reap from another's sowing. But both sower and reaper shall rejoice together and gather fruit unto life eternal (John iv, 36-38). Whoever may plant or water, God alone can give the increase, but what an honor to be laborers together with God (I Cor. iii, 5-9). Another verse comes to mind on sowing and reaping. See II Cor. ix, 6, and lay it to heart, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

INEXPENSIVE AIDS IN PRODUCING SANITARY MILK

How the Average Dairyman Can Produce a Better and More Profitable Milk At Little Additional Expense.

R. W. LAMSON,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Recent experiments have proven that the number of bacteria to be found in the average milk product, can be reduced considerably by the use of a few simple precautions while milking. This insures a purer milk to the consumer and a better price to the producer. This result was secured by discarding the first streams of fore milk at each milking, and by substituting the small top milk pail for the common open pail, which is quite as easily cleaned and prevents any filth from falling into the milk. The milker will soon learn how to handle the small top pail, and will find it indispensable in producing a high grade of milk. The tests proved this pail superior as well to several makes of so-called sanitary pails, both in the ease with which it could be cleaned and in cutting down the number of bacteria.

Still more satisfactory results were secured when in addition, the udders were kept clipped and before each milking rubbed with glycerine, sweet oil or vaseline. Clipping by itself helped greatly in keeping the cows in a sanitary condition and in reducing the cost of cleaning the animals. A combination of these various methods had the result of reducing the number of bacteria in one case to one-third and in another, to one-tenth of the original count. A more detailed account of the tests may be found in Bulletin No. 180 just issued by the Experiment Station and to be had for the asking.

Training in elementary agriculture has been required for a teachers' certificate in the State of Maryland, but no provision has ever been made for teachers to secure this training. The summer school is aimed not only to provide this training, but to open the doors of the college to the people of the State for a longer portion of the year.

HEAVY DRAFT HORSES COMMAND TOP PRICES.

See That Your Colts Have Every Chance To Make a Strong, Sturdy Growth.

R. H. RUFFNER,
Maryland Agricultural College.

The class of horses that pay our farmers best to raise are drafters. A number of good draft stallions are to be found scattered over the State, but the great complaint of the farmer is that when he breeds his mares to a large draft horse, the colts when grown are very little larger than their dams. In spite of this, if our colts were properly fed and cared for from birth, we should have within a few generations a class of horses large enough to do our farm work in a more economical way than the thousand-pound horse is doing it today.

It is far better not to try to raise draft colts if we do not feed them well. If a mare with a foal at her side, is fed plenty of nutritious and milk producing foods, a foal may more than double its weight the first month. During the second month, the colt should be allowed access to a little grain, from which time on until three years old the colt use its grain feed to the very best advantage. Fully half its growth should be made in the first twelve months of its life. About half as much gain is made the second year as the first and half as much again the third year as the second. The time to think then of putting weight on a draft colt is during every month of the first three years of its growth, not after it has finished making an under-sized frame.

The effects of constant or intermittent semi-starvation are to be seen in every county in the State, yet we have an abundance of farm feeds in Maryland from which a suitable selection could be made. We need to bear in mind that it is not the corn in the bin, but the corn in the colt that makes the raising of draft horses profitable in connection with general farming.

A good ration for growing colts is a mixture of 50 pounds of corn, 40 pounds of oats, and 10 pounds of bran fed with clover hay, to be fed at the rate of one pound of the mixture per day for every 100 pounds live weight. When the colt has good pasture, hay is not necessary but the grain should be given daily if the colt is to make its most successful growth.

HELEN'S EMPLOYER

Why She Lost Her First and Only Job.

By FRANCIS A. COREY.

As the head of the firm entered the office, Helen Floyd glanced up with a gasp of surprise. It had never occurred to her that the rising Chicago lawyer could be the same Robert Cartwright she had known and jilted, ten years before, in a far-away village of Vermont.

Escape was impossible. Moreover, she had been without a position for six weeks, and business men were not stumbling over each other in their eagerness to secure her valuable services.

Cartwright stopped to speak to Miss Mears, a blonde-haired girl with clinking wrist bangles. The two crossed slowly to where Helen sat.

"The young woman to see about the place," Miss Mears explained to her employer, her voice keyed to dulcet sweetness.

Cartwright glanced without the flicker of an eyelash at the forlorn figure huddled in the big office-chair.

"You may take this morning's letters," he said, as if addressing a stranger.

Helen flushed resentfully. But the situation had resolved itself into a question of bread and butter. Picking up a note-book, she followed him into his private office, wondering if he could have failed to recognize her.

In the old days she had affected to despise him; but now, as her pencil flew to his swift dictation, there was a revulsion of feeling. He had a brisk, alert, business-like way. There must be something to the man who had so quickly achieved success!

As for herself, she was no longer the pampered daughter of the big man of a country village. Reverses of fortune and her father's death had driven her into the world to earn her living. How completely the tables had been turned! The voice that had wood was now droning prosaic dictation, and she was as impersonal to the man himself as a mere machine!

"That's all," said Cartwright finally. "Type those off."

A little later Helen was saying to the clattering typewriter, "He can't have forgotten me. I'm not greatly changed—the name would have told him who I am. Why, then, does he treat me like a stranger?"

That night, in her cheerless room at the boarding house, she pondered the situation. Was her rejected suitor paying her off in her own coin? Even if she deserved punishment a friendly word would have cost him nothing. She would have thrown up the situation but for a familiar imp leering at her elbow. It drove her back to her post in the morning.

She discovered that Cartwright's step was the signal for every girl in the office to preen her feathers. He greeted them all with the same cheery smile. She waited with some anxiety to see what would be his attitude toward herself.

The morning's dictation over, she was coolly dismissed. Neither look nor tone betrayed the slightest personal interest. Helen was dismayed to realize that she felt hurt and disappointed. Slumbering memories had been awakened that sent her heart suffocatingly into her throat.

So it went on for two weeks. She began to think that he had indeed forgotten her. Surely he would want to inquire about old friends, and the dear home village! And yet how could ten years have effaced her image so completely?

She found herself thinking about him to an extent incompatible with peace of mind. It was a cruel fate that had driven her to this man of all others in the disheartening search for employment.

She and Miss Mears were standing at the office window one morning when Cartwright's new motor-car drew up at the curb.

"I'll be riding in that beauty before many weeks go by," Miss Mears said with a self-satisfied smile.

Helen was almost tearful when she turned to her desk. Miss Mears was not Robert Cartwright's sort of girl; he had never shown her especial attention. But there's no telling what a man will do when it comes to selecting a wife!

"It's nothing to me whom he marries," she declared. "But I didn't think he would choose one of the fluffy and frivolous kind."

Now the brooding shadows never left her eyes. She lost flesh and color. Hope and courage were at a low ebb. And then, one morning, Miss Mears met her with an announcement that was like her death knell.

"You're going to be fired! Mr. Cartwright just now wanted to know the date of your coming, and the salary due you. It isn't pay day. He could have had but one object in making such inquiries."

"Isn't my work satisfactory?" Helen managed to ask.

"Evidently not," grinned Miss Mears.

Cartwright was in his private office, glancing through that morning's stack of letters. Mechanically Helen got ready for the usual dictation. When the summons came, she took her place, pencil and notebook shaking in her hands. She tried to control herself, but the ghastliness of her face betrayed her.

"Come back for a moment when you have typed these off," her employer said brusquely, the dictation finished.

"You'll never do for this office, Miss Floyd," Cartwright said shortly. 'I've seen this for some time. Your successor will come some time today. Here's your back pay—and a month's salary in lieu of the usual notice."

He pushed the money toward her. Helen counted out the amount due her, and leaving the surplus on the desk, turned without a word. Indeed, speech was impossible. The girls in the outer office looked at her curiously as she gathered up her few possessions and took down her hat and wrap. But she was allowed to go unquestioned.

Alone in her stuffy room, she gave way to her feelings. Nobody wanted her. It might be weeks before she found another situation. Oh, if she could only die and end it all! There was no gleam of light in all the big, black world. Cartwright could not have been actuated by any desire for revenge. That would be unlike the man she had learned to know and appreciate since entering his office. Her work must be hopelessly bad!

A knock upon the door. Dashing the tears from her eyes, Helen opened it. Her landlady stood outside.

"A gentleman to see you, Miss Floyd."

Involuntarily Helen's thoughts flew back to the office—to him who had so coldly dismissed her.

"Who is it?" she cried eagerly. "What does he want?"

"He gave no name, Miss. Somebody to see you about a new position."

That wild, sudden, foolish hope died out of her heart. Bathing her eyes she went below.

When she entered the shabby boarding-house parlor, somebody strode forward and took forcible possession of her two hands. "Mr. Cartwright!" she faltered, dazedly, as if she had been dreaming.

He drew her toward the window and looked searchingly into her face.

"You've been crying, Helen! Tell me why?"

Her eyes dropped and her lips quivered. She tried to withdraw her hands. Her heart beat suffocatingly.

"Was it because I discharged you, Helen? I needn't have been so harsh. But you were getting so pale and thin I—I—couldn't bear it any longer——"

There was a choking in his throat. "We can't talk here. Get your hat and come with me. My car is at the door. The country is lovely now—we'll make a day of it."

"Oh, no, no," she faltered.

"But I say yes, dear heart. Don't you know that I love you more than ever? I wouldn't have told you so, but I've been watching you all these weeks and I saw that you were learning to care for me—just a little——"

He broke off, holding her at arm's length. Helen's leaping heart sent the crimson over her face; but she met his questioning look with a smile of surrender.

"I care—more—than a little," she said.

MUST WAIT TILL THEY PAY

Credit Man's System of Philosophy of Rich Customers and Their Bills.

A modiste with a large establishment and the smartest trade in a city of great wealth has a credit man who handles the finances of her shop. He confesses that he does not tread a path of roses.

"Our trade divides itself into two distinct classes," he declared; "those that are very prompt pay and those that are extremely slow pay. An account is either settled immediately or else drags along for months. There are multi-millionaires in both these lists. I could name several women of immense wealth and the highest social standing who would be ashamed to wear a gown that had not been paid for. On the other hand, I could name perhaps quite as many, equally wealthy and perhaps more fashionable, who would apparently be quite as much ashamed to wear a gown that was paid for. What do we do about it? Nothing. We just wait until they take a notion to pay. It simmers down to a mere matter of banking. Some of this class will pay once in three or four months; some twice a year. They are good; it is up to us to carry them if we wish to keep their trade."—Saturday Evening Post.

Druidical Burial.

A solemn yet quaintly picturesque ceremony was witnessed in Streatham Park cemetery the other afternoon, when, with full Druidical honors, the last sad offices were performed in connection with the death of Mr. John Everson, one of the best-known members of the Order of Druids in South London. The hearse was preceded to graveside by the Druid's band, which played the "Dead March," while on either side of the coffin walked officers of the "Goodfellow" lodge, carrying Druidical crooks and wands draped in mourning. Around the graveside assembled representatives of the majority of the lodges south of the Thames, most of whom wore regalia, and after the commitment prayers had been uttered, the crookbearers lined up on either side of the open grave, and performed the last Druidical rite—standing in solemn silence with their crooks linked over the coffin of their departed brother.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1914.

CONGRATULATIONS Senator Zihlman on the splendid fight you made.

THE Speicher Local Option bill was a winner last Tuesday. Congratulations Senator.

TWO years ago Lewis carried this district by 6,127 majority. This year by 650. Not such a victory after all.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

Senator Harvey J. Speicher ought to be one of the happiest men in Garrett county. The splendid vote given his Local Option bill last Tuesday will place his name on the pages of history in a prominent position. No greater honor could rest on any man than that he had originated a bill, so largely accepted by his fellow countrymen, which swept from his county the saloon with all its debasing and destructive influences, a bill so thoroughly protected that those who sell liquors for medicinal purposes or prescribe it for their patients must be exceedingly careful of not violating the law, under most severe punishment.

When before the legislature it was pronounced a most drastic measure. It was intended to be. Senator Speicher devoted much time and thought in preparing the bill. He made a thorough investigation of the effectiveness of the bill, consulting the best legal talent in the county, as well as in the state. He presented it to the advocates of temperance for their consideration and suggestions; he read it to clergymen. He sought information and advice.

It was pronounced good. He took it to the Senate. It was the first bill passed by the Senate, and that by a unanimous vote. Quite a compliment to Garrett county's Senator. Proving his influence among his fellow Senators. He made the fight in the House of Delegates. Here he won out, with only five votes against the bill. This vote proved that Garrett county had a man of power in the Senate. A man who was able to surmont all difficulties, remove, what some predicted, unmovable obstacles, and place upon the statute books one of the most drastic temperance laws ever adopted by a Maryland legislature. By so doing he filled to the letter his pre-election promises. He delivered the goods. He was a man of his word. Garrett county had what it asked for, the right to vote for or against license. True others helped enact the law, but the author of the law, the man behind the bill, the man who fought the fight, who passed hours of agony, who was constantly on the job, the man, the only man who could have delivered the goods was Senator Harvey J. Speicher.

The people of Garrett county last Tuesday completed the work, accepted the gift from Senator Speicher and made his bill the law of the county, ordered the dram shops closed April 30, 1915. Put their approval on the Senator's work and by their actions said, "Well done good and faithful servant."

There were no "snakes" in the bill, notwithstanding efforts were made to induce the Senator to permit a few to accidently get in, so covered up that they would not be detected until disclosed by the courts. Efforts were made to have the Senator sidetrack the bill. Money was on hand to purchase the defeat of the bill. Certified checks were on hand. There was an organized effort made to defeat the bill when it reached the House of Delegates. It was a fight, prolonged for days. It was a hotly contested fight, but all through the days and weeks the Senator stood firmly by his promise. "The voters of Garrett county shall have a right to vote for or against license. I have promised this to the people who elected me to the Senate and they shall have it. I will make my word good," and he did. One of the greatest compliments a community could pay one of its honored citizens was paid Senator Speicher by his district in the splendid majority of 78 against license, or over two to one, the vote being for 64, against 142, a splendid endorsement of his legislative work.

When Governor Goldsborough signed the bill he gave Senator Speicher the pen and penholder he used to affix his name to the bill. It is a priceless heirloom to the Senator and his family.

The enactment of the law is a monument to Senator Speicher, better, more valuable than a monument of marble; greater than that of a general who led his armies to victory. He is the man who secured to Garrett county the priceless boon of local option.

Honor to whom honor is due. The victory of last Tuesday was possible because of Senator Speicher's faithfulness to his pre-election promises. The people of the county, irrespective of politics will honor the Senator for his good work, and his name and deed will live forever in the hearts of his countrymen.

LET everybody talk, think and work for good roads all over Garrett county. Let that be the slogan of every Garrett countian.

THE wheat crop such as Kansas raised in 1914 has never been equalled by any other state in the union. It amounted to 9,061,971 acres.

THE motto of Garrett countain electors last Tuesday was: "Vote as you pray, but don't let any other man's prayers disturb your political good judgment."

APRIL 30, 1915, ten saloons and their disastrous business will become extinct and Oakland will be free from its influence. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

IN the death of General Adna R. Chaffee, U. S. A., retired, this country lost one of its most distinguished officers, a man who had a brilliant career.

TURKEY has difinitely thrown in her lot with Austria and Germany. There are now ten powers at war, with prospects of five more, Portugal, Italy, Greece, Bulgaria and Rumania being drawn in.

EVERY day of the war abroad adds money to the bank accounts of the American farmer. He is now able to dispose of every pound of his grain, and as the wheat goes out gold from abroad is coming in to pay for it.

THE annual report of the B. & O Railroad Company for the year ending June 30 last, shows a decrease in the net earnings of $4,132,087. The revenue of the road was $99,032,150.11. The road carried 22,718,932 passengers.

"OLD King Cole was a merry old soul;
A merry old soul was he;
He called for his pipe, he called for his bowl,
And he called for his fiddlers three."
But he did not enter the political campaign in Garrett county.

THE Christmas ship from the United States, laden with gifts to the poor children of the war stricken countries of the Old World will be a gift of joy to the inmates of many a sad home. May the God of love safely guide the ship to its destination. Ours is a land of plenty and from our bounty we are aiding those in need.

"WHO is who" in Mexico is occupying much attention in that Republic. The prospective peace of yesterday is lost sight of in the acute situation of today. There is no telling what a day may develop. It might be well to divide the Republic into three separate Republics and allot one to Carraza, one to Villa and one to Zapata, and bind each of them over to keep the peace for at least five years, under penalty of being exiled or hung, for violating the pledge.

WE were very much pleased over the very many kind words received last week for the "excellent paper we issued." The Republican State Central Committee for Garrett county asked for 1,000 copies for general circulation. Although we printed extra copies, the edition was soon exhausted. We are doing our best to publish an interesting paper and the new subscriptions coming in is proof that we are succeeding. The Republican is going on to perfection. The paper speaks for itself. Thanks for the kind words.

ACTION unprecedented in the history of the Protestant Episcopal church of Maryland was taken yesterday afternoon, when the annual diocesean convention, in its closing session at Christ Church Baltimore, placed itself on record an sympathizing with the nation-wide prohibition movement, by adopting the following resolution:

"Resolved, That this convention is heartily in favor of the principle underlying the proposed amendment to the national Constitution, whereby the question of national prohibition shall be submitted to the several States for their ratification or rejection, and that we call upon the members of our communion to make this question a subject of special thought and prayer."

MEN differ in their opinions about their fellow man. The time comes however when, no matter what may have been the opinion formed, they are compelled to admire the man they rejected and of whom they said hard things. For years Mr. John D. Rockefeller, has been the subject of much adverse criticism, notwithstanding his liberal gifts to various causes. His splendid gift of the past week deserves the most hearty approval of all men. At a cost of $250,000 the Rockfeller Foundation has charted a ship and loaded it with 4000 tons of provisions for the relief of the starving Belgians. The foundation stands ready to give millions of dollars, if necessary, for the relief of non combatants in the countries afflicted by the war. When a man does a good thing give him praise for doing it. His noble deed is another illustration of America's greatness.

Ambassador Page says, that it will require $1,000,000 a month for seven or eight months to prevent starvation. No food can be bought in and exported from any county in Europe. America, will have and has a mighty responsibility resting upon it. Such gifts as above quoted means much to suffering mankind.

SURELY the Republicans are coming back.

AND now we'er headed straight for Thanksgiving.

THERE was an election in Garrett county last Tuesday.

THE election of last Tuesday was not much of an indorsement for the Wilson administration.

WHO will be postmaster at Oakland? The difficulty is removed. The appointment can now be safely made? The votes are all in.

THE forest service collected 40,000 pounds of tree seed last year for use in reforestation work. The total area reforested was about 30,000 acres.

USUALLY at this time of the year every freight steamship flying a German flag comes into port loaded with Christmas toys, but this year there will be none from that county.

THE Republicans conducted a clean campaign. Had the mud-slinging campaign made by some of the leaders of the Democratic party been resorted to by the Republicans the vote given to the Democratic candidates would have been greatly reduced.

PUCK and Judge the two great American humorists were outdistanced a thousand miles last week by the Oakland Democrat. That paper published in its issue of Oct. 29, the greatest joke of the season. It was simply immense, the climax of jokedom. The Democrat said:

The Republican party stands for the distillers, the brewers, the financial interests and the tobacco trust.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN LOSES OUT.

Senator Zihlman made a clean, square and honorable campaign, backed by a successful record in the Senate of Maryland for doing things. He was a mixer among his fellowman; the kind of a man who gets hold of the people in the right way; his pleasant manner, his genial spirit and companionship all combined to make him popular among mankind.

His opponent was the strongest man the Democrats could have put up against Senator Zihlman. He too was a popular man among the common people. Mr. Zihlman entered the campaign with Lewis's majority of 6,127 of 1912 to overcome. He made a strong persevering fight and lost out only by a vote of 757; his opponent having suffered a loss of 5,400 votes. Surely this indicates Mr. Zihlman's popularity and Mr. Lewis decline in the political life.

Garrett county did itself proud and proved itself the banner Republican county of the Sixth Congressional District. Had the other Republican counties of the district been as loyal as Garrett county Mr. Zihlman would have been elected.

The Republican congratulates him upon the magnificent fight he made. Although defeated he went down in honor and with his colors flying.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

Tuesday's election as whole, was a Republican victory. True the Democrats carried the State of Maryland, but the solid Maryland Congressional delegation was broken by the election of Sidney E. Mudd. Mr. Lewis is re-elected by a decidedly reduced majority. Two years ago he carried the district by a majority of 6,127. Last Tuesday he won out by 727 majority, a loss of 5,400 votes. Certainly not to Mr. Lewis' credit. He won out only through his personal popularity. He lost his own county by a majority of 107.

In 1912 Lewis carried Garrett county by a majority of 105. Last Tuesday Senator Zihlman carried the county by 542 majority. Carrington's majority over Smith was 942. Lewis run ahead of Smith by 280 votes.

In the elections throughout the country the Republicans were the victors. There were fifteen Republican Governors elected and 9 Democratic governors. The Republicans reduced the Democratic majority in the House from 163 to about 25.

The election last Tuesday was a rebuke, stern and swift, sure and earnest against the failure of the Democrats to make good their pledges of prosperity. Vastly more than this, it was the judgement of the people upon the stewardship of their affairs by those who wasted the country's substance and throttled its enterprise with tariff impositions and legislative vagaries that have brought forth only a harvest of regret for the people that they ever saw the enthronement of the Democratic party. This is not a too exaggerated estimate of the results of the election even upon the ground of the returns as they are at this time.

Throughout the nation the returns show the diminution of Democratic power to a degree that points to the overthrow of that party at the first opportunity. The nation—the business men, the workingmen, the thoughtful students of public life—have registered a vote against the party in power that cannot fail to carry its warning. The country is to be congratulated the Republican party is to be congratulated. The socialists and Labor tickets have suffered also, and the net result is highly advantageous to the Republicans. The returns are pregnant with meaning, not solely for their numerous showing, but for the strong tendency they disclose toward the return of the Republican party in power and the distrust to the Democrats.

VICTORY FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Garrett county last Tuesday put its seal on the liquor question and by a majority of 1905 said, "Saloon and saloonism shall end in this county on April 30, 1915." It was an emphatic expression of public sentiment on the subject of "Selling or not selling spiritous and fermented liquors in this prosperous christian county." It was a notice served on the rumseller, bootlegger and rum agent that the Speicher Liquor Law must not be trifled with.

The total vote polled was 2921; for license only 508, against license 2413 a majority of 1905, which is a fraction of 5 to 1. The only district to go wet was Johnson district, No.9, by four majority. A little more effort would have made this district vote dry. District No. 12 was the banner district, its vote being over 7 to 1.

The two Oakland districts administered a severe rebuke to the saloons by a vote of, district No. 7, for 36, against 262; No. 14, for 79, against 378; total for, 114, against, 640 or over 5 to 1. The ten saloons of Oakland are located in the latter district. By this vote the Oakland districts resents Oakland being made the dumping ground of the West Virginia wets.

By the vote taken last Tuesday this fact is revealed: To secure a vote four years from now for a resubmission of the question, will require 25 per cent. of the vote polled. It will require 850 signatures to have the question resubmitted. This leaves a deficiency on vote cast of 342 votes as a shortage of the required number.

In Oakland church bells were rung to announce the glad news of victory.

Workmen's Compensation Law Into Effect November 1.

The Workmen's Compensation law became effective throughout Maryland Sunday, November 1.

This law, passed by the last Legislature, is something entirely new in this State. It is complicated and far reaching, and materially affects the business of almost every large employer of labor in the State and a great many of the smaller ones.

It is very important for every employer to find out definitely whether or not he is included in the obligations of the act, and if he is, to take prompt action in accordance with its provisions. Otherwise he may, in the words of the act, be "convicted of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000." A court may, however remit the fine if the employer proceeds promptly thereafter to observe the law. There is no escape from it for those who come within its provision.

Cameras, Not Guns.

It is a good thing that more parents are acting on the suggestion which E. C. Avery gave those who listened to his nature lecture at the Society of Natural Sciences. "Get nature to make us happy," said Mr. Avery. "But we must go to her. Her treasures lie all about us, as we find if we make a start and get out into the open. Give the children cameras, not guns. Teach them to observe and to know the things outdoors, but not to collect and destroy. Do the same thing for yourself and you will get much more out of life."

The camera is a much better instrument of pleasure to put into the hands of a boy than is a gun. With a camera he will preserve those things which interest him. With a gun he will seek to destroy them. That is the difference, broadly stated. One may follow out this difference in many directions in an amplification of the argument, if it is desired, and always in favor of the camera as against the gun. Once every live boy thought he had to have a gun. He began by shooting at a mark, and when he became proficient in that he began to shoot other things, useful, harmless and beautiful. There are still too many boys who have guns, but not so many, though the number may still be reduced to advantage.

A PLEASANT TRIP TO CRELLIN, MD.

Republican Scribe Saw and Learned Much of Interest There.

(From Meyersdale Republican.)

Messrs. R. H. Van Nest of Chicago, E. R. S. Embrey of Washington, D. C. S. B. Philson and W. S. Livengood of Meyersdale, had the pleasure of a ride Hon. S. A. Kendall's touring car from Meyersdale to Crellin, Md., on Oct. 23 to inspect the big lumber plant of the Kendall Lumber Co., at that place.

The route taken was via Boynton and Salisbury to Grantsville, over very muddy roads; thence over the newly reconstructed National Pike to Keyser's Ridge; thence over six miles more of new state road into the heart of the picturesque Cove; thence over five miles of very hilly, rough and muddy county road to a point two miles south of Accident; thence over a stretch of 17 miles of elegant asphalt-macadam road via McHenry to Oakland, and thence over four miles of unimproved road to Crellin.

The trip was made in about three hours and an excellent dinner was awaiting the hungry tourists at the end of the journey, as guests of Mr. Kendall at the lumber company's boarding house.

After dinner Mr. Kendall showed the visitors over the big sawmill, the largest in the state of Maryland. This mill which is equipped with the most modern machinery has a capacity of 100,000 feet of sawed lumber per day, and has been running steadily for years. The daily output is about ten carloads of lumber, which is shipped over the company's own railroad to Hutton, Md., on the main line of the B. & O., over which it reaches the lumber markets of the country.

The company operates about 25 miles of standard gauge railroad in conjunction with the Crellin Mill, the transportation department being operated under the name of Preston Railway Company The road extends from Hutton into Preston county, W. Va., and is used in transporting the logs to the mill from the vast area of land that is being denuded of timber. This timber lies along the headwaters of the Youghiogheny River and the watershed of the Cheat River, a section of country formerly known as Hoye's Wilderness.

The company has about 13,000 acres of virgin timber remaining to be cut, consisting of oak, pine, hemlock, poplar, hard and soft maple, hickory, beech, cheery, walnut and other varieties. The logs are hauled to the mill and sawed indiscriminately as to variety and size, but in passing through the mill each log is cut into the sizes it is best suited for in the judgment of the sawyers, and it comes out at the farther end of the mill carefully classified and sorted, all the work being done by cleverly contrived machinery directed by skilled workmen. Millions of feet of green and seasoned lumber are stacked in the yards and dry kilns.

About 450 men are employed in all departments of the Crellin plant, including the woods and train crews. The company operates besides this plant several other large mills, the one at Alexander, W. Va., being larger than the one at Crellin. The company also handles the product of many independent mills being operated in the states of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, South Carolina and other states, and is one of the largest producers and handlers of lumber in the eastern part of the United States. It has besides its present operations partially constructed an immense new plant and standard gauge railroad on the Cheat River, W. Va., costing about a quarter of a million dollars. The railroad is nearly completed, but work on it and the new mill has been suspended until next summer.

The town of Crellin is situated on the Youghiogheny River and has a population of several hundred. It has a public school employing three teachers, a postoffice and a large company department store that does more business in the course of a year than any store in Meyersdale. The store has recently been moved into a new building of large dimensions and modern equipment.

Mr. Kendall accompanied the party home to Meyersdale in the evening. The grand mountain scenery of Garrett county was greatly enjoyed by all, and the splendid system of state roads being built in that section of Maryland greatly admired.

SENATE EMPLOYE HONORED.

Democrats Give Watch to T. W. Keller, Assistant DoorKeeper.

On October 25th, at Washington, a pleasant surprise was sprung upon Mr. T. W. Keller, assistant doorkeeper in the United States Senate, when that gentleman was presented with a watch by the Democratic Senators. Mr. Keller is a brother of Mrs. Edward E. Sollars of near Oakland. In giving an account of the affair the Baltimore American of the following day, said:

While the Senate was in recess Saturday, and while every Democratic senator remained in anticipation of the pleasant episode that had been planned, Senator Kern, the Democratic leader, had Mr. Thomas W. Keller, of West Virginia, the assistant doorkeeper of the Senate, summoned to the Senate chamber. When Mr. Keller entered Senator Kern rapped on his desk and called the senators to order, and then the Democratic leader presented Mr. Keller with a handsomely engraved watch, which he informed the venerable assistant doorkeeper was presented to him by the Democratic members of the Senate as a recognition of their friendship for him and of their appreciation of his 35 years of faithful and honorable service with that body.

Mr. Keller was unable to respond to the suggestion of some of these senators that he make a speech. He merely bowed and told them how much he felt honored by the presentation of the watch. On the inside of the watch is engraved the following:

"From the Democratic Senators of the Sixty-third Congress to
Thomas W. Keller, Esq.,
Assistant Doorkeeper,
In Appreciation of His Faithful
Services."

Tom Keller, as he is known to every one in the Capitol, came to Washington when Henry Gassaway Davis was elected to the Senate from West Virginia. He has been in the service of the Senate ever since under Democratic, as well as under Republican control. Of the men who were senators when he first came here only Senator Davis, of West Virginia. Senator Cockrell, of Missouri; Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, and Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, are now living, but none of them are still in the Senate It was the first time that an employe of that body has been honored on the floor of the Senate chamber.

Because of the falling off in the demand for lumber the employes of the great saw-mill plant at Crellin had to submit to a cut in their daily wages. The plant of Jennings is working only four days a week, thus the wage earners weekly pay is cut down one-third. This means a decrease of sales of the business houses. Free lumber may be a good thing for foreign saw mill plants, but it is certainly hard on home products.

WIRES CONGRATULATIONS.

Mr. Willey O. Ison, of Washington, Pleased With Temperance Victory.

Among a large number of personal letters and notes of congratulation to The Republican for the part played by it in bringing about the temperance victory at the polls on Tuesday, the following telegram, received this morning from Mr. Willey O. Ison, eldest son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Benj. Ison, is published, conveying as it does, a note to every one who helped in the cause:

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4, 1914.
Benj. H. Sincell, Editor,
The Republican,
Oakland, Md.

Temperance victory in Garrett county is a glorious honor to all who helped win it. WILLEY. O. ISON.

The election returns were received at The Republican office up to Tuesday midnight. The editoral room was full of happy people, who eagerly watched and waited for the returns. All over main street were crowds of people in groups discussing the returns as they were reported. The Republicans were jubilant over general results, bnt disappointed over the defeat of Senator Zihlman. Of course they were delighted over the splendid vote pulled by the Senator, and over the fact that he carried Allegany conuty, which was the first time Mr. Lewis had been defeated in his own county.

Dixon & Kelso, Oakland's hustling merchants, are shipping car loads of potatoes. Their potato sacks have printed on them in large letters: "Mountain potatoes, shipped by Dixon & Kelso, Oakland, Md." That is good business. Garrett county potatoes are forging their way to the front, as splendid seed potatoes, as well as a delicious potato for the table. Garrett county potatoes will always have a market. Our farmers should labor to improve their potatoes each year and thus build up a reliable market for our crops. Every thing shipped from the county, when possible should be marked with the name of the town shipped from. This advertises Garrett county.

I have just received a new shipment of hats, suits, coats, waists and seperats skirts. I will be pleased to have you inspect them at my parlors on Oak street. Mrs. Fred Martin.

Col. George A. Pearre, of Cumberland, former member of Congress from this district, is ill at the Johns Hopkins Hospital where he has been since Saturday. Colonel Pearre's health has not been good for some time, but it was not known that he had been brought to the Johns Hopkins until last Tuesday. Last night it was said that he was resting quietly and that his condition was all that could be called for.

Miss Trax, well known throughout Garrett county has been making things hum out in Kansas, where the Suffragists conducted a campaign against the Democratic Congressional candidates, because of the hostility of the sixty-third Congress to the passage of a national Woman Suffrage amendment. One day she got lost on the prarie for an hour and a half, but on her arrival at the school house, where she was to speak, found a large crowd of people waiting to hear her.

We notice in several daily papers an advertisement of "Fine buckwheat flour made at Terra Alta, W. Va." That is a fine advertisement for Terra Alta. It is up to date. Why not advertisements read, "Made at Oakland," "Made at Mountain Lake Park" "Made at Swanton," "Made at New Germany," "Made at Grantsville," "Made at Friendsville," etc. At all these points A No. 1 buckwheat flour is made. None made better anywhere. Local pride is a good thing. Let us get Garrett county on the map of the United States. If any miller wants to start the movement The Republican will help you find the market for your flour. Just write us a letter, quoting price at your nearest railroad station, and the quantity you can furnish. This paper proposes to be a booster and not a knocker. To encourage every honest toiler will be our aim.

Pauperism on Decrease.

Pauperism is decreasing in the United States. According to a census statement, "The ratio of almshouse paupers to population has steadily declined at every census since 1880."

One person in every 60 in the United States above 80 years of age, is an inmate of an almshouse, the Census Bureau reported.

On January 1, 1910, there were 84,198 paupers in almshouses in this country. A total of 83,313 were admitted during that year and 59,120 were discharged, three-fourths of this number expecting to support themselves and one-fourth, chiefly women, going to live with relatives or friends.

Special Boat For Salt River.

The Garrett county Democratic flat boat for Up Salt River left the dock at Disappointed Landing, Tuesday night. Col. Tom was in command, with his fiddlers three. The clerks were the candidates for the Oakland post office. The man whose name has twelve letters was shipping clerk. The roust-abouts, were disappointed candidates for offices promised. The editor of the press sat on deck developing thoughts on the great question, "who struck Billy Patterson?" The man who predicted that D. John L. would carry Garrett county by from 700 to 1000 majority, was heard to exclaim with Watson, of Georgia, "Where am I?" The chamber maids were the trio who circulated the star story about Senator Zihlman owning saloons. As the rope was pulled in, the band played, "Oh, where is my wandering boy to-night?"

"Take-It-Back Day."

In a town down in Western Kentucky not long ago the citizens celebrated Take-It-Back Day. In consequence, it is stated, many articles that had been borrowed were taken home and some of the residents entered so fully into the spirit of the occasion to "take back" unkind words that they had spoken of their neighbors.

Take-it-back Day is not a bad institution. The habit of borrowing is rather well developed in most small towns. Unfortunately the "taking-back" habit is not so much in evidence. Those who are quick to borrow are oftentimes slow to return. There are some who are punctilious about "taking back," but the great majority are disposed to be forgetful or negligent.

Some neighbors, too, are prone to say unkind things about their fellow-citizens and there is more reluctance about "taking back" assertions of this kind than there is about returning borrowed implements or articles of other kinds. It would be better not to say these things in the first place. The mere "taking back" cannot repair the damage, which may be likened to the aphorism about giving a dog a bad name.

Take-It Back Day ought to be worth something as a neighborhood harmonizer and as a medium for promoting the get-together spirit which is so important to the progress and the general welfare of a city, town or community.

German Craft Appears Close to England's Shores

HARD FIGHTING IN FRANCE

Official Reports Given Out at Paris and Berlin Tell of Successes Won Along Battle Line; Neither Informs of Reverses—Germans Reported to Be Reinforcing at Hinge of Battle Line.

London, Nov. 3.—A German submarine is menacing the coast of England near Dover and English warships are keeping watch for the vessel.

Heavy firing was heard off the foreland. Twelve shells were fired in rapid succession. At Goodwin Sands a British torpedo boat could be seen, and is was believed that the boat was firing at the submarine.

The entire North sea has been declared a military area, and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines which it has been necessary to lay and from the warships which are searching vigilantly night and day for suspicious craft.

A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam says that German forty-two-centimeter guns have been placed on Borkum island, in the North sea.

Borkum island is the most southerly of a string of islands that skirt the German coast from Cuxshaven to the mouth of the Ems. These, with several islands owned by the Netherlands, constitute the Frisian group.

German submarines are known to be operating along the southern shores of the North sea, and heavy guns placed on the German islands might be valuable in the defense of their base.

Allies' Successes Continue, Says Paris.

Paris, Nov. 3.—From the North sea to Alsace the armies of Belgium, England and France had distinctly the better of the hard fighting of the day and yesterday.

The official reports show that the allies made progress all along the line and that the German effort weakened in the past twenty-four hours.

On Sunday the German armies attacked desperately in Flanders along the hills of Champagne and along the Meuse, but failed to break the allied line at any point and lost ground in their attacks.

As formerly, the increased violence of their offensive was useless. Today the Germans were less active between the North sea and the Oise and the allies moved forward slightly in Belgium, near Dixmude.

The hardest fighting has been between Dixmude and Ypres and southward in the regions of Lille and Arras.

The Germans appear to have abandoned their plan of attacking west of Dixmude and to have concentrated strength west and south of Ypres, but the net result of two days' operations is a stronger position by the allies defending the line in Belgium. The fighting in northern France had a similar result, the allies withstanding terrific attacks near Arras and to the southeast.

The official reports state the attack had been fruitless and the allies have moved toward Laon, a key to the German fortified position, for more than seven weeks. Similar operations east on the heights of the Aisne ended in a repulse of the Germans.

Germans Say More Ground Gained.

Berlin (Via London), Nov. 3.—German army headquarters issued the following:

"In our attacks on Ypres further ground has been gained and Messines has been occupied by us.

"In the fighting in the Argonnes some successful forward movements have been made and the enemy suffered severe losses.

"In the eastern theater the situation is unchanged. Russian attempts to break through near Tzettkehmen have failed."

Russians Chase Enemy.

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—The war office has just given out the following statement:

"On the East Prussia front our troops have repulsed the German attacks. At Vladislavoff we have chased the enemy from the eastern border to the forest of Rominten. Only near Opatoff did the Austrians resist us with very large forces, but they were thrown back beyond the river Opaovka.

"The Austrian fortified positions have been revealed in Galicia. On the left bank of the San our troops have penetrated to the village of Nezko and have opened a vigorous engagement."

Woman Slain by Four-Year-Old Son.

Creston, O., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Riley Grunder, aged thirty, wife of a rural mail carrier, is dead from a bullet fired by her four-year-old son George. The child was playing with a loaded rifle. He innocently pointed it toward his mother and pulled the trigger. She died within half an hour.

School Girl a Suicide.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 3.—Rather than go to school, as she had been backward in her studies, Pearl Fortune, aged fifteen, committed suicide by shooting herself through the chest with a 38-caliber revolver.

MORE CANADIANS WANTED

15,000 Troops Will Be Sent as Second Expeditionary Force.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Canada's next contingent of soldiers for service in Europe will consist of 15,000 men, in compliance with a request received from the British war office, which has asked that the second expeditionary force from the dominion shall be organized to bring the extra men of the first contingent, which went to England some weeks ago, up to the strength of an army division. At present Canada has in the mother country a full army division of between 21,000 and 22,000 men and four additional battalions of infantry.

The second contingent will consist of two brigades of infantry, or eight battalions, a complement of artillery engineers, cyclists, signal and administrative units, which includes army service corps companies and field ambulances, and the following units for line of communication purposes, divisional ammunition park, field bakery field butchery, railway supply detachment and two depot units of supply.

Enlistment will be continued to keep the two divisions up to strength. The army authorities estimate that once the units get into active service yearly reinforcements will be required at the rate of 70 per cent of the total force engaged.

ITALY WITH GREAT BRITAIN

Two Countries Will Stand Together In Warding Off Turkey.

Rome, Nov. 3.—It is said authoritatively that Italy and Great Britain have agreed to stand together for the common defense of their colonies in Africa if Turkey goes to war. The understanding may become operative at any moment.

Developments in the Turkish situation are anxiously awaited. It is now openly admitted that Turkey's intervention is bound to alter Italy's attitude. Italian interests in north Africa along the Red sea and in the Aegean are as gravely menaced as are England's.

Premier Salandra has not yet been instructed by the king to form a new cabinet, but the king and the premier are conferring with the leading statesmen and influential men of all parties. Even the Socialist, Bissolati, a rabid anti-neutralist, has been summoned as well as Giolitti.

A great coalition cabinet meeting will probably result from the conferences now going on. It is not unlikely that in the new Salandra cabinet Sonnino will receive the treasury portfolio and Imperiali be named as foreign minister.

Four States Now Quarantined.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The quarantine of live stock on account of outbreaks of foot and mouth disease has been extended to cover the entire area of the states of Michigan, Indiana Illinois and Pennsylvania. In addition restrictions have been placed upon shipments of stock from Ohio.

Accident May Be Fatal For Two.

Bellaire, O., Nov. 3.—Three men were injured, two probably fatally when their automobile went down a forty-foot embankment six miles west of here. The injured are Rudolph Swartz and Joseph Menin, probably fatally injured, and John Costine, injured on the head.

Huntsman Shot; May Die.

Kane, Pa., Nov. 3.—Mike Calbass aged thirty-two, was probably fatally injured when he was accidentally shot in the back by James Lovel while hunting. He was rushed to the local hospital where sixty-five shots were extracted from his back.

APOLOGY IS NOT SUFFICIENT NOW

Turkey Must Go Farther Than That, Say Allied Powers

AFFRONTS ARE CONTINUED

Porte Expresses Its Sorrow For Action of Warships, But Refuses to Dismiss Germans From Its Navy. Two Turkish Warships Are Reported Sunk by Franco-British Fleet. Bedouins Mass Near Suez Canal.

London, Nov. 3.—A dispatch from Constantinople by way of Amsterdam says that the Servian minister will leave Constantinople probably today.

The grand vizier of Turkey has apologized on behalf of his government for the warlike operations of the Turkish fleet under German commanders in the Black sea, but it was stated authoritatively that the porte will have to go very much farther than this before the powers of the triple entente will resume friendly relations with the Ottoman government.

It was disclosed in a statement issued by the French government that Turkey, in reply to a note presented by Russia, France and England Friday, agreed to recall her fleet from the Black sea, but refused to dismiss the German officers from her ships and that as it was believed she could not maintain a passive attitude without doing this, the ambassadors of the entente powers demanded their passports and left Turkey.

Fighting on sea and land shows how meaningless has been the protestations of Turkish officials. It is reported from Rome that British and French squadrons sank two Turkish warships in the harbor of Tchesme, Smyrna. The Turks renewed the bombardment of Odessa and Theodosia.

Turkish armies are massing near Beyrout and on the Caucasian frontier and two Turkish army corps are nearing the frontier of Egypt, and the report persists that from 2,000 to 3,000 Bedouins have already crossed the border.

In addition, Turkey is mining the coast of Smyrna and is sending Mullahs to preach the Jehad in Asia and Africa.

It was learned in Athens that the Anglo-French fleet, which has been concentrated within striking distance of the Dardanelles, entered the harbor of Tchesme, which is forty miles west southwest of Smyrna, and found two Turkish warships for which the fleet had been searching. These were the gunboat Dubakreisi and the converted cruiser Kinaliada. The report says that the Turkish ships were sunk.

It is assumed here that the British and French ships have been ordered to prevent Turkish warships from operating in the Aegean sea.

A dispatch from Petrograd contained the news that the German cruiser Goeben, renamed Sultan Selim by the Turks, led the bombardment of the forts of Sebastopol, which began on Sunday. The Sultan Selim attacked with eleven-inch rifles, but the fire of the forts was so vigorous that the warship was injured and compelled to withdraw. A wireless message from the Selim which said, "Damaged, will return to Constantinople for repairs," was intercepted. The former German cruiser was accompanied by the Breslau and four Turkish destroyers.

Roman newspapers are informed that Turkey has massed an army of 400,000 on the Caucasus border and that 300,000 soldiers are encamped at Bernit, Jaffa and other ports for transport to the Sinia peninsula.

A dispatch to the Express from Rome states that the ports where Turkey has concentrated troops are blockaded by British and French warships and that Great Britain and France are prepared for any eventuality.

The Constantinople correspondent of Reuters reports that Bedouins, depended upon by Turkey to supplement the strength of regular soldiers, are raiding over the border of Egypt.

Turkish gunboats are reported to be at the entrance of the gulf of Suez. Detachments of Turkish cavalry are said to be at Akelakabah, the fortified town of the gulf of Akabah in Arabia and at the most easterly projection of the Red sea.

Turkey's plans include three main objects, it is believed here. She will attempt to invade Egypt, to blockade the Suez canal and to stir up a revolt among the Mohammedan subjects of Great Britain in India and Egypt.

It is this last contingency which Great Britain regards with the most concern, although nothing has developed so far to indicate that the 70,000,000 Mohammedans in India or the Mohammedans in Egypt will fail in loyalty to the empire.

Egyptians Seize Postoffice.

Berlin (By Wireless), Nov. 3.—"An official statement given out here says:

"The Petrograd newspaper Rietch reports that Bedouins have occupied the British port of Berberik and made the local officials prisoners. The anti-British revolt is spreading.

"El Imparcial, a newspaper of Madrid, reports that there is dangerous unrest in Algeria. The natives have refused to enter the military service and have killed French policemen."

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

Dolores, The Dancer

Little Mexican Girl Made Good Her Childish Boast

By SARGENT HANDY

Paul Galbraith yawned slightly as the curtains slowly arose and disclosed a garden scene. The spot light found the center of the stage and held it for the coming of Dolores.

She came, drifting along like some wind blown autumn leaf, her wonderful gown of cunningly mingled red and brown and orange chiffon clinging to her slender young figure.

There was a burst of applause, acknowledged by a rare smile and the flash of her beautiful black eyes; then Dolores danced while the audience held its breath. It was always that way when the mysterious dancer appeared.

Paul Galbraith breathed heavily, as a man spent at the end of a long race. His startled eyes never left the swaying form in its vivid gown.

When she had responded for the last time to the deafening applause with her graceful little foreign gesture of pleased surprise and they were staring once more at the painted curtain, Paul drew his hand across his dazed eyes.

"Dolores!" he muttered incredulously. "Surely it cannot be Dolores Lopez! I left her pounding clothes in the brook back of her father's house in a Mexican village. She was a ragged little urchin of twelve. But the face and the smile! I must find out."

He left the box and sought the manager of the theater. Paul's card and the magic spell of his name, which was known the country over, brought him a little information, but it was quite unsatisfactory.

"Senorita Lopez has never informed us concerning her early life. There is much mystery connected with it, but we believe that she comes of a prominent Mexican family and that her father is highly esteemed by the present government. I will endeavor to obtain an interview for you, Mr. Galbraith."

"Thank you," said Paul as he followed the manager to the back of the stage.

While he waited his thoughts were busy with the past. Ten years ago he had been in Mexico in the interest of a mining company, and he had made the acquaintance of Fernando Lopez, an educated gentleman, down at heels, indolent, depending upon the gaming table for his livelihood. There had been a motherless daughter, Dolores, a child giving promise of future beauty. The girl had slaved for her father, whom she worshiped, and she had a certain fierce pride in her family, fallen though it was, which Paul could not but respect.

"Some day, Senor Galbraith, you will not smile," she had said shrewdly. "I shall be great; the world will bow down to me. I am the last of the name of Lopez, but I shall be the greatest of them all!"

Paul had sympathized with the child, and when he went away he had given her a large gold piece to buy herself a present to remember him by. He knew the girl needed clothes, for her father selfishly spent his winnings for his own pleasure. So when Dolores' dark eyes had flashed boundless gratitude, and she had bent swiftly and kissed his hand, he had smiled kindly upon her and gone his way.

He had forgotten all about her until tonight when she had flashed upon the stage and his memory made connection between the child of the adobe Mexican hut and the most popular dancer of the hour in New York.

The manager was returning with many apologies on his lips.

"I'm sorry, Galbraith, but Senorita Lopez begs to be excused. She has never met Mr. Galbraith—so she says. These artists are freakish, you know"—

"Pray don't apologize," said Paul hastily. "I am not entirely certain now that this is the daughter of the old Lopez I knew."

Later, on his homeward way, his thoughts still clung to those old Mexican days.

"Funny how I can't get that kid out of my mind," he chided himself as he sat down in his comfortable library.

He opened a drawer in his desk and pulled out a portfolio of photographs. He had taken most of these photographs during that Mexican trip, and with the spell of the bewitching dancer still upon him Paul turned them over, hoping that he could find a picture of the graceful child of Fernando Lopez.

Here it was—Dolores sweeping the doorstep with a primitive broom. She had detected him in the act of snapping her picture, and he had caught her startled upward glance, so like the glance she had shot at him this evening.

Why, it must be the same Dolores. Feature for feature they were alike, only the Dolores of this evening, the dancer, was older with all the beauty the child of twelve gave promise of.

If it was his Dolores—he was calling her that now, for his interest in the affair was absurdly deep—if it was his Dolores, Dolores of the broom, of the manifold household tasks he knew she accomplished, then why should she deny his acquaintance?

He was piqued. Surely there had not been so many American visitors in Santa Vados that she had forgotten him!

Paul was vexed because Dolores haunted his dreams that night, and in the morning he awoke with a headache and a resolve to see Dolores dance that evening.

So once more he sat and watched that blithe young form float out from the wings to weave a spell about his heart until he could close his eyes and dream that he was in Mexico again; the mandolins tinkled an accompaniment to her fairy feet, and the yellow roses at her breast drooped and gave out their dying fragrance.

Then, amid deafening applause, she came to the footlights to receive offerings of flowers.

Paul saw an usher hand up his basket heaped with trailing sprays of jasmine, and without a glance at the card the dancer cast a startled upward glance at Paul's box. Then, with a charming bow that included the whole theater from pit to gallery, she vanished, laden with flowers.

"She recognizes me! It is Dolores, my Dolores— What in thunder is the matter with me?" he muttered as he made his way back of the scenes.

But again Senorita Lopez denied her acquaintance with the handsome American, and again Paul went away, chagrined, but satisfied in his heart that the dancer was the daughter of Fernando Lopez.

Night after night Paul Galbraith sat in a box at the same theater, waiting only long enough to watch Dolores dance. When she vanished he went too. Every night he sent her a basket of jasmine flowers, but never after that first startled glance at him did Dolores acknowledge his nightly offering.

How to meet her became a question that haunted his waking hours.

"What's the matter, Galbraith?" questioned his closest friend, Tom Delanoy. "You're as moony and seedy as can be. If I didn't know you to be utterly heartless where women are concerned I should say that you were in love. Oh, don't frown at me like that! I know all the symptoms. I've been in and out of love dozens of times myself. But when you serious chaps take a notion you have a bad attack. Now, how about Dolores, the dancer?"

This was a random shot, but it found its mark.

Paul grew white about the lips, and his eyes flashed.

"It isn't such a joke as you might imagine, Tom," he said quietly.

"I beg pardon," said the other contritely. "I heard the fellows joshing around that you were there every night. Of course I didn't believe it, because"—

"You can believe it," interrupted Paul grimly. "It's true."

"What's true?" asked Tom craftily.

"That I've been attending every performance where Dolores Lopez has danced."

"The dickens you have! And you deny that you're in love?"

Paul smiled. "I don't deny it because I don't know myself. But she's a baffling mystery, and I rather believe that's the attraction for me. You know, Tom, I've always been attracted by anything that baffled my understanding, never rest until I unravel it. Well, it's the case with Dolores Lopez. She denies my acquaintance, but I used to know her when a child in Mexico."

Tom paced the floor, his round face comically perplexed.

"Well, you can't do a darned thing when a lady denies your acquaintance," he admitted at last. "I'll tell you what I'll do, Paul. Suppose I call upon her and tell her I am a friend of yours and that you're very anxious to meet her again and"—

Paul lifted a protesting hand.

"No, thanks, Tom—much obliged, old fellow, but it won't do. I'll make one more trial. I'll write her a letter first and"—

"That's the ticket—write a letter or telephone, eh?"

Paul hesitated. "That's taking a mean advantage of her, Tom. I'll write to her and remind her of the little Mexican lullaby she used to sing to her queer cornhusk dollies. It began 'Dormir—dormir.' By Jove, I've forgotten the rest, but it was a sweet little thing." Paul hummed a minor air under his breath, while Tom watched him with amused eyes.

The next day Paul wrote his letter to Dolores Lopez. He wrote many letters, for none of them suited him, and finally the one he did send was brusque almost to rudeness, so afraid was he of offending her by too great presumption. But he could not resist reminding her that the young American who had listened rapt to her sweet singing of the little lullaby, "Sleep—sleep," which she had sung to her cornhusk dollies in the shade of a tamarind tree, still remembered her and would deem it a privilege to renew his acquaintance. He thought perhaps that Senorita Lopez had forgotten her old friend.

That night he did not go to the theater. He sat alone in his library trying to read, but always the lovely dark face of Dolores, the dancer, came between him and the printed pages.

Tom Delanoy strolled in at 11 o'clock whistling a gay tune under his breath.

He pushed his hat on the back of his head and watched his friend with amused eyes.

"I've been to see Dolores," he said at last. "And, Paul, she's a wonder!"

Paul nodded and relighted his pipe.

"She can dance," he said tersely.

"They tell me that she never danced better than she did tonight," pursued Delanoy. "She wore a wonderful gown of black and cerise, and the way she flashed around the stage made me think of one of those birds you come across in the dark woods—tanager, scarlet tanager, you know.

"But she seemed uneasy. Every once in awhile she would glance up at the third box, left hand. It happened to be full of women tonight. And always after that her cheeks would grow pinker, and her glorious eyes would flash. Gee, whiz, man, if I had any right, the merest thread of an opportunity, to claim acquaintance with Dolores Lopez, I'd not miss it—no, siree!"

Paul's thoughtful face broke into a smile.

"You idiot!" he cried. "Run along home; you need rest."

"And," added Tom as he neared the door, "they say she was disappointed tonight because she didn't receive a certain basket of flowers; seems some Johnny sends her a basket of jasmine every night—everybody's on to it—and tonight it didn't come, and she looked as mad as a hornet, even though she smiled like an angel as she went off the stage. Wonder who the Johnny was, Paul—wonder if he stayed home, too, and tried to read Macaulay upside down"— The door slammed behind the witty Mr. Delanoy just in time for the volume of Macaulay to miss his broad back. It fell clattering to the polished floor as the telephone bell rang sharply.

Paul picked up the receiver, slightly curious as to who would be calling him at this late hour.

It was the voice of a maidservant asking if this was Mr. Paul Galbraith's apartment.

"Yes," replied Paul.

There was a little pause, a murmur of sound over the wire, the sound of a distantly closing door at that mysterious other end, and then a voice singing softly to him.

A rich contralto voice was singing the lullaby with which a little Mexican girl had hushed her cornhusk dollies to sleep in the long ago—a song that haunted him night and day now.

"Dormir—Dormir"— the words trailed softly through the simple song until it ended in a low, rich, quivering note.

"Yes, Mr. Galbraith, it is your little friend, but, oh, such a grand lady now!" she cried in almost childish triumph. "I told you I would make my family name great—great—and you are proud of me, Mr. Galbraith, my friend?" There was a wistfulness in her voice that set his heart to beating.

"I am proud of you, Dolores," he whispered. "You are wonderful, you are talented, beautiful, but I see you are the same Dolores Lopez, and I love you, Dolores, you understand?"

"Oh, Mr. Galbraith!" she sighed softly. "It is really true that you do—love me?"

"It is true," he said earnestly, "and you, Dolores?"

There was a hesitating moment, and then her voice came to him quaveringly sweet. "It was always so, my friend, even when I was a poor, ragged little girl, and I swore that some day I would go to your country and find you; I would be so great that you would be proud to know me. But when the time really came I was afraid, senor. Well, Senor Paul, if I must—I was afraid of you—of myself—and I denied your acquaintance, if you can forgive me. Ah, come tomorrow morning, then—I care not for the dancing as I do for my old friend. Well—more, impatient Paul, I will say tomorrow."

So the stage lost its beautiful dancer, Dolores Lopez, after one short triumphant season, and Paul Galbraith gained a wife.

FOR GROWING BETTER CROPS

Use of Commercial Fertilizers Depends Upon Kind and Character Which Is to Be Raised.

(By D. C. LYON.)

Allow me to answer the question as to whether commercial fertilizers must be used by saying that I will answer it in the affirmative, excepting, perhaps, in the case of the farmer who carries on dairying to a considerable extent on purchased concentrate feeds, or the man who buys live stock and fattens it out on purchased grain.

Even in these cases the addition of so much nitrogen manures to the soil will "put it out of balance," and much better crops could be made by the application of some phosphoric acid and potash.

For the general farm where both corn and wheat can be grown, and where the land is kept in pasture part of the time, the four field, four year rotation provides a paying crop every year, keeps the land covered with a growing crop all the time, furnishes humus to the soil and prevents soil loss by washing or leaching.

The farm-made manure can be applied during the winter on the land intended for corn and turned under, or it can be allowed to accumulate in well-bedded box stalls and applied after breaking, the latter plan being greatly in favor with those who have adopted it.

No arbitrary plan can be laid down as to the depth of breaking, but out best authorities agree that a moderate depth is as well adapted to most crops as deep breaking is, and takes less labor.

For corn it is preferable to work the fertilizer, at least 600 pounds per acre of a 2, 6, 8 or 2 per cent. nitrogen, 6 per cent. phosphoric acid and 8 per cent. potash, into the soil before planting. Some may ask why a 2, 6, 8 and why not more nitrogen? To which I answer that the clover, timothy soil turned under has provided this, and the necessity of buying this high-priced element of plant food is gone.

KEEP VEGETABLES IN WINTER

Considerable Valuable Room Space May Be Saved by the Construction of Hopper Racks.

In storing your winter vegetables considerable room can be saved by making some hopper racks as shown in the illustration under the cellar stairs. If the stairs are against the wall you will have to board up only one side. The suspensions are nailed to the floor beams.

Apples, potatoes and onions can be placed in the hoppers in the order named. The hopper at the top will be the warmest and the one nearest the floor the coolest. You get the vegetables by reaching through the stairs.

Nitrogen of Hen Manure.

Hen manure unmixed with absorbents or chemicals suffers very rapid loss of nitrogen, but this loss can be effectively prevented by the free use of fine, dry loam, or the admixture of such materials as kanit, acid phosphate, muriate of potash or land plaster, or a combination of some of these.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Early fall plowing is the cheapest and best crop insurance known.

It has never seemed advisable to sow alfalfa in the fall with rye.

Sometimes it is a good plan to leave the stubble to catch the snow.

The successful garden is started in the fall, although not a seed may be planted.

To have winter parsley and lettuce lift some plants and set out in the cold frame.

Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn silage alone.

One of the qualities of the soy bean that commends it to the stock feeder is its protein richness.

Clean up the garden. A few weeds and other rubbish make a splendid nesting places for many destructive insects.

It is claimed that early-sown fall wheat is benefited when pastured with sheep to keep down the rank growth.

Many growers say that weeds are as valuable as fertilizers as clover and cowpeas as fertilizers as clover every year.

Soil taken from a well-established alfalfa field and spread on land to be sown to alfalfa is a very good way to inoculate it.

Cowpeas that have a lot of crab grass and fox tail mixed with them make even better bale hay than the straight vines.

Many farmers every year lose a portion of the value of their crops because they have not force enough to sow them in season.

Protein that is grown upon the farm is often more palatable than that which is purchased in concentrated form, and it is also cheaper.

At The Lutheran Church.

Our autum celebration of the Lords Supper will be observed in the Oakland church Sunday morning Nov. 8th and at Deer Park Sunday afternoon. Every true diciple of Christ counts it a privilege to be a witness to his unfailing love. No religious observance in which one can engage is so full of grace. What spiritual benefits we have, come to us by way of the cross. It points to guilty humanity, helpless and undone, with no human arm to save, lifted from its sin by the Redeemer who was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities. In a world torn by contentions, where temptations multiply, here is a shelter for the soul, that it may be refreshed with all the blessings of heaven. With all our needs where is one that can compare with our need of Christ? He sets a table of mercy and his tender appeal comes to the weak and the strong, to the uneasy and the burdened. There are many for whom we have prayed and they are yet on the highway of the world and often our human fralties make us hesitate to undertake any great work, but here in the Holy Supper with a Savior who is present to bless, we may receive the fullness of power and a might that is according to our faith. In view of the exceeding riches of grace offered, let us come with penitence and faith to Him who said. "Do this in remembrance of me."

Faithfully,
YOUR PASTOR.

GRANTSVILLE.

Charles Garrett and Frank Rollings, young men of Pocatello, Idaho, who are walking 10,000 miles across country on a wager of $10,000, passed through Grantsville last week. Eight men left Pocatello, Idaho, on February 27, to walk to Augusta, Maine. They are supposed to reach Augusta, February 27, 1914. The route was laid out by the Olympic Club, of Pocatello. Garrett and Rollings, the only ones to stick, have already covered 8,256 miles, and stand a good chance of finishing of their cross country walk on time.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The summer citizens and the thousands of Park visitors will read with joy the story of the triumph of the Speicher local option bill. It was a glorious victory. Next summer when you return to the Park Oakland will be free from the disgraceful drunken scenes witnessed the past summer; free from the dram shop and its alluring signs. The majority given this splendid bill means that the law will be enforced to the very letter and woe be it to the man who dare violate it.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Europe's War.

We have had some great wars in the past history of the world, wars that caused people to look aghast and shudder. But in all the annals of history there has been nothing to compare with the awful carnage that is cursing Europe today. It is simply satanic. The papers are full of accounts of the diabolical butchery of human beings, yet we doubtless do not know the full details.

All the horrows of the past and the bloodiest wars of all the pagan nations pale before the present conflict. Is it any wonder that scores of people in those war devastated countries lost their reason.

At this distance from the bloody scenes, all kind hearted people in our own land suffer. Those who know God are appalled at the suffering, yet those who know their Bibles, are not surprised at the awful carnage, for these and other calamities are predicted. Satan the god of this age, is certainly having his inning, but we trust his time is short.

It forces us to ask what of our boasted civilization! What is the rapid progress of the world! What of the evevation of man! Look at it from any view point and you are compelled to admit that man is a failure. Under all the tests of the past he has failed. Do you doubt it? Look at Europe, There are thousands who rejoice over the victims of slaughter. The christain nations of the age should learn the lesson. They show the real spirit of hatred now.

If a few thousand of French and English are slaughtered, cities and villages burned and the land divastated, then Berlin sets the example of feasting and indulging in great rejoicing and the Empire follows suit.

If English, French and Russian troops succeed in sending into eternity a few thousands of Austrians and Germans then Paris, London and Petrograd are celebrating the victory and thanking God for it. They are all so thankful that they celebrated the event—sending thousands of souls into eternity, over the broken heart of fathers, inspite of the wants of mothers and widows, or the cry of children. All this is nothing—both sides thank God for what they have been able to do, and take fresh courage and wade in deeper. It is hell let loose on earth, and satan is leading the nations in this awful slaughter. We have heard much of late of the progress in world conversion and the rapidly advancing kingdom which makes for universal rightousness. God's word says this is an evil age, the end of which is war and destruction, an awful tribulation. The end is not yet. The ferocious beasts of war may wear themselves out, or surfeit themselves with human blood, and so be chained for a time, but by and by they will break loose until the climax is reached in the great judgment crash, when the Judge from heaven will come to deal with these nations.

The effect of this satanic war is disastrous to the nations financially and religiously. The heathen world looks on and asks is this the collapse of christianity? By no means, though it may result in the collapse of christendom. There is a wide difference between the two—christendom includes all professing christians, all adherents of the church, in a word everything that is not really christian or truly united to Christ. I quote from an influential sercular paper. It says: Surely the heathen will laugh and the mohammedans mock with derision as they witness the great exalted nations of Europe, nations whose name and fame have gone to the ends of the earth for their education, there progress in science in the arts, in civilization, and in christianity, now slashing at each other's throats. No wonder Count Okuma, Prime Minister of Japan, declares that the end of European civilization is at hand! What answer can the christian church of Europe give to the inquiry of the non-christain world? By what arguments can it be proven that the so called christian nation is more certain to keep a sacred impact, solemnly entrusted into, than a so called pagan nation? This war strikes a blow at the heart of missions and adds a financial and moral burden that can be carried by the christian church only through agonizing intercession, protracted fasting and unprecedented sacrifice.

And what is it all about any how?

Seven million Belgians are facing starvation already. If we look behind the scenes, if we get down to basal facts it will be seen that the godless ambition, under the guise of religion, the satanic purposes of the greatest ecclesiastical hierarchy of the world, must in the light of an impartial verdict be held responsible for the act that plunged the nations of Europe into this unprecidented human slaughter. The concordat which would force the Roman Catholic faith and government on Servia was the match that exploded the magazin that has blown about one million souls already into eternity. But the end is not yet. We can only wait and see and hope that peace may soon come.

Yours truly,
JOHANNES.

Record Exports Due to The War.

War's demand on American granaries, mills and packing houses, as shown in an analysis by the Department of Commerce, resulted in record exportations of breadstuffs, meats and other food articles, during September. Many trade currents, broken by the European upheaval, have shifted to the United States; France demanding immense quantities of fresh beef, South America and Europe buying large amounts of flour, while nearly all the markets formerly supplied from other sources are importing millions of pounds of American sugar.

The value of foodstuffs sold abroad last month was $68,490,886, nearly double that of September, a year ago when the total was $39,786,624.

The war demand for wheat brought exports for the three months' ending with September to the highest point ever reached in any corresponding period. Total exports, including flour in terms of wheat in the three months aggregated 89,250,000 bushels compared with 59,000,000 bushels in that period a year ago. For September the exports of flour were about normal, but the wheat sold abroad was more than twice that exported during the month. The wheat total was 26,000,000 bushels. France bought 7,572,000 bushels, the United Kingdom, 6,640,000; the Netherlands, 2,201,000, while other European nations bought 5,490,000 bushels. More than 2,560,000 bushels were exported to Canada, while another effect of war was the shipment of 580,000 bushels to Brazil. Exports of flour to Latin-America nearly doubled those of September one year ago. Exports of fresh beef in September amounted to 7,000,000 pounds, 11 times that sent abroad in September, 1913. The 3,000,000 pounds of canned beef exported was eight times the amount sold in September last year. The increase in refined sugar exports was tremendous. In September 52,290,773 pounds were shipped abroad, compared with 3,924,540 one year ago.

Exportations of cattle and sheep decreased, compared with September last year. More than 1,600 cattle were sold abroad in September, 1913, compared with about 900 last month. The decrease in sheep shipments showed about the same percentage.

A big forest fire is raging in District No. 1, in the Barnard and Sharpless neighborhoods. Nearly everybody was out fighting fire Wednesday night, this morning about 25 acres of ground have been burnt over. It is supposed the leaves were set on fire by sparks from the engine.

In purchasing Fire Insurance the first object is to secure protection against loss of your savings of years, represented by your home, store or stock of goods, and you should look into the quality of your protection as carefully as you would the title of your property or the selling power of your stock.

Investigate this quality BEFORE and NOT AFTER your fire.

The Home Insurance Co., New York

offers you the very best protection obtainable, having paid out $150,000,000.00 to satisfied policy-holders, and while the cost to you BEFORE THE FIRE may be a trifle higher than some of the protection offered you by Mutual and so-called Independent Companies in which the cost to you AFTER THE FIRE may be infinitely greater.

The Home's $35,000,000.00 assets makes you safe. We invite intelligent comparison and suggest to you as a business man to secure "Safety irst."

Last Monday about 4:30 p. m., Mr. Walter Flanigan and wife, who had spent the day in Oakland, started for their home near Deer Park, in a buggy. A VISIT TO WEST POINT

An Oakland Lady's Description of America's Army School.

In a letter to her home people, Miss Mary Rebecca Thayer, while on a recent visit to West Point has this to say:

This is really a wonderful place. None of the things one hears about it are exaggerated. The scenery is some of the finest I've ever looked at, especially now, when all the hillsides are gold, brown and russet. The buildings are very fine, all of the same grey stone, and severely plain. But the poor cadets; you've never heard of such strict rules as they have. They can't go to the train to meet their girls, because that is out of limits. They are allowed two dollars a month to spend and not a cent more. They get up at five in summer and six in winter. They have no furniture in their rooms but a bed. They have one summer vacation in the four years. They live absolutely by rule every minute, and are demerited for the least thing. The uniforms at first seemed to me very uguly, but already I begin to like them. However I still maintain that the overcoats are awful, and that full dress uniforms at a dance does'nt look nearly so well as regular evening dress. But the officers of the Post are altogether lovely in their dark blue and gold, and their beautiful flowing capes. The hotel is dreadful, little bits of rooms with no heat, and the only heat anywhere from coal stoves. Some of the rooms have only candles. They say, "It was good enough for General Grant, so it's good enough for the people now." The food is good, though the Government, so a cadet told me, has appropriated a large sum for a modern hotel, soon to be erected. We came down yesterday just in time for the game, Notre Dame vs. West Point. It's their biggest game next to the navy. West Point won 20 to 7, and it was great fun. The dance began early, because they had to stop at 10.30 sharp. I was sorry for them, but glad for myself, because chaperoning at a hop is frankly a bore—especially as Vassar conventions don't allow chaperons to dance. The hall in which they had the hop was lonely, with tattered old battle flags draping the walls and numberless portraits and tablets * * *

After chapel I saw the mess hall. It is a most wonderful place, big and clean looking, and the kitchens, bakery, refrigerator room, and so on are a joy to inspect, they are all so spotless. Everything is white tiling and mosaic, and of course everything is uniform, even to the cadets silver napkin-rings with their names engraved on them. This afternoon I shall see "parade," and then back to Poughkeepsie by seven o'clock.

A Pretty Home Wedding.

On Wednesday, Nov. 4th, at 8 p. m., at the home of the bride at Hauser, Md. Nora V. the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Mosser was united in marriage with Arthur F. Yutzy, son of Mr. Jonas Yutzy, of Sunnyside, Md.

The parlor was beautifully decorated with ferns, and at one corner an arch decorated with ferns and chrysanthemums, had been formed. Miss Dora Nines, a cousin of the bride, presided at the organ and the happy couple, attended by Miss Hazel Mosser, a cousin of the bride, and Mr. Wellington Yutzy, brother of the groom marched into the parlor and were met under the arch by the Rev. E. Roy Hauser, who pronounced them man and wife. The bride was attired in white messaline covered with shadow lace and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The groom wore the conventional black. The bride has been organist for a number of years at St. John's Lutheran church, of which she and the groom are members. They were the recipients of many useful presents. Those present outside the immediate families were, Miss Dora Nines, Miss Anna White cotton, of Elkins, W. Va., and Miss Hazel Mosser, of Hauser, Md. The writer and a host of friends wish them a long and happy voyage on the matrimonial sea. E. R. H.

B. & O. Railroad Company Prohibit Use of Tobbaco.

The circular order sent out by the officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company from Baltimore, several days ago prohibiting employes to use tobacco in any form while waiting on the general public became effective November 1. The rule applies to all employes. The order is more of an appeal to personal pride and cleanliness than a mandate. The new rule is expected to meet with the approval of the general traveling public and is considered a step taken in the right direction by the officials of the company. Surely the world is growing better.

GOOD ROADS ALL OVER COUNTY.

Let This Be the Slogan of Every Farmer in Garrett County.

This paper stands for Good Roads all over Garrett county. It believes and will advocate that every section of Garrett county should have greatly improved public roads. The Republican has been urging the benefits and the necessity of better roads. It has been doing this ever since the idea of good roads started.

It bespeaks the hearty co-operation of every farmer and property owner with the Board of County Commissioners in their efforts to meet the demand of the public for a better road system. The Commissioners have given special attention to the demands of the people of election district. This year they have tried to make every possible improvement in the public roads throughout the county.

Good roads are needed everywhere, therefore the subject should be kept before the public. Aggitation is necessary.

In this connection the following brief review from Better Roads will be interesting. It is full of sound argument for better roads.

Better roads are civilizers.

Better roads are educators.

Better roads pay for themselves.

Better roads convert swamps into homesteads.

Better roads are as essential as harbors.

Better roads are promoters of good health.

Better roads are mile-stones of civilization.

Better roads bind people together in industry, intelligence and patriotism.

Better roads will bring the country to the town with its produce and will send the town to the country for pure air and better health.

Better roads will convert barren lands into fertile fields.

Better roads will enhance the value of everything they touch.

Better roads will bring good returns to everything that travel them.

Better roads will facilitate and cheapen transportation.

Better roads will bring untold wealth to the producers.

Better roads will save millions to the consumers.

Better roads will be the solution of the rural problem.

Better roads will make country life more attractive than city life.

Better roads will make the consumers dollar go further and will put into the farmer's pocket a greater portion of that dollar.

Better roads are indispensable to our growth and progress.

Better roads will make passable the two great links of civilization—model home and the country school.

Better roads mean a higher life for the people of the states upon whom rest the responsibility of our government and our Christian civilization.

Every dollar expended in encouraging road building, every dollar employed to carry expert advice on road construction into every section of our nation is a distinct contribution to the welfare, comfort and happiness of the people of the nation.

PRESIDENT NAMES THANKSGIVING DAY

Asks People to Cease Labors and Render Prayers.

President Wilson issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, setting Thursday, November 26, as a day of "thanksgiving and prayer and inviting the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to Almighty God."

The proclamation follows:

"It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that is now drawing to a close since we last observed our day of national thanksgiving has been, while a year of discipline because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also a year of special blessing for us.

"It has been vochsafed to us to remain at peace, with honor, and in some parts to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those who are in want. We have been privileged by our own peace and self-control in some degree to steady the counsels and shape the hopes and purposes of a day of fear and distress. Our people have looked upon their own life as a nation with a deeper comprehension, a deeper realization of their responsibilities as well as of their blessings and a keener sense of the moral and practical significance of what their part among the nations of the world may come to be.

"The hurtful effect of foreign war in their own industrial and commercial affairs have made them feel the more fully and see the more clearly their mutual dependence upon one another and have stirred them to a helpful co-operation such as they have seldom practiced before. They have been quickened by a great moral stimulation. Their unmistakable ardor for peace, their earnest pity and disinterested sympathy for those who are suffering, their readiness to help and to think of the needs of others have revealed them to themselves as well as to the world.

"Our crops will feed all who need food; the self-possession of our people amid the most serious anxieties and difficulties and the steadiness and resourcefulness of our business men will serve other nations as well as our own.

"The business of the country has been supplied with new instrumentalities and the commerce of the world with new channels of trade and intercourse. The Panama Canal has been opened to the commerce of the nations. The two continents of America have been bound in closer guise of friendship. New instrumentalities of international trade been created which will be also new instrumentalties of acquaintance, intercourse and mutual service. Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 26th of November next as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wanted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 28th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-ninth.

"WOODROW WILSON.

"By the President:

"ROBERT LANSING,

"Acting Secretary of State."

The Red Cross Christmas Suggestion.

The American Red Cross Society, true to its reputation as a doer of good works, has made a Christmas suggestion to the people of this country which has in it the true Christian savor. It is that people who are in the habit of spending goodly sums in extensive giving of Christmas presents change their plan this year, and send the money to the Society for use in feeding or otherwise aiding the countless thousands of almost helpless war-sufferers in Europe. It is further suggested that the donors of these funds send to the Red Cross Society a list of the names of the persons to whom gifts would have been sent, to each of whom will be mailed an acknowledgment of their participation in the errand of mercy on which the money will be sent.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

The stumpage value represents the value of the timber as it stands in the tree. This timber, after going through the process of manufacture, is many times more valuable than is shown by the stumpage value. Upon the total wooded area of 264,483 acres there is a stand of 409,283,000 feet, board measure, of hardwoods and 1,580,000 feet of pine and hemlock, having a total value as it stands in the forest of $1,223,144.

When comparing the amonnt of saw timber in the different election districts, it is found that District No. 3, which is the largest district in the country, has the largest area of woodland, and also has twice as much merchantable timber as any other district. There are considerable areas in this district where the timber has not been cut, but it is not likely that it will long remain uncut. From the timber standpoint, District No. 8 is next in importance, although little more so than Districts No. 6 and No. 12, which have almost as much timber. The next in rank as regards amount and value of standing timber is District No. 1, which is the second largest from the standpoint of wooded area and has a high precentage of woodland, but has the lowest average stand per acre. Forest fires are accountable to a great extent for the small stand of timber as compared with the wooded area. District No. 4, while not a large one, ranks next in the amount and value of timber.

While there is some white pine in the county, it is in such small areas or so scattered with the hardwoods as to make a white pine type impracticable. Most of the pine in the county is the pitch pine. There are extensive areas where the pine or hemlocks are so thoroughly mixed with the hardwoods as to make certain combinations classes.

The merchantable hardwood type of forest contains the heaviest stands of timber of the hardwood classes and represents those areas in which the stand is sufficiently heavy to conduct very profitable lumbering operations. This class is divided into three subclasses, depending upon the average stand of saw timber.

The merchantable hardwoods of the first class occur in but one district of the county, viz.: District No. 13, and cover 100 acres. The average stand of timber 18,000 feet, board measure, to the acre, representing 1 per cent of the wooded area of the district and 1-10 of one per cent of the forest area of the county, and has a value of $7,200.

Merchantable hardwoods of the second class. This type is represented in more than half of the districts of the county and has a total acreage of 4383 or 1½ per cent of the total forest area of the county. The stand of this type averages 8,336 feet per acre with a total stand for the county of 36,544,000 feet, having a stumpage value of $109,632.

Merchantable hardwoods of the third class are generally distributed over the entire county, there being but a single district, No. 9, in which this type is not represented. The total area covered by this class is 31,272 acres, representing 11.3 per cent of the forest area. The average stand per acre of this class is 3,277 feet, board measure, making a total of 102,508,000 feet, with a stumpage value of $307,424, which is the highest total value of any other class.

Culled hardwood of the first class is well represented in every district of the county, covering an area of 93,121 acres, or 23 per cent of the total wooded area. The average stand of timbe of this type is 1,713 feet to the acre. The total stand is 108,268,600 feet, having a stumpage value of $270,745.

Culled hardwoods of the second class cover a larger area (62,490 acres) than any other class, comprising 33.4 per cent of the total wooded area. The average stand of timber of this class is 890 feet per acre, giving a total stand of 82,316,000 with a stumpage value of $205,790.

Culled hardwoods of the third class are represented in every district of the county expect the 13th, with a total acreage of 70,362, the second largest of of any type, and covering 25.5 per cent of the wooded area. The total stand of saw timber of this type is 30,678,000 feet, having a stumpage value of $76,695.

Hardwood sapplings occur in every district of the county except the 13th, but covers only 7,099 acres, or 2.5 per cent of the total wooded area. The sapling type represents young stands too small to contain any saw timber.

While Hemlock is a common tree in the county it is not found in commercial quantities except in a few sections.

Hemlock of the first class is found in but three districts, the third, eighth and twelfth, covering a total area of 592 acres and representing but .2 per cent of the total wooded area. The average stand per acre, however, is higher than that of any other type (25,000 feet), representing a stand of saw timber amounting to 14,800,000 feet, valued on the stump at $74,000.

Hemlock of the second class is found in four districts, viz: first, third, eighth and eleventh, covering 872 acres or .3 per cent of the total forest area. The average stand per acre is 15,190 feet producing a merchantable stumpage of 13,246,000 feet board measure, valued at $66,230.

While several species of pine are found in the country, only one species, viz.: pitch pine, occurs in pure stands of sufficient area to be listed as a seperate type.

Pitch pine of the second class is found in pure stands in but one district of the county, the twelfth, and covers 206 acres or about 1 per cent of the tota forest area. The stand measured in saw timber is 1,200 feet per acre, giving a total for the county of 247,000 feet, valued on the stump at $988.

Pitch pine of the third class occurs as a commercial type in but one distr[illegible] the county, viz: district I. [illegible]re it covers 411 acres, represe[illegible]ng about 1 per cent. of the total forest area. The average stand of saw timber per acre is 760 feet board measure with a total of 312,000 feet, having a stumpage value of $1,248.

The most important of the mixed types is a combination of merchantable hardwoods of the first class and hemlock of the second class occurring in District No. 3 and No. 11, covering an area of 2,529 acres, or 9 per cent. of the total forest area. The stand of saw timber of this class is 40,045,000 feet, representing a stumpage value of $127,945.

The mixed hardwood and hemlock, occurs in two districts, 4 and 5, covering a total area of 492 acres or about 1 per cent. of the total forest area. The average stand per acre, board feet of saw timber, is 5400, making a total of 2,657,000 feet for the type, having a stumpage value of $12,893.

Hardwood and pine occur in mixture as commercial types in two forms, in District No. 3 only, where it covers 69 acres, producing at the rate of 1204 feet per acre, 83,000 feet of saw timber with a stumpage value of $270.

A mixture of pitch pine of the third class with hardwood saplings occurs in District No. 1 to the extent of 156 acres, which with a cut of 760 feet board measure per acre, represents 110,000 feet board measure with a stumpage value of $450.

THE FUTURE OF PROHIBITION.

The Result of the Elections in Garrett and Carrell Counties Prophetic.

Whatever may be individual opinions concerning the propriety of the liquor traffic, one thing must be apparent to all observers, says the Sentinel, of Westminster, there is a steady, if slow, growth in the volume of opposition to its continuance. It has been agitated for sixty years, or perhaps a little more than that. Gen. Neal Dow, of Maine, was the first pronounced leader in the cause. Previous to his time moral suasion was the general and, it might be said, almost the only agency employed in the cause of temperance and there was a time, not so long before the organization of temperance societies, when there was no public or concerted public action for the reclamation of the inebriate. Then, along about 1840, or possibly a little earlier, the Washingtonian movement arose and flourished. Temperance societies were organized and public meetings were held frequently and periodically, in the churches and school houses. That period had succeeded an era when the bottle on the sideboards of the well to do was deemed indispensible to hospitality, and ministers of the Gospel would have been deemed discourteous if they had declined the social glass in the homes of their parishioners. And some of them, brilliant, able and loving men, fell, under the fierce temptation.

The Washingtonian movement was enthusiastic and full of the fire of awakened zeal, but, while the flame did not go out it became less glowing. It was kindled to a blaze by the organization of the Sons of Temperance, and while that was at itz zenith the Prohibition cause was born. To what that has grown need not be repeated. Bit by bit, county by county, state by state, it has extended its triumphs, and it is still growing. Temporarily defeated, here and there, it returns to the charge and enlarges its borders. Taking into consideration that most of its victories have been won in comparatively recent years, its early general triumph may be looked for by many, and the zealous may talk about and hope for a saloonless nation in 1920. In this they will assuredly be disappointed. When it is considered that less than seventy years ago barrooms were wide open by law on Sunday and the bibulous could quench their thirst for half a dime or the old "flippenny bit," when long since that time bars were accessible and drunkenness was common on election day, the most optimistic can hardly look for early universal prohibition. But the leaven is working and will continue to work till the whole lump will be leavened. The result of elections in Carroll and Garrett counties on this subject, on Tuesday strongly emphasizes that opinion.

Mermaids And Sirens

Sad Mishap Spoils the Courtship of Ananias Sline

By J. LEROY BARSTOW

Ananias Sline finished mopping up the floor of the First bank of Quincy Harbor, cast a look out of the window up and down the street and then suddenly dodged over to the mirror to straighten a brilliant red necktie that blossomed on his shining shirt front.

In a few seconds he was standing in the doorway, ready to make a sweeping bow to the new schoolteacher, Miss Hannah Peabody.

Miss Peabody, who was plump and good natured looking, with bright brown eyes and rather a weather beaten complexion, smiled cordially at the little man.

"Good morning, Mr. Sline. Lovely day, isn't it?" she smiled.

"Grand!" agreed Ananias, rubbing his bald head with a blue cotton handkerchief. "I'm going eeling tonight," he added.

"Oh, goody!" Miss Peabody clapped her hands in a very juvenile manner and glanced archly at the little sailor. "You know what you promised, Mr. Sline."

"I ain't forgotten," blushed Ananias delightedly. "I'm going to start soon's it's dark. We have to spear 'em by lantern light, you know."

"Won't it be jolly fun? I shall be ready at 6 o'clock. Will you come for me, or shall I meet you at the dock?"

Ananias hesitated. There were several other comely ladies in Quincy Harbor who had their matrimonial eyes fastened on Ananias Sline, and it would be better if his attentions to the new schoolteacher did not become public property until he had rather broken the news to his old loves.

Miss Peabody boarded with Miss Simms, and the Simms house was across the street from Em Bevis, and Mrs. Bevis had been the recipient of many attentions from Ananias, and there was the Widow Rowell, with whom Ananias boarded. It was better that the prospective eelers meet on the dock.

It was a busy day at the bank, and while the little porter found plenty to do, he found time to complete his preparations for the evening's sport. Among other things was the writing of a poem to Hannah Peabody.

"I'd ruther mop fifteen miles of painted floor than write one pome," was the dejected opinion of Mr. Sline when he finally tucked the ink smirched paper into his pocket.

* * * * * * *

The Widow Rowell rushed into Em Bevis' department store, her little, dark face quivering with excitement. Although these two ladies were ordinarily rivals for the hand and heart of Ananias Sline, now, in the person of

"JUST SEE WHAT HE SAYS TO HER, THE OLD FLIRT!"

Miss Hannah Peabody, they found common cause for complaint.

"Em," cried the widow breathlessly, "what do you think that sly cat of a schoolteacher's going to do?"

Mrs. Bevis paled. "I'd never guess, Hetty," she said faintly.

"Going eeling with Ananias—eeling, mind you, and she so scared of a boat she turns sick when she looks at the harbor mussed up in a northwester! Ain't she bold?"

"I should call her brave," remarked Mrs. Bevis dryly. "Ain't it wonderful, Hetty, what some wimmen will go through with for the sake of a little shrimp of a man?" And then:

"How'd you hear about it?" questioned Mrs. Bevis at last.

"He sneaked his old fishing clothes out this noon, and he dropped something on the floor that gave me a clew to where he was going and who was going with him."

Mrs. Rowell drew a piece of rumpled paper from her pocket and pointed to the ink stained pages. There were many interlineations and many blurred words, but the whole thing proved to be the rough draft of Ananias' poem to his lady fair of the moment. It was evident that Ananias had been reading poetry, for the lines were addressed to "My Lady Fare."

"Humph!" sniffed Em Bevis. "Ananias can't spell worth a cent! A body would think he was a trolley conductor and she was a passenger."

"Never mind the spelling," urged the widow eagerly. "Just see what he says to her—the old—flirt!"

Mrs. Bevis settled her spectacles on her nose, and her large, strongly marked countenance settled into an expression of puzzled wonderment as she slowly picked out the words from the jumble of corrections:

"My Lady Fare!
Oh, Hannah, be my lady fare!
To say this thing I'd hardly dare,
But you have smiled on me."

"You bet she has!" interjected Em bitterly. "Grinned like a Cheshire cat whenever she passed the bank." Then she resumed reading:

"Tonight we will a-eeling go,
And while the boat rocks to and fro
I'll hold your dainty hand in mine
And look into your eyes divine."

"Did you ever hear such wicked, unChristianlike gibberish?" interrupted Mrs. Rowell jealously.

"Never. Just listen to this, Hetty:

"And when I tell you of my love
Just when the moon is bright above
I wish that I could say this, Hannah,
In a finer, proper manner"—

"There's, he's given out, poor soul and I don't wonder," commented Mrs Bevis sourly as she handed the paper back to Hetty Rowell. "What you going to do about it, Hetty?"

The Widow Rowell laughed shrilly and folded her arms.

"I'm going fishing," she announced.

Em Bevis' face relaxed; she emitted a hoarse giggle.

"You going eeling?" she asked significantly.

"Why not? I been eeling lots of times in my life. The bay's free to all, and seems like I'd relish some fried eels tomorrow."

"Hetty Rowell, you do beat all," chuckled Em appreciatively.

"I aim to," retorted Hetty.

"I don't mind going along to see the fun," remarked Mrs. Bevis.

"Come along. Can you spear an eel?"

"Lord, no, Hetty! But I can hold the torch while you do it, and I'm a good hand at the oars."

"I've been down making my boat ready. We'll start about 6 o'clock Ananias asked for a 5 o'clock supper—said he had to go somewheres this evening."

"All right. You meet me down on the beach. I know where the boat's drawn up on the sand."

Promptly at 6 o'clock Em Bevis and the Widow Rowell met on the sandy beach. There were many lights about the placid harbor, anchor lights hanging from the larger vessels and little flaring lights from the many eeling boats that were abroad that night.

A light flared at the foot of the landing steps below the dock and then suddenly darted out and away across the bay.

"That's them," said the widow truculently.

In half an hour the two women were close in the wake of Ananias Sline's boat. While the flare of their own torch prevented Ananias or his fair companion from recognizing the occupants of the boat behind, the two widows had a fair view of the fickle Ananias and the timid schoolteacher.

Ananias was standing in the bow of his boat manipulating his torch with one hand while he skillfully speared an eel with the other. The flare of the torch penetrated the water and lured the inquisitive wrigglers to the surface, where the strong arm and unerring aim of the little sailor quickly captured them.

Every time Ananias speared an eel the schoolteacher squealed, and when the wriggling fish was popped into a large covered can Miss Peabody called Ananias a bad, cruel man in a most caressing tone.

"Disgusting," whispered Em Bevis jealously.

"She's a siren," added Hetty Rowell, who was possessed of imagination when occasion demanded it.

"The loudest siren I ever heard," said Mrs. Bevis, who was of a practical turn of mind and had heard the automobile danger horns.

"He's taking a rest," whispered Mrs. Rowell sharply. "I'll bet he runs the boat up close under the old wreck yonder and reads that there pome to her."

"He'll read it to me at the same time if I have to wade there," muttered Mrs. Bevis, picking up the oars in her strong hands. "'Tain't for nothing he's burned out the kerosene in my front parlor."

"I didn't know he'd been there enough to count the cost of kerosene," sneered Hetty Rowell as they followed the larger boat toward the west beach, where the skeleton of an abandoned schooner was half submerged in the high tide.

"There's plenty you ain't aware of, Hetty," said Mrs. Bevis coldly as she bent to her oars.

The two widows fell into silence as their craft followed the boat ahead. Hetty Rowell extinguished the torch, for she had no heart to spear eels when that organ was pierced with the barb of Ananias' perfidy.

All of Quincy Harbor had expected that Ananias would marry his landlady, but so far the god of luck had decreed that the little sailorman should escape his quarry; then his attentions to the owner of the village department store had diverted public interest to Em Bevis, and finally it was an open question which one of the two widows would win Ananias Sline. Meantime Miss Hannah Peabody had come to Quincy Harbor, and Ananias had been smitten with her mature charms. There might be safety in courting a third maiden.

But Ananias was really in love tonight. The poem he had written burned in his pocket, and he could scarcely wait until they were under the lee of the wreck of the Hepsy B. before drawing the paper from his pocket and holding it to the light.

"Miss Peabody," he said diffidently, "I've got something to say to you, and I've put it into a pome; it's all true—just how I feel—and what I wrote!"

"Indeed?" gushed and probably blushed Miss Hannah Peabody. "You naughty, poetical Mr. Sline! Who would have suspected you of writing poetry!"

"Silly ninny!" hissed Em Bevis, who had guided her boat into the still water that filled the skeleton of the Hepsy B. Some of the hull remained, and that was all that hid the eavesdroppers from the lovers.

"Ahem!" Ananias cleared his throat and braced his shoulders.

"To My Lady Fare," he began.

"You dear, delicious man!" tittered Hannah Peabody.

"Oh, Hannah, be my lady fare,
To say this thing I'd hardly dare,
But you have smiled on me.
Tonight we will a-eeling go,
And while the boat rocks to and fro
I'll hold your dainty hand in mine
And look into your eyes divine.
And when I tell you of my love
Just when the moon is bright above
I wish that I could say this, Hannah,
In a finer, proper manner,
Indeed, I love you like my life,
Hannah, will you be my wife?"

The voice of Ananias ceased and there was no sound save the slapping of the little waves against the hull of the Hepsy B.

"LET GO, HANNAH, LOVE!" BAWLED ANANIAS.

Then a delighted laugh broke from the nervous lips of Miss Hannah Peabody.

"Oh—oh—Ananias!" she cried sobbingly and held out her arms.

Ananias came toward her to receive his reward.

At that moment something happened. It was a turn of fate undreamed of by the lovers or the two jealous widows beyond the warped planks of the wreck.

A little tug had puffed into the harbor to make anchorage for the night. The hoarse boom of her whistle had interrupted Ananias' poem. And now as her lights neared the dock there came the heavy wash from her wake.

There came one long, wicked wave that lifted Ananias' craft and rocked it dizzily. Miss Peabody screamed lustily and clung to the little sailor.

"Let go, Hannah, love!" bawled Ananias, who was afraid of a woman and a rocking boat.

Came another wave, hissing and curling in crisp anticipation of the disaster it would create.

When the wave broke against the hull of the Hepsy B. Ananias and Miss Peabody were floundering in the water, while the two widows were rowing madly to their rescue.

It was Em Bevis' strong arm that caught hold of Miss Peabody's coat sleeve and dragged that half conscious lady to temporary refuge in the little boat.

But to Hetty Rowell fell the honors of the occasion.

From the boat she had climbed to the rotting timbers of the Hepsy B., and now she leaned over and helped Ananias to scramble to a seat beside her on the bulwarks.

"I say, Em," she called to Mrs. Bevis, with a cheeriness born of the situation, "you take Miss Peabody straight home and send Jim Lewis after Ananias and me. That boat's too small for four of us."

Em Bevis made no reply. She turned her boat toward the dark, and the little craft vanished in the gloom.

Ananias was shivering with cold.

"Drat that woman!" he muttered savagely. "Mrs. Rowell, she near drowned me! Deliver me from a woman who can't swim!"

"Every siren ain't a mermaid," purred Hetty Rowell, smiling into the darkness.

Em Bevis conveniently forgot to send Jim Lewis with a boat, and when the Widow Rowell awoke to this unpleasant realization she lifted her voice with that of her disgruntled boarder, and they finally attracted the attention of some fishermen, who rescued them from their unpleasant position.

Incidentally the rescue afforded an amusing story to go the rounds of the village, while it cemented the firm belief that Hetty Rowell would marry Ananias Sline in the end.

And Ananias begins to believe it himself.

Miss Peabody resigned her position the next day and went home.

And Em Bevis and the Widow Rowell are not on speaking terms.

WAR EMBLEM IS THE THUNDER BIRD

Custom of Wearing Insignia By Soldiers Borders Upon Fetich.

More than 12,000,000 fighting men in Europe are today wearing insignia on their clothing or are being led to victory or defeat by banners depicting a bird displayed in what Americans would call spread-eagle style. The troops that wave the Stars and Stripes aloft have in the past and present been led on by the counterfeit presentment of an eagle with out-spreaded wings. Seldom do those engaged in war or mere onlookers ever give a thought to what appears to be on consideration an odd and relatively meaningless custom that almost verges on fetich worship. To be sure, one nation uses the painted or embroidered effigy of an elephant on its banners, another a dragon, and so on, but these nations are hardly civilized in the higher sense.

Investigation of encyclopedia information discloses no good reasons why America, Germany and Russia should place a bird on their national emblems.

Some weeks ago the Carlisle Indian School, following the footsteps of the American Society of Indians, adopted as the school emblem a thunder bird. The thunder bird was designed for the school by Angel De Cora Deitz, the greatest authority in the world on Indian art. From Mrs. Deitz, who, with her husband, William Lone Star Deitz, is teaching art at the Carlisle School, it has been learned that nearly all the Indian tribes recognize a bird as a symbol of authority and social rank. The artist, who is a Winnebago Indian of aristocratic lineage and who has delved deeply into Indian legends, says that the thunder bird or its equivalent in various forms has been a mark of distinction and authority probably for many thousand years.

According to an accepted legend ages had passed with all the spirits dominating land, water and air remaining on relative equality. Ancient Indian clans, for conveniences of recognition and occupation, had associated themselves with various patron spirits. The story of the achievement of domination by the thunder bird is tedious, but tells how a fatigued warrior of the thunder bird clan lay exhausted at the edge of a precipice watching still waters far below. His attention was attracted by the disburbance of the limpid depths from which the water spirit emerged to meet the thunder bird in deadly conflict. The observer is supposed to have been the only human being who has ever seen these spirits. As one or the other became exhausted they implored the warriors for help with specious pleas. Eventually he aided the thunder bird, and the water spirit sank, never to be seen again.

Among the Indians the thunder bird stands for authority, dignity, arbitration and, most important of all, peace. There are many who believe that the emblem of a bird with wide-spread wings has been appropriated by the Europeans from ancient America. If so, it is an unfortunate perversion that makes the symbol of arbitration and peace the banner which leads to war and devastation.

A Humanitarian Nation.

The Washington, D. C., Post truly says: That the part that the United States is playing in the war should forever establish its status as the most humanitarian of all nations. The war had hardly begun before the people of the United States sensed the fact that it was allotted to them to provide for the starving, heal the sick and comfort the afflicted in the war which has stirred the world to its depth.

While the nations of Europe are gripped by rage and revenge, the United States has been teaching a lesson of brotherhood that should leave its mark on history. Untouched by the war, with no direct responsibility except that involved in universal brotherhood, the United States has sent its doctors and nurses to Europe to relieve the wounded. Moved by the same noble impulse, many American cities are now sending ships to Europe to relieve the starving Belgians.

The people of this nation are playing their part well—better than it was ever played before. The generosity that characterized the nation's attitude in disasters in the past has reached its climax in the relief work that is the one silver ray behind the brooding cloud that has spread over Europe.

B. & O. Buying Ties.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company is again buying cross ties, after having shut down completely for several months as a the result of the business depression. The tie inspectors are now at work again and are taking up ties at various points. It is understood that there will be a general increase in work on the B. & O. lines shortly and that the purchase of ties is the first move towards improving the roadbed. The B. & O. railroad has also purchased several thousand tons of steel rails.

CATTLE ORDERED KILLED

Foot and Mouth Disease Appears in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—By order of the federal and state veterinarians in the Pittsburgh district, in a drastic effort to stamp out the foot and mouth disease which has made its appearance among cattle in this county workmen began digging trenches on two farms near Swissvale. Orders for the killing of 115 animals were given. At the stock yards the work of disinfecting sheds and other quarters was vigorously prosecuted.

Owners will be compensated by the state and federal governments for the cows destroyed. The valuation likely will be around the $80 mark for each head, or $9,200 for the two herds.

Ohio Herds Ordered Slaughtered.

Columbus, O., Nov. 10.—State authorities ordered the slaughter of thirty-eight herds of Ohio cattle—about 1,000 head—placed in stock yards in thirty-eight counties under quarantine, and put under absolute quarantine fourteen counties because of the foot and mouth disease. Special quarantine orders were issued against yards at Cleveland, Toledo, Cincinnati Columbus and Dayton.

BENEFIT FOOTBALL GAME

All-Star Eastern and All-Star Western Elevens May Clash.

New York, Nov. 10.—There was every prospect of a meeting between an all-star eastern eleven and an all star western eleven either in New York, Chicago or New Haven on Thanksgiving day or on Nov. 28, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross society. The Harvard athletic authorities declared that they were heartily in accord with the plan and would do everything possible to put it through.

The original suggestion for a big intersectional game was made by President James of the University of Illinois. He suggested that the winner of the Yale-Harvard game play the winner of the western conference championship, which will be Chicago, Wisconsin or Illinois.

The Harvard officials, however, do not care to have the game be known as a game between the rival champions, but would prefer to have the game be between the all-star team of the east and the all-star aggregation in the west. This plan probably will be adopted.

BROTHERHOODS ENJOINED

Circuit Court Declares They Must Not Call a Strike.

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—Three railway brotherhoods were restrained by the circuit court from calling a strike on the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) railway.

The injunction was directed against the officers of the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The court ruled, however, that the injunction did not prevent the unions from taking a strike vote.

The injunction was granted at the request of six union men, who alleged that the strike order was issued after some of the men who had voted in favor of a strike had asked that their votes be changed. The railway company invoked federal mediation, which was accepted by the unions, but mediators have not yet finished their work.

AS BRYAN VIEWS ELECTION

Many Things Operated Against Democratic Party, He Says.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Closed factories and hard times are not grim realities brought on by political and economic developments of the last two years, according to a statement issued by Secretary of State Bryan upon his return to the state department.

"The election of 1914 cannot be considered otherwise than an indorsement of the president and his policies," said Secretary Bryan. "There were a number of causes which operated against our party, namely the efforts of the beneficiaries who, out of resentment, sought to make the tariff law obnoxious; the disturbed conditions caused by the European war and the fact that the excellent laws passed by congress had not had time to prove their worth. Then, too, more Progressives returned to the Republican party than we expected—this alone accounted for most of the Republican gains in the house."

World Sinful; Girl Ends Life.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—Because the world is too sinful is the only reason known for Anna C. Ritter, aged twenty, of Etna, drinking poison. She died before medical attention could be given her. It is said she had threatened to end her life several times, because the world did not respond to evangelistic efforts.

BOSPHORUS BOMBARDED

Russian Ships Hurl Shells Into Straits Turk Vessels Go to Safety.

Paris, Nov. 16.—The protected cruisers Kagul and Pamiat Merkooria of the Russian Black sea fleet bombarded the Straits of Bosphorus and the coal depots off Eregli Saturday, according to an announcement made at Constantinople and forwarded by the correspondent at Athens of the Temps.

The Turkish fleet, it is added, went out to meet the Russian warships, but soon returned. A number of vessels at the port of Eregli, which is 128 miles northeast of Constantinople, were destroyed during the bombardment by the Russians.

A correspondent at Bucharest reports that several Russian submarines are pursuing the Goeben and the Breslau.

Russians Pursue Turks.

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—Army headquarters in the Caucasus, under date of Nov. 7, sends the following official communication from Tiflis regarding the Russian operations:

"Two Turkish divisions, with forty eight pieces of field and several pieces of heavy artillery and with a numerous band of Kurdish cavalry, moved in the direction of the hills of Hassan Kalah, twenty miles east of Erzeerum, toward the position at Koprukeiu, which we occupied Friday night.

"They pursued a vigorous offensive turning movement, striving to surround the right wing of the Russians. Our artillery opened a murderous fire and the Turks, though they attacked again and again, were finally compelled to take to flight. First their left wing retired and then the whole front followed. They are seeking refuge in the obscurity of the broken and uneven country to the west of the scene of their attack."

20 SUBMARINES ORDERED

Fore River Plant Gets $10,000,000 Worth of Work.

Boston, Nov. 10.—An order for the immediate construction of twenty submarines has been placed with the Fore River Shipbuilding corporation of Quincy, it was learned. Officials of the plant refused information as to the identity of the power for which the submarines are intended. One officer of the corporation said the order would amount to about $10,000,000.

The order came to Quincy through the officers of the Bethlehem Steel corporation at South Bethlehem, Pa.

The submarines are not to be turned out as completed vessels, but as finished sections which can easily be assembled.

Glasgow Is Sighted.

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 10.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which was engaged with the German squadron in the battle off the Chilean coast Sunday, Nov. 1, and the British transport Otranto have passed Delgada point light in the Straits of Magellan, bound for the Falkland islands, a British possession to the east of the extreme southern point of South America.

Palmer May Enter Cabinet.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Reports were circulated that Secretary of Commerce Redfield was to retire from the cabinet and become chairman of the federal trade commission. When questioned Mr. Redfield denied that he was to retire. However, A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania is being talked of for a cabinet place.

Reading Has $750,000 Blaze.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 10.—Fire partially destroyed a lumber yard, Yokum's cigar plant, a rag shop, a blacksmith shop and rendered ten families homeless. The fire started in the lumber yard and was caused by sparks from a Philadelphia and Reading engine. The loss is estimated at $750,000.

Amsterdam, Nov. 10.—The Germans have imposed a war tax of $10,000,000 against the city of Antwerp, according to the newspaper Echo de Belge.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 15, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 53, 54, 66-72—Memory Verses, 71, 72—Golden Text, I Cor. x, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

A few weeks ago we saw in the story of Jesus Christ and Judas Iscariot, God and the devil face to face; now we have the same Lord Jesus in the hands of His enemies and the strange conduct, or, rather, misconduct, of one of His most favored disciples. All who are not saved are lost, but He came to seek and to save the lost. When any lost one is convinced of sin and truly receives the Lord Jesus Christ they become saved ones, and all such are equally saved; no one is more saved than another, for all have the same Saviour and the same salvation. But the experience of such as are saved is very varied, and the rewards will be according to service.

Some follow fully as did Caleb and Joshua, while some follow afar off like Peter in this lesson. Some utterly renounce the world, the flesh and the devil, while some are more or less conformed to this present evil age.

Some have no confidence in self and lean wholly upon the Lord, but others are too often self confident as Peter was when he said, "I will lay down my life for Thy sake" (John xiii, 37).

When the band of soldiers took Jesus and led Him away Peter followed Him afar off, even unto the palace of the high priest, and sat with the servants and warmed himself at the fire (verses 53, 54). The record in John xviii, 15, 16, is that Peter and John both followed Jesus, but John being known to the high priest went into the palace, but Peter stood at the door without until John spoke unto her that kept the door and brought in Peter.

There is growth in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, a blessed experience, of which Peter speaks in the last verse of his second epistle (II Pet. iii, 18). There is also a possibility of a growing departure from the Lord, even in the case of a saved person, and that the saved one enter the kingdom saved as by fire (I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5), but according to the words of the Lord Jesus Himself it is impossible that a saved one should ever perish (John x, 28).

Peter's downward steps as a disciple seem to have been his self confidence and consequent blundering, his following afar instead of fully, his sitting in the company of the servants and warming himself at their fire, followed by his profanity and base denial. Earlier in the record we hear Peter advising the Lord not to speak of suffering, but rather to pity Himself; on which occasion he was told that it was Satan speaking through him and that he savored of men rather than of God (Matt. xvi, 22, 23). On this occasion he was again in the hands of Satan to be sifted, but our Lord had prayed for him (Luke xxii, 31-34). Peter learned by bitter experience something of the wiles of the devil and therefore could write all the more forcefully "Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour, whom resist steadfast in the faith" (I Pet. v, 8, 9).

The true Christian life is the "Not I, but Christ," "Not I, but the grace of God" attitude. No confidence in the flesh, but rejoicing in Christ Jesus (Gal. ii, 20; I Cor. xv, 10; Phil. iii, 3). The company of the ungodly is no place for a child of God, and it is not for us to walk or stand or sit with them. We do not need the warmth of their fire, but by meditation on the word of God may have such a fire in us as the disciples had with whom the Lord walked to Emmaus (Ps. i, 1, 2; xxxix, 3; Luke xxiv, 32). Unbelievers have a great many warming up places, such as the theater, the dance, the card table, and too often those who profess to be Christians, and perhaps are, may be found in such company and yet do not hesitate to sing, "Thou, O Christ, art all I want, more than all in Thee I find."

We should be careful to sing the truth as well as speak the truth, for only as we do this is it real worship.

That Peter should be ashamed or afraid to confess Christ before these servants seems pitiful indeed. I judge from his cursing and swearing that he was probably given to profanity before he began to follow Jesus, and this was a sudden outbreak of the old nature which remains in us as long as we stay in these mortal bodies and concerning which we are said to be always delivered unto death (II Cor. iv, 10, 11; Rom. vi, 11). What a look of love and pity and sorrow it must have been that Jesus gave to Peter and which sent him out to weep bitterly, for he was evidently where Jesus could see him (Luke xxii, 61, 62).

It would be well for us if we would always remember that those same eyes are ever upon us, searching us through and through, and live by the well of Him that liveth and seeth me (II Cor. xvi, 9; Gen. xvi, 13, 14, margin). Contrast this save Peter, spirit filled, in the presence of the high priest and the council, bold as a lion (Acts iv, 5-13, 19, 20), and let us be so filled.

Any fear of man is an indication that the Spirit is not for the time being controlling us. The fear of man bringeth a snare, but in the fear of the Lord is strong confidence.

White Diarrhoea Due To Several Causes

What It Is—Some Methods Of Prevention.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

So-called white diarrhoea is a symptom of several diseases that affect young chicks during the first few weeks of their lives. There are several causes which are: (1) faulty incubation; (2) faulty brooding; (3) improper feeding; (4) a mold organism (aspergillus fumigatus); (5) a small animal organism (coccidum); (6) a bacterial organism (bacterium pullorum).

WHITE DIARRHOEA.

In birds the normal excretions from the kidneys, which are white in color, are discharged with excretions from the bowels. If from any cause this intestinal excretion is stopped the kidney excretions will be voided alone and be white in color. This explains why the white diarrhoea is present as a symptom of several diseases.

There is no sure method for diagnosing these diseases outside the laboratory, but a careful observer can come close to the diagnosis by considering the history of the case. To determine whether or not the trouble is bacillary diarrhoea is most important. This form of disease is transmitted through the egg from the infected ovaries in the mother hen. Therefore, if the disease occurs quite uniformly in all chicks from certain flocks, no matter how they are raised, bacillary white diarrhoea may be suspected. If on post-mortem examination, the lungs are found spotted, we have a case of aspergillosis caused by mold organism.

Give close attention to correct incubation, brooding, and feeding. In the mold form (aspergillosis) prevent further outbreaks by sterilizing all feed for the first few weeks. This can be done by feeding only cooked feeds or by heating the dry feed in an oven. Keep your brooders clean and disinfected. Keep hatching eggs in a clean place.

For bacillary white diarrhoea, there is no known cure. Sour milk or butter milk is recommended. The best policy is to renew the breeding stock by getting eggs or stock from some breeder whose flock is free from disease. Never breed from a bird that has white diarrhoea.

The early summer season is the most favorable time of the year to study agriculture and allied subjects at the Maryland Agricultural College. The College Farm with its experimental gardens, orchards, field crops, and fertilizer plots is at its best. These opportunities for first hand study in addition to the outdoor life and the freedom from the care of the school room will make a few weeks spent at your Agricultural College delightful and profitable.

GIVE YOUR TOMATOES A GOOD START.

Aim To Have Strong Stocky Plants That Will Not Wilt When Moved.

J. F. MONROE,
Maryland Agricultural College.

Too many growers fail to realize the value of having stocky, healthy, vigorous plants to transplant in the field. The seed should be sowed thinly in rows four inches wide. The distance apart of the rows will depend upon the method of cultivating them. When the plants are about two inches high, thin them to about two inches apart, being careful to leave only the strong, vigorous plants. This gives the plants plenty of room to grow stocky, and develop a more extensive root system, which enables them to withstand transplanting.

The seed bed should be fertile. Avoid excessive applications of nitrogen, especially, Nitrate of Soda or Sulphate of Ammonia, because these materials tend to force a soft growth.

Plants that are growing too rapidly can be pinched back. This will start the growth of lateral branches. It is recommended in cases of extreme growth, rather than as a corrective for a neglected bed of plants or an undesirable condition in growth.

Many have experienced trouble from the flea beetle. Do not dust the plants with lime or other material, because it frequently injures the young seedlings. Spray the plants with 4-4-50 Bordeaux Mixture, to which has been added Arsenate of Lead at the rate of 2 pounds to 50 gallons of water. Keep the young seedlings covered with this spray. It will keep off the flea beetle without injuring the plants, and help to keep them clean and healthy.

Have the seed bed thoroughly wet when removing the plants, water by hand a few hours before if necessary. Never "pull" the plants. Loosen the soil with a spade and remove the plants carefully, in order not to break the small, tender roots. Put the plants in a box or bucket and keep covered from sun and wind as much as possible.

The courses in Domestic Science and Art, and Industrial Hand Work given in the Maryland Agricultural College Summer School are particularly attractive to the women teachers of the State. These courses not only provide useful training for the teachers, but include such work as can be done in elementary and rural schools.

FORCES MUSTERING FOR ARMAGEDDON

Time For the Establishment of Messiah's Kingdom.

Indications That We Are In the End of This Gospel Age—Antitypical Battle of Armageddon—Agencies Mustering the Hosts—Opposing Forces—Seeming Victory For Masses—Earth's New Ruler Will Command Peace.

Sept. 27.—Today Pastor Russell preached from the text, "For the great Day of His wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?" (Revelation 6:17.) His topic, "Armageddon," is well illustrated by famous cartoons, many of which are reproduced in The Photo-Drama of Creation, now on exhibition in our large cities.

God has given us the Book of Revelation, the speaker declared, with the intent of covering up important truths not due to be understood until His appointed time. Being a book of symbols, it will not be understood by mankind in general; but we are assured that the wise amongst God's people shall understand.—Daniel 12:1-10.

The Prophet Daniel gives two signs by which this time will be marked; "Many shall run to and fro," and "Knowledge shall be increased." Today we see this prophecy fulfilled Thus our day is characterized as the Time of the End, when this Age closes and the Messianic Age begins.

God has seen fit to associate the name of Israel's famous battle-field with the great controversy between Truth and Error, Right and Wrong, with which this change of dispensation will take place. While the phrase, "Battle of Armageddon," is applied in many ways today, Christians realize that the Bible uses it in a spiritual sense, and that now is surely the time to view this "Battle of the great Day of God Almighty" from its religious standpoint.

The Pastor emphatically declared that in setting forth his understanding of the symbols of Revelation he is saying nothing whatever against godly Christians at any time. He realizes that God's Word conveys a most terrible arraignment of some great systems which we have reverenced, which we have esteemed as containing many of God's people. What he has to say in the interpretation of Scripture is merely in respect to these systems.

Agencies Mustering the Forces.

Revelation 16:13-16 was next discussed. There three agencies are mentioned as gathering the hosts for Armageddon. Three impure "spirits," teachings, proceeding from the mouths of the Dragon, the Beast and the False Prophet, exercise a mighty influence.

Ecclesiastical kings and princes, with their retinue of clergy and faithful adherents, will gather in solid phalanx—Protestant and Catholic. Kings and captains of industry, with all whom they can influence, will join them. Political kings and princes, with their henchmen and retainers, will gather to the same side. Financial kings and merchant princes, with all whom they can influence by the most gigantic power known in history, will also join them, according to this prophecy. They will not realize that they are hurrying to Armageddon.

Bible students of nearly all denominations agree with us that the "Dragon" of Revelation symbolizes the purely civil power, said the Pastor. Protestant interpreters agree with us that the "Beast" represents Papacy. But few, we fear, support our view that Protestantism is the "Image of the Beast," otherwise styled "the False Prophet."

Applying these symbols, we learn that an evil influence will come from the federated Protestant churches, the Church of Rome and the civil authorities—in full agreement. All will predict dire results if their counsel be not followed.

The War Cloud's Silver Lining.

The Divine authority of the Church and the "Divine right of kings" will not be permitted to conflict. Any person or teaching out of harmony with these unscriptural claims will be branded as everything vile. Nobler sentiments will be strangled by the philosophy of the same evil spirit that spoke through Caiaphas. As he declared it expedient to commit crime to be rid of Jesus and His teachings, so this "frog spirit" will approve of every violation of principle necessary to their self-preservation.

For a brief time free speech, free mails, etc., will be shut off under plea of necessity, the glory of God, the command of the Church, etc. All will be serene until the great explosion occurs, denominated in Scripture "a great earthquake" and "a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation." At this juncture Divine Power will marshal the hosts to Armageddon—the Mount of Destruction—the very thing they sought to avert. Then Michael—Messiah—will assume authority. (Daniel 12:1.) He will take possession of His Kingdom in a manner little expected by many who erroneously have claimed to be that Kingdom.

VENUS AND MARS.

The Theory That Life Exists Upon Both of These Planets.

We are bound to hold life to be a general phenomenon in nature, developing wherever the stars are shining on their attendant planets, and thus wherever a star twinkles in the depths of the firmament.

Now as for Mars and Venus, in our own system, it need hardly be said that they are surely inhabited by living beings of some kind. Observations show that Mars has a rare atmosphere, a day thirty-seven minutes longer than our own, seasons of the same type, but longer duration; and snow caps at the poles, and thus water vapor, though the amount is small. Mars is a desert planet, with a very rare air, about like that in the higher regions of the Himalaya mountains. But as life on the earth extends to the highest plateaus and mountains, except when perpetually frozen, it may also exist on the planet Mars, which has a moderate temperature, as shown by the formation of clouds in the twilight belt, after the sun has set for the Martians.

The probability of Venus being inhabited is much greater than that of Mars, for Venus rotates in 23 hours 21 minutes and in all respects so closely resembles the earth as to be called her twin sister. Venus has an abundance of air, clouds, water and also mountains and therefore seas, lakes and rivers. The seasons are like ours except they are shorter, the year being 225 days in length. Why should not such a planet be inhabited? If a man were transported to Venus and landed there without injury it seems certain that he could live and flourish physically under the air and temperature of this beautiful planet.—T. J. J. See in Leslie's.

GLOOMY CARLYLE.

His Pessimism and His Wonder at the Optimism of Emerson.

Thomas Carlyle's friendship with Ralph Waldo Emerson is a matter of history, but Charles Eliot Norton tells in his published letters that Carlyle marveled at the optimism of the American philosopher. Writing in 1873, Norton says: "As we were sitting together just after my coming in this afternoon, Carlyle spoke of Emerson. 'There's a great contrast between Emerson and myself. He seems verra content with life and takes much satisfaction in the world, especially in your country. One would suppose to hear him that ye had no troubles there and no share in the darkness that hangs over these old lands. It's a verra strikin' and curious spectacle to behold a man so confidently cheerful as Emerson in these days.

"'I agree with ye in thinkin' that the times that are comin' will be warse than ours, and that by and by men may through long pain and distress learn to obey the law eternal of order, without which there can be neither justice nor real happiness in this warld or in any other. The last man in England who had real faith in it was Oliver Cromwell.

"'Well, it may be as you say. I'm not such a verra bloody minded old villain after all there a cordial laugh, not quite so horrid an ogre as some good people imagine. But the warld is verra black to me, and I see nothin' to be content with in this brand new, patent society of ours. There's nothin' to hope for from it but confusion.'"

A Scoop.

John L. Toole, the famous English comedian and practical joker, and Mr. Justice Hawkins, who was afterward Lord Brampton, were great friends. They were at supper together one evening discussing the events of the day. The judge incidentally mentioned that he intended on the morrow giving the man he had been trying fifteen years because he deserved it.

As Toole was leaving he blandly inquired:

"Oh, would you mind calling at the newspaper offices and telling them about that fifteen years? It will be a tip for them—exclusive information, you know—and will do me no end of good with the press."

"Good gracious! No, sir!" exclaimed the judge, who took the precaution of accompanying Toole to his hotel and seeing him safely to bed.

Mohammedan Serenity.

A Mohammedan people enjoy one great advantage over all others—they never suffer from the anticipation of that which is to come, and, as a natural result, they can always enjoy the present, although only a few hours may separate them from disaster or even from death. Their implicit belief in an ordained future imparts a dignified repose and outward calm to all their actions.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Feminine Paradox.

The uneducated woman has often the quickest perception, the finest tact, the most vivid sensibility. She will feel without speaking; she understands your inmost thoughts; she knows without being told.—London Black and White.

The First Skyscraper.

The first skyscraper was planned (but not built) by a Parisian architect in the year 1601. It was to be more than 300 feet high and provide rooms for 500 persons.

A Good Example.

Father—Why did you run away, Franz? Franz—Because mamma was so unkind. Father—That is no reason. Do I run away?

Good manners are the blossoms of good sense and good feeling.

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1914.

IF anything will survive languishing industry it will be the hope of 1916.

THE ballot voted in California Nov. 3d, was four feet wide and two feet long.

THE United States government last year produced 9,773,424,000 postage stamps.

DEMOCRACY professes to see a rainbow without acknowledging there was a tremendous storm.

THE size of the rooster display of Democratic newspapers was out of all proportion to the meager results.

WHEN "Uncle Joe" Cannon enters the next Congress the admiring gallery will shout, "Well, look who's here!"

FINE weather for sailing up Salt River and camping out. Providence has been merciful to the defeated candidates.

THE Republican gains all over the country are straws pointing in the direction of a Republican President in 1916.

IT is not out of place to admoush the judicious to do their Christmas shopping early, or engage the Thanksgiving bird now.

BUSINESS will be better now, because a new confidence has been created by the trend of the country toward sane economic policies.

THE roads of any community provide an index to its self-respect. Unfortunately the greater number of our communities do not measure up well on this item.

THE Republican party and the country can now look forward to Thanksgiving with good heart and hope and the real thankful spirit.

APPLES often sell in Ceylon at $1 a dozen. Pity that Island is not closer to Garrett county just now. At that price we could do a big business.

CARROLL county voted at the recent election on local option. The vote cast was dry 4233, wet 3017. A majority of 1216 for the closing up of the dram shops. Good for Carroll county.

PRESIDENT Wilson's home congressional district, the fourth of New Jersey, has elected Elijah Hutchison a Republican to succeed Congressman Allen B. Walsh, a Democrat by 2,000 plurality.

THE slump of a majority of 147 to about a dozen in the House of Representatives is hailed as a Democratic triumph. Something like the consolation of the man who had both legs and one arm amputated, "Thank God, I have one arm left."

SON-in-law McAdoo doesn't "see how any man can look at the result of Tuesday's election other than a great Democratic victory." One more victory of the same sort and what is going to be left of the Democratic party.

MORE than 300 ballots were marked in the wrong space for Zihlman in Frederick county. The latters name was the last one on the ballot, with a vacant space below. Republicans instructed many of their voters to mark for Zihlman in the last space.

OF the seven States in the Union which voted on Woman Suffrage amendments on Tuesday two, Nevada and Montana, indorsed it. The result was close in Nebraska and in North and South Dakota. In Missouri and Ohio the measure was overwhelmingly defeated.

THE extension Service of the Maryland Agricultural College has begun the publication of a bi-weekly bulletin, called the Farm Adviser. The publication disclaims all ambition to be a farm paper, but aims to furnish news notes regarding the work of the Agricultural College Experiment Station and the Extension Service. Requests for copies of the Farm Adviser should be addressed to Reuben Brigham, College Park, Md.

THE Maryland motor vehicle commission has issued a statement to the effect that license will not be granted to operators of motor vehicles who indulge in booze. We suppose the liquor traffic of Maryland will now undertake to have Commissioner Roe displaced.

WE have it from the Democratic National Chairman, Mr. McCombs, and one who knows, that the defeated candidate for the United States Senate in Illinois was the man, more than any other, who brought about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. This ought to hold Mr. Bryan for awhile.

AMONG the Republicans who "came back" to Congress by the recent election were "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Wm. B. McKinley and George E. Foss, of Illinois; Daniel F. LaFean, of Pennsylvania, and Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, among the most noted of the "old guard" who went down in the Taft Campaign.

THE battle of ballots is over for 1914 and again one is impressed with the American people's belief in change. In the tidal wave this year Republican gains is spelled in large letters and perhaps it is best, for if the men of the United States would vote for honest, incorruptible men we would have cleaner politics and a political party that is intrenched for years in power becomes corrupt.

THE vote in the sixth Congressional district was as follows:

	Lewis	Zihlman
Allegany	5,034	5,181
Garrett	1,114	1,686
Washington	4,569	4,382
Frederick	5,154	4,975
Montgomery	3,578	2,555
Totals	19,449	18,779

Lewis' plurality, 670.

FOURTEEN States now have laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages as a result of Tuesday's election, which shows that prohibition was adopted in Arizona, Oregon, Washington, and Colorado.

The States which prohibit the sale of liquor are: Arizona, Virginia, Oregon, Colorado, Georgia, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia, Oklahoma and North Dakota.

SOME idea of the enormous expense of the war will be gained from the fact that the daily cost of provisions for the combined armies would be $12,500,000, without the expense of transportation, which would be $4,200,000 more each day. These figures were based on the prices of some years ago, so that 15 per cent. could be added to the cost of the food, making the cost to-day $18,750,000, or $22,950,000 "delivered at the place of consumption.

HOW IT WORKS.

The following is taked from the police court records of Wheeling, W. Va. It is certainly a splendid showing of the benefits of prohibition. The arrests for drunkeness were as follows:

No. arrests during July, 1913.	103
No. arrests during July, 1914.	15
No. arrests during Aug. 1913.	109
No. arrests during Aug. 1914.	42
No. arrests during Sept. 1913.	115
No. arrests during Sept. 1914.	25

HIS OWN STATE.

What effect will the political reversal of New Jersey have on the second term intentions of President Wilson? Strongly Democratic in its Congressional representation, and wholly Democratic in State government, New Jersey came back in good style when the Republicans gained control of both houses of the legislature and elected eight of the twelve members of Congress. The present delegation in Congress is ten Democrats and two Republicans.

This is the President's own State, and of which he was Governor when he stepped into the Presidential office. If any State was expected to sustain his policies it was New Jersey, where the seven anti-trust sisters were born. Now that it has refused to endorse him or his policies, will the Democratic party stand for a nominee who cannot carry his own State? Well, the Democratic party is so absolutely uncertain in everything, that it may.

A NATIONAL DISAPPROVAL OF ADMINISTRATION POLICIES.

The popular disapproval of administration policies last Tuesday was not confined to any section of the United States, but was as plainly in evidence in Colorado as in New England, as fully displayed in Ohio as in New York and Pennsylvania, as strongly evinced in New Jersey as in Iowa, Oregon and Washington.

Democratic Louisana sends a Progressive to represent a formerly stanch Democratic district, and North Carolina despite its game bag full of Federal patronage, shows its displeasure with administration policies by displacing a Democratic representative and electing a Republican to represent its people.

Georgia, it is reported, has had 21 of its counties carried by the Progressives, and in not a state of the South but disappointment of the rank and file, as well as of many leaders, is shown by reports by mail and wire.

This is but the logical result of the administration methods, policies, and want of policies.

Personal views and political theories have in many instances been substituted for platform principles and promised reforms.

The South had a right to expect that the party's declaration as to exemption of coastwise vessels from canal tolls would be kept by the administration it helped to place in power.

The entire country had the right to expect that, but to the South the keeping of that pledge meant meant more for its development in commerce, in the prosperity of its planters, in the promotion of its interests in every way, than to any other section of the country.

Despite the protests of popular leaders like Speaker Clark, Oscar W. Underwood, and the wise and faithful and honest men that followed their leadership in the House; despite the warnings of senators like O'Gorman, Martine, Vardaman, Chamberlain, Thomas and Newlands, the administration forced through the aid for Great Britain and the transcontinental railways, thus repudiating the platform and injuring the entire country, but the South worst of all.

Democrats of no section of the country could conscientiously give approval of any administration breaking faith with the people.

There is a turpitude attached to such a proceeding that is offensive to the moral sense of the people of the United States regardless of party affiliations, and that can never be excused by ill-founded and attenuated statements as to what should have been in a treaty.

Again, the South, in an hour of extreme need, in a period of distress which has existed since August 1, and that becomes more acute with every passing day, was denied the immediate relief that should have been cheerfully and cordially granted her people. The Southern cotton planters were referred to banking syndicates that were still to be formed, to manufacturers who desired to buy cotton at still lower prices, to foreign spinning combines whose representatives plainly stated they would only buy at the bottom price, their price.

The Southern people will not confine their disapproval to sending a Progressive from Louisana and a Republican from North Carolina. They are ready to voice their dissatisfaction which the administration through the Democratic leaders of the South, through the statesmen who represent the people of the South, and who will demand national action looking to the aid of those people.—Washington Post.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

John Waugh the veteran letter carrier of Cumberland was in the Park Friday.

Extensive repairs are being made to the Mountain Lake hotel by the new owner.

Mrs. Margaret Burghause returned to the Park the latter part of last week being much improved.

Mrs. John Hayden and son John, went to Rowlesburg, W. Va., the latter part of last week to join her husband who is the electrical engineer in the electric light plant of that city.

Mr. Dye, of Clarksburg, W. Va,, spent Friday last in the Park.

Sunday night about two inches of snow fell.

A twelve hour intermission between a spring thunder and lightning storm, and snow, strikes us as a rather unusual meterological performance for November, as was experienced here last Sunday.

Lots of our good farmers have had their wheat in for some time, but some are still working at theirs, dragging on in the same old way. It seems as if some people would not get their wheat in early if they would start one year ahead. It is their nature to be behind with their work. Why cannot people be up with their work all the time instead of being behind with it all of the time? Now, boys let's get awake a little earlier in the morning and catch up with our work, for we know winter time is coming on and we must also get our corn finished up or somebody will have cold fingers and we know we can not husk corn as fast when our fingers are cold as we can now when the weather is fine for corn husking.

GORTNER

Our school is rejoicing that Garrett county voted dry. They claim the "Banner" and we can now hear on the play ground their yell: "Chee-he! Chee-he. Ha! ha! ha! Gortner, Gortner! Rah! Rah! Rah! Hurrah for the girls and boys who? why? Carries the banner for Dry! dry! dry!" The ten pupils of this school who were soliciting "Dry" votes, (not only for the prize offered by their teacher, but for the temperance cause) have recorded the promise of 519 "dry votes" and with the aid of several friends outside of the school, obtained two hundred and eleven votes making a total of seven hundred and thirty "dry votes" promised to our school solicitors. The fact that Sunday one year ago saw the beginning of the heaviest snow fall in November recorded in many years, caused many people to have misgivings as to the result of the snow that began to fall Sunday evening. Indications pointed to a considerable fall of snow but the snow did not last long. Let's Stop and Think.

If we stop and think we can readily see that the community that pulls together will do more and accomplish better results than the one that is always divided.

By working together and producing the greatest amount of marketable products, and marketing them to the best advantage and at the least expense, we will have greater profits in the community than we would otherwise receive.

And by buying our goods from our local merchants and from one another, instead of sending away for them, we are constantly increasing the wealth of the community and the resultant prosperity of each individual.

When much money comes into the community and only a portion of it goes out again the surplus at home will grow, and grow, until it becomes a veritable Eden of wealth.

Let's do a little thinking.

In another column will be found the proclamation of E. Z. Tower, clerk of the circuit court for Garrett county. It will furnish a reason why every citizen of Garrett county should observe Thanksgiving day. The closing paragraph is full of interest. "I do hereby certify and proclaim that no license can be granted on and after the first day of May, 1915, to any person or persons, house, company, association or body corporate to sell spirituous, fermented, or malt liquors or intoxicating drinks in Garrett county." This is decidedly interesting reading.

B. & O. To Spend Million For Maps.

It is estimated that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will expend $1,000,000 in preparing new maps and profiles of all its property to meet the requirements of a statute recently enacted which will assist the Interstate Commerce Commission in valuing the property of common carriers. Practically every railroad in the state will have to make new surveys to prepare the maps and profiles in accordance with the specifications of the commission, as the old maps are not complete. All new roads will have to submit such papers before they start on their work in the future.

GERMANS FAIL TO CHECK ENEMY

Allies' Wedge Movement In Northern France Continues

VIOLENT FIGHTING OCCURS

Paris Reports German Repulses and Slow Advance by Allies at Many Points, Especially In Northwestern France—Along River Oise Fog Is So Thick as to Suspend Operations In That Region.

Paris, Nov. 10. — Victories were achieved by French and British armies at points in the battle front from Dixmude, in Belgium, to the right wing of the French forces in Alsace.

Gains of importance were made between Dixmude and the river Lys, where the allies drove home smashing onslaughts after having defeated the aggressive maneuvers of the Germans.

Between Dixmude in Belgium and the region of Armentieres in France German columns of an estimated strength of 600,000 attempted three main operations—to cross the Yser canal at Dixmude, to drive the allies from the fortified heights and woods south and east of Ypres and to batter through the French and British line holding the river Lys and advancing from Armentieres toward Lille.

The official reports of these battles state that the German attacks were repulsed and that the allies maintained their ground between the Lys and Langemarck and made an important advance between Langemarck and Dixmude.

The communiques assert that the allies have made slow progress all along this line as the net result of forty-eight hours of fighting.

Farther to the south, along the west flank of the river Oise, a heavy fog interfered with military activity, and it appears that the conflict in this region has been much less violent than for several days.

East of the Oise and northeast of Soissons, along the Aisne, the allies are reported by the government to have continued their slow progress and are strengthening positions wrested from the Germans in the past week.

On the rest of the battle line through Rheims and the Argonne to Lorraine there were no important movements by either side. In Alsace the Germans launched an attack against the pass of Sainte Marie but were repulsed. The official news indicates that the French line between Verdun and Belfort is effectively protecting the barrier fortresses and is maintaining a foothold in Alsace.

The outstanding feature of the unofficial reports is that the Germans are beginning to send army corps to the Russian frontier and that there are fresh indications that the withdrawal of the German armies in southern Belgium and northern France is very near at hand.

Fogs Aid Germans.

London, Nov. 10.—The Germans have been aided by the fogs of the past few days which to some extent have nullified the persistent enterprise of the allies' airmen who are still, however, able to keep the enemy guessing.

The significance of the obviously important movements of troops in Belgium in the past few days is not explained by the allied commanders. The correspondents in the rear differ as to the situation, though the majority seem to favor the view that the Germans are withdrawing important forces to stem the Russian advance.

There is, however, nothing to suggest that the Germans keep a general retreat to the west. Nevertheless the tendency here is hopeful. The military expert of the Times emphasizes the importance of Russian progress, saying the Cossacks are at the gateway to Silesia and that German resources are being strained to the breaking point to continue the pretense of seeking in the west for a decision no longer within reasonable hope.

Gaining at Ypres, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—A report issued by general headquarters says:

"During the evening a sortie of the enemy from Nieuport, which was repeated during the night, completely failed. In spite of resistance our attacks on Ypres are progressing slowly but steadily.

"The hostile counter attacks southwest of Ypres have been repulsed and several hundred men taken prisoners.

"In the eastern war theater an attack by strong Russian forces north of Wysztyter lake has been repulsed with severe Russian losses. Four thousand Russians and ten machine guns were captured."

Woman Burned to Death.

Canton, O., Nov. 10.—In a fire which destroyed one of the cottages at the Fairmount children's home, a Stark county institution, twenty-six boy inmates, from eleven to fifteen years old, had narrow escapes, and the matron of the cottage, Lillian Burdette, fifty-three, was burned to death. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in the room of the matron.

BACK WITH WAR WOUNDS

Discharged French Soldiers Tell of Fighting at Front.

New York, Nov. 10.—Three soldiers all discharged from the French army because of disability and all bearing wounds which showed they had been in the thick of the fighting, arrived here from Havre. They were George Pierlot and Leon Leblot, on their way to their homes in Canada, and John Rosenbem, returning to his home in Holbrook, Mass. Leblot hobbled off the ship with the aid of canes.

Pierlot and Leblot were wounded in the defense of Rheims. Both told thrilling stories of the battle before that city. Leblot said that in the hand-to-hand fighting there he received a bayonet wound in his side and was carried to the rear. While a Sister of Charity was binding his wound a German bullet killed her and her body fell across him.

"The Germans used the bodies of their dead as barricades, and we had to climb over them," said Leblot.

Pierlot received a saber thrust in his left shoulder before Rheims and was carried to safety by a comrade. Describing the fighting, he said that the artillery opened the battle and rained shells on the opposing lines for three hours. Then, he said, the men closed in and fought hand to hand for three hours. Then the artillery battle was resumed.

Rosenbem was wounded at Muelhausen. In the fighting he lost his rifle and was slashed in the arm with a saber.

"But I found a blacksmith's knife on the battlefield," he said, "and killed seven Germans with it before I was again wounded and put out of action."

LIFTING BAN ON EXPORTS

England Is Gradually Giving Greater Freedom to Trade.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The prospects for greater freedom in the conditions of trade between the United States and the neutral countries adjacent to Germany have been considerably improved.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, brought word to the state department from his government that the assurances given by the governments of Norway, Sweden and Denmark with respect to prohibiting the re-exportation of articles of contraband imported into those countries were satisfactory to England. This will restrict the interference with the neutral vessels carrying such cargoes to these countries merely to an examination of papers.

The prospect is good that the embargo imposed on the exportation of wool will be lifted in favor of American importers if the importers will give satisfactory assurance to the British that the wool will not be re-exported to Germany.

Close Call For Emden.

London, Nov. 10.—A Sidney (N. S. W.) dispatch to the Evening News says that the skipper of the steamer Parom, arriving from Singapore, reports that after the German cruiser Emden's success in sinking the Russian and French warships at Penang the German warship and two storeships were overtaken by a British cruiser. The speedy Emden fled, but the British man-of-war sank one storeship and captured the other.

Start Up Again at Gary.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 10.—The Gary steel plant resumed operations, though this is an "off" week under the program of "on" and "off" weeks in practice since the depression in the steel industry. Two of the eight blast furnaces, 210 coke ovens and a few rolling mills were in operation.

Herrick Has His Hands Full.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Rifaat Pasha, the Turkish ambassador, handed over the Turkish interests in France to the care of United States Ambassador Herrick. Mr. Herrick is looking out for the affairs of Germany and Austria in addition.

Pegoud Does Valiant Service.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Emile Pegoud, the aviator who introduced the loop the loop and other famous tricks, is mentioned for valor in recent dispatches.

R RUSHES ES TO EAST

Russian Invasion Grows Serious; Daily Advances Made

LINES IN FRANCE WEAKENED

Grand Duke Nicholas' March Through Poland and Into Germany One of the Greatest Achievements of Modern Warfare—Germans Retreating Before Russians Have Been Given No Time to Reform Their Lines.

London, Nov. 10.—The kaiser has been compelled to detach large forces from the armies in France and Belgium to help check the Russian invasion of the east. The czar's soldiers are going ahead at the rate of fourteen miles a day.

The czar's troops have captured Pleschend, fifteen miles inside the German frontier. East Prussia, Posen and Silesia have all been invaded.

The succession of victories gained by Russia in East Prussia, west Poland and Galicia and the extraordinary powerful and rapid sweep westward of the Grand Duke Nicholas' main armies is the greatest achievement so far by Germany's antagonists.

Military critics pronounce it a miracle of warfare, comparable to the greatest operations of modern times.

The Russian commander-in-chief has amazed the world by the speed and precision with which he has advanced his masses over a country practically without railroads and destitute of a high road worthy of the name.

Eighteen days ago the Russian armies stood at the river Vistula from Warsaw to Invangorad and were just gathering momentum for a pursuit of the unbeaten German armies.

In those eighteen days the grand duke has driven them more than 150 miles, so that advance guards occupy strategical positions over the frontier of Posen and Silesia. This applies to the operations of Russia's central army, whose primary object is to seize Posen and Breslau. To the north in East Prussia and to the south along the upper Vistula toward Cracow the advances have been less rapid but equally irresistable.

It appears from the official reports of the Russian general staff and from the dispatches of correspondents of London newspapers that the German troops, retreating in the north center and south, had no time to push at the outer defenses of the German frontier and prepare to block the Russians from a counter invasion. The Thorn-Kalisz-Czenstachova line relied upon to stop Russia short has been of no value.

The grand duke pursued so rapidly that the Germans had no time to pause at this line. A turning movement by Russian cavalry at the river south of Kolo and about forty miles from the Posen border a flanking operation brilliantly successful, brought disaster to the German General von Morgan and his army of invasion in front of Warsaw on Oct. 19, prevented the Germans from standing at the river Warthe because the Russians got there first and, according to the official and unofficial statements, the whole line of defense went to pieces.

Soldau New Point of Invasion.

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—The official statement issued by the Russian general staff shows that Russian troops have entered German territory at a new point, this time at Soldau, in the extreme southern part of East Prussia and twelve miles within the border.

The following announcement was also made:

"Cruisers of the enemy have appeared off our Caucasian coast both on Nov. 6 and 7."

ON TO BERLIN IN SPRING

Author Jerome Says War Should Last Three Years.

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—A three years' war, with the allies inaugurating their advance on Berlin in the spring, was the prediction of Jerome K. Jerome, English author and humorist, who lectured here.

"Germany has the best of it now," said Jerome. "Her men are all trained fighters, but if the allies can hold her this winter, in the spring they will be strong enough, and Germany correspondingly weaker, to drive her out of France and back to Berlin. Germany will not give up until Berlin falls and I am looking for no picnic march to the kaiser's capital. On to Berlin will consume two years of the conflict."

Radium Plant to Resume Operations

Steel Plant Reopens.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—After being closed several weeks the No. 1 department of the Allegheny Steel company in Brackenridge will resume operations Monday morning. From 200 to 300 men will be employed. The No. 2 department of the company is operating.

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

WHAT THE EUROPEAN WAR MEANS TO UNITED STATES

This Nation Will be the Store House For the Old World.

The United States is beginning to feel keenly the effects of the European war. First, in the demand for supplies of various kinds. The demand for and shipment of horses has become so great that the Army officials are becoming alarmed; it is feared that it will soon be impossible to obtain horses enough for army requirments. The demand for war material, guns, cannon, ammunition, harness, saddles, underwear shoes, orders for great quanties of which have been placed. Grain of al kind is in large demand for men and horses. Millions of dollars has been and will be expended for the above in this country.

Germany and Austria will want it is said, over $3,000,000 worth of cotton each month. This will be of inestimable value to the Southern States, as it will be a market for their immense crop of cotton. The shipment of wheat is, extensive and constantly growing.

An order for 15,000,000 pounds of canned meats, valued at $1,500,000, to go to Europe, has been received by a local packing company of Oklahoma City, Ok a.

It is said that foreign orders for clothing, saddles, harness, tinned meats and the like in the Chicago and neighboring markets amount to between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Purchasing agents of the British and the French Government are in Chicago and the former has $3,000,000 in gold in a local bank to be used against purchases. The meat packers are said to have enough European orders on hand to keep them running full time for a year.

William G. Bruce, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association, is authority for the statement that the knitting mills of that State are swamped with military orders. Coarse fur coats, harness, shoes and light-tonnage auto trucks are among other Wisconsin commodities being sold abroad, he said.

A firm in East St. Louis, Ill., has shipped since the war 337,000 pounds of lard to England, and has now a contract for 5700 more pounds. France is bidding for 4,000,000 bushels of wheat.

An order has been received by a St. Paul firm for 6000 English type of artillery saddles. A milling company in the same city has booked an order for 12,000 bags of flour, for shipment to Holland. A New York telegram of Monday says the allied armies want 100,000 horses from this country. The foregoing indicate to some extent the demands upon this county to meet the requirements of the allied nations.

The demand for American products will doubtless call for the opening of many of the closed factories and the employment of great numbers of men, now idle. The United States will be called upon for all kinds of farm products if this terrible war continues.

On the other hand, the demand for our products may advance the price of everything needed by the people of this country. The bread winner will feel the need of strictest economy to make ends meet. The call of the starving will have to be met. From many Foreign countries come the cry for bread. One hundred thousand Jews are reported starving in Jerusalem. From Belgium the cry is heard, "we are starving."

While the European reservists here hurried to the front, they left their families to crowd American poorhouses. This is another way in which Uncle Sam is paying his share of the toil of war, which he didn't want and with which he has had nothing to do. Yet, many of these families will be left penniless by the death of their husbands and sons.

The suffering and loss of life by this unholy war is appalling. It is appalling. It is beyond the conception of the human mind. It is a war in which human life is not considered. A position must be gained, no matter how many men are killed. Bombs are dropped on cities and towns without thought of the terrible loss of human life, not only of men, but of women and children as well: Cities and towns are bonbarded by cannon at a tremendous sacrifice of life. Traps are set and regiments of soldiers are murdered by shot and shell.

The great ambition of the leader seems to be, to kill as many men as possible, to scatter destruction and ruin everywhere. Surely, Gen. Sherman knew what he was talking about, when he said, "War is hell." That blood stained battle ground is hell.

Incognito

The Story of a Royal Marriage

By MAY C. ETHERIDGE

"I am tired," said Prince Adolf, "of having people gape at me whenever I appear."

"Your royal highness," said an equerry, entering, "a man has been brought to the palace by the police charged with personating you, the prince. He resembles you so closely that those who arrested him cannot be certain whether he is or is not an impostor. What orders shall I give as to his disposition?"

"Is he much like me?"

"So nearly that had he not been poorly dressed I, who am in constant attendance upon your highness, could not tell him from you."

"Bring him to me."

The equerry disappeared and in a few minutes entered, conducting the man in question. The prince started at the marvelous resemblance to himself.

"Why have you personated me?" asked the prince.

"For fun, your highness."

"How would you like to personate me for a consideration?"

"I am at your royal highness' service."

The prince made a deal by which this man, Shuster, was to personate

"HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO PERSONATE ME?"

him till the moment he should meet his bride. The prince wished to do some shopping, and it was arranged that, while dressed as a commoner and with his hat pulled down over his eyes, he should enter a store by one door while Shuster, as the true prince, should enter by another.

So the next morning at the usual hour of the prince's going forth Shuster was driven through the usual crowd of loiterers at the palace gate, all of whom took off their hats, the salute being gracefully acknowledged by Shuster. The prince, looking down from an upper window, saw the exit.

Leaving the palace by a rear exit, the prince took a shorter route to the first shop he intended to visit and reached it just in time to see his spurious self alight from his carriage, the footman open the door and Shuster pass through a small gathering who, recognizing the prince's livery, had run to the spot to catch a glimpse of him. Then the prince did his shopping in another part of the store, though he found it difficult to secure attention, so eager were the clerks to see his royal highness.

The prince was much relieved and pleased at being able to buy a pair of stockings or a necktie without having a crowd about him, kept back in some instances by the police. He wrote his fiancee of his ruse and that he would arrive incognito, his personator coming in state. The princess was caught by the device and wished that she might herself be personated in the same way. She at once sent her favorite attendant out to search for a young woman who resembled her. The woman spent a week on the street, in shops, at evening entertainments, and at last found a young lady who sufficiently resembled her mistress to warrant an attempt to pass her for the princess. The lady was commanded to go to the palace. She expressed some surprise and at first refused, but changed her mind.

When the princess saw the person who was to represent her she was much pleased, not so much at the resemblance as the carriage, for the lady had the bearing of one of high degree. Some difficulty was met with to induce her to act the part of princess, but at last she consented and began her official duties in personating the princess on a shopping tour, as Shuster had personated the prince.

The marriage between Prince Adolf and the Princess Wilhelmina was a state marriage and had nothing to do with love. Indeed, the two had met but once—when the marriage contract was signed. But this made but little difference so far as the prince's arrival and the wedding were concerned. According to the arrangements, when a carriage drove up to the palace where dwelt the princess amid salvos of artillery he was received by the princess' personator, the princess herself standing back and enjoying the farce that was being enacted.

"What a joke it would be," she said to herself, "if these two could be brought to marry, each thinking the other to be of princely blood! As soon as the prince arrives I shall propose the plan to him."

She did propose the plan when her fiance arrived the same evening and was admitted through a rear door of the palace. The prince was evidently much struck with the proposal and said he would think it over. He expressed a desire to see his man, Shuster, with a view to giving him further instructions, and the representative was introduced to his apartments. What passed between them was not known, but after the meeting the prince told the princess that he had proposed her plan to Shuster.

It had been arranged that the preruptial festivities should last a week, then the wedding, after which there should be another week of rejoicing. The princess was much interested in her matchmaking between the two representatives and was quite pleased to find every evidence that the two had been violently smitten with each other. The prince and his representative had conferences occasionally, and the former reported to the princess that the latter had agreed to her plan of passing through the ceremony of marriage with her who was enacting the part of bride expectant, though he feared to get into trouble by marrying a princess while pretending to be a prince. But Adolf declared that he would make that all right, assuring the man of his personal protection.

The conspirators could not, of course, go so far as to have a public marriage celebrated between the two, so it was arranged that Shuster and the princess' representative should be married privately—that is, if the spurious princess would consent to the match. The day before the royal marriage was celebrated Shuster announced that he had won the lady's consent, and the prince and his fiancee agreed that the marriage should be celebrated that same evening in the private chapel of the palace.

A few of those most intimate with the princess were admitted to the secret and to the ceremony. All watched the proceedings with great gusto. Nothing could be more interesting than a marriage between two commoners, each thinking the other to be of royal blood. Many comments were passed on the pair, the most frequent of which was that, though commoners, each possessed the carriage and dignity of a person of the blood royal.

The groom had stipulated that immediately after the ceremony he should take his bride whither so ever he pleased and no questions asked. So when the pair had been congratulated they stepped into one of the royal carriages and were driven away.

That night the prince disappeared. On the dresser in his apartments was found a note stating that his name was Herman Shuster. He had personated the prince till just before his arrival at the capital, when his royal highness had suddenly decided to enter in his own propria persona. He whom the princess had taken for a dummy was the real prince. He had fallen in love with the princess' representative and married her.

The princess, astonished, mortified, gave orders to cease the preparations for the wedding that was to take place that day at high noon and shut herself up in the palace. There was but one matter of comfort for her—if her betrothed had jilted her he had married a commoner. This would insure innumerable troubles for him in the future and might cost him a crown.

But within a few days strange news came from a neighboring kingdom. The king of this country had recently died and left the throne to his daughter. The young queen was much beloved by her subjects, being given to charity. She was used to going among the poor and the institutions for the poor incognita for the purpose of studying the needs of the former and correcting abuses in the latter. She had found these incognitas so pleasant, relieving her, as they did, from the gaze of curious crowds, that she had adopted them when traveling. In one of her journeys she had been summoned to the palace of the reigning sovereign and had been assigned a duty by the princess royal, the latter thinking her to be a commoner. While in the palace she had happened to meet the heir apparent of another kingdom, a love affair had resulted and the queen had been privately married.

When the princess heard this news she was more astonished than before. What an imposition had been practiced upon her and what an extraordinary coincidence, the queen and the prince meeting under such circumstances! But what excited the wrath of her father, the king, was that two kingdoms being near his own would now be united under one sovereign, the two together being far stronger than he was himself.

Soon after his marriage Prince Adolf sent a deputation to the lady to whom he had been betrothed to offer an humble apology. They said that after informing her that he would be represented by another he had been seized with a desire to win her love in that way, but her adoption of a similar plan as his own had placed him under an influence that he had been unable to resist.

COOL NERVE OF A BRAVE BOY

Courage, Presence of Mind and a Lucky Knife Thrust Put Him Out of Peril. Curious Experience With a Vicious Man Eater In South Africa.

"Bulala" Taylor was one of the early settlers in the South African country that is now Matabeleland. He was the Chartered company's right hand man in those days, and the natives held him in wholesome respect. More than once he checked threatening disorder almost single handed, and whenever there was an uprising it was Bulala who took command of the white forces. But this is a story of Bulala junior, his son, a stocky little chip of the old block. It happened during one of the father's absences in the field. The youngster, left in charge of the family commissariat, spent two or three evenings each week in hunting—and with invariable success, for he was a "crack" shot, for all his youth.

One morning he was late—hours late. His mother became anxious and sent some Kaffirs out to take up his spoor. A little way out they met his horse limping home, shivering and bleeding from many wounds.

The little baas must be killed!

The Kaffirs were off along the track as fast as their feet would carry them. They wanted to save the boy's remains before the lion could eat them. They found the remains—of a leopard—and Bulala junior was calmly skinning them. A few feet away was the torn carcass of a freshly killed buck.

In awe the Kaffirs squatted round and with only the interjection of an occasional "Aough!" of admiration listened to the man-child's story.

"Insimbe," said Bulala junior, addressing himself to the oldest Kaffir, "you see the little duykerbok. I killed him, and he afterward saved my life. I thought the bok would be enough meat for all of us, and was slowly riding home. The ground was stony and the bush thick. The sun made me drowsy, and I wasn't careful to look about me. The horse had to pick his way. Just as he turned that big bush he almost ran over this leopard.

"I don't know which was most surprised, the horse or the leopard or I. The leopard had no time to turn back; he just had to spring. Before my eyes could open and close twice the leopard was on my horse's shoulders, trying to get a grip with his claws into the bok in front of me.

"The horse squealed and jumped, my gun flew out of my hands, and I found myself lying on my back on the ground. The little bok was lying across my stomach and legs, and the leopard was clawing and biting him frantically. I felt the blood from his body trickling through my shirt. Insimbe, I was frightened!

"From the corners of my eyes I saw my rifle, but it was too far off to reach. I just had to lie and play dead. If I moved a muscle and the leopard saw it he would give me one blow and finish me. Once or twice he looked up at me, and through my half closed eyes I saw the blood dripping from his jaws. It was lucky he was so hungry.

"At last his hunger wore off, Insimbe. He got to his feet, and came and smelled my face. Spots of thick blood dripped on to my cheeks. Oh, Insimbe, did you ever lie and let a snake's tongue lick your face? He breathed over me and smelled me carefully, then, satisfied I was dead, went back to his meal.

"For minutes which seemed like hours the leopard tore and chewed and as he became less hungry he became more particular. Two or three times he changed his position and each time I wanted to shout in fear. If I could only get at my hunting knife, which I could feel in my belt; but I dared not move.

"At last the beast began to drag the bok off me in order to get at its other side. As the bok slipped off I moved with it as part of it. And I grasped my knife. Even then I dared not get up. I just waited and waited. At last a chance came to make my one stab. I was desperate, and I took it. The leopard stood up to stretch himself and looked away from me.

"I jumped to my feet and made a blind slash at his hind quarters. Then I sprang away; not a bit too soon either. See my shirt, Insimbe?

"He leaped on me and his fore paws grazed me and threw me on my face. When I scrambled up again and reached my rifle he had collapsed and was snapping and spitting like a cat. My wild cut had hamstrung his near hind leg.

"He only sat and snapped for an instant though; then the pain and anger made him mad and he rushed at me on three legs.

"I shot him. See how the hair is singed round the bullet hole, Insimbe?"—Youth's Companion.

WHAT THE EUROPEAN WAR MEANS TO UNITED STATES

This Nation Will be the Store House For the Old World.

The United States is beginning to feel keenly the effects of the European war. First, in the demand for supplies of various kinds. The demand for and shipment of horses has become so great that the Army officials are becoming alarmed; it is feared that it will soon be impossible to obtain horses enough for army requirments. The demand for war material, guns, cannon, ammunition, harness, saddles, underwear shoes, orders for great quanties of which have been placed. Grain of al kind is in large demand for men and horses. Millions of dollars has been and will be expended for the above in this country.

Germany and Austria will want it is said, over $3,000,000 worth of cotton each month. This will be of inestimable value to the Southern States, as it will be a market for their immense crop of cotton. The shipment of wheat is, extensive and constantly growing.

An order for 15,000,000 pounds of canned meats, valued at $1,500,000, to go to Europe, has been received by a local packing company of Oklahoma City, Ok a.

It is said that foreign orders for clothing, saddles, harness, tinned meats and the like in the Chicago and neighboring markets amount to between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Purchasing agents of the British and the French Government are in Chicago and the former has $3,000,000 in gold in a local bank to be used against purchases. The meat packers are said to have enough European orders on hand to keep them running full time for a year.

William G. Bruce, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association, is authority for the statement that the knitting mills of that State are swamped with military orders. Coarse fur coats, harness, shoes and light-tonnage auto trucks are among other Wisconsin commodities being sold abroad, he said.

A firm in East St. Louis, Ill., has shipped since the war 337,000 pounds of lard to England, and has now a contract for 5700 more pounds. France is bidding for 4,000,000 bushels of wheat.

An order has been received by a St. Paul firm for 6000 English type of artillery saddles. A milling company in the same city has booked an order for 12,000 bags of flour, for shipment to Holland. A New York telegram of Monday says the allied armies want 100,000 horses from this country. "At last his hunger wore off. Insimbe. He got to his feet, and came and smelled my face. Spots of thick blood dripped on to my cheeks. Oh, Insimbe, did you ever lie and let a snake's tongue lick your face? He breathed over me and smelled me carefully, then, satisfied I was dead, went back to his meal.

"For minutes which seemed like hours the leopard tore and chewed and as he became less hungry he became more particular. Two or three times he changed his position and each time I wanted to shout in fear. If I could only get at my hunting knife, which I could feel in my belt; but I dared not move.

"At last the beast began to drag the bok off me in order to get at its other side. As the bok slipped off I moved with it as part of it. And I grasped my knife. Even then I dared not get up. I just waited and waited. At last a chance came to make my one stab. I was desperate, and I took it. The leopard stood up to stretch himself and looked away from me.

"I jumped to my feet and made a blind slash at his hind quarters. Then I sprang away; not a bit too soon either. See my shirt, Insimbe?

"He leaped on me and his fore paws grazed me and threw me on my face. When I scrambled up again and reached my rifle he had collapsed and was snapping and spitting like a cat. My wild cut had hamstrung his near hind leg.

"He only sat and snapped for an instant though; then the pain and anger made him mad and he rushed at me on three legs.

"I shot him. See how the hair is singed round the bullet hole, Insimbe?"—Youth's Companion.

Explained at Last.

"At your age," said young Robert's father, "I was compelled to wait and eat at the second table when we had company."

"Mother," the child remarked, "you have often wondered where dad got his table manners. Now we know."—Chicago Record Herald.

Drudgery is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as are harrowing and planting to obtain those of the earth.

It was radical legislation that brought the country into that depressed state of mind which President Wilson characterized as psychological. Fear of more such legislation prevented an uplifting in trade circles.

The election last week will do an immense service in dissipating that fear. The whole business world will accept the results of the voting as a notice to push forward.

There has already been a marked betterment in the price of many securities. Bank reserves are filling up depleted reservoirs. Interest rates show a tendency to go down. One long-term loan of $1,000,000 has been recorded this week at 5 per cent.

Of the greatest significance, also, is the clamor of Europe for American cotton. Official estimates placed the exports for the current month at more than $18,003,000, compared with less than $6,000,000 in September.

These two powerful factors—a European demand for enormous supplies which we alone can furnish and the elimination of all fear of more radical laws—unite today to put a new face upon almost every form of trade. Every business sign now points forward.

Masked Men Take The Ballot Box.

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 8.—Two masked men entered a school house at Rockhouse, Mingo county, on election day and at the point of revolvers, carried off the ballot box of the precinct. The election officers had almost completed their work when the bandits entered. Every evidence that an election had been held was carried away. Federal and state officers are pursuing the men. The absence of a return from this district may invalidate the election.

The Vote in Maryland.

The Baltimore Sun, is commenting on the result of the state, says "The Bull Moose movement has collapsed definitely, and its members have gone back to the Republican party in great numbers; that party again is a formidable force in Maryland, as elsewhere, and this is a battle ground in which the election next year for Governor will be a fight and not a frolic."

Had the Republicans and Progressives been united in the First district (Eastern Shore) [the Democratic Candidate would have been defeated as the Democratic plurality over the Republican candidate was only about 400, while the Progressive candidate polled over 4,000 votes.

Smith (Dem) for Senator had a plurality of 15,324 over Carrington (Rep.) The Progressive vote in the state was about 1800.

One Funeral in Every Ten Among Church Members Due To Tuberculosis.

In an effort to ascertain how serious a problem tuberculosis is to the average church congregation of the United States, The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis published today a report which shows that in nearly 3,000 churches in 37 different states one funeral in every ten is due to this single disease.

Through a questionnaire sent out all over the country, 2,852 clergymen representing 1,603,300 communicants or parishioners gave replies telling at how many funerals they officiated for the year ending August 31, 1914; how many of these were due to tuberculosis; how many living cases of tuberculosis they now have in their parishes, and how many commuicants or parishoners. There were 36,798 deaths from all causes reported, showing a death rate of 229.4 per 10,000 population, which is considerably higher than the corresponding rate for the entire country, 138.7 in 1912. This high death rate is probably due to the fact that pastors of churches officiate at many funerals of others than members or communicants, while their membership reports are taken from actual records.

As indicating the extent of the tuberculosis problem in the average church the figures show that 10.3 per cent. of all the funerals reported were caused by tuberculosis, and that, in addition to the 3,794 deaths from this disease, the ministers had 4,254 living cases now under their pastoral supervision. In one year, therefore, the 2,852 churches were caring for 8,048 cases of tuberculosis, or an average of nearly three for each congregation. The average size of the congregations was 56, which would indicate that there is a case of tuberculosis developing each year for every twenty church members.

Because tuberculosis demands so much time and money from the churches, The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis is calling upon all of them throughout the United States to join in an educational campaign against this disease on Tuberculosis Day, which will be observed during the week of November 29th.

Rural Free Delivery.

The announcement that Postmaster General Burleson favors a change in the rural delivery system whereby carriers will have to bid for the work and obtain it by bidding lower than any one else, is causing great apprehension among rural carriers all over the country. This is the old star-route system revived. Under it, the bidder would no doubt be allowed to take on as many contracts as he could handle, and every rural carrier would become the employe of the contractor, instead of Uncle Sam as he is now. In time, the contractor could become a big corporation which would fix the compensation of the men who do the work at $600 to $800 a year, instead of $1,000 to $1,200 which the Government now pays them direct, and the contractor would get rich on the work of the carriers. The contractor would come to own the horses, wagons or automobiles and the carriers would become a mere driver.

Postmaster General Burleson is also doing his best to transfer the parcel post into a freigh post. Mail-order houses under such a rule would soon be delivering a bundle of shingles by mail. The weight of the parcel has already been raised to 50 pounds for certain zones, and Mr. Burleson now wants to raise the limit to 100 pounds.

The threatened change to 100 pounds, postal experts say, would certainly not be a move to bring the farmers nearer their market, but one to build up the big cities at the expense of the country districts.

What a Million Really Is.

An income of $1,000,000 a year is 5 per cent. on $20,000,000. Either amount to the average human mind is virtually unimaginable. A million a year is about $2,740 a day, $114 an hour or $2 a minute, says the Philadelphia Ledger. It is a fifth of what it is said to be costing Germany every day to make war. It would pay a salary of $1,000 per annum to 1,000 persons. It would pay $4 mileage for the whole distance to the moon, or put a girdle of dollars 40 times around the earth. An income tax is paid only by 44 persons in this country whose income exceeds $1,000,000 a year.

Report of Maryland Crops.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—The Crop Reporting Board of the United States Department of Agriculture has just completed its estimate of the acre yield of the principal farm crops of Maryland for this year. The estimates are based on crop conditions during the early part of October. The final figures will be given out within a short time, but is reported that they will not differ to any great extent with the preliminary estimates. According to the figures the yield per acre of the principal crops of this State in 1914 will be as follows: Corn 42.5 bushels; Buckwheat 22 bushels; Irish potatoes 122 bushels; Sweet Potatoes 146 bushels and Tobacco 870 pounds.

Maryland farmers produced 452,000 tons of tame, or cultivated, hay during 1914. The yield last year was 491,000 tons. The product is selling for an average of $15.30 per ton, compared with $12.20 per ton in 1913. The yield per acre this season is 1.16 tons and the quality is not as good as that of the average crop of the past ten years.

Rural Telephones.

The telephone is one of the most profitable business agencies that the farmer can employ. It affords him facilities for keeping in constant communication with the markets, provides a sitting room for the community where the families can assemble and discuss the events of the day without the inconvenience of travel or loss of time, and in sickness and emergencies, it renders a divine service.

Maryland farmers should encourage the building of telephone lines. Local co-operative campanies can be formed and country lines built at small expense.

What a Misfortune.

Had Woodrow Wilson been a candidate for the presidency in Tuesday's election, now that the returns are complete enough to analyze the results and form concrete opinions, he would have been defeated. Two years ago Mr. Wilson had 435 votes in the electoral college, as against 88 for Mr. Roosevelt, and 8 for Taft. This year the crucial states—such states as must be counted certain for a candidate for the president to win—were lost to the Democracy. On the face of the returns this year, had a presidential election been in progress, there would have been 296 votes for the Republican candidate, against 232 for the Democratic candidate, in the electoral college.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AFTER.

—Ripley in New York Globe.

War Emigrants.

The expected emigration of middle-class people from Europe on account of war conditions has begun. The steamship Cameronia recently landed at New York from Glasglow with 760 second-class passengers, most of whom are well to do Scotch people who are seeking better living conditions in America than can be found in their native land, while the turmoil of war is on. It is almost certain that unusually large numbers of Europeans will look now with longing eyes to our peaceful continent. After the war the ocean paths will witness a great movement this way of the maimed, the ruined, the widowed, and those who wish no longer to live where militarism has done its fell work and wrought such havoc. There are serious problems ahead on this side of the sea.

ADVANCING REPUBLICANISM

Maryland Election Not A Defeat.

Republican State Chairman, Galen L. Tait, Says Republican Party Is Reunited And Strong Fighting Force.

MUDD'S ELECTION BREAKS SOLID DEMOCRATIC LINE

The Nov. 3d Result A Pledge Of More Complete Victory Hereafter.

Galen L. Tait of Montgomery county, Republican State Chairman, who had charge of the recent campaign conducted from State headquarters at Baltimore, has made the following statement concerning the recent election:

"We Republicans should not consider the November 3 election result as a defeat. The campaign of 1914 opened with an imperative duty facing the Republican party of at once placing upon the registration books the entire Republican voting strength of the whole State. The loyal Republicans of both the counties and city faithfully undertook and successfully accomplished that great task.

"One of the main objects of this campaign has been achieved. The Republican party is now completely reunited. We form a strong fighting force and the impressive vote polled is a pledge and a prophecy of a more complete victory hereafter. That the cementing of forces has been attained and a large vote polled are due in a liberal measure to the influence and work of Col. E. C. Carrington, the Senatorial candidate, and to Messrs. Duer, Heaps, Janetzke, Hammond, Mudd and Zihlman, the Congressional nominees, who with their friends and supporters held aloft and never lowered the banner of advancing Republicanism. It is regretted that the sacrificial work of all of them was not rewarded. A great wave of Republicanism has swept New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and other States, wiping out public approval of the Democratic Administration policies. Had there been time for this wave to mount a little higher, the Democracy of Maryland would have been totally submerged. But we count it a substantial victory that the solid alignment of Democratic Representatives in Congress from this State has been broken. From the Fifth district goes Sydney E. Mudd, the worthy son of an honored sire, to represent Maryland Republicanism in the lower house of Congress.

The First district was all but carried and the Sixth district, with the whole influence of the Democratic National Administration thrown against us, was nearly redeemed. The fighting Sixth district, which rightfully belongs to Republicanism, will next time surely be recaptured from the enemy.

"Another feature which affords us Republicans congratulation is the fact that the gross Democratic abuses of the franchise which have long existed in certain sections of Anne Arundel county, and wherever else they exist, will, if the circumstances of the present investigation contain any warning, be ended for all time. The Republican party stands sternly for the purity of the ballot.

"Republicans in Maryland, as elsewhere over the country, may look forward to the future with a well-warranted confidence that Republicanism will soon come fully to its own again."

Government Fears Extinction of Stock

Unparalelled precautions are being taken by the United States Department of Agriculture to quarantine areas infected with the foot and mouth disease among live stock to prevent the entire destruction of cattle, sheep and swine in the United States. The present outbreak is the most extensive thus far recorded in this country.

So contagious is this disease that the practice now is to kill an entire herd when a single case appears, bury the carcasses in lime and prevent all contact with the outside world.

In a statement issued by the Department of Agriculture it is announced that 10 States are now infected and unless the disease can be quickly localized it thereatens "untold losses" among live stock. While the mortality is not high, animals which recover are practically useless.

ATTEMPTED INCENDIARISM

Home of Lyons, on Oak Street Set On Fire.

Last Friday night some evil disposed person attempted to burn Mrs. Lyons' home, in this city. Mrs. Lyons was awakened from her slumbers by the barking of the neighbors dogs. She thought she heard some one walking on the back porch, and supposed some one was trying to get into the house to committ robbery. She raised the window and asked what was wanted. The man ran around to the side of the house and into the woods near by and was followed by the dogs to Webers crossing, where they lost track of him.

Mrs. Lyon saw a light on the porch. She called her sons and hurried down stairs, to find a fire under headway. White pine sticks about 2 feet long, split fine and soaked in coal oil, had been pushed through a crack under the kitchen door and set on fire. When Mrs. Lyons reached the spot a space like a half moon had been burned in the door, and strips of pine lay on the porch. Mr. Albert Ross and other neighbors were called, as well as Sheriff Scott, but no clue to the fiend could be found. Mrs. Lyons can not imagine why any one should want to burn down her home and possibly the family as well.

STATE'S CROPS SHOW INCREASE.

Greatest Growth Was That of Apples Wheat, Corn and Rye Also Grain.

Maryland is credited with producing 13,158,000 bushels of first-class Southern wheat as compared with only 8,113,000 bushels in 1913, which means that the wheat prices up to $1.14 per bushel, as compared with less than 90 cents last year, Maryland has almost doubled her output.

These figures became available yesterday, being released by the United States Department of Agriculture. As a matter of fact, members of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce stated that in their opinion this Government estimate was too small and that the Maryland wheat crop would finally show to have exceeded the increase figured on by the Government experts.

In corn, which is showing a steady tendency toward higher prices, Maryland is credited by the National Government with producigg this season nearly 2,500,000 bushels more than was grown in 1913. As regards rye, this State is given an increase of 2,000,000 bushels this season as compared with the last crop.

The State, however, has shown its most remarkable increase of production in its apple crop, which has leaped from 1,300,000 to 3,470,000 bushels. This figures out close to a 300 per cent. increase, and that is extraordinary, and means that the newer methods of apple-growing and the scientific treatment of Maryland orchards have combined with a favorable season to simply overload the apple trees in this state. Nearly 3,500,000 bushels of first-class apples means that the very poorest Baltimoreans can enjoy this succulent and healthful fruit without stint.

RATS TOOK $6,300 IS CONTENTION IN TRUNK ROBBERY CASE.

51 Witnesses Summoned in Case Against Garrett County Farmer Accused of Larceny.

One of the hardest fought legal battles that has occupied the attention of the Allegany County Circuit Court opened Thursday afternoon of last week before a jury. The case which was venued to Cumberland from Garrett county, is that of George Friend, a farmer charged with the larceny of $6,300 in cold cash from the home of John Seibert, a farmer living near Broadwater, Garrett county. The robbery occurred in April, 1913, shortly after the money all in paper bank notes, had been taken from a bank and placed in a trunk in the Seibert home for the purchase of a farm in the neighborhood.

On the morning of April 13, 1913, Seibert went to get the money in his trunk, and it was gone. The Landis-Harris bloodhounds of Fairmont were secured and followed a trail far up in the mountain but at that time no arrests was made. Later Seibert secured a warrant for Friend, who had been a visitor at his home, charging him with the theft of the money. Friend was arrested and held under bail to answer to the charge. Gilmor S. Hamill, Sr., of Oakland, and Captain J. Philip Roman of Cumberland, defended the accused, while the State was ably represented by Julius C Renninger, States Attorney for Garrett county, Frank A. Perdew, states attorney for Allegany county, and H. R. Donnelly and W. C. Somerville, of the Cumberland bar.

After the jury had been impaneled Thursday Julius C. Renninger made the opening argument for the prosecution, followed by Captain J. Philip Roman for the defense. Captain Roman told how the rats had gotten into the room, scattered cracked corn on the floor, tore up paper and tunneled into the trunk. Fifty-one witnesses had been summoned from Garrett county and service was asked for Thursday for several more to appear in court Friday.

Following the conclusion of the state's evidence on Friday evening, the defense began the taking of testimony Saturday morning which lasted until 1:30 o'clock. State's Attorney Renninger made a strong plea for the prosecution, followed by Captain J. Philip Roman for the defense, who, with a calender in his hand, explained to the jury that it was impossible for the accused to have taken the money on the date claimed by Siebert. The evidence showed that Friend and Siebert had been together on a trip April 11, 12, 13 and 14, as the register from the National Hotel at Grantsville showed that both had taken dinner there on their return on that date.

Siebert testified that the morning they started on the trip he went to the trunk where the money was kept and procured a $10 bill with which to pay expenses, and that all the money was there at that time. It was proved by the defense by Miss Oma Whitesell, who was a domestic in the Siebert home at that time, that the money was first missed on Tuesday morning, April 15, the following day after Siebert and Friend had returned from their trip. The girl's father also testified that she had gone to the Siebert home to work on Monday, April 14, the day before the robbery was discovered.

The testimony of Gilead Broadwater, a merchant of Grantsville, who produced a $20 gold certificate which he said he had got from George Friend, consumed much of the court's time. On cross examination he was asked by Captain Roman how long Sibert had the money in his possession before he pointed out any marks, and said it was almost immediately. He was then asked if he had not testified at the preliminary hearing before the magistrate that it was more than an hour, and said he did not. He said if the testimony showed that it was a mistake by the stenographer. A summons was issued for the stenographer, but she did not appear in court. The case consumed three days in the local court, and more than fifty witnesses testified. Ezekiel Musgrave, of Fairmont, who took the bloodhounds to the Siebert home to trail the thieves, testified for the state. He could not remember the date that he was called there, and said he thought the trail was too old to follow when the dogs arrived there. The case went to the jury shortly after 4 o'clock, who returned with their verdict about two hours later finding Friend not guilty.

FIGHT AGAINST HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE

Statement From The Secretary Of Agriculture In Regard to The Federal Measure.

The Secretary of Agriculture has issued the following statement regarding the quarantine for foot-and-mouth disease:

The present outbreak of the foot-and mouth disease, which is one of the most contagious and destructive diseases of cattle, swine and sheep, exceeds in area affected any of the five previous outbreaks in this country. Unless the infection can be immediatev localized and quickly eradicated, it threatens untold losses among live stock.

So contagious is the disease that in past outbreaks where but one animal in a herd was infected, the entire herd in almost all cases later contracted the sickness. While the mortality is not high the effects of the disease even on animals that recover are such as to make them practically useless. They loose flesh rapidly; in the case of cows, the milk dries up or is made dangerous for human consumption; in the case of breeding animals the animal once infected becomes valueless for breeding, as it may continue to be a constant carrier of contagion.

Governor Goldsborough issued a proclamation declaring a quarantine of the cattle in Montgomery, Howard and Carroll counties, on account of the hoof-and-mouth disease alleged to be prevalent in those counties. No cattle will be allowed to be taken in or out of the county. This is in addition to the counties of Alleganv, Frederick and Washington, in which the cattle quarantine had already beed declared.

Foot-and-mouth disease now raging among cattle in 14 States is communicable to humans, the Department of Agriculture announced recently, but its effect rarelv is serious. The Department urged, however, tha humans keep away from diseased cattle to avoid spreading the infection, and recommended the using of pasteurized milk.

The hunting season in Allegany county will be brought to an abrupt end by a proclamation issued Saturday by Governor Goldsborough in which hunting is prohibited in an effort to check the spread of the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle. It is contended hunters and dogs going over the ground spread the disease germs and the Governor closed the hunting season in all the counties where the disease has been discovered and counties contiguous to the affected places. The disease has appeared on a number of farms in Washington county, and although no evidence of it has been discovered in Allegany county the Governor included it in his proclamation to prevent the epidemic from spreading there.

Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, of the State Board of Health, and head of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, made the announcement that persons who have been in direct contact with animals suffering from the hoof-and-mouth disease are to be quarantined.

FOREST FIRES.

Work of Forest Wardens Has Had Good Effect.

The extremely long, dry season this fall has made one of the worst fire seasons in years. Many of the Forest Wardens have been working day and night to control the fires, and no doubt their efforts have resulted in a very greatly reduced fire damage. It has been reported that a number of people in the county, who derived a considerable renenue from hunting and killing game and shipping it out of the county, are very much incensed over the game laws, which now prohibit the selling and shipping of game. The worst part of it is that this resentment should be the cause of several of these destructive forest fires, if reports be true. The Forest Wardens are not Game Wardens, and have nothing whatever to do with the game laws, nor does the State Forestry Department; and it is very unfortunate that this attitude should be taken toward the forest lands.

Forest fires destroy much of the game and bring about conditions that are unfavorable to game propagation. It is presumed that the present laws have been enacted on account of the growing scarcity of game. If this be true, then the protection of the forests from fire would increase the game, and the laws would be modified to permit more game to be taken and utilized and thereby bring about greater benefits to those who make any part of their living from hunting.

Receipts Fall Off.

Government receipts from ordinary sources were nearly $20,000,000 less during October than for October last year. Customs receipts were off about $14,000,000 and internal revenue nearly $6,000,000. The figures were in contrast with the following for September, when total receipts fell off only about $4,000,000, with customs below the same month in 1913 about $9,500,000 and internal revenue receipts increased about $6,000,000. The effect of the new revenue war tax will not noticeably swell the treasury's total for several weeks to come.

The net balance in the general fund at the close of the month was $91,639,163, about $54,000,000 less than on June 30, and the total cash assets were put at $1,866,321,137, compared with $2,005,005,831 on June 30.

Since the latter date the gold coin in the currency trust fund decreased nearly $140,000,000, while the gold bullion in the same fund increased nearly $8,000,000. The decrease in the total gold in the fund was about $133,000,000. Gold coin in treasury offices, however, not counted in the fund, increased since June 30 about $26,500,000, and the national bank five per cent reserve fund increased in the same time about $2,000,000.

The difference in the amounts of gold is believed to be due largely to the redemption of gold certificates by banks becoming members of the new federal reserve system.

Valuable Harvest.

The farmers and planters of the country are blessed this year with the double advantage of large crops and high prices. Usually a very abundant harvest brings correspondingly low prices, but the unusual demand for food and the decreased European supply caused by the war brought about conditions most favorable to our own producers. Every month's crop report has shown steady increase in the prospective or harvested crops. The November report confirms and strengthens the previous estimate of quantities and gives their value at more than five billion dollars, which is greater than was ever produced before in this country even with the low quotation placed on the large cotton crop of the South.

The exemption of cotton from the list of contraband and the certainty that it will be a great demand as soon as the present supply of cotton cloth is exhausted, are guarantees that the price of cotton already improved will surely recover. The United States as to her agricultural productions is in a most fortunate situation. Even the fatuity of Turkey in becoming a party to the war cuts off a source of grain supply from the belligerents which will strengthen the demand for Amarican grain. Russia and Rumania are grain producing countries with normally a large export trade in grain. This was greatly reduced by the war and is stopped altogether by the closing of the Dardanelles through Turkey's joining in this European war.—Philadelphia Press.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

There are a large number of species of trees in the county that are of commercial value, although some of them are found so sparingly as to be little used. Among the softwoods the most important species are white pine, hemlock, yellow pine and spruce; while among the hardwoods the most important are oak, chestnut, maple, birch, basswood, beech and hickory.

White Pine. This tree at one time of very great importance in the county since it occupied large areas particularly in the central and northern sections. Its stumpage value is higher than that for any other species, but it has been cut so closely that little remains. It is principally used for lumber.

Hemlock is still abundant in some sections and is scattered more or less over the county along the streams. The lumber is used for construction purposes, and the bark which is also valuable adds greatly to the importance of the species.

Pitch Pine is found in small areas in different sections of the county and is being cut extensively for lumber. It is the only yellow pine found in the county.

Spruce never was abundant in the county, but is found scattered in some sections with the white pine and hardwoods. It is cut into lumber and dimension material.

Oak. Nearly one-half the cut of all the hardwoods is oak of the various species, of which white oak and red oak are the most important, followed by chestnut oak and scarlet. The large sized white oak trees go into saw timber, while the smaller sized white oak and chestnut oaks are used for railroad ties, mine props, etc. Some high grade red oak lumber is cut from the larger red oak trees, while the smaller ones with scarlet oak go into construction material, railroad ties, mine props, etc.

Chestnut is abundant in all of the mountain sections of the county, particularly on the ridges and upper slopes. It is used for lumber, railroad ties, telephone poles, and fence posts.

Maple, Birch, Beech and Basswood do not rank high as timber, and these trees are run through the mills in connection with oak and chestnut with which they are more or less associated. Their principal use is for construction material, mine rails, etc.

Hickory is quite abundant in some sections, and wherever it grows in quantity it is sawed into special dimension material for wagon stock, etc.

Black Cherry and Black Walnut are common trees in the forests and of great value, but do not occur in sufficient quantity to be very important.

Other Trees, such as Ash and Cucumber, are likewise found scattered and are cut with other species wherever they occur.

The history of the lumber business in Garrett county is not unlike that of other sections where extensive and valuable forests have existed in the mountain sections. In the early days when there were no good roads, immense forests and few people to use them, only the choicest timber in the most accessible places was taken. Later on when there was a greater demand for timber, cutting extended farther back in the mountains and was the beginning of the more rapid depletion of the forests, but even then it did not pay to take any but the very best of the trees.

Forest fires generally followed the lumbering operations in the old slashings and from this time to the present forest fires have undoubtly destroyed more timber than has been cut. With the advent of the logging railroads it was possible to extend the tracks up the streams and bring the timber from the adjacent mountain sides. Even before logging railroads were used some of the best timber areas were cut over and the timber removed by tram roads, in which the cars were hauled by mules or horses. This was the way in which the white pine on Meadow Mountain was taken out about 35 or 40 years ago, over a tram-road constructed from Meadow Mountain to Deer Park, where a large saw mill was located. The lumber was taken out from that point by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The large white pine stumps that are scattered so thickly over the ground bear testimony to the excellent stand of timber that was found there, the equal of any in the State.

The timber business has been the most important industry in the county for over 50 years, but the reckless methods of cutting, combined with the destruction by forest fires, is placing this industry on a very uncertain footing. Large saw mills that were established years ago when there was an abundance of timber and a prospect of almost perpetual operation have exhausted the local supplies, and the mills have moved away. In some cases prosperous settlements have been built under the impetus of the lumber business, and the exhaustion of supplies these settlements have often disappeared. There are very few tracts of good timber remaining, so that the day of the large operation is rapidly disappearing, giving place to the smaller mill with only temporary supplies in sight, before they in turn must move elsewhere to secure suitable material. But even in this day of fast waning timber supplies, the timber cut for the county in 1909 had a value at the mills of approximately $1,120,612, which nearly equals the value of the farm crops. The forests of the county are being drawn upon for a diversity of products, which may be conveniently classified under the following heads:

Lumber, laths, shingles, ties, mine props, tan bark, poles, posts, piles and miscellaneous.

Lumber. The lumber cut of the county for 1909 amounted to 60,023,000 feet, board measure, with a value at the mills where where it was produced of $1,013,739. The principal trees used for lumber, the amount cut, and the value are as follows.

	Board Feet.	Value.
Hardwoods:
Oak	22,748,000	$395,959
Chestnut	13,664,000	302,478
Maple	2,956,000	41,398
Others	8,610,000	220,540
Softwoods:
Hemlock	11,345,000	147,485
Yellow Pine	178,000	2,314
White Pine	138,000	2,380
Spruce	83,000	1,464
Total	60,023,000	$1,013,739

Lath. Lath is generally a by-product of the larger mills where the slabs and other pieces of suitable size are worked up the purpose. Hemlock and a number of the softer hardwoods are also used. The cut of lath was 7,650,000 which, with a value at the mills of $2.75 per thousand, produced a product worth $19,638.

Shingles. The production of shingles in the county is a rather unimportant item, the figures for 1909 showing an output of 785,000, which, valued at $4.50 per thousand, amounts to $3,532.

Railroad and Mine Ties. The cutting of railroad ties is often done by smaller operators, as it requires very little capital. The business is carried on extensively over the culled forests where the saw timber has been removed. The principal species cut for railroad ties were white oak (21,832), mixed oak (12,600), chestnut (14,000). Most of the ties were hewn. The mixed oak ties include principally red oak, scarlet oak, and black oak. Since the railroads have begun to purchase inferior, cheap woods, which they treat with preservatives to make them durable, other woods, not heretofore used for ties are being cut for the purpose, and operators are beginning to take advantage of this opportunity to place on the market many of the inferior woods not accepted hitherto. In addition to railroad ties the cutting of mine ties is quite an industry in the county, and as much smaller material can be used mine ties are often cut from trees that are too small for saw timber, and with the cutting of mine props it is frequently part of the cleaning up process in connection with or following logging operations. In 1909 9,260 mine ties were reported. The total value of railroad and mine ties is estimated at $27,315.

Mine Props. The demand for small sized mine props for the bituminous coal regions makes it profitable for timber operators to cut the forests almost clean. Anything that will make a prop eight feet long and four inches at the small end is usable. The price received for such material, however, is little more than the cost of cutting, allowing little or nothing for stumpage. Since this takes the young, thrifty trees of all species the practice is very detrimental to the continued productiveness of the forest. The cut for 1900 amounted to 92,400 mine props, eight to ten feet long, valued at $11,088.

Tan Bark. Tan Bark is furnished in two species—hemlock and chestnut oak—of which the former supplied probably nine-tenths of the output. Bark is considered a by-product of lumbering in the case of hemlock, and of lumbering and tie cutting in the case of chestnut oak. The amount produced in 1909 is estimated at 4,250 tons, valued at $25,500.

Poles. Chestnut is the only species cut for telephone and telegraph poles to any extent, and only within a reasonably short distance of shipping points, as poles are bulky to handle and difficult to haul. It is estimated that 850 poles were cut in 1909, valued at $2,400 at the shipping points.

Posts. There is a great deal of locust in the county which has come in on areas that have been closely lumbered and burned. The number of posts cut and shipped in 1909 is estimated at 4,500, with a value of $900.

Piles. Only a limited number of piles, mostly white oak, with a few mixed oaks and pine, were cut in the county in 1909. The number reported is 1,800, valued at $10,800.

Miscellaneous. Among the miscellaneous products reported in the cut are pulpwood, veneer logs, and cordwood. The total estimated value of these products is $5,000.

The most serious damage to the forests of the county is from forest fires. It is likely that since cutting began in the county the damage from forest fires has exceeded the value of the standing timber that has been cut, and today this is the greatest menace to the future of forestry. The conditions for the growth of timber are very favorable, and there is no doubt that excellent forests can be produced again on lands that once were heavily timbered and have been cut over, if fires are excluded. This is fully demonstrated in cases where by reason of natural protection or vigilance on the part of owners the fires have been kept out. But, as it is, there is but a very small per cent of the wooded area of the county that has not been visited at some time or other, frequently many times, by forest fires. Practically the only exceptions are isolated tracts that have natural protection, or as in the case of a few tracts where the owners have by maintaining a patrol or a very close watch kept out fires. It is, therefore, apparent that the control of forest fires is the most important forest work in the county today. Before the state forest work was organized in 1906 there were no records to show the number of fires and the actual amount of damage. It is probable, however, that this damage amounted to more than $50,000 a year.

Turkey Shipment May Be Forbidden.

That Thanksgiving Day dinner prices will disappoint the laboring man this year if he expects with his family to gather around the tempting brown turkey, which his Puritan ancestors sacrificed as the bird of thanksgiving and thus began an annual custom, is the belief expressed around the markets Saturday night.

The prices of all fowl advanced last week. Dressed chickens rose 4½ cents a pound above the price of last week; geese, ducks and turkeys increased 2 cents, This, according to commission merchants, is due to the sudden and widespread prevalence of the hoof-and-mouth disease among the live stock.

"It is a little early for the regular Thanksgiving demand in the turkey market and that probably is the reason for the small increase in the price of that fowl," said a commission merchant, "but there is no doubt that the hoof-and-mouth disease will have a strong tendency to elevate the price.

"That the turkey situation is pivotal is a surety. It depends on the action of the government and the extent of the investigation made. If the disease around the barnyards continues to be revealed, and there is a wholesale quarantine among the stock, there is sure to be a greater demand for other meats, and the turkey consumer will be the prime sufferer at this time.

THE DEATH RECORD

ELLIOTT MORELAND.

Elliott Moreland, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Moreland, died at the Home Sanitarium on Oct. 25th, of appendicitis. He was aged a little over nineteen years. He was a faithful member of the M. E. church, a christian in the full sense of the word, unselfish and obedient and loved by all who knew him. He leaves beside his parents two brothers and five sisters, who feel their loss most keenly. Death is always sad and when the young with so much of life and hope before them are called to close their eyes on all they love so well, none can fathom the depths of that sadness. The funeral service was held at home. The sermon was preached by his former pastor, Rev, Johnson. He was laid to rest by loving hands. We have a bright hope that some day we shall meet again. A FRIEND.

MRS. JOHN FAZENBAKER.

Mrs. John Fazenbaker, aged 40 years, died Monday night at her home in Detmold, from a complication of diseases. She is survived by her husband and four children and the following brothers and sisters: John, Levi, James and Ralph Reed, of Lonaconing, and Thomas Reed, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. William Metz and Mrs. James Metz, of Kitzmiller.

A delightful rain fell here last Saturday night and Sunday.

Cleaver Brenneman, of Portland, Oregon, is visiting his home here for a few days.

Miss Mary Beitzell is confined to her home by a very severe attack of rheumatism.

Milton Wiley, who recently suffered an attack of diphtheria, is reported to be recovering.

James Speicher and daughter, Mrs. Nettie Hoover, returned from Baltimore last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Aaron Reed and Miss Leonora Wiley, of Jennings, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. T. B. Wiley.

C. E. Emory, of Alliance, O., and Mr. Frank Brown, of Cumberland, spent one night last week in this village.

BATHROOM SHOCKS.

Keep Away From Electric Fixtures While Your Skin Is Wet.

A man is in much greater danger from electric shock when taking a bath than under ordinary conditions, as the surface of the body when moist offers much less resistance to the current than when dry. Persons have been killed while bathing by current that would scarcely have affected them outside the bath, says Cosmos of Paris.

Balthazard told at the Society of Legal Medicine of the case of a lady killed by electric shock in her bathroom at the moment when she was pressing the button of an electric bell between the poles of which there was a difference of potential of not more than 110 volts.

In ordinary circumstances, owing to the great resistance of the human body, such a small electromotive force presents no great danger, but when the circuit contains, as in the case reported, a large surface of moist skin the resistance falls and more than 100 milliamperes may pass through the organism, sufficient at this tension to produce death by tetanization of the respiratory muscles.

Currents of even forty-six volts are dangerous in a bathroom. It should be remembered that currents of feeble intensity can produce a sudden rise of arterial tension capable of causing sudden death in a person with a weak heart.

High tensions, enabling currents of four to five amperes to pass, have quite a different effect. They do not generally cause death, because the modifications of the tissue produced at the point of contact at once oppose a considerable resistance to the passage of the current. The intensity within the organism is not sufficient to cause tetanization of the respiratory muscles, and the lesions are usually purely local.

Socquet also observed a case of electrocution with an electromotive force much lower than 110 volts. There was no burn at the point where the current entered, but at the autopsy the lungs showed the characteristic lesions of asphyxia and even actual laceration.—Translation For the Literary Digest.

REFORMED SPELLING.

Dean Swift Railed Against It In the Eighteenth Century.

In the eighteenth century we find Jonathan Swift, whose mastery of prose is one of our delights, writing as the very first article which appeared over his acknowledged name "A Proposal For Correcting, Improving and Ascertaining the English Tongue." He lamented that the English tongue was becoming debased, but he attributed the cause in part to the liberties which Dryden and the other poets of the restoration had taken in shortening their syllables by omitting those very "e's" which our spelling reformers would eliminate.

"These gentlemen," wrote Swift, "although they could not be insensible how much our language was already overstocked with monosyllables, yet to save time and pains introduced that barbarous custom of abbreviating words to fit them to the measure of their verses, so that most of the books we see nowadays are full of those manglings and abbreviations." "Disturb'd," "rebuk'd," are among the words he finds especially unpleasant.

Swift was further annoyed at a "foolish opinion, advanced of late years, that we ought to spell exactly as we speak, which besides the obvious inconvenience of utterly destroying our etymology, would be a thing we should never see an end of." Also he noted with impatience in 1712, "It is sometimes a difficult matter to read modern books and pamphlets where the words are so curtailed and varied from their original spelling that whoever has been used to plain English will hardly know them by sight." How many of our "new" controversies were waged centuries ago!—Harper's Weekly.

Words From Astrology.

Astrology has made lasting impression upon the language. "Disaster" means nothing but "contrary star." "Influence" appears to have come from the inflowing of planetary power upon the fortunes of men. Such words as "aspect" and "predominant," though we might possibly have had them without astrology, have probably been helped by it. Even "consider," or rather its Latin original "considerare," is believed to have been started by meaning observation of the stars (sidera). And "jovial" and "mercurial" allude to planetary influence.—Chicago News.

Electrical Displays.

The scientific explanation of electrical displays is that where there is a sufficient difference of potential in adjacent states of electricity there is a sudden flash of light and a sharp sound, caused by the struggle to attain equilibrium. The flash is lightning, the noise thunder, whether the lengths of alternating discharges are one-thousandth of an inch or three miles, as in streak lightning.—New York American.

THE HUMAN HEART

Work of This Marvelous Twofold Pumping Machine.

HAS A LANGUAGE OF ITS OWN.

In Tones That Cannot Be Misunderstood It Tells Whether It Is Strong or Weak and if Ailing Notes the Place and Cause of Its Troubles.

When the doctor puts his ear to your chest or applies the stethoscope, which only conducts the sounds more clearly, what does he hear? The sound of the normal heart is like the pronunciation of the syllables "lub-dup" close to each other. These syllables are heard in quick succession, and then comes a pause—the diastole or resting period of the great force pump. The sound "lub" is that of the blood flowing out under muscular pressure, and the "dup" is the closing of the aortic valves. If this sound "dup" is not heard it shows that the aortic valves are destroyed or not working.

The latest explanation of this first sound, "lub," is that it is caused by the muscular contraction of the heart and the impulse of the heart against the chest wall. The first sound is heard more clearly over the apex of the heart, the point of the chest nearest to the ventricle. The second sound is best heard over the aortic valves which lie beneath the left side of the chest just by the third rib.

If you close a door with great force the slam is very loud, and if the tension in the aorta is very high the sound "dup" is louder than usual. This is most important to the physician, for he then knows that there is high arterial tension, due to what is termed an aneurism.

If the sound "lub" is weaker than normal it would indicate a weakness of the heart muscle and this is the case in fevers. In typhoid fever, for instance, when this first sound is very weak, we know that the heart is so weak as to make the case alarming.

A heart is said to have a "murmur" when the sharp "dup" disappears and the listening physician hears a softened noise called a "murmur." If you try to say "dup" with your lips open the sound uttered will be like that the doctor hears in the diseased heart whose valves do not close properly. The sound produced is something like "duff," and if the mitral valve does not work well the first syllable is softened into "luff." If both valves work poorly the sound is "luff-duff—luff-duff," but if both valves are very much out of order the sound is like that of a bellows, "oho-oho."

Most persons speak of the heart as if it were a single organ, but actually it is two hearts joined together, the right and the left heart. The right sends the blood through the lungs so that it may be aerated, or acted upon by the oxygen in the inhaled air, while the left heart sends the blood through the body in order to nourish the tissues.

Both of these hearts receive the blood from the large veins into the auricles, which by contracting send the blood on into the ventricles, and when these powerful muscles contract the right ventricle pumps the blood into the pulmonary artery on the way to the lungs and from the left ventricle into the aorta, which distributes the blood all over the body, so that after having nourished the nerves and muscles it returns through the veins to the heart, there to be pumped into the lungs for purification by the oxygen before again passing through the sytsem.

The difference in the sounds of the right and left ventricles is traced to the difference in resistance of the aorta and the pulmonary artery. The pulmonary artery resists with only one-third the strength of the aorta, so the pumping force required is less and the noise of the closing gates is that much less.

It is true then, that when the physician listens to the beating of a patient's heart through his stethoscope the heart speaks to him in unmistakable language. When it plainly says "lub-dup" he knows that all is well with this important organ, and he pats the patient on the shoulder, saying "Nothing serious; you'll be all right in a day or two." When, however, the heart says "lub-duff" he knows that the aortic valve is not working properly and takes the proper steps to correct it. When the heart says "luff-dup" he is sure that the mitral valves are out of order, and he tries to reach them.

When the heart says "luff-duff" he draws a solemn face, for both valves are out of order, and when it says "oho-oho" he digs down into his bag and goes to work at once, for all is radically wrong.—Detroit News-Tribune.

A WILL AND A WAY.

How a Great Sculptor Insisted Upon Getting Recognition.

While still an unknown, struggling student, Carpeaux, the famous sculptor, determined to get his work and his name before the public, so he sent a bas-relief that he had just finished to the Salon in the hope of gaining the notice of Napoleon III.

The subject he had chosen was "The Surrender of Abd el Kader to Napoleon III." He labored so hard over the work that he fell ill. He lay on a sickbed in the hospital when the news came that the Salon jury had accepted the bas-relief and would hang it at the approaching exhibition.

Unfortunately "Abd el Kader" was so poorly placed in the Salon that it entirely escaped the notice of public and emperor alike. Carpeaux was not discouraged. He was no sooner out of the hospital than he heard that the emperor was to visit some cities of northern France. Immediately he packed the cherished group and set off for Valenciennes. When the emperor entered the city hall of that town the bas relief was exhibited at the entrance. Napoleon inquired about it. Unfortunately, Lemaire, the deputy from that district, was something of a sculptor himself and of a jealous disposition as well.

"Bah!" he replied. "An uninteresting piece; the work of a student." The emperor passed on.

Undaunted, Carpeaux repacked his work and set off for Lille. There the collapse of the ballroom floor put a stop to the festivities and to the emperor's visit. Carpeaux started for Amiens, only to be arrested as a suspicious character and to have his precious bundle confiscated. He succeeded in proving his innocence and immediately hastened to the archbishop, who gave him permission to exhibit the group at the cathedral gates.

The emperor, deep in thought, entered the church without glancing to right or left. Again "Abd el Kader" had failed to attract Napoleon's attention. Carpeaux now decided to risk everything on one chance.

The next day the emperor, with his usual retinue, visited a local exhibition. They were examining some paintings when suddenly a young man pushed forward and halted before Napoleon. Pointing to the bas-relief of "Abd el Kader" he started to speak, but before he could utter a word he was surrounded and hustled to one side. A great hubbub arose, for every one thought that it was an attempt on the emperor's life. Finally, the young man, still struggling with his captors, managed to shout above the clamor, "I, Carpeaux, am the author of that group!" And again he pointed to the bas-relief. Gradually calm was restored, and Napoleon examined the work which the sculptor had so dramatically brought to his attention. He was delighted with it and purchased it on the spot. Carpeaux's reputation was finally established!—Youth's Companion.

Beating It In.

Dr. Brandes, in his lecture on Shakespeare's "Hamlet," said the interest of Shakespeare was to be found in story and not in psychology. Elizabethan art was intended for an audience who read but little. Like all early art, it was explicit. The conditions were similar to those in the story of the old London stage manager, who said:

"If you want the British public to understand anything you must tell them what you are going to do next, that you are doing it, and, last, that you have done it," and he finished by saying, "Then they will perhaps understand you."—Pall Mall Gazette.

He Understood Human Nature.

"Not a new one," said the young doctor. "I'll get that at a second hand store. A worn one will be a much better advertisement for me."—Youth's Companion.

A Coal Fire Without Wood.

In the Woman's Home Companion a contributor tells as follows a new way to start the kitchen fire:

"Attach a rubber tube from the gas jet long enough to reach to the front of the range. Put a metal tip on the free end of the tube, light it and hold it under the grate already filled with coal. A steady flow of gas for a few minutes will start a good coal fire without using any kindling wood."

FEAR ANARCHISTS' BOMBS

New York Police Display Great Energy In Protecting Courts.

New York, Nov. 17.—The police took wholesale measures to protect public officials and public buildings from expected attacks by anarchists.

Furthermore, under the personal direction of Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, a most energetic hunt was inaugurated for the men who planted the bomb with a lighted fuse in the tombs court on Saturday designed apparently to kill Magistrate Campbell.

It was evident from the conduct of the city officials that Mayor Mitchel and his advisers fear that the bombs and the anarchists may put the police department to a supreme test. They show that they realize that the police department has been the criterion by which every administration has been judged.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 17.—Joseph Snyder and his two sons, Richard and Arthur, are under arrest at the Forty-fourth regiment armory, charged with high treason in attempting to take Austrian reservists across the border to the American side. They are liable to a death penalty.

The Snyders had been under surveillance and were caught in a trap. They were offered $40 to land four Austrians on the American side. The money was paid and four supposed Austrians were brought to them. A squad of militiamen surrounded the party and imprisoned the Snyders in the armory. The case is in the hands of the military.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—Fourth Quarter. For Nov. 22, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxvii, 11-26. Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text, Matt. xxvii, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This chapter begins with the words, "When the morning was come." What an eventful night it had been—the last passover, with all its incidents; the great discourse and prayer; the agony of Gethsemane; the betrayal and the arrest; the mockery of a trial before the chief priests and the council, with the buffeting and spitting; the denial of Peter with his oaths and curses.

Now they bind Him again and lead Him away to Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor, that He may be put to death. If the Jews had the power to kill Him He would have been stoned as Stephen afterward was, but the prediction in Ps. xxii, 16—"they pierced my hands and my feet"—indicated crucifixion, and every Scripture must be fulfilled.

The record in John xviii, 28, to xix, 14, seems to come in before our lesson verses, telling of Pilate's private interview with Jesus and how he came out again and again and said, "I find no fault in Him." How when he asked what prisoner he should release unto them, as was his custom at this feast, they asked for Barabbas, who was a robber and murderer. How Pilate had Jesus scourged, and the soldiers made a crown of thorns and put it on Him and mocked Him and smote Him. How Pilate brought Him forth wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe and said, "Behold the Man!" And they all cried out, "Crucify Him, crucify Him!" and said, "By our law He ought to die because He made Himself the Son of God."

When Jesus made no reply to Pilate's question, "Whence art Thou?" and asked if He did not know that he had power to crucify or release Him, Jesus said that Pilate could have no power against Him except it were given him from above. As Pilate persisted in his efforts to release Him the Jews said, "If thou let this man go thou art not Caesar's friend." Then Pilate brought Jesus forth and sat down in the judgment seat, and Jesus stood before him, the Creator before one of His creatures.

It is even so as you read this—your Creator in the person of the Lord Jesus is before you to be worshiped, reverenced, adored if you have already received Him as your own personal Saviour; if not, then the one great and only question for you to answer is the one in verse 22 of our lesson, "What shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" It is never in any case a question of our standing before men, character or good works or even church membership, which may mean something or nothing, but only this, Am I in Christ, redeemed by His precious blood who bare my sins in His own body on the cross?

Pilate sitting on the judgment seat and Jesus standing before him, the chief priests and elders accuse Him of many things, such as perverting the nation, forbidding to give tribute to Caesar, proclaiming Himself a King. To all these accusations Jesus answered never a word, and Pilate marveled greatly (verses 12-14; Luke xxiii, 2, 3).

It is trying to be lied about and falsely accused either behind one's back or before your face, but to do as Jesus did and answer nothing when there is nothing to be answered is the better way.

Nothing can be said or done to any member of His body without His permission or without His feeling it, and all suffering with Him and for His sake is a very great privilege. Consider continually that He who bore all this so meekly was not only in reality King of the Jews, but also King of nations, ruler of the kings of the earth, King of kings and Lord of lords, and all kings shall fall down before Him, all nations serve Him (Deut. x, 17; Ps. lxxii, 11; Rev. i, 5; xv, 3; xvii, 14; xix, 16). Oh, the stupendous wonder of it all that He should condescend to submit to all this for our sakes; then to think how little we are willing to bear for Him!

How Pilate sent Him to Herod to be further mocked and set at nought and how there also He answered nothing is recorded in Luke xxiii, 6-12. When He had been returned to Pilate he brought Him forth and said to the Jews, "Behold your King." But they cried out: "Away with Him, crucify Him. We have no king but Caesar" (John xix, 14, 15). Pilate's wife sent to him, saying, "Have thou nothing to do with that just man, for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of Him." But the chief priests and elders prevailed, and when Pilate washed his hands, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just person," they all answered, "His blood be on us and on our children" (verses 19, 20, 24, 25).

So Barabbas the murderer was released and Jesus Christ the Holy One of God, God manifest in the flesh, delivered to their will to be crucified (verse 26; Luke xxiii, 24, 25).

This is the hatred of God which is in the heart of man, for the carnal mind is enmity against God, and only the Spirit of God can convince of sin, the great sin of rejecting Christ, and open the heart to receive Him.

Because they chose Barabbas and Caesar instead of Christ their sufferings continue to this day.

WOMEN OF JAPAN.

The Old Time "Three Obediences" No Longer Dominate Her.

From the beginning of Japanese history to the introduction of Chinese civilization women occupied a very high place in Japan and filled positions of importance and honor in state, religion and household. Several empresses at different times ruled the empire. The greatest lights in the world of pure Japanese literature are both women—Murasaki Shikibu and Sei Shonagon. Their superb productions "Genji Monogatari" and "Makurano Soshi," are strong proofs of a large measure of liberty and of high position in society enjoyed by women of the time. It was chiefly the Confucian doctrine of the three obediences: Obedience, while yet unmarried, to a father; obedience, while married, to a husband; obedience, while widowed, to a son, that changed the primitive state of comparative freedom and independence of woman. Buddhism and feudalism contributed also to place women in an inferior position and state of dependence.

Many Americans assume that women still occupy an inferior position in Japan under the law. But this is not true. During the last fifty years female education has spread throughout the country. Western jurisprudence has superseded Chinese and a great revolution has come over the social and legal position of woman. The new civil code of Japan created a new legal woman. It proceeds upon the principle of equality of the sexes and makes no distinction between men and women in their enjoyment and exercise of private rights so long as the woman remains single. She may now become the head of the house. She may exercise parental authority over her child. If her husband be dead she may adopt children, she may make contracts, acquire or dispose of property in her own name. In short, she may be a party to any legal transaction so long as she remains unmarried. When she is married her state of coverture obliges her to obtain the permission of her husband before doing certain acts, such as contracting debts, instituting legal proceedings, entering into contracts of personal service, etc. But even though she does these acts without her husband's permission, they are not void, but only voidable.—From a Bulletin of Japan Society of America.

EYES OF A PIG.

Did You Know They Closely Resemble Those of a Human Being?

Your eyes are like a pig's. If anybody told you so you would doubtless feel insulted. And yet such a statement would be quite correct. Your eyes are very much like a pig's—more so, indeed, than they are like any other animal's.

This is one of the most curious truths of physiology. A pig's eye so closely resembles that of a human being as to serve a very important practical purpose. Young men who are learning to be eye doctors are taught the rudiments of their business with the help of pigs' eyes. They dissect them and practice all sorts of operations on them, from removing a cataract to the snipping of the muscles which control the movements of the eyes in their orbits. If an oculist happens to be puzzled about an operation he expects to perform, he sometimes gets one or more fresh pigs' eyes from the butcher and makes experiment with them.

A pig's eye in a live pig's head does not look much like a human eye. It is small and not very intelligent in expression. When the pig is dead, however, and the eye is taken out it is hardly distinguishable from the eye of a person.

Human eyes do not vary much in size, and in themselves they have no expression whatever. When it is said that a person has large eyes it means simply that the opening between the lids is larger than ordinary. It is the lids that are wholly responsible for ocular expression, which is capable of such wonderful variations.—New York American.

WARM WEATHER FAVORS SPREAD OF HOG CHOLERA

Those Wishing To Protect Their Hogs From This Disease Should Take Precautions Now.

The season most favorable to the spread of Hog Cholera is now at hand. Every hog owner who wishes to protect his herd against loss from this disease, should secure serum promptly and have it administered before any sign of contagion becomes evident. It should be known that hog cholera serum is not a cure, but a preventative, and as such should be administered before an outbreak is likely to occur.

The cholera was so prevalent last year that the demand for the serum was greater than either the State Laboratory or the commercial laboratories throughout the country could supply and their output in some cases was bought up and contracted for months in advance. Many hog raisers in Maryland availed themselves of the serum manufactured at the Experiment Station, and a number of reports have been returned from time to time indicating satisfaction, particularly where the serum was used before the diseases had actually appeared in the herds.

The tested serum supplied by the Experiment Station should be used at the rate of 35 c.c. per 100 pounds of live weight, the cost price being 2 cents per c.c. or 70 cents for a 100-pound hog. The serum must be administered by or under the direction of a licensed veterinarian or doctor of medicine. If you have any idea of protecting your hogs against cholera, have them attended to promptly. Do not wait until some are taken sick and the serum can do only partial good in saving those still unexposed to the disease. Write now to the Experiment Station at College Park for a full description of the disease and precautions you should take.

LESSONS SHOULD BE FULL OF INTEREST.

Our Country Children Should Be Educated In The Needs Of The Life About Them.

J. E. METZGER,
Maryland Agricultural College.

The successful school is that one in which the teaching is in terms of the child life. Doubtless the decline of the rural school may be laid to the fact that both the preparation of the teacher and many of the textbooks used are foreign to the common things of the farm home and life. Teachers who have come to the rural schools and tried to teach the things they were taught in the city schools have found their work a drudgery and the pupils apparently dull and listless. Parents and school officials excuse this deficiency on the part of teachers by saying that they are from the city and are not expected to be familiar with country life.

What is needed and should be required of every rural teacher is either experience or training which acquaints them with the facts about farm crops, soils, farm animals, sanitation, and the preparation of foods, and the best methods of presenting them in the school. Our Agricultural College is helping to solve this problem through its summer training school for country teachers, which opens for a six weeks' session June the 22nd.

QUENCHING THEIR THIRST.

ROY W. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

A good way to supply water to fowls, especially to the growing chicks, is to keep it before them in stamped-out, galvanized refrigerator pans. The nice thing about these pans for watering chicks is that they are seamless, quite easily cleaned, and can be obtained in any suitable size. Further, they hold a good volume of water and are very easily filled. For young chicks place a brick or flat stone in the centre of the pan so that if any jump in, they can rescue themselves. Some chicks don't know that they can't swim!

THE COMMON FLY A DEADLY PEST.

Breeding Places Should Be Gotten Rid Of At Once.

T. B. SYMONS,
Maryland Agricultural College.

Now is the time to prevent the house fly from appearing in large numbers this summer. Little can be done by a few persons in putting down this nuisance, if some neglect to do their part, for a single pile of horse manure allowed to stand in the open will furnish flies for the whole neighborhood. The greatest good, therefore, will result when all persons keeping stables in the community have the manure removed from the stables at least twice a week or keep the manure in a screened portion of the stable. Too much emphasis cannot be put upon this method of avoiding human sickness and suffering from the deadly diseases that the house fly carries.

Combating the pest in country districts and around farmhouses is largely an individual one, and the presence of flies in large numbers or to a limited extent will depend upon the sanitary conditions around the house and barn. Aside from hauling out the manure at regular intervals, all out houses and similar places should be protected from flies, as it is in this manner that the fly assembles the germs of disease and distributes them to any exposed food. It cannot be too strongly urged that all such places be constructed as sanitary as possible and disinfectants freely used.

BLOOD ATONEMENT FOR ADAMIC SIN

Without the Shedding of Blood There Is No Remission of Sin.

Modern Tendency to Deny the Necessity For Sin Atonement—Impossibility For Jews Properly to Observe the Atonement Day—Jewish Hopes Centered In Messiah's Kingdom. Failure of Evolutionists to Fit Their Theory to Present Conditions—The Bible View of Sin Atonement.

October 4.—Pastor Russell's text today was, "The life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar, to make an atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul."—Leviticus 17:11.

The discourse began with the declaration that ours is a day in which the necessity for sin atonement is disputed, disbelieved, by Jews, Gentiles and Christians. The orthodox Jew and the orthodox Christian, therefore are in substantial agreement with the Scriptures, and the unorthodox in agreement of opposition. The latter agree that there is no such thing as Original Sin, and that hence there could be no such thing as making an atonement or satisfaction to Justice on its behalf.

The Basis of Disbelief.

Two things have contributed to this unscriptural view: (1) The agnostic Jew not only disputes the Bible as authority on the subject, but admits that if the sacrifices commanded by the Levitical code for Sin Atonement be necessary, then the Jewish people have had no Sin Atonement in any sense of the word for more than eighteen centuries; for Sin Atonement must be made according to certain specified conditions or not at all. The loss of the Ark of the Covenant and the destruction of Jerusalem were among the disasters which have prevented the carrying out of Moses' instructions respecting the Atonement Day.

(2) Since the destruction of Jerusalem in A. D. 70, the Jewish nation has been scattered, and as a result all official records and genealogies of the Jewish people are destroyed. Therefore no one can prove his descent from Aaron, and hence cannot make a Sin Atonement on the Atonement Day.

Thus we see that it is impossible for Jews properly to observe the Atonement Day, although an outward ceremony is kept up. On the tenth day of the seventh month the Jew figuratively acknowledges that the merit of the previous sacrifice has expired. We sympathize with his position, but would suggest that nothing is gained by deceiving themselves into the supposition that this observance harmonizes them in any sense of the word with the Almighty. The sooner they recognize this, the sooner will they reach the proper heart condition to realize that their calamities are due to the fact that the sins of more than 1800 years rest upon them uncancelled.

When they comprehend the situation, they will see that all their hopes center in Messiah's Kingdom. Messiah will be the long-promised Priest upon His Throne, the application of whose merit will cancel sin forever.

Many Christians Repudiate the Blood.

Next it was shown that all the worldly-wise of Christendom have repudiated the Scriptural testimony respecting the necessity of a sacrificial death for the satisfaction of Divine Justice, the cancellation of sin and the restitution of the sinner to Divine favor. The so-called New Theologists repudiate the fall of man, the Ransom and the Restitution, claiming that nothing was lost and that all we have is gain.

These worldly-wise cannot deny that death is in the world and that the tendency of sin is toward death. Despite their theories, statistics demonstrate that our race is daily becoming weaker, mentally, morally and physically. It is for them to explain how these facts fit their evolution theory.

The Bible View of Sin Atonement.

The Pastor then explained at length the Scriptural view of Sin Atonement. According to God's Word, sin is violation of Divine Law and the penalty is death. Adam was created perfect and sinless. Obedience to Divine Law was required of him as the price of everlasting life. Disobedience brought upon him the death sentence. His race was in his loins when he sinned and thus by heredity share his death penalty.

But God in mercy provided a way for man's relief. As the first man alone had sinned actually, so one Redeemer only would be necessary for the entire race. "The Man Christ Jesus gave Himself a Ransom for all"—Adam's posterity. He antityped the bullock of Israel's Atonement Day and also the priest who slew the bullock—because He offered Himself up. Applying His merit to the Household of Faith—antitypical Levites—He then began a work little understood by any.

This has been the gathering of the Elect class, composed of both Jews and Gentiles, their sacrifices being typified by the Lord's goat on the Atonement Day. Very soon this work of Sin Atonement will be completed, and the second effusion of blood upon the Mercy Seat made "for all the people."

INHERITED WEALTH.

And the Advantages of Poor Boys Who Have to Fight Their Way.

Poor boys reared directly by their parents possess advantages over those watched and taught by hired strangers. They appear upon the world's stage trained as athletes for a contest, with sinews braced, indomitable wills resolved to do or die. Such boys always have marched and always will march straight to the front and lead the world. They are the epoch makers. Let one select the three or four most celebrated names of men supremely great in every field of human triumph and note how small is the contribution of hereditary rank and wealth to the list of immortals who have lifted and advanced the race.

It will, I think, be seen that the possession of rank and wealth is almost fatal to greatness and goodness and that the greatest and the best of our race have necessarily been nurtured in the bracing school of poverty. The sons of millionaires are to be regarded with approval who cannot be induced to take absorbing and incessant interest in their father's business. The day is over when even the richest can play at business, as rich men's sons almost invariably do.

The transmission of wealth and rank, without regard to merit or qualification, may sometimes pass from one peer to another without serious injury, seldom involving the welfare or means of others, but the management of business never. Business methods have changed; good will counts for less and less. Success in business is held by the same tenure as success in public life, at the cost of perpetual challenge to all comers. Hereditary wealth and position tend to rob fathers and mothers of their children, and vice versa. Nothing is more fatal to the prospects of a public man in America than wealth or the display of wealth.—Andrew Carnegie in Century.

"PRINCE OF SPIES."

He Was a Young Alsatian In the Service of Napoleon.

To those who look with contempt upon spies and such as profit by their labors it comes as a surprise to learn that Napoleon, the greatest of all masters of war, owed to his excellent service of spies not a few of his most brilliant victories.

The man whom he picked out to organize this secret service was a regimental officer named Savary, who afterward became Duc de Rovigo. Savary, like his master, excelled in his judgment of men; he gathered from various corners of Europe an immense number of agents who served him with varying degrees of success, but with that curiously uniform fidelity which the service of Napoleon always seems to have bred.

Chief among them was a young Alsatian, Charles Louis Schulmeister, who earned the nickname of "Prince of Spies." Savary had come across him in the early days in a little Alsatian village where Schulmeister, the son of a local clergyman, was carrying on a gigantic and eminently successful system of smuggling. When Napoleon commissioned him to organize an army of spies Savary at once bethought him of his shrewd and audacious friend.

So young Schulmeister entered the French service in 1800, being then barely thirty. He showed considerable skill in watching the doings of the emigres in Germany. He it was who traced the unfortunate Duc d'Enghien to Ettenheim, where he was arrested. A certain General de Thumery was arrested at the same time; this was the result of a French official thinking that Schulmeister, who with his strong German accent would say "General Doumery," was speaking of the much-wanted Dumouriez.—Westminster Review.

Life and Death.

An English minister, who guarded his morning study hour very carefully, told the new maid that under no circumstances were callers to be admitted—except, of course, he added, in case of life and death.

Half an hour later the maid knocked at his door. "A gentleman to see you, sir."

"Why, I thought I told you"—

"Yes, I told him," she replied, "but he says it's a question of life and death."

So he went downstairs and found an insurance agent.—New York Globe.

Grote and His Wife.

The wife of the historian Grote must have been an extraordinary woman. She rode without a saddle, she was not afraid to put off in a boat without a man, and she was plucky enough to marry her lover without permission and return home without saying a word about it. Sydney Smith described this lady and her lord in his happy fashion, "I do like them both so much, for he is ladylike, and she is a perfect gentleman."

He Was Serious.

Father—Jane, are that young man's intentions serious? Daughter—I think so, pa. He says our carriage shed could be easily transformed into a garage, and the attic would make a dandy billiard room and bowling alley.—Houston Post.

The Art of Oratory.

"I suppose you have been giving your people out home something to think about?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I have been telling them funny stories to keep them from thinking."—Washington Star.

Cheerfulness and content are great beautifiers and are famous preservers of youthful looks.—Dickens.

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1914.

MEXICAN peace is like the Democratic victory, the figment of a dream.

How there can be any unemployment in Germany is hard to understand. It looks as if there ought to be a job for every man.

Two inventive brothers at Syracuse, N. Y., have hitched their buck-saw to a windmill so that it does the work of twenty-five men.

NEXT Thursday is the great day of American Thanksgiving. The day will be observed in Garrett county as never before, and rightly too.

ONE of the great troubles of this country is that the fatness of the crops is out of all proportion to the leanness of employment.

CONGRESSMAN J. Charles Linthicum, Democrat of Baltimore, has announced himself as a candidate for the Governorship of Maryland.

SENATOR Smith's re-election cost him $1,927.75, according to the Marylander's report to the secretary of the Senate. He received no contributions, he stated,

AN interurban railroad at Minneapolis is using a new style of locomotive in which gasoline-engines drive the generators which furnish electric motive-power.

OUR subscription list is constantly growing larger. The Republican is growing in favor right along. We are delighted, as Mr. Roosevelt would say, that the public appreciate our efforts to publish a real, live newspaper.

SOME counties build handsomer jails than they do school houses. Why?

The above clipping is from a West Virginia news paper. It is a pertienent question. It is full of thought. Why? We refer the question to the faculty of the Oakland high school.

SIR George Paish, the eminent British economist, speaks correctly when he says the United States is the only country in the world that is accumulating wealth. Financial stress has for a long time oppressed Mexico and all the important nations of South America.

IT is just as well and probably a good deal better, for the Republican party as a party that the House remains Democratic for another two years. But the result of the 1914 election will be to inspire the party with the highest hopes and expectation of success two years hence.

ONE.—Charles H. S. Robinson, of Roxbury, Mass., who ran for Congress in his district on the Republican ticket, filed his report at the Capitol. It said: "I received nothing, promised nothing, expended nothing, got nothing." He must have done some strenuous work, but he did get what he deserved. Nothing.

THE total arrests in the three months in 1913 in West Virginia, was 1,831, the total arrests in the same months in 1914 with prohibition in force was 726, a decrease of 1,105. The total arrests for drunkenness in three months, 1913 was 856; the total for the same time, 1914 was 205, a decrease of 651. Garrett county had in one month 68 arrests for drunkenness.

IN a report on crop production in Maryland by the United States Department of Agriculture Maryland is credited with producing 13,158,000 bushels of first-class Southern wheat, as compared with only 8,113,000 bushels in 1913, which means that with wheat prices up to $1.14 per bushel, as compared with less than 90 cents last year. Maryland has almost doubled her output.

THE county is a place in which to learn some of the deep lessons of life. On the hills, up in the mountains, among the rocks, at the entering in of caves, out on the illimitable plains and in the wide stretches of desert, in the depths of the forests, under the blue sky and the stars, on the winding rivers and the boundless oceans—everywhere in the solitudes men have heard, and may yet hear, the voice of Divine Wisdom.

ONLY three weeks until Congress will begin to grind again.

BY order of President Wilson United States troops occupied Vera Cruz. because the Mexican government refused to salute the American flag, And the Nation applauded. Now the United States troops are going to evacuate Vera Cruz, because, we suppose, the flag has not been saluted. It strikes us Mexico is ahead in this watching and waiting game.

THE merchants in many cities are advertising and displaying their Christmas goods and are selling them, and among those so doing are some mail order houses. The Oakland merchants, with one or two exceptions are doing nothing. The week before Christmas will be too late for big sales, as the bulk of the big sales will be made before that time.

THE REPUBLICAN would suggest to the Oakland merchants the advisability of having their Christmas goods on exhibition, if possible, by Dec. 7th—Court week, when the grand jury and the hundred or more witnesses before it will be here. Then, the week following, the petit jury and scores of witnesses will be here. They will make Christmas purchases, if the goods are on exhibition, before returning to their homes. Begin your Christmas advertising at once, and be ready for early shoppers.

Now, that the saloons are to close April 30th, 1915, we have a great work to do, in creating a strong public sentiment against "boot legging" or illegal selling of spritous, malt or intoxicating liquors. As in public sentiment, so will be the enforcement of the anti-saloon law. Our great victory does not mean quiet or rest, but requires earnest, determined effort to see that no one violates the local option law we adopted Nov. 3. We still need the woman's christian temperance union, temperance sermons and temperance agitation. Doubtless there will be men (?) who will undertake to sell booze, if so, see to it that they be made pay the full benefit of the law they violate.

WHILE there is nothing in particular just at this time to which we wish to call the attention of our readers, we cannot let our weekly opportunity pass without giving some word of greeting to our fellow-countians. The chief matter engaging the attention of the farmers at present, or should be engaging their attention, is the existence in our community of the dreaded foot and mouth disease. We are a little afraid that the people generally do not appreciate the seriousness of this malady among the stock. Only the most violent exertions on the part of the authorities and the hearty co-operation on the part of the farmers will hold the disease in check and eventually eradicate it. The appearance of the trouble all over the country at widely different points and the rapidity with which new cases are being discovered clearly shows the immense loss in which the farmers of this country are in imminent danger just at a time when all other prospects are the most glowing. Therefore we wish to sound a warning to leave no stone unturned in the fight against this epidemic.

NOT A GOOD PROSPECT.

There is going to be considerable trouble when the winter session of the Sixty-third Congress assembles next month. The President, alarmed at the indignant revulsion of the country over the scandalous profligacy of the long session which terminated shortly before the elections, has issued strict orders to heads of executive departments to cut all estimates of appropriations to the very bone, so that the party may in some measure live down the extravagant record of the previous session, which appropriated the enormous sum of $1,100,000,000, which was $100,000,000 in excess of the last Republican Congress, which was so hypocritically denounced by Democratic platform and speakers in the campaign of 1912. However fair the intentions of the administration may be, it is not believed its warnings against extravagance will have any effect on Congress.

When the "pork" was knocked out of the $53,000,000 rivers and harbors bill through Republican initiative, and scaled down to $20,000,000 the Southern "pork" representatives gave warning that they would come back with another "pork" measure at the next session. And they are going to do it. Another big dip into the treasury is threatened in a public building bill, which bears some of the features of the rivers and harbors measure in enabling Congressman to "make good" with their constituents by a lavish expenditure of the public money. Still another proposition looking to a further depletion of the Treasury funds is the promised ratification of the treaty with Columbia, which provides for the payment or $25,000,000 to the South American blackmailers.

With a $90,000,000 "war tax" hung on the people, and the continued deficient customs receipts from the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, the Democratic party will have some difficult problems confronting it. With an unruly and still hungry Congress on its hands, it is likely to be still further embarassed.

GARRETT COUNTY'S EXAMPLE.

The editor of the Meyersdale Pa., Republican has this to say about our Local option victory:

No better exemplification of the moral fiber of the people of Garrett county, Md., could be had than the overwhelming majority by which the voters of that county decided on November 3rd to make the county "dry" all over. Under the privilege of local option, but few "wet" spots remained on Garrett county map during the past few years. The "wettest" spot remaining is Oakland, the county-seat, otherwise one of the decentest little cities to be found anywhere. Grantsville, which for many years had the unenviable reputation of being one of the most besotted little towns on the National Pike, did away with its saloons several years ago and the village has never prospered and improved more in so short a time as it has since becoming a "dry" town.

By the phenomenal vote of 2412 to 508 the entire county voted last week for the abolishment of the licensed liquor traffic within its borders. It is amazing that only 508 men out of a total of nearly 3,000 lined up on the side of booze. This is a majority of nearly five to one against the saloon. We doubt if there is another county in the United States, except in some of the extreme prohibition states, that comes nearer being unanimously, "dry" than good old Garrett county.

It is to be expected, of course, that some of the old soaks who have an inherited or cultivated appitite for booze, and who voted for license, will continue to drink booze as long as any is made—they will manage to get it in some way, even if they have to come over into Pennsylvania or travel down to Frostburg or Lonaconing to get it, if "blind pigs," at home, fail to keep them supplied, but it is a sure thing that there will be less inebriation in Garrett county after May 1st next, when the licensed saloons must go out of business, and that the moral plane and material welfare of the county, as a whole, will rise to a height hitherto unequalled.

The writer having spent 13 years of his life in Garrett county when it was yet very "wet" and having seen the blight put on many of his boyhood friends by the Demon Drink, rejoices that John Barleycorn is soon to have no legalized place in the county where he may ensnare and debauch the young men. Welcome the day when Somerset county, Pa., will follow the good example set by her southern neighbor!

A Trip to the Cove.

The Grantsville correspondent of the Republican, of Meyersdale, Pa., has the following interesting item in last week's paper:

Among the many automobile that scooted through Grantsville Sunday afternoon was that of James Slicer, the well known drum and trap artist of Meyersdale, with Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Livengood and Miss Frances Livengood of Meyersdale, Miss Nancy Livengood of Salisbury, and Miss Emily B. Gnagey of Pittsburgh as passengers, their destination being the childhood home of Mr. Livengood and sister, which is now reached by the new state road from Keyser's Ridge into the Cove. After leaving the Ridge they ran into a dense bank of clouds which completely obscured the beautiful Cove landscape, one of the grandest views in America. The fog was so thick on the "Devil's Half Acre" that the Devil himself could not have been seen scratching up the gravel at a distance of one rod from the side of the road. After a brief look at the old log cabin once called home, and which is soon to be torn away, and being treated to delicious apples galore from the old orchard, by the present owner of the farm, Albert Ringer, the party turned homeward and ran into a snow storm on Keyser's Ridge, which followed them all the way home, the homeward journey being made via the Pike to Little Meadows thence via the Meadow Mountain ridge road to Salisbury.

Breaks Plate Glass Window.

Harry Murphy, a lumberman from Garrett county, while passing the Dixon building at Frostburg on Thursday afternoon, lost his equilibrium and fell through the plate glass windows of Misses Dixon & Trench's millinery parlors. He went through head first, and that he was not seriously cut about the head and face by the shower of broken glass is almost miraculous. He was "detained" in the town lock-up pending the receipt of advices from his employers, the Cox & Bloom Lumber Company, as to the source of the amount necessary to pay the expense of replacing the glass.

Thanksgiving Service.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Methodist church, Oakland, Thursday, Nov. 26, 10:30 a. m. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. O. A. L. Breamer, pastor of the Lutheran church. There will be appropriate music for the occasion. Everybody invited to attend this service.

THE PROSPERITY OF THE FARM.

Today it is The Farmer Who is Financially in the Lead.

The estimates as to the values of the crops of the United States for the year 1914 place them as the highest in aggregate that have ever been recorded:

This is the result after allowing for the shrinkage of value of more than $400,000,000 in the cotton crop, and that allowance is surely the maximum of any shrinkage in values.

The most important of our crops show an increase in total values of $104,000,000 over the totals of the same crops last year, and this with everything indicating larger yields and higher prices than those employed as the basis for computations.

We invite the closest attention of our readers to these factors of national prosperity, and reminding them of the great demand abroad for the wheat, the corn, the oats, the barley, the rye, and so many other products of our farms, we feel certain they will realize that the country is entering an era of unexampled activity in trade, both foreign and domestic.

These facts show conclusively that that our agriculturists are receiving greater sums of cash for a year's products of their lands than they have ever received since our history began. That means that their purchasing power this year will be increased more than $100,000,000 from the direct production of their lands.

To this gain must be added fully another $100,000,000 through increased receipts of cash by them from sales of horses, cattle, sheep, poultry and dairy products. The farmers of the United States have had their purchasing power, their paying power, increased fully $200,000,000 this year over that of 1913.

The tiller of the soil is coming to his own. His grain, his horses, his cattle and sheep are in demand and at good prices. His barns are full from the harvest of the field; his cellar is packed with the products of the garden, and his pantry is well stored with fruits, prepared by the skillful hands of his wife and daughters. Buyers call at his home to purchase what he may offer for sale.

The farmer of Garrett county enters the long winter months in good spirits and with great hopefulness. He has toiled and struggled to win out and he has not struggled in vain. The proof of this is seen as one travels over the county, in the splendid homes, large barns and fertil farms; in the beautiful imposing church edifices seen every where, and in the comforts and conveniences of his home. The Republican rejoices with the Garrett county farmer in the splendid victory he has won, in making the wilderness blossom like the rose," and congratulates these pioneers who have brought the backwoods county into the very front and given Garrett county a proud and prominent place in the history of the State of Maryland.

The Republican wishes the farmer still greater success in making Garrett county one of the foremost counties of this commonwealth. We believe the county has entered upon a greater and happier career.

A Real Thanksgiving.

For many years since the close of the Civil War the American people have been disposed to observe Thanksgiving in a perfunctory manner until it has degenerated into a day of feasting, jollity and amusement, with little reference to the spirit of the occasion.

This nation has now come face to face with a situation that should bring every true American to his knees on Thursday week with a devout spirit and a heart full of appreciation of the mercies of Almighty God; that we have escaped being brought into the desolation that is now sweeping Europe.

While it is true the nations at war believe in the same God, and each professes to be blessed with His favor in their cause, we have been given the more substantial evidences of His providence. It is better, therefore, to turn to Him while we are enjoying His peace and protection, His mercy and His bounty, than to wait until our dark hour approaches and then in our extremity rush to the sanctuaries we avoided in our safety. If this is His favored land, it is not because we are free of sin and offense. Thanksgiving day will afford an opportunity for humiliation before Him, to recall our shortcomings, to plead for His compassion and that He help us to strive for that true righteousness that exaleth a nation.

We hear more about God now because the world is in trouble. If we keep on forgetting Him because we think we do not need Him, then when our day of wrath comes He will not be likely to remember us.

West Virginia Hay Crop.

West Virginia farmers produced 599,000 tons of tame or cultivated hay during 1914, according to the preliminary estimates made by the United States Department of Agriculture. The yield last year was 925,000 tons. The product is selling for an average of $17.60 per ton, compared with $14.20 per ton in 1913. The yield per acre this season four-fifths of a ton and the quality is not as good as that of the average crop of the past ten years.

OUT OF TOWN HAPPENINGS

A Variety of Interesting Paragraphs for Republican Readers.

Miss Delva Tasker, of Kitzmiller, is making an extended visit at Westernport.

Prof. Jack Grimes and family have moved from Deer Park to Keyser, W. Va., for the winter.

One hour spent in opening a ditch will be of more service than a week's criticism of the road officials.

The latter part of last week forest fires were reported in the Mountains in the vicinity of Elk Garden.

Casper Smith and family have moved into the house on Andrew Shartzer's farm near Mountain Lake Park.

There are said to be 25 cases of scarlet fever in Frostburg at the present time, most of them mild ones.

Dogs are reported killing sheep in the vicinity of Hutton. There is money in sheep and there is loss in sheep killing dogs.

Alexander Kitzmiller, of near Bayard, visited his daughter, Mrs. Hugh Paugh, at Henry, W. Va., last Wednesday.

The First National bank of Friendsville has $219,655.19 deposited in the bank subject to check. Its surplus fund is $30,000.

Miss Sadie Opel, who had been staying with her brother, at Keyser's Ridge, for the past year, is again at home with her parents, in Elk Lick, Pa.

The ladies of the Ferndale Baptist church, on the State road, will give a Spider Web social Thursday evening, November 26. All are cordially invited to attend.

Keep both eyes open and carefully inspect your cattle, for the mouth and hoof plague. Some experts claim that this disease springs from the results of the army worm invasion.

Miss Almira Boucher, of Grantsville, and a member of the Frostburg Normal School junior class, was accorded the honor of being chosen for president of the class at a recant election of officers.

The price of leather is advancing right along. The war in Europe is the cause of it. The demand for leather is getting ahead of the supply. It is predicted that harness leather will reach 80 cents per pound by spring.

Mr. Abe Wilson, of Wilson's store, familiarly known as "Uncle Abe," spent part of last week at Piedmont with relatives. He celebrated his 98th birthday in July last, but is nevertheless well and hearty and able to get around fairly well.

Since the opening of the new state road from Keyser's Ridge to within a mile of Bear Creek, a trip into the Cove is a favorite tour of joy riders. In clear weather no more magnificient views can be had anywhere in the country than along this route.

A cow at Woodland, Cal., furnished the past year 30,000 pounds of milk. A Massachusets cow the previous year furnished 29,592 pounds of milk. Such cows are worth a fortune. May the day be near when many such milk cows shall be found in Garrett county.

On and after December 1st, 1914, all promissory notes must bear a two cent war stamp for every one hundred dollars, and all certifications of stock assigned after December 1st, 1914, must bear a two cent stamp for every one hundred dollars. This is in accordance with the stipulations of the war revenue tax.

Agriculture is the keynote of our success, but the pier upon which this note rests is the road between the farmer and the market. Good roads, good schools, good farms, happy homes and prosperity as opposed to impoverished communities, discontented families and general depression. Which will you choose?

Henry Gassaway Davis, "West Virginia's Grand Old Man," was 91 years old on the 17. He is often seen horseback riding, and only recently led the old settlers' day parade, in a homecoming event. In an interview Mr. Davis said: "I feel quite well, and expect to live many years longer. I have always taken excellent care of myself and have no bad habits to shorten my life."

The country school teacher as well as the students in the rural schools have been enjoying official visits from County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun. His cheerful, hopeful and encouraging talks have an inspiration for more earnest work in the school room, as well as in the school life. May the tire of his automobile escape puncture and the gasoline never give out; may his health be splendid; his good natured spirit continue and his visits be many. The county schools believe in sunshine and enthusiasm.

The winter months are here with their long nights. How can we best employ some of these long winter evenings? How can we make life more enjoyable in the rural districts? We would suggest an old fashioned spelling match, once a month, in which everybody join. What is more enjoyable than a neighborhood spelling bee? Two leaders, two long rows of spellers, who are to spell each other down. It is interesting, it is exciting, it is educating. At the close of "the spell" let the boys pass around apples one evening, cakes another. Try it and be convinced.

Apples are plenty. Why not every farmer make a few barrels of cider vinegar? Our Oakland merchants sell vinegar put up in bottles which hold less than a quart, which sells at 10 and 15 cents a bottle. Why not the farmer's wife put up vinegar in the Mason jars, quarts and half-gallon? There would be money in it. We are sure the merchants would handle it, and thus the apples going to waste be saved at a profit.

Two Italians and one American, under the influence of booze, got into a fight on the west bound accomodation train Thursday night last and created quite a scene. The Republican would suggest to the Garrett county school teachers that one way to secure a better school to teach, a better salary and a better general standing, would be to interest yourself in the betterment of the school building and grounds and taking the best care of school property under your charge. Look carefuliy after the school books; after the desks, that they are not mutilated or marked up. Keep the school room clean, tidy and cheerful. It will take some money to do all this. The money can be had. Have a social in charge of your scholars, a box supper, a lecture. These things count. They will make you popular, they will improve the neighborhood, make home more pleasant. Others will hear of it and say, "There is the teacher we want." Try it.

ALLIES' ATTACKS GROW STRONGER

Paris Expects That Germans Will Soon Fall Back

COLD GRIPS MEN IN TRENCHES

Fighting In Northern France and Belgium Goes on Under the Worst of Conditions—Russian Advance In the Eastern Section of Germany Causes Panic Among People—Turks Halt Russian Advance In Caucasus.

Paris, Nov. 17.—The German strength in Belgium may not yet have begun to ebb. The resolution of the invaders is still evident. But the news seems to show that their great opportunity has gone by.

The growing strength of the allies the coming of winter and the Russian menace are real factors in the situation in Belgium and France.

The official reports of the past few days show that the allies have been taking the offensive more and more and that the Germans have attacked seriously only in the restricted area of fighting between Dixmude and Ypres, a battle line of about fifteen miles.

It is assumed here that the Germans are exhausted, temporarily at any rate, and need time to draw breath and fill gaps in their torn lines.

There can be no doubt that their losses in the past week have been staggering. It is reported from Switzerland that the dead arriving at Brussels for cremation are almost past count.

The grip of winter is falling on Flanders. Snow fall followed by cold rains is flooding the trenches and increasing the suffering on both sides. Influenza and pneumonia are the inevitable result of such exposure. Fields have become swamps and roads are dangerous for motor cars and cavalry.

The area of inundation has spread three miles south of Dixmude, halting the operations of Germans and allies.

Russians Retire Before Turks.

London, Nov. 17.—The Russian advance guard in the region of Koprukei, east of Erzerum, because of the Turkish reinforcements has been forced to retire, according to a statement given out by the Russian army staff on the Caucasus situation.

In regard to the situation at Aden the admiralty here makes the official announcement that operations by Indian troops assisted by the cruiser Duke of Edinburgh against the Turkish garrison at Sheikh-Haid at the entrance of the gulf of Aden has been carried out successfully and that Fort Turba, located on the rocky heights close to the boundary of Turkish territory, has been occupied.

About 200 of the enemy escaped on camels or boats. Six were reported killed and the majority of the remainder were either wounded or captured. Large quantities of ammunition and six field guns were captured.

Germans In East In Panic.

London, Nov. 17.—Russia's invasion of East Prussia, Posen and Silesia has sent a wave of panic over the eastern provinces of the German empire, if reports from Copenhagen and Stockholm are to be credited.

These reports are chiefly significant as indicating that the Russian advance is progressing more rapidly than has been asserted even by dispatches from Petrograd.

The Russian advance in East Prussia, according to advices received here, is being assisted materially by cold weather, which enables the troops to move more rapidly. In the swampy lake region of East Prussia movements of the army had been retarded by soft roads, but now they are frozen.

A fall of snow the last two days is reported over the entire field of operations but not sufficient to hinder seriously the movement of troops.

Fresh troops now being sent to the front are supplied with short coats of tanned sheepskin. Relief societies in Petrograd and other Russian cities are bending every effort to collect woolen garments.

Warships Destroyed, Says Berlin.

Berlin (By Wireless), Nov. 17.—According to information given officially to the press reports reaching Berlin from Geneva set forth that the British torpedo boat destroyer Falcon, the cruiser Brilliant and the sloop of war Rinaldo have been disabled by German guns on the Belgian coast.

The Berlin communication says further:

"In the western area of the war both sides showed only moderate activity on account of the storm.

"In Flanders our attacks are progressing slowly, but in the forest of Argonne we have obtained further important successes."

SULTAN PREDICTS VICTORY

Future Existence of 300,000,000 Moslems at Stake, He Tells Soldiers.

London, Nov. 17.—Dispatches from Constantinople say the Sultan of Turkey has issued a proclamation to the army and navy in which he accuses Great Britain, France and Russia of having instigated the war upon Turkey. He says that the outcome of it all will be that an end will be put to the attempts directed against the glory of the Turkish empire.

"Not only the fate of our own country, but the future existence of the 300,000,000 Moslems depend on your victory," said the sultan to his fighting men.

The Berlin comment upon this, according to the wireless, is that it is expected that all Moslems in all countries will make common cause with the Turks because of the proclamation that this is a holy war. Great enthusiasm has been aroused in Constantinople by this, according to Berlin.

Berlin advices are that the Khedive of Egypt will leave Constantinople shortly to take charge of the Turkish operations in Egypt. Abbas Hilmi, the khedive, has been in Constantinople since the outbreak of the war. As the sultan is the head of the Mohammedan faith, the khedive owes spiritual allegiance to the sultan.

JEWS SET UPON IN RUSSIA

Austrian Legislator Says Soldiers Killed 14 at Lemberg.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The Austro-Hungarian embassy gave out the following message received by wireless from the foreign office in Vienna:

"The Jewish member of the reichstat, Herr Leizes, asks the American press to publish the following statement:

"Mr. Trautener, a business man who left Lemberg on the 10th of last month, states that the Russians instituted a pogrom against the Jews on Sept. 19 entirely without any provocation. The soldiers fired upon the Jews and killed fourteen while thirty-eight were wounded. Dr. Brande, the rabbi, was dragged through the streets; the celebration of Yom-Kippur was forbidden. Jewish dwellings were plundered and shops looted. Similarly in other towns of Galicia and the Bukowina the Russians committed murders, outrages and violence. The Jews are in a condition of indescribable despair."

ITALIAN LABORERS SOUGHT

Germany and Austria Are Trying to Encourage Immigration.

Rome (Via Havre), Nov. 17.—Germany and Austria are soliciting Italian immigration with the object of meeting the increased demand for labor in road making, trench digging and agricultural work, which latter is now at a standstill owing to the lack of able-bodied men.

The prohibition of emigration in Italy, which is intended to keep in the country the reservists and recruits who may be summoned to the colors at any moment, is being evaded somewhat owing to the high wages offered by foreign countries. For this reason the foreign office, besides refusing to issue passports, is now increasing the surveillance along the frontiers lest the supply of labor to belligerents be considered incompatible with neutrality.

WAR COSTS FIVE MILLIONS A DAY

England Increases Its National Debt by 50 Per Cent

$1,125,000,000 MORE VOTED

Great Britain Makes Big Loans to Belgium, Servia and Colonies, Which Helps to Reduce Its War Chest Premier Asquith Refuses to Commit Himself as to Country's Probable Further Financial Needs.

London, Nov. 17.—Without a dissenting vote the house of commons approved of an additional war credit of $1,125,000,000 asked for by Premier Asquith.

An appropriation of $500,000,000 was voted to the government in August and the two appropriations mean an increase in the national debt of Great Britain of 50 per cent.

Another measure calling for 1,000,000 more soldiers was passed.

In asking for the appropriation Premier Asquith declared that the war already was costing Great Britain from $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 daily.

Having regard for the enormous scale of operations and other considerations, this sum, the premier said, did not exceed the estimates of expenditures reasonably to be expected.

The premier told the house that the largest portion of the first appropriation already had been expended in the conduct of military operations, loans to the allies and disbursements for food supplies for the country.

With regard to the purposes of the new credit the far greater bulk of this would be for army and navy expenditures, the premier said.

The civil expenditures were inconsiderable and they would be largely for the purpose of getting food supplies and for further commodities necessary for the British, the use of which must be made impossible for the enemy. Another large item was made up of loans of money to others amounting to $215,000,000. The principal items in this list were to the Belgian government, $50,000,000, and to Servia, $4,000,000, on which no interest was to be charged until the end of the war.

Other loans to the self-governing dominions of Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, countries which, under ordinary circumstances would be compelled to borrow in the London market, would account for $151,250,000 of the new credit, for the reason that the government has undertaken the responsibility of raising loans for these dominions.

Regarding the cost of the war, Premier Asquith said he declined to dive into the future or speculate on what commitments it might be necessary for Great Britain to incur later, but up to last Saturday the actual expenditure falling upon the exchequer amounted to between $4,500,000 and $5,000,000 a day.

Tim Healy, Irish Liberal member, discussing the government censorship on news, asked if the government realized it is making a laughing stock of itself in this regard.

He made the house shake with laughter over the picture of a censor who was not content with paring down stories of battles, but even excised portions of the Mohammedan petition for the blessings of Mahomet on the fight.

"Who is responsible for all this?" Healy demanded.

"The whole job of press censorship needs an absolute and immediate revision," was Healy's final comment.

Mr. Healy told of his experiences in America and of the queries directed at him because of the brevity of the news that filters through the censor's office.

"I gave them an explanation," said Healy, in tones of biting scorn. "I told them that the government had put this whole work under the charge of a chancery lawyer, accustomed to drafting affidavits. (Laughter). He is a most able man in his profession, but I would as soon put a plumber in charge of illuminated manuscripts. He is an admirable lawyer, but this is not a lawyer's job."

West Virginia Wants Belgian Refugees.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 17.—A movement has been launched which has for its purpose bringing Belgian refugees to West Virginia to farm the idle lands of the state. The plan is to lease idle farms to the Belgians, and the state of West Virginia will be benefited through the tilling of its land by expert agriculturists. It is hoped to induce several thousand Belgians to settle in this state.

¶ FIRST.—A building must have 253 12-foot stories to secure enough weight to cause these brick to crush under their own weight.

¶ SECOND.—This is the practical way in which any competent architect would figure the load these brick will carry. He would allow a factor of safety of four; consequently he would specify these brick for a building SIXTY-THREE (63) Stories high. Do they build that high in your locality?

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

GORTNER

Mrs. F. S. Irvin and Miss Ella Johnson have returned from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Ross at Cornwallis, W. Va. Mrs. Ross was formerly Miss Laura Gnegy, of Red House.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schlossnagle, two sons and daughters, Ruth and Mrs. Guy L. Sanders, of Fairmont, motored to Accident Friday where they visited the scenes of Mr. Schlossnagle's childhood days.

Miss Pauline Sanders, accompanied her sister, Mrs. George Yutzy, to Keyser, where they were guests of their sister, Mrs. H. L. Bowman.

Mrs. Mattie Miller visited her son Hurley Miller, an old acquaintance at Gortner recently. Mrs. Miller spent the past summer with her son Revy in the State of Washington. After her visit here, she expects to return to her home on the Eastern shore.

L. C. Martin and little son Billie, of Farmington, W. Va., spent several days recently with his parents at this place.

Messrs. Cecil and John Bateson and Cecil Clemm, of Westernport, were Sunday visitors at C. L. Wamsley's.

Mrs. White of Oakland, visited her sister, Mrs. John Wilson, the latter part of last week.

Miss Dora Lichty, accompanied by D. L. Swartzentruber, spent Saturday and Sunday at Aurora.

Mr. Robinson, of Dobbin, was in this vicinity the past week buying up hay and straw.

Mrs. G. L. Sanders returned to her home in Fairmont Sunday after a week's visit with relatives at Gortner.

The Fight Will Go On.

The three counties that have voted under special acts passed by the last legislature have all given favorable majorities. Charles voted on May 16 and went dry by 375 majority. Garrett voted November 3 dry by 1,904 majority. Carroll voted November 3 dry by 1,225. Cecil already dry but voted again the third of November and increased her dry majority of 854 in 1910 to 1,102. One hundred and five saloons will go out of business next May through these victories. One thousand five hundred fifty square miles will be added to Maryland's dry territory, and 60,435 to her dry population.

Gradually the drys are closing in on the traffic in Maryland. With Garrett and Carroll added to the dry counties there are but six counties out of the total of twenty-three still wet. These are St. Mary's, Prince George, Baltimore, Frederick, Allegany and Washington. Of this number St. Mary's will unquestionably go dry at the August election in 1915. There are, of course, several wet spots in some of the other counties, such as Havre de Grace in Harford, and Ellicott City in Howard, but this is compensated for by the dry territory in Frederick, which is not altogether wet. Let us elect a legislature next fall which will make it all dry. What's the use of taking two bites at a cherry?—American Issue.

Can Dig Potatoes by Machinery.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 10.—George Kreiger of this city has completed a machine which will considerably lighten the work of the farmer. Digging potatoes was one of farmer's back breaking tasks. That was in the old days when a fork was used. Now this is all changed. The Grand Rapids man's machine is drawn by a horse, digs the potatoes, cleans them and hoists them into the wagon. Another contrivance will sack the potatoes.

The machine is operated by one man. All he has to do is to drive the horse.

Mine Inspectors Report.

We clip the following items from the State Mine Inspectors report, for the year ending April 30, 1913:

In Garrett county 699 workers were employed, producing 640,897 long tons, a decrease from previous year of 6,618 tons.

In Allegany and Garrett counties there were 163 accidents reported, only 17 of them were fatal, of these one was a miner in this county.

There are, at present, only 21 coal openings in Garrett county.

In Allegany county the mining industry furnished employment to 4,860 workers, 3,665 of whom were miners, altogether producing 3,598,749 gross tons of coal, an increase of 325,620 tons over previous year.

Georgia Boy Wins Corn Prize.

Four brothers members of the Boys' Corn Club of Georgia, produced 824 bushels of corn on four acres of land this year. Luther Allred, of Pickens county, one of the brothers, won first prize at the State Fair for the greatest yield from one acre. He produced 227 bushels. Clarence Allred raised 220 bushels. Elmer 210 and Arthur 167, according to the announcement of the judges. Walker Lee Dunson, of Alexander City, Ala., holds the national record with a yield of 232 bushels on one acre.

Let the boys of Garrett county try their hand on raising corn. Begin at once to make your plans for a well cultivated acre of corn in 1915.

Peter Billy's Clothes

They Were Characteristic of the Man

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"I got a hunch that this is my last year as a lone, lorn bachelor man," sang out Peter Billy as he put on a celluloid collar that cruelly sawed his sunburned neck. He picked up a brilliant red and blue striped necktie and tossed the end around the collar.

"I reckon you think that this nigger minstrel getup's going to put you at the head of schoolteacher's class," grumbled Phin Morris from the doorstep of the bunk house. "Looks like a barber's pole!"

"Nigger minstrel getup, eh? You're plumb jealous, Phin," retorted Peter Billy. "A feller can't put on a biled shirt and a plain, ordinary necktie what they wear in civilized parts but what you kick up a fuss."

Who can blame poor Phin for sitting on the doorstep and indulging in gibes at his more fortunate rival's marvelous garments?

"It's going to be some dance at the schoolhouse next week," volunteered Peter Billy as he stepped past Phin into the starlit night.

"Maybe I'll go," said Phin drearily.

"The Dray girls are coming and a big crowd from Onderdonk. Mazie's going with me!" Peter Billy dashed away into the night, and to the clatter of his pony's hoofs Phin could hear the refrain of Peter's last gay words: "Mazie's going with me!"

Mazie Fenwick was the schoolteacher.

* * * * * * *

Two hundred miles distant, in a Cheyenne hospital, an old man had suffered a sudden sinking spell. There was no time to send for his only relative, a cowpuncher, in another part of the state, so the nurse, a pale, sweet faced young woman, was listening to the weakening voice of old David Morris.

"Miss Drew, I got plenty of money of my own. It tells all about it in that letter I gave you. But you know I've been accepting charity from my nephew, Phin Morris? Of course you know; I told you all about it, and you wonder why I kept him stripped of his money for the last year.

"Phinny was a wild boy, and I've been afraid that he'd go wrong entirely with that wild bunch at Keeter's ranch. So I just let him think I was hard up, and so he's paid $20 a month out of his $30 on me, and I've sent it to the bank. I let him do it. It showed he's made of good metal. He's got the Morris blood in him, and he'll come out all right.

"I'd like to have seen him, but I can't now, and you'll go down there and tell him all this and bring him back with you?"

"I'll go," promised the girl. "You know it's my vacation, anyway."

And later in the day, when there was no more to be done, Nan Drew took the letters and boarded the train that would reach Onderdonk Creek at daylight the following morning. Once there, she went to the hotel and sent word to Keeter's ranch for Phin Morris to come to her.

She was hardly prepared for the strapping young man whose head almost touched the ceiling of the hotel parlor and whose big voice filled every nook and cranny of the room.

And Phin was plainly embarrassed in the presence of the pretty little nurse who had come all the way from Cheyenne to carry out the last wishes of an old man.

Poor Phin was overcome with embarrassment when he discovered that Uncle David had confided all his affairs to Nan Drew, but the girl accomplished her mission so delicately and with such tact that Phin felt almost glad that his uncle had chosen such a sweet messenger.

"You don't look real strong yourself," said Phin, looking down at her delicate face.

"I'm not very well; I'm very tired," said the girl wearily, "but this air is wonderful. I feel better already."

"Can't you come and spend your vacation down here?" asked Phin eagerly. "They take lady boarders over to Dray's ranch. They learn to ride ponies and get brown as berries. You better come down here, and I'll teach you to ride."

"Perhaps I will!" cried Nan. "It sounds very attractive."

"Now I've got to go back to the ranch and tell Keeter I must have a few days off. I reckon I'll get in Cheyenne some time late tonight."

* * * * * * *

It was three months later when Phin Morris, riding down the trail toward Onderdonk Creek, overtook Mazie Fenwick riding her little calico pony.

"Stranger!" reproached Mazie, with a dazzling smile.

Phin could execute a dazzling smile as well, and he proceeded to make himself agreeable to Miss Fenwick.

He knew that for some reason Peter Billy was in the bad graces of the pretty schoolteacher, but Peter Billy was very reticent about the whole matter. As for Phin, he spent many of his evenings studying books, and Mazie had heard of it and dreamed that he was endeavoring to educate himself to her level.

"I'm nearly famished," sighed Mazie as they turned into the main street of the little town.

"Come in and have some ice cream," invited Phin cheerily.

They went, and Mazie's blue eyes gleamed when she saw that Phin Morris' pocketbook was not as empty as it had been in former days. Some one had whispered the story of the bedridden uncle who had left a fortune to the handsome young cowpuncher, and Phin had mounted higher in selfish Mazie's estimation.

Still he wore the same old clothes.

"Phin," said Mazie suddenly, dropping her hand on his big brown one in a friendly manner, "why don't you ever come to see me any more?"

"Too busy," smiled Phin uncomfortably. "Besides, Peter Billy's always had the front seat, you know."

"He's not sitting on the front seat now," retorted Mazie, with spirit.

"And he's some sore because he fell off," rejoined Phin.

"I'm not to blame for that—really, am I, now?" Mazie turned her cornflower blue eyes upon Phin, and her under lip trembled.

Time had been when that demonstration would have sent ecstatic shivers up and down Phin's spinal column. Now he shuddered uncomfortably, thinking what a blessing it was that he had missed marrying Mazie Fenwick.

"I am not to blame, am I, Phin?" quavered Mazie, with tearful eyes.

"I'm not a good judge. Peter Billy knows more about it than I do," said Phin reluctantly. "You see, Mazie, I was way back in the thirteenth row"—

"You're only joking!" cried Mazie angrily. "I guess it won't be any joke if that white faced nurse over at Dray's goes back to Cheyenne. She's"—

"She's my girl," said Phin slowly, and Mazie flinched at the cold anger in his voice and the hostility in his gray eyes. "I reckon we won't talk about Nan Drew."

Mazie said never a word, but she set her teeth hard and left the store at once. By the time Phin had paid the bill and had reached the sidewalk Mazie had mounted her pony and flown back along the trail toward home.

"Poor, selfish little girl!" muttered Phin uneasily.

On the way home Phin met Peter Billy riding desperately toward the town. He was wearing all his gala attire, and there was a glad look in his black eyes.

He stopped short at the sight of Phin.

"I reckon it won't hurt none if I tell you that she's sent for me!" he cried eagerly. "I guess that there hunch of mine has come true! I won't be no bachelor next year!"

"You mean Mazie?" asked Phin, and when the other held out his hand Phin gripped it hard. How was Peter Billy to know that the prize he dreamed he was getting was merely a poor tinseled package stuffed with sawdust?

So Peter Billy went joyfully on his way, and Phin turned into the trail that led to Dray's farm, where Nan Drew had been spending many happy months.

He met her on the trail. She was riding a cream colored pony and looking bewitching in her brown riding dress, with a wide brimmed hat on her golden brown hair. She had grown plump and rosy, and a golden tan covered her face and hands.

"She's my golden girl," whispered Phin, and then he felt suddenly scared at something he had to confess to Nan Drew.

"Come with me to Little Green canyon; I got something to say to you," said Phin seriously, so they rode there almost in silence.

And when they looked down on the green, cuplike hollow in the hills Phin leaned over and took Nan's little hand.

"Nan Drew," he said solemnly, "I just told somebody that you was my girl! Is it true?"

Nan lifted lovely, long lashed eyes and looked long into his loving gray ones. Then she turned to him with a little tender gesture of surrender and said:

"Of course I am your girl, Phin. I've never been any one else's!"

"Gee, but I'm glad Peter Billy's a swell dresser!" remarked Phin after awhile, and, although Nan tried many a time to discover Phin's reason for making such a remark, Phin never told her. Perhaps poor Peter Billy might have guessed, or Mazie herself!

THE ART OF SELLING.

Real Salesmanship Is a Light That Can't Be Obscured.

The boss wants lookers, because he knows the looker of today is the buyer of tomorrow and he wants to make the lookers feel that his store is "the best place to trade," which is only another way of saying that it is the best place to do one's looking. He also knows that the looker of today can sometimes be converted into a buyer before the day is over. All he requires to accomplish what he desires is salesmanship among his salespeople.

Does he get it? Not from all of them. If he did there would be less need for commissions to inquire laboriously into the relation between shopgirls' wages and shopgirls' chastity, for real salesmanship will get the money wherever it is practiced and by whomsoever it is practiced. Real salesmanship is one light that can't be hidden under a bushel. It's a light that can't be obscured. It's a light that will shine above department heads and floorwalkers and reach clear up to "the old man" in his private office, if you keep it burning long enough.

What is salesmanship? No one quite knows. But if you will take care of the lookers, if you will make all the lookers pleasantly remember what you showed them and how you showed it to them when they were merely looking, you will have mastered one very important branch of retail salesmanship.—Collier's Weekly.

SPEED OF GAME BIRDS.

The Hazel Hen Said to Be a Wonder In a Short Spurt.

What is the fastest game bird that flies? Of course, in seeking an answer to the question, as a writer in the Scotsman points out, one must assume equal conditions of atmosphere and cause for flight, for all creatures, human or other, seek their highest rate of speed under the influence of fear.

A recent writer declares that in a race of, say, 200 yards he would back a bird which, though not found in Britain, is indigenous to most of the rest of Europe and is especially familiar in Scandinavia—the hazel hen or gelinotte.

Yet, curiously enough, this is one of the forest haunting birds which, like the American "fool hen," usually fly up into a tree when flushed and, rejecting further attempts at escape, elect to be shot sitting. "But," says the writer referred to above, "on the rare occasions (and that they are rare I readily admit) when one catches a gelinotte in the open I have never seen any bird fly so fast nor move its wings with such extraordinary rapidity."

Next to it at any rate one must surely place the teal, which has a marvelous knack of getting under way quickly. Some experienced observers would give the third place to a bluerock pigeon—the wild, not the Hurlingham variety.

Inflammable Celluloid.

Celluloid, being first cousin of guncotton and closely related to nitroglycerin, is highly inflammable and should never be brought in close proximity to a flame. Celluloid is a compound of cellulose or vegetable fibrine, reduced by acids to guncotton. Cellulose is found in all vegetable life, particularly in young plants. It is a starchlike substance. Cotton fiber is principally cellulose. After the cotton fiber is cleaned it is submerged in acids, which quickly reduce it to cellulose in the form of a thick, pasty, semitransparent mass. Camphor is added further to thicken it, and the required coloring matter is thoroughly mixed in, after which the celluloid is molded by heat and pressure into various useful and ornamental objects, such as combs, boxes, pins, paper cutters, ornaments, etc.—New York World.

Learn to Write Well.

First legibility, second sightliness should be the endeavor in handwriting and let the "character" and the "individuality" take care of themselves. If you wish to devise a signature hard to forge that is another thing, but one's everyday handwriting should be plain and as good looking as one can make it. The art of writing a neat, legible, well punctuated, correctly expressed and spelled letter should belong to every high school graduate, much more to every college graduate, and the thanks of the community are due to those who are testing and trying to improve our methods of education; but they must remember that the letter style is properly more loose and conversational than any other and therefore should not be criticised in just the same way.—Kate Upson Clark in Leslie's.

Within the Law.

A real negro mammy of the old type came up the walk through the old fashioned garden to the side porch. She had a basket of "fresh aigs" on her arm and was offering them for sale.

"Are you sure they are perfectly fresh, auntie?" asked the lady who came out of the house.

"Yes'um, they sho is all right, Miss Bess. Ain't nary disorderly aig amongst 'em."—New York Post.

Exclusiveness.

The pinhead puts a barbed wire fence around himself because he instinctively knows he's a fourflusher and is afraid you'll find it out if you get too close.—Indianapolis Star.

The Main Point.

Crummer—I see that a woman was killed in the crush at a bargain counter yesterday. Mrs. Crummer—Dear me; what bargains were for sale?—Puck.

Adversity borrows its sharpest sting from our impatience.—Horne.

GRANTSVILLE.

Grantsville is favorably located, on the Old National Pike, near several Pennsylvania towns and villages, and is surrounded by many splendid fertile farms. Some of the farmers light their homes with private electric light plants, have their own water system and enjoy hot and cold water in the houses.

Two prosperous banks are located in our village. The First State bank, with capital stock of $25,000; surplus, $7,500; resources, $189,028.05, deposits subject to check, $151,340.73. The First National Bank, capital, $25,000; surplus, $17,000; resources, $172,349.46; deposit subject to check, $86,426.20. A total deposit subject to check of $237,776.93.

Boardwalks are disapperring and their place supplied by cement walks which greatly add to the neat, inviting appearance of the village.

Grantsville is moving forward, not making much noise, but just moving right along, and as Sam Jones was want to say, "getting there." With the State road completed to the county seat, our happiness will be completed.

Of our churches and our public schools and the beauties of nature and of historical points we will write again.

Grantsville is in Local option Garrett county and proud of it. We helped to put it there.

Grantsville has several large department stores, well stocked with everything required by a 20th century family. The merchants are enterprising and courteous and are doing a good business.

Social life in this village is very pleasant and active. We are home folks, we know each other, and endeavor to make life enjoyable. Life is real, life is earnest here. We are getting the most out of it.

All around Grantsville are enjoyable, pleasant, comfortable farm homes and well cultivated farms, with modern equipments. Our farmers live on prosperity street.

The value of good roads is seen every day, in the number of automobiles that come to and pass through this village, carrying streamers indicating that the cars are from all parts of the land. The tourists stop for gasoline, for a meal, or for a night, with supper and breakfast or for supplies at the garage.

Mine Host Bender of the New National has newly furnished the new addition to this popular roadside hotel. No other town or village in Garrett county has as well an equipped hotel for the accommodation of the traveling public as Grantsville. "The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof." Try it and be convinced.

The new Methodist preacher and his family are "at home" with us and seem to have found a warm place in our hearrs.

Ervin Schrock and Lulu Elizabeth Jenkins, of this place went to Cumberland Thursday and were married while in that city.

H. C. Wisseman, of near this place, will sell at public sale his personal property. He also intends selling his farm.

Hillside farm has had several callers from Pennsylvania friends the past week. Mr. Wisseman expects to move to Delaware.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Bender of this place spent last week with their parents Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Miller, and J. H. Bender at Springs, Pa.

The members of the Methodist church recently assembled and descended upon the parsonage with so many and various bundles and packages that in consequence the parsonage larder presented a much more prosperous appearance than it did the day before. The participants in the donation party remained to pass a very happy evening in one another's company and in that of the pastor and his good wife.

Over $50 was realized by the ladies of the Methodist church in the dinner they served on election day, the amount going toward church improvements.

Dr. and Mrs. Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Bender and sister, Miss Miller, Misses Winifred Bonig, May Blocher, Ethel Broadwater, Ethel Stanton, Beulah Bender, Mrs. C. B. Getty, Messrs. Menno Miller, Fay Miller and Nevin Broadwster were among those who attended the musicale at the Salisbury opera house.

Mrs. Charles B. Getty and Mrs. Clarence Loechel, of this village, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reppert, in Frostburg.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Miss Helice Rathbun is the happy chief clerk in the Park post office.

Arch Bowser has just completed a nice cellar under Mrs. Kneece's cottage.

The friends of Floyd White gave a delightful and pleasant box social last Thursday night for the purpose of helping him pay for his new Ford car. It was a general turn out of good natured people, ever ready to extend a helping hand to a worthy cause. Some few kind hearted ladies handed him a five dollar bill. Such acts of kindness and good will help brighten up life and drive gloomy thoughts away, May their number multiply.

Our merchants are calling for all the dressed turkeys they can get, to ship to other merchants, and the housekeepers are engaging turkeys for home use from near-by farmers.

Thanksgiving will be properly observed in this "neck of the woods." There will be several family reunions and turkey dinners.

C. F. Dawson has been giving Luther Brown a lift the past week or two, in his office work.

We forgot to mention before this, that A. W. Miller and family had moved to St. George, W. Va., and Mr. Albert White to Butler, Pa., where he has a desirable position.

Things are very quiet here and hereabouts. There are no rumors about the sale of the park. That topic seems to have been cremated.

The post office part of E. E. Kesner's store has been moved into the main room. Empty shelves and counter remains. Just gone into winter quarters.

The electric light having retired until next summer, nine gas lights, in front of private homes, takes its place. The lantern brigade has been organized by those who must go outdoors after night.

Lysle Schill is one of the B. & O. company's relief agents. He is now at Burnsville, W. Va.

There are now sixty-five families in the Park, watching and waiting for the coming of the season of 1915.

Sugar has dropped down to 7 cents a pound at our stores.

Gay Hayden, who has been painting at Rowlesburg, spent Sunday in the Park with his parents, Captain and Mrs. J. A. Hayden.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bowen are visiting in Baltimore.

The Republican today announces the sale of three valuable pieces of property in the Park, under foreclosure. The many friends of Mr. P. T. Garthright will sympatnize with him in this hour of additional affliction. Mr. Garthright is in the Soldiers Home at Richmond, Va.

Judge Cuppett has purchased the Townshend cottage, on E. street, now occupied by Stephen Mattingly.

We had our second snow Monday night, just covered the ground. Tuesday was a stinging, cold winter day. Wednesday 7 a. m. 8 below zero.

Grandmother Rathbun spent Tuesday in Oakland with her son, Prof. Frank E. Rathbun and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Fouch and Mrs. Fouch's mother returned home Wednesday evening from a two weeks visit in the east.

ACCIDENT.

Deputy sheriff George Dewitt motored up to this village from Cumberland last Thursday to summon some witnesses in the case of the State of Maryland vs. George Friend. The witnesses were wanted at once. With good roads Cumberland is only a few hours ride from here.

The day of driving to Oakland through the mud axle deep, is a thing of the past. Our farmers greatly appreciate the blessing of a mudless road. This will be one of the reasons for observing Thanksgiving day. Another reason is a saloonless district May 1st.

We will feel lonesome as we drive to Oakland over the state road, in giving the village of Hoyes the go-by. It is an out-of-the-way place now-a-days, a place to which we will make special visits to see our good friends of other days.

William Donahue, of Frostburg, employed on the state road at Accident, fell down an embankment here several days ago and sustained a broken leg. He was taken to the home of his brother-in-law, P. T. Monahan, at Frostburg.

James Speicher, of this village, went to Oakland Monday on business.

GUARD.

Mrs. W. W. Griffith, who has been ill, is somewhat improved at this writing.

Our folks are preparing to take life easier and get what enjoyment they can. Jasper Fike is one of them; he has purchased a Maxwell touring car.

Prof. Earl Lowdermilk is giving good satisfaction as the village school teacher.

Mrs. Edward Shope who has been quite ill, is slowly improving.

Carl Green, who is employed at Dumas, Pa., spent a few days with his parents at this place.

Miss Myrtle Fike, who spent the past summer at Keyser, W. Va., has returned to this place.

Mrs. Norman Groves, and son Elmer, after a weeks visit with her daughter, Mrs. Edward Hostetler, at Sand Patch, Pa., have returned home.

Estray Notice.

There came to my farm, known as the Beckman place, three miles north of Kitzmiller, about three weeks ago, three black yearling barrows and one black yearling sow. The owner will please call, pay all damages and costs and take the animals away.

BLOOMINGTON.

Merchant George Warnick was called to Oakland last Saturday as a State witness.

The coal mines in this vicinity are working on short time, hardly enough to give the men and their families a living.

The watchword of Garrett countains, in view of the local option victory, should be, "State-wide Prohibition."

George Warnick, Wilbur Tasker, Philip R. Titchnell, A. M. Duckworth, H. C. Eye and Gilmor S. Tiebnell, were witnesses from this place to Oakland in the case of the State of Maryland vs. Jonn Whitzell, tried before Squire Fries Saturday. The defendant was held for the grand jury.

Warnick's cash store is doing a fair business because of low prices for cash.

The first term of our singing schoo closed last week. Singers are being secured for a second term of three months. Prof. Cannon, the teacher, has given good satisfaction.

Mrs. Geo. Warnick visited North Glade relatives Saturday.

Rev. Snedeger, after a two weeks vacation in Baltimore returned here Saturday, and preached at Aarons' Run Sunday morning and at this place at night. Rev. Snedeger took an active part in the local option campaign.

The stand taken by the Republican on the temperance question ever since its first apperance, has won it many friends and well wishers.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Walker of Kitzmiller, were at Blomington last week called here on account of the illness of Mr. Joseph Beale.

Mr. Adam Elliott of this place, miner employed in the mines of the Bloomington Coal Co,, is the first one to come under the Workman's Compensation law, which went into effect on Nov. 1st. While going to work on last Monday he was caught between a loaded car and the rib and painfully crushed about the hips.

Mr. Jacob Stump of this village, went to various points on the Eastern shore of Maryland, to visit in his official capacity as one of the Big Injins in the Great Council of the Braves of the I. O. R. M., many of the subordinate wigwams, located at the different towns along the Chesapeake bay.

Mrs. W. C. Johnson, of Piedmont, was the guest of relatives on Wednesday.

Mr. Harvey Matthews, of Brownsville, Pa., formerly of Bloomington en route to Elkins to visit his mother in company with wife and little daughter, spent the week-end in town visiting his uncles, Messrs. Grant and Benton Harshbarger.

Mrs. Martin Squires, of Beryl, is a patient in the W. M. hospital, Cumberland, undergoing surgical treatment at the hands of Dr. A. H. Hawkins.

A joint committee of the Junior Order and the Daughters of America, both of this place, are completing an interesting program for Thanksgiving day services.

The forest fires, raging with terrific fury on account of the high winds, on the W. Va., and Maryland sides of the Potomac river during nearly all of last last week, destroying the young growth of timber and treatening barns, fences, homes and outbuildings of the farmers in the burning area, was controled by the rains of Friday and Saturday. The fire marshals and assistant marshals on W. Va. side, with large crowds of fighters, were obliged to do double duty, night and day, in many instances, in the neighborhood of Cross, to protect the property of the farmers.

The squeal of the porker as he gets it in the neck has become a familiar sound in this neighborhood, during the past week or ten days.

Misses Viola Durham and Lena Kight of Barnum, nurses in training at the W. M. hospital, paid a short visit to their respective homes on Tuesday.

The coal business in this vicinity is decidedly rotten and on the bum. Never known in the history of this community to be quite so bad. The full dinner pail is a joke and the empty pocket is painfully real. All due, if you wish to take the Wilsonian theory in political economy, to the War in Europe.

Pastor Snedegar of the M. E. church, is back home after a two weeks visit to friends and relatives in Washington, D. C, and Baltimore city. During his visit to Baltimore, he was the guest of honor and orator in chief at a banquet given by Brooklyn lodge, I. O. O. F.

The funeral ceremonies of Mr. Geo. S. Morehead, aged 19 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Morehead of Bloomington, whose death occurred at the Hoffman hospital at Keyser on last Saturday morning at 4 o'clock, took place from the M. E. church on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He was a member of four organizations and there was a large representation of these different orders in proper regalia in attendance. The funeral arrangements were in charge of his two home fraternities, Junior Order and the Daughters of America, together with delegations of the Golden Eagles and the I. O. R. M. of Westernport, crowded the church to its utmost capacity. Rev. Snedegar preached the funeral sermon and referred in most sympathetic and eloquent terms to the many noble qualities of the deceased. His remains were interred in the Bloomington grave yard.

SWANTON.

Quite a business is done here in lumber, crossties and mining props. Farm produce of all kinds is largely shipped to other markets.

Back of us is a fine, prosperous farming community, the farmers of which are gradually supplying themselves with improved machinery, good homes and up-to-date barns. A number of farmers take their produce to Kitzmiller.

Quite a successful revival has been in progress in the Methodist church. Pastor McCamic has labored earnestly and well.

We are sorry to lose from our midst Mrs. Jerry Mankis and family, who will shortly go to their new home, a farm near Mountain Lake Park, Mr. Mankis will remain here for a time.

Because of the schedule of the B. & O. a number of our citizens transact business in Piedmont.

Jerry Mankis and two sons spent last Thursday at the county seat.

Squire and Mrs. McCrobie had business in Oakland the latter part of last week, as also did Theopolis George.

Swanton is on the B. & O. 17 mile grade, not high up in the mountains like the county seat, but in the mountain all the same.

We do not spread out much, but we have some length. We have one street only, but it extends quite-a-ways, until lost in county public roads.

We have three comfortable churches, Episcopalian, Methodist and United Brethren. One School house, enough said about it. We have hopes for the future in that direction.

Three stores look after our wants and wishes. A well managed grist mill is located here. Its buckwheat is hard to beat and has quite a trade.

Otho J. Paugh, of near here, had business in Oakland Monday.

A revival meeting is in progress at Chestnut Grove, near here, conducted by Rev. Wm. H. Barnard, and is largely attended.

Something to Grumble About.

A colored bricklayer in Macon, Ga., was lying down during the noon hour, sleeping in the hot sun. The clock struck one, the time to pick up his hod again. He rose, stretched, and grumbled: "I wish I wus daid. 'Tain nothin' but wuk, wuk from mawnin' tell night."

Another colored man, a story above, heard the complaint and dropped a brick on the grumbler's head.

Dazed, he looked up and said:

"De Lawd can' stan' no jokes. He jus' takes ev'ything in yearnest,"—Exchange.

"Safety First"

In purchasing Fire Insurance the first object is to secure protection against loss of your savings of years, represented by your home, store or stock of goods, and you should look into the quality of your protection as carefully as you would the title of your property or the selling power of your stock.

Investigate this quality BEFORE and NOT AFTER your fire.

The Home Insurance Co., New York

offers you the very best protection obtainable, having paid out $150,000,000.00 to satisfied policy-holders, and while the cost to you BEFORE THE FIRE may be a trifle higher than some of the protection offered you by Mutual and so-called Independent Companies in which the cost to you AFTER THE FIRE may be infinitely greater.

The Home's $35,000,000.00 assets makes you safe. We invite intelligent comparison and suggest to you as a business man to secure "Safety irst."

AN OUNCE OF HOME POLICY IS WORTH A TON OF ASHES.

VOLUME 39. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1914. NUMBER 39.

CONGRESSMAN LINTHICUM VISITED OAKLAND TUESDAY

Is Now a Full Fledged Democratic Candidate For Covernor.

On Tuesday morning Hon. J. Charles Linthicum, Democratic candidate for Governor of Maryland, paid Oakland a brief visit. He was accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Johnson, a former newspaper man. Both gentlemen called at The Republican office when Congressman Linthicum said:

"I am just completing a short tour of Western Maryland, in which I have visited Frederick, Westminster, Hagerstown and Cumberland. I am here in Oakland for the purpose of seeing my Garrett county friends and telling them of my desire to secure the nomination on the Democratic ticket for Governor. The cordial welcome and pledges of support I have received have most agreeably surprised me as they have far exceeded my expectations. I have been told by many people that they know of my record in the House of Delegates, the State Senate and in Congress, and had faith that I would maintain that record if I were to become Governor."

Mr. Linthicum returned east on the morning accommodation and will cover other portions of the State during the present week.

New B. & O. Schedule.

The new time table on the Baltimore and Ohio which will become effective at 12:01 o'clock Sunday morning, November 29, it is reported contains no material changes, except that in train No. 5 between Cumberland and Grafton. The train which leaves here at 7:25 p. m., will leave at 5.35 p. m., one hour and fifty minutes earlier. Train No. 3 which arrives at 6:55 a. m., is scheduled to arrive at 7:10 a. m., fifteen minutes later than at present. No. 4 due in this city at 12:37 a. m., will arrive at 12:57 a. m., twenty minutes later than the present schedule.

SENATOR LODCE IS CAUSTIC.

Scores President And Administration For Tennessee Attitude.

Political circles in Boston are discussing the attack of Senator Lodge on President Wilson and the Democratic administration. The Senator spoke before the Middlesex Club's "get-together" dinner and in bitter tones compared the action of the President when Mexico fired upon a United States warship's launch at Tampico and when the Tennessee's launch was fired upon by Turkey.

"We do not know what happened in Turkish waters," declared Lodge, "but apparently the Administration is content to have it appear that the Tennessee's boat was fired upon in warning of mines. The Administrasion has intimated that it was a friendly act.

"Remember what happened at Tampico. Within three days after that incident there was shedding of blood. And now—now the salute has been forgotten.

"Think of the flurry and excitement at Mexico's insult and the meekness and mildness with which the administration is considering the Turkish incident.

Dick Browning Among the Big Game of Montana.

Ex-Senator Browning received a letter a few days ago from his son Dick saying, "After waiting for some of my Garrett county friends to accept an invitation to join me in a hunt, I took my young dog and started alone. Soon after locating my camp, I jumped a bunch of deer and succeeded in droping three of them in less than three minutes, all of them nearly in the same pile, two big bucks and doe. I have saved the hides. As it was my dog's first experience, I reckon he thought it was too much blood and thunder for him, as he retreated to the river where I had my boat tied up, but he soon returned and partook heartily of his share of the game." Dick is a born woodsman, a crack shot and a good hunter.

OAKLAND'S THANKSGIVING.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

Father, we thank Thee on this day of days
For all Thy blessings sent us from on high;
But, most of all, Lord, do we give Thee praise
Because our county has been voted dry.

We thank Thee for these noble men, who fared
So bravely and so gladly forth to fight
Against the curse of Rum, because they cared
More for the cause of Justice, Truth and Right.

Nearly two thousand, Lord; what will it mean
To us, their mothers, sisters, daughters, wives!
To know the arms are strong on which we lean,
To feel that we can trust them with our lives.

And so upon this glad Thanksgiving Day
We give Thee thanks; and Father, do Thou bless
Our homes and lives, and keep us strong alway;
Lead us in paths of peace and happiness.

GARRETT COUNTY MUST HELP MAKE UP U. S. DEFICIT

The Law Goes Into Effect on Tuesday, December 1st, 1914.

With the enforcement of the new war tax law, passed by Congress on October 22, Garrett county will soon begin to contribute thousands of dollars to help meet the deficit in Uncle Sam's treasury, caused by the gigantic struggle between the nations of Europe, which has paralyzed maritime commerce.

At the Federal building, Cumberland Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, Fuller Barnard, Sr., and his assistant deputy, Howard C. Fuller, have already received stamp books for the sale of tobacco, stamps for brokers, theatres, moving picture halls and museums, and additional stamp books are expected to arrive in readiness for their sale December 1.

Bowling alleys and billiard rooms must pay $5 for each alley or table, this portion of the law being effective after November 1 everywhere.

The tax on theatres will be heavy, it being based on the seating capacity of the houses.

Every telegram or long distance telephone call that costs more than 15 cents will cost one cent extra to be paid to the Government.

Each deed will cost at least 50 cents, if the consideration runs over $500, 50 cents extra will be charged for each additional $500. It is safe to say that few, if any, deeds will contain a stipulated consideration of more than $500 after December 1. Get your deeds recorded before December 1, if you want to save this tax.

Every bank in the county will pay a tax of $1.00 on each $1,000 of capital, surplus and undivided profits. Bankers will receive a department form, for which they will make return to the district collector, and pay in advance.

Checks used in transactions of any kind will not require war tax stamps, as during the Spanish war.

Each promisory note must be stamped after December 1, the tax being two cents on each $100 for each new note or a renewal. This burden will fall on the borrower in practically every instance.

Insurance policies covering property, new or renewed, must be stamped at the rate of $.005 on each $1.00 of premium. Co-operative or mutual fire insurance companies and policies of reinsurance are exempt. The same charge is fixed on casualty, fidelity and guaranty insurance, or bond of nature of indemnity for loss.

Stamps are also provided for the collection of the tax on manufacturers of and dealers in tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and snuff. Such stamps can be procured for this district only at the Custom House in Baltimore, or at the office of deputy collector in Washington, Cumberland or Hagerstawn.

"Power of attorney or proxy for voters at any election for officers, 10 cents.

"Upon the protest of every note, bill of exchange, acceptance, check or draft, whether by a notary public or any other authorized person 25 cents.

"Where an adhesive stamp is used for denoting any tax, the person affixing it shall write or stamp thereon his initials and the date, with penalty for failure to do so with fradulent intent."

OAKLAND AS IT APPEARED SEVENTY-TWO YEARS AGO

Extract From an Interesting Letter Describing a Trip up the Seventeen Mile Grade.

Through the countesy of Mr. J. Brackett, we have been permitted to take the following interesting paragraphs written by his grandfather. The letter describes a trip from Baltimore west. He says:

"On Savage river the system of steep grades, or scaling the mountains commences and I cannot give you any more than a faint idea of the stupendous features which the country and work presents. There is tunnel after tunnel, cut after cut, and bridge after bridge of magnificent proportions. We seemed half the time passing over the tops of the tallest pines which were yet their full length below us. The streams, mad torrents in their character, seemed foaming with rage and spending their fury on the high rocks, hundreds of feet below us.

Every turn in the road would bring into view one of those beautiful mountain views with which you are so familiar, but it my recollection serves me right, much more wild, many of them, than to be seen on Wills creek. All was covered with snow and ice, which made the scene more desolate, and so we went up, up at the rate of 117 feet per mile until the Glades were reached with some attempt at settlement. Here the mountaineers with their rifles and green coats, and easy manners were assembled in large numbers to see the iron horse, a great sight doubtless in these parts. With an old darkey to fiddle for them, they were having warm times in a small frame house, just put up to answer the purpose, for the time, of station-house, store, post-office, &c., in the new town of Oakland.

You have been among these people I need not further describe the scene, but you know a woodman is never dressed for company without his rifle, and for this occasion they seemed to have received an extra polish for their fair partners might have used them as mirrors. I went among them and asked to look at their guns, they were all home made, as I learned, the hunting was not improved by the railroad.

At this place the daily passenger train (which was made irregular for my accomodation as I desired to stop and see the bride) stopped, and I took a luggage train to penetrate 28 miles further into this most wild, unhospitable and yet most interesting wilderness. Now we commence tumbling down at the same rate per mile towards Cheat river and again up Crabtree creek towards the summit of Laurel Hill which you know is the Western range of the Alleganies.

Look Out For Bogus Agents.

Warnings to cattle men to beware of men posing as representatives of the Federal Government in its fight against foot-and-mouth disease went out from the Department of Agriculture. Reports to the Department say persons who claim to represent the Government are appearing in infected States with so-called cures.

Officials say there is no specific cure for the disease and that the only way to prevent its spread is to keep well herds from contact with infected ones. The warning cautions farmers to make sure that men claiming to represent the department are actually Federal inspectors. Compel them to show their credentials.

SENATOR JACKSON IS OPTIMISTIC

Showing Made by Republicans Satisfactory.—Gains Throughout State.

Former United States Senator William P. Jackson, the Republican state leader is very optimistic over the political situation in the state,

In discussing the result of the recent election he said:

"I have by no means made an exhaustive analysis of the vote cast in the last election. There are certain obvious results, however, that should cause all Republicans to be not only satisfied with the present accomplishment but also confidently hopeful for the future. A Republican congressman has been elected against what seemed on paper to be overwhelming odds. A Republican candidate for judge carried Baltimore county against similiar odds. It is, moreover, a notable fact Charles, Garrett, Montgomery, Prince Georges, St. Mary's, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties, we increased our vote over that of 1911 when we carried the state. Again, the reduction in the Democratic majority throughout the state was not due to the weakness of Senator Smith as a Democratic candidate. He polled more votes than did Mr. Crothers or Mr. Gorman, or all the Democratic candidates in 1910. Furthermore, in Allegany, Baltimore county, Calvert, Cecil, Charles, Prince Georges, Queen Annes and St. Marys counties, Senator Smith's vote exceeded Senator Lee's.

More important perhaps than the immediate election results—satisfactory as they are—is the feeling of confidence for the future that all Republicans have. Last summer we insisted that the voters select their own candidates. We have shown that the party organization is liberal and perfectly responsive to the popular will. Aside from the personal strength of Colonel Carrington, Senator Zihlman, Mr. Mudd, Mr. Heaps, Mr. Janetzki, Mr. Hammond and Mr. Duer, and the merit of Republican policies, I believe that the splendid results are largely due to these facts.

The future of the party is bright if the orgahization shall continue to exist for the general good of the Republican party and not for any particular faction therein. There can be no excuse for any Republican not to lend his enthusiastic support, for every success and advantage for the whole party.

The organization being thus liberalized, we need only to make it thoroughly efficient in order to make the success of the Republican policies certain. Republican doctrines make an irresistible appeal to thoughtful men.

I believe that the party should meet, through its representatives, as soon after Christmas as possible to take stock of the present situation and to consider how we may not only hold the gains already made, but also press on towards greater things in the future.

"If You'll Go, I'll Go."

Say that to some friend when you leave him, Saturday night. Of course you will mean that you will go to church Sunday if he will go too. That's a fine way to start off. If you are undecided as to which church to attend, select the one your mother used to go to. You can't go far wrong. Any fellow's mother's religion ought to be good enough for him. So next Sunday give up the lazy hour in bed. Have your best clothes ready. Put 'em on and start out with your head up and your shoulders back. You're doing one of the best things you ever did in your life and if you keep it up you will never be sorry. And you'll be surprised to see how good it feels to be in church. And above all things, if there is congregational singing, SING. Don't merely hold the book and bluff at singing. Fill up your lungs and let out the music. You'll know it, all right. You may have forgotten the words but the tune, never. Why your mother used to sing it! She will be a happy woman when she knows that her boy was at church.

ESCAPED FROM BURNING HOME NEAR KITZMILLER

Seamen Family Loses Its All In Fire Monday Morning.

The home of Jacob M. Seaman, one-half mile east Kitzmiller on the Western Maryland Railway, was burned Monday morning at 4 o'clock, with all the contents. Mr. and Mrs. Seaman, with their eighteen-month-old babe, only escaped by jumping from the second story window, about 15 feet from the ground.

They were awakened by the heat and smoke and in order to save their lives it was necessary to jump from the window. Mrs. Seaman is in bed from the effects of the leap, and the doctor is unable to determine how badly she is injured, and Mr. Seaman has a badly sprained ankle. They lost all their clothing and household goods, and are left to face the winter homeless.

The family is in destitute circumstances as all their personal and household effects were destroyed. Neighbors are taking up donations for the family.

THE DEATH RECORD

CHARLES ELWOOD OFFUTT.

The death of Mr. Charles Elwood Offutt occured this (Wednesday) afternoon at one o'clock, at the Home Sanatorium in Oakland after an illness of seven weeks. The deceased was taken to the local institution suffering with appeneicitis nearly two months ago when an operation was performed, followed later by two other major operations. He was given every attention and every device known to medical science was brought into play in an effort to restore him to health. This morning a fourth operation was determined upon.

Mr. Offutt was aged thirty-nine years. He was married several years ago to Miss Thomasson of Chicago, who survives him along with their three children. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Offutt, one sister, Miss Bess and two brothers, Messrs. D. E. and William R., all of Oakland.

The death of Mr. Offutt has cast a gloom over the entire community. He was of a genial, kindly disposition, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

New Rates For B. & O.

Within the next few days the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will file tariffs with the Public Service Commission of Maryland and the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington advancing the commutation rates of all passenger fares in the territory contiguous to Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia. The company intends to make this policy general in all the territory it serves and by January 1 will have tariffs along this line filed to cover all other sections served.

Better save up your dimes and buy a few 50 trip tickets at present prices and save one-fourth of your railroad fare, as these tickets may be abolished. This is important to Deer Park and Mountain Lake Park commutors.

THE COUNTRY'S WAR AGAINST THE FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Fourteen states have been quarantined by the United States government for foot-and-mouth disease—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Kentucky. This disease is new to farmers of the United States, for there have been only five outbreaks in the history of the country and of these the first three were unimportant and the two others confined to a comparatively limited area. In Europe, however, it has long been a well known and dread scourage. Should it ever be permitted to establish itself as firmly here it would cause not only tremendous losses to stock but seriously interfere with the supply of meat for the people.

The foot-and-mouth disease affects particularly cattle, swine and sheep. It is characterized by sores in the the mouth which make swallowing painful and frequently cause the animals to refuse all food, and by sores on the feet which cause lameness and in severe cases, occasionally result in the hoofs dropping off. The animals lose flesh with extraordinary rapidity and in the case of milk cows the milk supply is so seriously affected that it frequently dries up altogether. The first evidences of the disease are a chill followed quickly by fever, the temperature sometimes rising as high as 106 degrees Fahrenheit. Small vesicles or blisters about the size of a pea appear shortly after in the mouth and spread rapidly. As the disease advances ropy saliva hangs from the afflicted animal's mouth, which is opened and shut with a peculiar smacking sound. In a short time similar eruptions appear on the feet, which are red, tender, swollen and painful. In consequence the animal persists in lying down and bedsores soon develop. The udders of milk cows are also susceptible and the sores interfere with milking.

Most Contagious of Stock Plagues.

Although the mortality is, except in very severe outbreaks, comparatively low, foot-and-mouth disease is probably the most contagious of all stock plagues. The germ which causes it is so small that it is invisible under the miscroscope and passes through the finest filter known to science. It can be carried in any one of a hundred ways. In addition to direct contact with affected animals, the disease can be communicated by hay, straw, bedding, harness, ropes, in fact, anything that has even indirectly came in contact with diseased animals. Cats, dogs, and poultry have been known to carry the germ from farm to farm, and in particular this is frequently done by human beings. Already in the present outbreak cases are on record where the curiosity of farmers has led them to visit infected herds. On their return to their own homes these men have given the disease to their own animals. For this reason the authorities are urging upon every one the duty of refraining from such visits and of keeping strangers from visiting their stock.

The contagiousness of the disease indeed is such that when one animal in a herd becomes infected it is considered useless to attempt to save the remainder of the herd. For this reason the federal authorities have adopted the only practical method of stamping out the disease, namely, the slaughter of all cattle, sheep and swine on an infected farm. When a case is discovered a deep trench is dug, the animals led into it, slaughtered, their hides slashed, and the carcasses treated with quicklime and then buried under at least five feet of earth. It is advisable to slaughter the animals in the ditch itself in order that the ground may not become affected by dragging the dead bodies over it. The hides are slashed partly in order to facilitate the action of the lime and partly to remove any temptation to dig them up again and sell them. The entire farm premises are the thoroughly disinfected and no stock allowed upon them for a period of approximately sixty days.

Appraiser Values the Herd.

In order to compensate the owner of his property thus condemned in the interest of the public welfare, an appraiser is appointed by the state authorities to value the herd. The sum thus fixed is divided equally between the state and the federal authorities. In the last outbreak in 1908 in New England it cost the federal government, which was then paying two-thirds of the appraised values, approximately $300,000 for condemnation, slaughter and disinfection. The present outbreak is regarded as much more serious.

The inspectors engaged in this work are equipped with a complete rubber outfit which can be thoroughly disinfected after each exposure to infection. Persons who have not the advantage of this equipment should rigorously refrain from exposing themselves to the least risk of infection. As has already been said, the disease is frequently transmitted by human beings, and it is really a crime for any one to gratify his curiosity at the expense of his neighbors. In addition to this danger there are also a number of cases on record in which both children and adults have become infected themselves. Ordinarily the disease is not serious in men, but weakly children who drink contaminated milk suffer so severely that in a few cases death has been known to result. With adults the malady usually takes no more serious form than a slight eruption in the mouth similar to fever blisters and possibly a similar eruption on the hands and fingers. There may be also some fever and nausea, but there is comparatively little danger. In countries where the disease is prevalent many authorities believe that it is fairly general in human beings but that the consequent disturbances in health are so slight that they are not brought to the attention of physicians.

Started in Michigan.

The present outbreak originated in southern Michigan but how the germ found its way there is not yet definitely known. It seems probable that some cattle became infected, that their milk was sent to a creamery and the skim milk then returned to be fed to hogs. A herd of these infected hogs was then shipped to Chicago where they infected the stockyards before they themselves revealed any symptoms of the disease. Once this had taken place, every shipment of stock from Chicago to other parts of the country was likely to spread the infection. For this reason federal inspectors have for some time now been engaged in tracing, by the aid of bills of lading and other railroad records, each of these shipments to its destination and inspecting the stock there. This accounts for the discovery of cases in states as far removed from each other as Iowa and Massachusetts. The various quarantines already imposed have been designed to prevent the continued movement of cattle from infected or suspicious places. Once these movements have been halted and all the exposed cattle brought to a standstill, it will be possible for the federal authorities to locate all suspicious cases and by the slaughter of all exposed cattle ultimately eradicate the disease. The federal quarantines are accompanied by state and local quarantines of individual infected farms. From these no produce whatsoever can be sent out. In many cases children are not even permitted to go to school, and the farmer cannot drive his horses on the public highways.

Stock Raisers Should Help.

The chief obstacle in the way of the successful prosecution of this campaign of isolation and extermination lies in the danger that there may be concealed sources of infection. Although the farmer receives the appraised value of his herd, it is inevitable that the summary slaughter of all his stock should cause him considerable inconvenience as well as indirect financial loss. To those who can see no further ahead than this and who do not realize what it would mean to the entire country if the disease were once to gain a firm foothold here, there is a natural temptation not to report suspicious cases to the authorities. This, however, is simply to cut off one's nose to spite one's face. The disease cannot be stamped out by ignoring it. The only possible way in which stock raisers can save themselves tremendous losses in the future is to co-operate now with the authorities by reporting every suspicious case of sore mouth or lameness among their stock and by assisting in enforcing the quarantines, both federal and local, which have been declared.

EXCELLENT POINTS CONCERNING SWINE

Alfalfa Recognized as of Greatest Value in Hog Feeding—Care for Sows.

(By C. S. MILLER.)

If you intend to plow your blue grass and clover pastures next spring, let the pigs have free range over them until the snow falls.

No other feed for small pigs ranks as high in value as skim milk. If you do not have plenty of it on your own farm, better arrange to get some from a neighbor, even if it takes trouble to do it.

In the West alfalfa is now recognized as of the greatest value in hog feeding. Give a brood sow plenty of cut alfalfa with a small ration of corn, say not more than two pounds per day, and she will come through the winter in fine condition.

A slop made of shorts and hot water, fed every other day, is an excellent thing for brod sows.

A good many men will tear themselves from close proximity to a hot stove, dash out into the storm, shovel a few bushels of corn on the ground for their hogs, and then leave them to shiver and freeze without adequate shelter during the night. These men are the fellows who are always sure there is no money in hog raising.

Since Doctor Moore's discovery of the hitherto unknown qualities of copperas, it has been used with great success to preserve the health of hogs. A very small portion, say a teaspoonful in a barrel of drinking water once or twice a week, is recommended.

FIND PLEASURE IN POULTRY.

Woman May Find as Much Enjoyment With Flock of Birds as She Does on Shopping Expedition.

The woman who finds herself possessed for the first time of a flock of poultry will soon learn that she may spend an afternoon working with her birds and be just as much amused as if she spent her time shopping, nor will she be nearly so tired as if she had been walking around on hard sidewalks.

Instead of being out of pocket—for most every woman will buy things that she does not need if she chances to see them—she will find that she has added to the possibilities for gain.

To be out in the open air and sunchine is to see more real life than does the woman who is always in the house.

Didn't Believe in Tattling.

Marjorie, aged four, was in the library with her father, while her mother was superintending the preparation of dinner. The attention of the head of the house was attracted by a scratching sound, and he looked up to find his daughter at work with a pair of scissors on the top of a polished table. "Marjorie," he said, sternly, "go tell your mother what you've been doing." "I won't do it, papa," she said. "Do you think I'm a tattletale?"—Judge.

The Oldest Handicraft.

The toy industry is one of the oldest industries in the world. The British museum can show us a doll (with strings of mud beads for hair) and others with movable arms, with which the children of ancient Egypt played on the banks of the Nile. Jointed dolls and dolls' furniture have come down to us from the days of Greece and Rome, and we know that balls, tops and toy animals were favorite playthings at an even earlier date.

Center of British Industry.

Within two or three hours by rail and linked to the River Humber by a network of canals, live 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 people, mostly engaged in manufacturing and mining, and largely exporting their products to foreign lands and receiving from abroad the bulk of their raw material and food supplies. Seed crushing, flour milling, oil refining, and the making of paints and other goods into which these oils enter, are the special industries of Hull, England.

¶ FIRST.—A building must have 253 12-foot stories to secure enough weight to cause these brick to crush under their own weight.

¶ SECOND.—This is the practical way in which any competent architect would figure the load these brick will carry. He would allow a factor of safety of four; consequently he would specify these brick for a building SIXTY-THREE (63) Stories high. Do they build that high in your locality?

OPTOMETRIST

IS Your Child Handicapped in his or her physical and mental development by defective vision? Out of 100,000 school children examined in New York city, nearly 30 per cent. were found to be in need of glasses. In Boston the percentage was found to be slightly over 20 per cent., and most of these children were down on the books as "stupid," "stubborn" or unruly. In Philadelphia 354 children were discovered who could not read ordinary writing on a blackboard at a distance of twenty feet. You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist. That your child is not among this vast army of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight, delays often result seriously. My examinations are made by the most scientific accurate methods. If it is found that glasses are not required you will be told so frankly and no charge made for the examination.

To the Farmers and all People outside of the large cities the need of immediate help to Belgian women, children and non-combatants is evident.

You are earnestly requested now as you approach your Thanksgiving Day to send this aid at once. Above all send food or money with which food may be bought.

We suggest that a practical help would be to give wheat, rye, flour, shelled corn, beans, bacon, canned goods or other eatables that would stand transportation.

The railroads and steamboat lines terminating at Baltimore and the harbor lighterage companies have risen in a splendid way to meet this duty of the hour: they will bring to this Committee free of charge any food or clothing properly packed.

To facilitate this movement the agent at your Station will receive the same and furnish you with additional tags properly addressed that will insure its safe delivery. We plan to have a ship known as the "Maryland Ship" leave Baltimore to take your gift direct to the suffering people and place it in the hands of the needy.

Won't YOU join and help this work? Please ship your gift in accordance with the following instructions and notify the undersigned and your name will be registered and your contribution gratefully acknowledged.

Pack it firmly, mark on the package its contents, attach a tag marked "For Vivian C. Leftwich, acting Belgian Consul, Baltimore, Md., war relief donation," and deliver to your nearest railroad or steamboat station agent, and sign a release for any damage or loss of your gift in transit on the receipt given for your shipment by the railroad or steamboat agent. The Canton Company has generously offered to store Belgian supplies free of cost after their arrival in Baltimore.

Donations of money can be sent to ROBERT GARRETT, Treasurer, Garrett Bldg., Baltimore, Md. who will acknowledge them promptly.

Lesson IX.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 29, 1914

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xv, 22-37. Memory Verses, 25-27—Golden Text, Isa. liii, 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We have seen our blessed Lord in the hands of the band who arrested Him; in the hands of the religious hypocrites called chief priests and scribes and elders; in the hands of the Roman governor, who chose to please the people rather than do what he knew to be right, and now He is in the hands of the soldiers whose orders are to kill Him. They crucified the Lord of Glory (I Cor. ii, 8). They had no pity, and He could truly say, "I looked for some to take pity, but there was none, and for comforters, but I found none" (Ps. lxix, 20, 21).

Let us consider Him in the hands of the soldiers, and through it all let our hearts keep saying, "For me, all for me, that I, redeemed by His great sacrifice, might learn how to bear something for His sake and be content to be killed all the day long." See the whole band gathered about Him, clothing Him with purple, crowning Him with thorns, putting a reed in His right hand, mockingly saluting Him as king of the Jews, smiting Him and spitting upon Him.

Then they took off the purple and put His own clothing on Him and led Him out to crucify Him, and He, bearing His cross, went forth (verse 20; John xix, 17). Imagine, if you can, what it meant to have clothing roughly put on and removed from a scourged back and to have a heavy cross laid upon it. Did you ever take a piece of cloth from a wound unhealed? Then think of Him.

The story of Simon the Cyrenian compelled to bear the cross—His cross—seems to indicate that Jesus either stumbled because of weakness or fainted under His heavy load and sufferings. Simon was coming out of the country into the city, but had to turn back and bear a little for Christ's sake. When we are turned about in our plans or compelled by adverse people or circumstances to do differently from what we had intended it will help us to remember Simon and say, "Amen, O Lord."

It is recorded in Luke xxiii, 27-32, that a great company of people and of women followed Him, bewailing and lamenting Him, and that He said to the women, "Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children," and He told them of the terrible days ahead of them, which days and things in due time came upon their city. Even more terrible things such as never have been or ever will be again are awaiting this world, but few believe it (Matt. xxiv, 21; Zeph. i, 14-18; iii, 8; Isa. xiii, 9-13).

Luke also tells us in the same passage that there were two malefactors led with Him to be put to death. Thus He was numbered with transgressors (Isa. liii, 12), and we must be contented to be so numbered for His sake.

If we will let Him live His life in us we must be content to suffer with Him and to be miscalled, misjudged, misunderstood, falsely accused and in every way ill treated for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. iii, 12).

They came to the place of crucifixion, the place of a skull, called in Matthew, Mark and John "Golgotha" and in Luke "Calvary," and there they crucified Him, on either side one of the malefactors and Jesus in the midst. Never did so few words have such awful significance. The Son of God, the Holy One of Israel, treated as the vilest criminal, but it was for us He suffered, let each one say "for me," and consider, if you can, the cost of your redemption.

It was all foretold, the pierced hands and feet, the parted garments, the casting of lots and all else (Ps. xxii, Isa. liii and elsewhere). Though God foresaw it all, that did not mitigate the guilt of cruel hands (Acts ii, 23; iv, 27, 28). He was crucified at the third hour, or 9 a. m. (verse 25). The passersby railed on Him, the chief priests and scribes mocked Him, the soldiers also mocked Him and offered Him vinegar, and they that were crucified with Him reviled Him (verses 25-32; Luke xxiii, 36-38). One of the two thieves repented and went to Paradise with Him that day (Luke xxiii, 40-43).

With hands and feet nailed to the cross, without baptism or any good works, he believed, confessed Christ, and went to glory. There was darkness from the sixth hour to the ninth hour, and at that hour He died.

Then was the veil of the temple rent in twain from the top to the bottom, the earth did quake, and the rocks were rent, graves were opened, and after His resurrection many bodies of the saints arose and appeared to many in the holy city (verses 37, 38; Matt. xxvii, 51-53). These probably went with Him to glory.

Fail not to notice with much prayer His seven sayings from the cross recorded in Matt. xxvii, 46; Mark xv, 34; Luke xxiii, 34, 43, 46; John xix, 28-30. These texts do not give them in the order of utterance. The first is forgiveness, the second is glory, and the third covers all that we need while here on earth. Each of the other sayings has its message for our hearts.

BRAZIL AND ITS COLORS.

Flag Day There Has Now Become the Great National Festival.

In the republic of Brazil, where the ruling language is Portuguese and a welcoming hand is extended alike to the European and the Asiatic immigrant, great attention has been paid for some years to the cultivation of a spirit of patriotism.

The cult of the flag has become more and more ardent in the hearts of that people, and the "feast of the flag" each recurring November is celebrated with more and more pomp and enthusiasm all over the immense empire and on every Brazilian ship, wherever it may be. In a country noted for its numerous saints' days the celebration of Flag day has become the true festal day.

Commenting on this, Le Bresil Economique of Rio Janeiro says: "Our people are imaginative and simple. A flag undulating in the breeze as it passes by to the strains of martial music, that the officers salute with the sword and before which everybody uncovers, speaks more strongly to the heart of the people than any dry historic date which presents nothing in the concrete and which to the ignorant recalls nothing of significance."

The lesson of the flag is taught to all the children of the schools in Brazil, and on Flag day they gather in the public squares of the city and town and, as in the United States, sing patriotic hymns.—Indianapolis News.

COLLEGE HAZING.

It Was Called "Wrecking" In Carthage in St. Augustine's Time.

At most American colleges it is called "hazing;" at West Point it is called "crawling" and at English schools "fagging" is often applied. When St. Augustine was a boy they called it "wrecking."

In a translation of his "Confessions," for which I am indebted to a learned clerical friend, St. Augustine relates what the boys did at the University of Carthage:

"I would take no part in the wild doings of the 'wreckers,' a cruel and devilish name, which was looked upon as the stamp of the best set. I went about with them, and of some of them I made friends, yet I always disliked their ways of going on their wreckings, their wanton attacks upon the shyness of freshmen and the unprovoked affronts with which they carried on their malignant amusement. Nothing could be more like the conduct of devils, and what name could be fitter for them than 'wreckers.'"

That sounds as if the Carthage sophomore was fully as much endowed with self importance as the American sophomore. I may add that St. Augustine's criticism of "wrecking" is one more ancient proof that "boys will be boys."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Labby's Long Walk.

In "Bohemian Days in Fleet Street" is this Labouchere incident, which happened when he was in the diplomatic service and was sent on a mission to St. Petersburg:

Before starting he had a dispute with the foreign office about his expenses. The foreign office had its idea of the scale; Labouchere had his. But the office refused to reconsider its decision. Labouchere took his leave, crossed the channel and was to all appearance lost. A week after the appointed time he had not arrived at St. Petersburg. A representative of the foreign office was sent out on his trail. He was traced to Paris and from thence to Vienna, where he was run to earth. In reply to his discoverer he coolly said, "The foreign office refused to pay me my expenses, and I'm walking to St. Petersburg."

Precocity.

Little Willie is really too precocious. I met him the other day with his school bag under his arm.

"Well, well," said I, "and so you go to school now, eh?"

"Sure, Mike!" said little Willie. "Ain't I over six?"

"And do you love your teacher?" I asked.

"Aber nit!" said little Willie. "The old hen's too old for me."—Washington Star.

Adam's Apple.

The projection in the front of the throat in men, denoting the position of the thyroid cartilage, is styled "Adam's apple." It develops rapidly usually when the voice "breaks," being comparatively small in both children and women. The name arose from the tradition that when Adam attempted to swallow the apple in paradise it stuck in his throat, giving rise to the swelling since seen in all his adult male descendants.

STARVING FOR THE BREAD OF LIFE

"Blessed Are They That Hunger For Righteousness."

A Famine In the Land—Many Hearts Crying Out For God—Faint For Want of Spiritual Food—Table of Divine Provision Well Filled—Bread of Life. Water of Life—A Satisfying Portion. "Fed on the Finest of Wheat."

October 11.—For his text today Pastor Russell chose the words, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord."—Amos 8:11.

Notwithstanding the fact that during the past century Bibles have been printed and circulated by the million, said the Pastor, notwithstanding the fact that education has become so general that nearly everybody can read God's Word, nevertheless we are in the midst of the very famine specified by the Prophet. It seems almost incredible, he declared, that we should be famishing now with Bibles, when our saintly forefathers did not famish, though education was limited.

The secret lies in the fact that increasing intelligence has awakened our reasoning faculties along religious lines, and the result is the gnawing of hunger in our hearts. Our hearts and our flesh cry out for a living and true God. Realizing our own impotency, we more than ever feel our need of the Friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

Consequently many cannot find the refreshment from Scripture which their forefathers derived. Consequently the young men and the purest of heart in the world are repelled by the religion represented in the creeds of all denominations. They are hungry for the Truth, thirsty for the refreshment which they need. Intellectually many are wandering from sea to sea, desiring the Bread and the Water of Life, as our context pictures.

Scanning the creeds of all denominations, they find these practically alike as respects theories of eternal reprobation and damnation for all except the Elect. They even look to the heathen, and examine the Theosophy of India, the Buddhism of Japan and the Confucianism of China, seeking some satisfying portion of Truth.

In some respects they are like the prodigal son—far from home. They perceive the swinish content with the husks of business, money, pleasure and politics, but cannot satisfy their spiritual longings with these husks. They are thought peculiar because of their interest in spiritual things.

The Bread and the Water of Life.

Next was demonstrated that there is a famine in every denomination the world over. No one thinks of looking to the Bible for refreshment and strength. Higher Critics have branded it unreliable. Professors in all the great universities reprobate it and openly laugh at the thought of finding there either bread for the hungry or water for the thirsty.

Hungry hearts must learn, however, that there is only one satisfying portion under the sun—the living God, who has sent Jesus Christ to be the Bread of Life for mankind and His Message of grace to be the Water of Life. It is ours to call the attention of this hungry class to the Great Teacher who said, "My flesh is food indeed, and My blood is drink indeed; except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you." But scarcely will the intelligent of our day hearken to these words, so prejudiced are the minds by the fallacies which becloud their understanding. They neither see nor understand the goodness of God.

Conditions today are much the same as in Israel at the time of our Lord's First Advent. The Master's explanation is applicable now. He said, "Ye make the Law of God void through your traditions"—"the traditions of the elders." The traditions handed down from our forefathers really make meaningless the Message of God's Wisdom and Love sent us through our Lord, the Apostles and the Prophets. Those who still hold tenaciously to the creeds of the past are thoroughly blinded to the true teachings of God's Word; while, alas! the majority of independent thinkers, in rejecting the dogmas of the past, have rejected the Bible also, believing that the creeds truthfully represent the Word of God.

God's Word a Satisfying Portion.

The Pastor declared that it is this truth-hungry class that he addresses. He knows from experience their heart-longings, and the satisfaction which they crave he has received. In harmony with the Master's instructions, he aims to "bind up the broken-hearted, to comfort those that mourn."

As the Master gave His time to the instruction of the people in the doctrines of God's Word, so His faithful followers should not teach the precepts of men, but the Scriptures. Nevertheless, they must expect that the modern Scribes and Pharisees will grieve that they teach the people, even as during the First Advent the religious teachers opposed the Master.

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1914.

THIS IS THE DAY OF THANKSGIVING.

Throughout the United States this day is observed as a day of National Thanksgiving. The citizens of this Republic will assemble in their respective places of worship for services of praise and thanksgiving. Addresses and sermons appropriate for the occasion will be delivered. Songs of thanksgiving and praise will rise heavenward. It will be a day of unusual thoughtfulness and devotion.

As the people of this wonderful country of ours, this land of the free and home of the brave, this nation wonderfully and gloriously blessed by the Almighty, meet together and consider the unnumbered and manifold blessing we enjoy, as they think of the awful war of slaughter, pain and suffering in the Old World, of the misery, poverty and destruction those people are passing through, their hearts will be filled with pity.

We are in a land of peace and plenty. God has dealt bountifully toward us. "Surely godness and mercy has followed us" throughout the year just ended.

Our neighbors on the north—Canada—are in the midst of sorrow and loss. Many are the sad homes with them. Our neighbors in the south—Mexico—have passed through a year of strife, ruin and bloodshed. Their country is torn up with rebellion and crime.

From all this we have been delivered. From our bounty we have been able to a certain degree to help the needy and relieve the suffering.

We of Garrett county have just reasons to observe this day.

The year just closed has been crowded with blessings. Peace, happiness and comfort is ours. "In basket and in store," have we been blessed. All over Garrett county are seen rich indications of God's mercies and goodness.

Our condition in every respect, is better today than it was one year ago. The year just closed has been a remarkable one. Pause, for a few moments, and take a look into the past twelve months. See what the months have brought to us. They were full of promise and good cheer.

The glorious local option victory of November third will call forth songs of praise and hearty thanksgiving. Not only for the closing of the dram shop, but also for the magnificent vote cast for local option and the small vote for license.

Thanks be unto God, after April 21, 1915, Garrett county is to be free from the sale of intoxicants, and the saloon and all the evil influences connected with it, and that by the decision of over 75 per cent of the voting population.

Thank God for that kind of citizenship, It means much for the future history of this growing, prosperous county. It is marvelous. Less than 510 voters in the county who favored licensed saloons. This is a splendid showing. We fell proud of it. It speaks of a growing, healthy, honest, sober citizenship.

To-day from the abundance bestowed upon us by the giver of all good gifts, we shall sit down at well filled tables and enjoy the rich things produced on our farms and be thankful.

IT is said that "there are two sides to every question." This is true of the European war. The United States is selling to these warring nations millions of dollars of supplies. On the other hand our people are giving millions of dollars as gifts to help those starving because of the fearful destruction of life and property. From America come the munitions for prolonging the war and increasing the suffering, and also the food and other help which is to lesson the hardships. A rather peculiar condition of affairs.

THE Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, in session at Atlanta, Ga., has passed resolutions pledging the membership "to make national prohibition an accomplished fact." From the committee on resolutions a protest was submitted "against the recent Congressional legislation which provides for raising a part of the war tax from alcoholic liquors and tobacco." The convention declared "that the ballot for women is just and right, and the recent elections have proven it a weapon against the liquor traffic."

THESE are the turkeys last sad day.

OLD Glory has not been saluted either at Vera Cruz or Smyrna.

MEXICO has three capitals. All of them liable to be moven on the slightest pressure.

RECOMMEND THE REPUBLICAN to your neighbors and be a Garrett county booster.

JUST as we surmised, peace in Mexico is like Finnegan, "off again, on agin, gone agin."

FIVE months more until Accident district will be rid of the whiskey seller and his ruinous business.

THE Republican State Chairman in his report shows that the committee received for the campaign $6,840.23 and spent $6,773.65.

WHEN Congress convenes next month the statesmen will introduce another $40,000,000 pork bill. Hope it develops hog cholera and is killed.

"IN again, out again, on again, off again." This is Secretary Bryan's skit, otherwise known as "How to hold a job without filling it." Now it's off again—to Florida.

SECRETARY of the Navy Daniels has issued an official ukase declaring that it shall be spelled dreadnaught, and not "nought." And thus is the efficiency of our navy improved and strengthened.

IT is peculiar that a man who owns a bunch of cattle will go out to look at them every few days, but not once during the whole year will you catch him at the school house where his children are getting their education.

THE Democratic State Central Committee of Maryland received for the past campaign $12,583,88. Their expenses amounted to $11,618,08, leaving a balance of $967.72 in the treasury. The treasury is in debt $5,940,19 for previous campaigns.

THE public debt statement issued on the 18th inst. shows a deficit in the Treasury for this fiscal year amounting to nearly $53,000,000 against a deficit last year of $4,568,229 exclusive of Panama Canal and public debt transactions. There's a reason.

IT is rather a coincidence that, just before Thanksgiving, Turkey should be apparently trying to get into trouble with Uncle Sam. The shade of many a proud gobbler reared in this country could warn the Sultan that this is a good time of the year to keep quiet and roost high.

THE estimated cost of the war in Europe is in excess of forty million dollars a day, exclusive of the value of the property destroyed and the lives sacrificed. The expense is $280,000,000 a week or one billion, two hundred million a month. These figures are beyond human comprehension. Future generations will have to bear the burden of the debt growing out of this war.

NOT only on Thanksgiving Day, but on each day in the year, as it slips silently by toward oblivion, the people of this nation should raise their faces toward the open sky and let the life-giving glow of gratitude for benefits received reinvigorate their purpose. What other land on all the compass of this little planet is so blessed as our United States? Democracy, Peace, Opportunity, they are our handmaidens.

GOOD roads tend to make better men and women, and while they add to the natural wealth of communities, make homes happier and lands more valuable, for which reason alone encouragement should be given to the construction of good roads, the influence of such improvements from the other point of view should be as persuasive as that which is purely material, an influence wrought through the medium of dollars and cents.

IN filing the accounts of his expenses as required under the corrupt practices act, Hervey E. Miller, of Cleveland, Progressive candidate for Congress, indulged in a soliloquy. After saying he had expended $83.75, Miller reported: "I received large quantities of advice of no practical value, many pledges of support (uncollectible), generous donations of criticism from enemies and good wishes from friends. No promises made except never to do it again. I'm cured."

WOULD you like to make this Christmas just a little different—and a little better—than all of the others past? Would you like to feel just a little better satisfied with yourself? Figure up about the amount of money you expect to spend, and then send a check for about one-tenth or one-twentieth of the amount to your church treasurer. If every person in town did that it would save the ministers a good deal of pleading for funds. Of course the suggestion is rather startling, but it would be quite in keeping with the Christmas spirit.

PITTSBURGH has set aside $80,000 for public improvements, just to give the unemployed of that city work. Yet the Democratic papers insist that "business is booming."

WITH really good apples selling for 15 cents a peck, the housekeeper should more than ever be interested in apples and should serve them often to her family. The old saying about an "apple a day keeps the doctor away" is only one reason for eating apples, and, when all the good qualities of this fruit are taken into account, it is surprising that it should have stired up so much trouble in the Garden of Eden.

BUSINESS COMES THROUGH JUDICIOUS ADVERTISING.

There is a story about a colored head of the family who wanted a turkey for Thanksgiving. It is said he prayed for weeks to the Lord, to send him a turkey. No turkey came. Thanksgiving day came and at that home there was a fat turkey, well dressed on the table. The colored parson was there. The head of the house related his experience as above and said, "I quit asking for a turkey, but prayed the Lord to send me after it, and there is the turkey."

The moral of this yarn is, if you want business you must go after it. Suppose Montgomery Ward &Co., Sears, Roebuck & Co., and other great merchants, just watched and waited for customers, what would be the result? Small sales, a limited business.

They go after business everywhere. right into the homes of the people scattered all over the United States. They send out great catalogues, small leaflets, etc. They interest the public and sell millions of dollars worth of goods. They are advertisers.

There are merchants in Oakland who seldom ever advertise their business. Who are Oakland's successsul business men? The answer is, the men who advertise. Dixon & Kelso are large advertisers. They change their advertisement every week or two. They use THE REPUBLICAN to tell the farmers about their turkey proposition. Result, Saturday they purchased four thousand pounds of dressed turkeys and shipped twenty sugar barrels of turkeys. Take notice they sold twenty barrels of sugar as indicated by the empty barrels.

In one mail there went from Oakland to one of these Chicago houses 36 letters. Why? Because that house advertised their business. Dixon & Kelso advertised for turkeys and several thousand pounds of turkeys were brought to their store. They advertised for potatoes, and shipped thousands of bushels.

The holiday season is here. Oakland merchants will have large stocks of toys and holiday goods. Will the merchants be wise and advertise? or will he watch and wait, while the public write to Baltimore, Cumberland. Piedmont and elsewhere for their purchases and send their money out of the county?

THE REPUBLICAN is an advertising medium, producing results. It circulates all over the county. It enters the homes of the people. This statement is backed up by facts. Take our advice and begin your advertising at once.

Why Garrett County is Thankful.

Among the things we have not, for which we are duly thankful, I might mention: 1. That we are not obliged to spend our days and nights in underground trenches, liable at any time to have our very lives snuffed out by an enemy's shell; 2. That the foot-and-mouth disease has not yet reached our live stock in Rural Garrett county; 3. That our mothers, sisters, sweethearts and wives are not of the high-falutin variety who, like "social butterflies," are constantly changing their colors and squandering their time and money playing bridge whist, attending poodle parties, etc.; 4. That we do not have to worry about paying taxes on our incomes,

Today being Thanksgiving, it might be well to cogitate upon some of the things for which we should be thankful. To handle the subject parson-like—firstly, I shall refer to the things we have; and secondly, to the things we have not. Exceptin' those who are ailing, we have good health, which is the greatest blessing of all. We are thankful that we have a hankering after three square meals a day and plenty of plain, wholesome food to subdue the hankering—buckwheat cakes and sausage at sunrise and mush and milk at sunset. We are thankful that we can find plenty of outdoor exercise without playing football or golf—such as stirring apple butter, flaying buckwheat, husking corn, sawing wood, shooting quail and trapping jack rabbits. We are thankful for Jack Frost in the morning and for the open fire-place in the evening; for the belligerent notes of the turkey-gobbler during the day and the doleful hoots of the booby-owl during the night. We are thankful for the rosy-cheeked boys and girls and for the long wintry evenings for them to make merry in. In short, we are thankful for all we have that makes it worth while to live here below. That we live in Garrett county and that on and after May first next, local option will prevail over the county.

FARMER'S INSTITUTES.

Sessions To Be Held at Four Points In the County.

During the past four seasons Farmer's Institutes have been held in this county in June, but now they are to be tried the week of November 30th.

A program covering prevailing farming conditions and crops grown in Garrett county has been arranged with some care after consultation with farmers in the several sections and should be profitable. Dr. Richard S. Hill, the director, will have as his assistant Mr. Lowell Rodebush, of Ohio, a successful dairyman, corn grower and general farm improver. Mr. Rodebush has done successful institute work in several States and was in Maryland for three weeks last year At the evening sessions he gives a most instructive and entertaining lecture on "Uncle Sams' Land of the Midnight Sun," including many reminisicenses of a trip to Alaska, the life of the Eskimo and finishing up with a most vivid account of a shipwreck from which he was the only survivor.

Mr. Oswold is a most successful apple, peach and poultry grower of Washington county and will discuss the commercial and home orchard, marketing and canning.

Farmers are now well up with their fall work and should attend these meetings with their families. Following are the places and dates: Grantsville, Monday, Nov. 30th; Bittinger, Tuesday, Dec. 1st; Oakland, Wednesday, Dec. 2nd; Accident, Thursday, Dec. 3rd. Sessions 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m., with night meetings also at Oakland and Grantsville. Program, Soil, Fertility, Lime, Dairying, Corn, Pasture and Hay, Fruit and Poultry.

Garrett County's Opportunity.

The State of Maine has made for itself a profitable reputation as a seed potato raising country. Enormous crops of potatoes are raised and marketed in the Southern States, especially on the Eastern shore of Maryland. One large Seed House in Baltimore has a potato farm in Maine.

It has been demonstrated by the State Agriculture College that the Garrett county production of the same seed potato,—The Irish Cobbler, the Green Mountain as is raised in Maine—is better adopted for planting on the Eastern Shore and elsewhere in the South.

This being the case the farmers of Garrett county ought to produce the seed potato for this market?

The difference in transportation would add largely to the profit of our farmers. Would it not be wise for the farmers in the specially tested portions of this county to specialize on the potatoes spoken of in this article?

The potato would have to be raised in large quantities so as to fill orders for car load lots. There is no question about the market. Produce the potatoes and buyers will flock to Garrett county to buy them.

Mr. Farmer, think this matter over carefully. Make yourself an expert potato raiser. Produce a marketable seed potato. It is a cash proposition. Taking the pay out in goods at the stores is not in the proposition. You can deal directly with the planter. Secure your customers and they are yours as long as you produce a good seed potato.

THE REPUBLICAN would like to see the experiment made by some of the Ryans Glade farmers. Their test as reported by the Agricultural College, was good and pronounced equal to the Maine seed potatoes; yes and more profitable for the planter who purchased them. The Steiding report was also excellent.

The Republican throws out these suggestions for the purpose of getting the Garrett county farmers to thinking on this subject, believeing that it is Garrett county's opportunity to build up a profitable business and make Garrett county famous as a seed potato growing county. Who will take the lead in this matter?

We repeat that it has been found that seed potatoes grown here when planted in the counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland by the side of Maine grown seed, produced a 20 per cent larger yield. This fact was discovered and established by the Maryland State Agriculture Department after a three years test.

The Eastern Shore counties, which grow train loads of potatoes for the table, cannot, on account of their climate, grow their own seed. They have been using Maine grown seed, but since the above mentioned fact was established last year, they are eagor to get Allegany and Garrett seed; but they want pure, not mixed seed. The varities they use, more than all others combined, are the Irish Cobbler for early, and the Green Mountain for late.

GIVE THANKS.

Uncle Sam held a national prayer meeting recently,
Fine.
Now comes Thanksgiving day,
We've much to be thankful for in
This great and glorious land.
Bountiful crops
Reasonable prosperity,
Nation wide health and happiness,
And above all,
Peace—
Peace with all the world—and
All the world at war
Surely the great American heart
Has cause to swell with joy and Thankfulness
Tempered with sorrow for those in
Alien lands as we look across the sea.
Never more reason for every Man, Woman and Child in America
To give thanks.
If we had nothing else
Peace would be enough.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

William Seebold and family, who have made their home at Fairmont, W. Va., for the past few years, have moved back to their farm near this place and will once more become citizens of Garrett county. We are glad to have them back again.

Miss Ruth Rudisill left here Saturday for a visit at the home of her brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rudisill, in New York.

Invitations have been received here to the marriage ceremony of Miss Adelaid Armstrong to Dr. Robert Hamilton Divine, Saturday morning, Nov. 28, 1914, at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Baltimore. The happy couple will be at home after January 15, 1915, at Wahpeton, North Dakota.

Mrs. Robert H. Kneass has completed the improvements to her cozy bungalaw and returned to her Baltimore home.

Rumor says that Hotel Dennet has been sold to a New York City gentleman, who will make a number of repairs on the building.

The ruinons effect of setting fire to leaves and letting it run along the fine oak trees is seen, by the number of trees that have fallen during the past few wind storms, on the auditoruim grounds, all of which show the effects of fire. If the ground must be burnt over the leaves should be raked away from the trees,

The store keepers last week offered ten cents per pound for live chickens, and that in trade. No wonder the farmers are carrying their produce to other markets or are shipping it to commission merchants, and buying from Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Emory Freeland has been spending some time at Albright, W. Va.

Alex Zeck, (one of our summer citizens,) of Grafton, W. Va., has patented a hot water heating system, and it is one of the most complete systems on the market today. Each radiator is heated by gas and after heating the thermostat at the degree of heat desired it will automatically adjust it. Another advantage is that heat can be had when desired and can be cut off in other parts of the home.

Dr. Robert J. Burdette, preacher, author and humorist, died at his home at Pasadena, Cal., on Thursday, November 19. He had been ill for the greater part of two years, and for the past week had been in a state of coma. Mr. Burdette lectured at the Park years ago.

Wednesday Loch Lynn had a hog butchering day and killed 12 hogs, weighing when dressed about 2200 pounds.

Lester Yutzy attended a shooting match at Deer Park Saturday. There were 12 turkeys to be shot for. Lester picked up five of them. You ought to hear him gobble, gobble, as he walks along the street.

JENNINGS.

The weather this fall was very dry until Sunday November 15, when a nice rain came. It made the ground wet so the farmers could do some more plowing. It also raised the river at Jennings so the people could hardly get across. Two men tried to cross the south branch of the Casselman and when half-way across one of them fell off the swinging bridge. The other one tried to help him out and he fell in too. Just then a young man came along and got them out of the water. Then Bruce Yommer got his horse and buggy and took them home. Apple juice was the cause of their falling into the water.

Recently fire broke out in the old slashing near Jennings and came very near getting to the town, but by lots of help it was got under control and it didn't hurt anything.

Lot Sheets butchered some fine hogs during the recent cold snap.

Harry Patton and Herman Wilhelm went to house keeping in Jennings. They are going to take in boarders.

The Lutherans are going to have a big time in church on Christmas. They are practicing for it already.

The Epworth League of the M. E. church is coming along very nicely.

There will be revival services in the M. E. church next week, held by Rev. Kirkpatrick.

Simon Durst butchered a hog that was too big to scald.

Jennings Bros. are only running eight hours a day now, as they are pretty well filled up with lumber, but will change soon to ten hours a day again, if nothing happens.

BITTINGER.

There is no demand for turkeys, much to the farmers' regret, but that fowl ought to rejoice and be grateful and a real Thanksgiving bird.

The officers and pupils of the Lutheran Sunday school are planning to hold an appropriate Christmas service at the holiday season.

A four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bittinger, of the Bear Hill settlement, died early last week, and was buried at the Bowser church on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

John H. Stark is arranging to have a gasoline lighting plant installed in his home.

The "Rev." J. Ed. He combines the Republicans, Progressives, Prohibition and Socialist vote and only figures out a small majority for the Democratic ticket. The Rev. Ed. has wheels in his head and as a juggler of politics, relizion and figures, we freely admit that we are not in his class. J. Ed. Was all right until he got out of bed backwards one Friday morning on the 13th of the month and a "brainstorm" struck and he became a follower of both idols and idlers and a party with the Millennium as the referendum. —Randolph Enterprise.

LooKing Ahead One Year.

Now is the time to think about the fair for next fall. Garrett county has had two splendid fairs. They were magnificient exhibits of the farm and home. Those in attendance, who had been visiting fairs and farm exhibits, were astonished at the showing made. We were astonished ourselves and delighted over the results.

The two fairs held were of incalculable value to the farmer. Seeing is believing. The accomplishment of their fellow farmer begat a desire to do as well, if not better than their neighbor did, hence there was an improvement in the production of the farmer.

The fair attracted buyers who wanted produce. One man came here seeking ten car loads of potatoes. Other buyers were here for less quantities. An exhibit of honey secured orders for several hundred pounds.

Good farming pays. The best product always has a market. We know a farmer in District No. 8 who sold his potato crop, part of it at $1 per bushel, the balance at 80 cents a bushel and all of it for cash. He was on his job. He found a market and dealt direct with the consumer and sold all the potatoes he did not need. This farmer was an exhibitor at the fair, he attended the fair, he closely looked over the exhibits. He was a student seeking knowledge. He was a prize winner.

The fair of 1915 ought to be a record breaker. A fair of big things, of the best that Garrett county soil can produce. This means care, thought and labor. Now is the time to plan for it, to make preparations.

A New Amusement For Farmers.

A new kind of farm activity has come into being and it bids fair to push the big times of threshing meetings into the discard. It is the picnic of filling the silo. The silo cutter and its attendants takes several men and already we see how our neighborly farmers will in a few years be trading work in silo filling, while the farm wives will each conspire to build dinners that will last pleasantly in the memories of the silo men. Such filling is going to fit into that play spell time of the farmer that comes after harvest and afore corn shuckin.

Mouth and Foot Disease.

What the disease means to those countries where it has gained a real grip is shown by the fact that on its last serious outbreak in Germany the German Government spent $2,000,000 in fighting it. In 1890 official statistics showed that in the German Empire 431,235 head of cattle, 230,868 sheep and goats and 153,808 swine were affected with the disease. During the same year the pestilence ravaged live stock in France, Italy, Belgium, Austria-Hungary, Switzerland, Roumania and Bulgaria. In 1883 it was estimated that the disease cost England $5,000,000. On the occasion of the last outbreak in the United States in 1908 $300,000 was appropriated by Congress, and with the exception of a few hundred dollars it was spent in stamping out the disease. This of course does not include the indirect loss caused by the interruption of business and other factors.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

The fire records for the past five years show that fire originated from several causes, chief of which are the railroads and logging engines, which were responsible for half of the fires in which the origin was known, followed by those of incendiary origin, brush burning and hunters.

The most alarming item in these reports is the large number of incendiary fires. During the spring of 1911, twenty-seven forest fires occurred in the county within three weeks, and of this number eleven were reported as having been intentionally set to burn off the young forest growth in order to improve the range for cattle and sheep. The present law permits the owners of cattle and sheep to run their stock at large, all unfenced lands being considered open range, and hence there is the incentive on the part of those who own stock and but little, if any, forest land to burn off the forest cover to promote a growth of grass. The forest law provides a penalty of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both, for any one convicted of setting out fires, and although at this time there were strong suspicions and a special investigation by the Grand Jury, direct evidence was lacking and no convictions were obtained. Garrett is the only county in the State which allows stock to run at large and it is a question for the people to determine whether they will permit conditions that in this case allowed 30,000 acres of woodland to be burned over at a loss of over $100,000 for a few hundred dollars' worth of free grazing, or whether they will make each stock owner take care of his own stock, and thus remove the incentive to burn the forest such as exists at the present time.

Forest fires are in most cases the result of somebody's carelessness, or intent to burn, and when the people generally understand the damage caused by these fires, they are likely to be much more fewer fires as a result. Frequently fires are severe enough to kill all of the standing trees, in which case the loss is fully apparant, but in most cases the fires do not kill the large merchantable timber, yet the loss is nevertheless severe. The average fire as it goes through the woodland burns the seed and the young seedlings that nature has provided for the perpetuation of the forest. It also burns through the bark of the smaller trees, making scars which furnish the entrance to wood destroying diseases that seriously injure the tree, or kill it eventually. While this stunts the trees, they will continue to grow, but never produce a high grade of material. In fact, a forest fire that only partially kills the tree does much more damage than is supposed, for it practically destroyes the hope of a good crop of timber, and these damaged trees prevent anything of more value from taking their places. Then, too, the soil is impoverished. The leaf litter and humus of the soil are completely destroyed, thereby taking away the natural protection which conserves the moisture and at the same time adds fertility, keeping the soil in a good condition. Where forests are frequently burned over and the leaf litter destroyed, the soil drys out and the trees will be short and scrubby. These facts can be demonstrated in nearly all places in the county where fires have been frequent. Nearly all of the present wooded area of the county will continue in woodland, and would now be twice as productive, if fires had not been allowed to burn over these lands in the past. It is safe to say that the loss in production in the woodlands of the county from forest fires in the past 50 years is equivalent to 10,000 feet of timber per acre on the repeatedly burned lands, comprising not less than 50,000 acres. The stumpage value alone of timber destroyed by fire on a basis of $2.50 per thousand feet amounts to $1,250,000. Since every thousand feet of standing timber that is converted into lumber pays $7.00 in wages, this means a loss in revenue to the wage-earners of the county of $3,500,000. Fires have been so frequent and so many have been of an incendiary ornin, that there is a feeling of helplessness on the part of most of the land owners. They are regarded by many as inevitable, and in consequence the owners of woodland, instead of managing them for successive crops, and feeling that they can be made a source of permanent income, feel that the only thing to do is to cut and utilize the timber as quickly as possible without running the risk of fire loss any longer than necessary. Since the forest resources of the county are so very important, this policy of forest destruction is a serious handicap to the continued prosperity of the county and means a great loss in revenue from forest lands. The forest owners cannot be wholly blamed for this attitude, since it is the fire risk that creates it.

Under the provisions of the forest law, Forest Wardens were appointed in the county in 1908, and the number has been increased from time to time as suitable men could be found. The present fire protection force consists of sixteen Wardens and four Watchmen at lookout stations. It is the duty of the Forest Wardens to attend to forest fires, for which they are authorized to employ assistants, and they are invested with full authority to deal with the question of forest fires. Five of these Wardens are employed as Patrolmen during the dangerous season. These men are mounted on horseback and travel over the county looking out for forest fires and any violations of the forest law. They are paid out of a fund furnished by the Federal Government in co-operation with the State in protecting the watersheds of navigable streams. Four lookout stations are maintained in the county, one at Table Rock, another on Meadow Mountain, another near Swallow Falls, and the fourth north of Sang Run. These stations have telephone connections with all parts of the county, and when the watchman observes a fire, he reports it immediately to the Forest Warden nearest the point where the fire is burning. The Forest Warden then gets together a force of men sufficient to control the fire.

Garrett County has more Forest Wardens and a stronger fire protection organization than any other county of the State, and a close co-operation of the land owners with the Forest Wardens should bring about greatly improved conditions. It is realized that with the best forest law protection that can be secured, without the co-operation and support of the people, the results will be far short of what could be done under favorable conditions. It is gratifying to see a marked improvement from year to year in the better co-operation secured and a more earnest desire to reduce this enormous and un-necessary damage from forest fires.

Under the forest laws the land owner, upon whose land a fire may be burning, is required to do what he can with the help of the men at his disposal to stop the fire. This is done for his own protection and at his own expense. The Forest Warden as soon as he sees the fire, or it is reported to him, investigates, and if other assistance is needed he secures additional help, which is paid by the State and county jointly. Any one who allows a fire to escape from his land to adjoining land is liable for the damage caused and for the cost of extinguishing the fire.

In handling forest fires the first essential to success is promptness. When a fire is attacked soon after it starts one man can generally control it in a short time, but if allowed to get under considerable headway it may baffle the combined effort of many men for some time, causing a large amount of damage. As soon as a fire is found that cannot be promptly controlled by the owner of the land, the local Forest Warden should be notified, but in the meantime every effort should be made to check it with the help at hand.

What You May Expect In Garrett County.

The grand jury for Talbot county, this State, after having been in session for two days, the shortest session record for 30 years, investigating 19 cases and finding eight presentments came into court and was discharged.

In its report the grand jury attributed the short session to the anti-shipping law, as under it there was no violation of the local option law brought before it, a thing that has never been known since the local option law was passed in 1875.

RUSSIANS CHECK GERMAN ADVANCE

Slavs Claim That Tide of Battle Has Turned

VON HINDENBURG IS WARY

German General Not Likely to Be Fooled Again into Going Ahead Too Swiftly—Germans Make Vigorous Attack in Northeastern France at Verdun—Only Artillery Firing In Flanders on Account of Weather.

London, Nov. 24.—The battle which is being fought in Poland appears to have turned in favor of the Russians.

In fact, a special dispatch from Petrograd says that the Russian army already has won a decisive victory. While this may be an exaggeration both the Russian and the German official reports suggest that General von Hindenburg's second thrust at Warsaw has been checked.

The unofficial news is that the Russians defeated the Germans at Kutno, between the Warthe and the Vistula and twenty-five miles northwest of Lowicz, and captured 12,000 and that the Russians have taken Gumbinnen in East Prussia, a town which had been a difficult obstacle in the advance toward Insterburg.

The German general staff announced that the appearance of Russian reinforcements in Poland is postponing the decision of the battle in that region.

This statement is taken to mean that the Russians are employing tactics similar to the stroke which turned the Germans back from Warsaw on Oct. 18—suddenly striking with a large body of fresh troops which had been massed and held ready for the emergency.

This strategy has been characteristic of Russian operations since the beginning of the war. Russian retreats have seldom been profitable to their opponents.

A hint that the Russian withdrawal toward Warsaw was not indicative of weakness was contained in earlier dispatches, which stated that Petrograd was not at all apprehensive. It is concluded here that the newspapers of Petrograd had an inkling of the plans of the Grand Duke Nicholas and were aware that fresh troops were concentrated for use against the German advance.

Heavy Attacks In Argonne Region.

Paris, Nov. 24.—For two days the Germans have delivered heavy infantry attacks in the Argonne region in northeastern France.

The French government claims in its official report that all of the German attacks there were repulsed.

It would appear from the official reports that a new crisis has developed at the east of the line. It is assumed here that the Germans have reinforced their troops operating in the Argonne and have commenced a determined campaign to advance siege guns within range of the Verdun forts. The latest news is that the force in the Argonne is commanded by the crown prince.

Several factors account for the new attack in this region. The failure to make progress in Flanders, the necessity of weakening the allies' strength at the west end of the line, the peril of the advanced German position at St. Mihiel on the Meuse and the progress of the French offensive in Alsace account, supposedly, for the violent onslaughts north of Verdun.

In Belgium and northern France the battle seems to have settled down to a constant and destructive cannonading, the Germans centering their bombardment on Ypres and nearby villages on positions northeast of Soissons and on Rheims in the east center of the line.

Weather conditions and floods prevent extensive movements by infantry. It seems apparent from the official reports that neither side has obtained any important advantage, although the Germans are slowly ruining the town of Ypres.

It is unofficially reported that the Germans are rushing reinforcements to Belgium, getting ready apparently for another heavy assault when weather conditions become favorable. It is said that they are fortifying the coast with immense energy; that they are assembling submarines at Zeebrugge; that the manufacture of Zeppelins is being hurried, and that there are signs that the German fleet is getting ready to leave its bases—all reports pointing to a German plan to attack England.

Cost Palmer $2,556.17.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 24.—Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer filed his expense account for his campaign for United States senator, showing that he had expended $2,556.17 and had received $1,715. The account of the Personal Liberty party finance committee was filed by George W. Allen of Pittsburgh showing $725.22 contributed by the German-American alliance. The expenditures amounted to the same.

Germans Maintain Base Off Chile.

Lima, Nov. 24.—It is declared here on what would appear to be good authority that the Germans have been maintaining what is described as a naval station outside of Valparaiso, Chile.

GENERAL VON HEERINGEN.

BRITISH FLEET DRIVEN OFF

Naval Guns Had No Effect, Says Berlin Dispatch.

Berlin (By Wireless to London) Nov. 24.—The official communication issued by the German general army headquarters says:

"Fighting continues at Nieuport and at Ypres. A small British squadron twice approached the coast, but was driven off by our artillery. The British naval guns had no effect.

"In the forest of the Argonne we are gaining ground step by step, one trench after another, and one point of support after another being wrested from the French and a number of prisoners being taken daily.

"A violent reconnoitering expedition against our position on the east of the Moselle river was made ineffective by our counter attack."

Official reports given out in Constantinople and reaching Berlin relate the continued successful Turkish advance upon Batum, the Russian port on the Black sea. All the territory between the Turko-Russian border and the river Chursk is in Turkish hands while a Turkish force in the southern part of this territory has taken Artwin. The Turks declare that the English losses at Shatt-el-Arab amounted to 750 dead and several thousand wounded.

The report is reiterated that the Turks have reached the Suez canal at El Kantara after defeating the English in a sanguinary engagement at a point about eighteen miles to the eastward of the canal. The English fled, leaving many dead.

LONDON PACT FALLS

United States Withdraws Suggestion For Set of War Rules.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The complete breakdown of the declaration of London as a system of rules of naval warfare to govern in the present war became known here with the announcement that the United States government has withdrawn its suggestion that the London declaration be the guide for the procedure of belligerents in the war.

The United States government has served notice on all belligerents that as far as it is concerned it will stand on its rights under the established principles of international law.

This policy is already in force in connection with the numerous maritime questions growing out of the war which have been the subject of discussion with Great Britain.

The reason given by the United States for this position was that some belligerents in this war did not care to ratify the convention without substantial amendments. This proposed modification in the rules of the declaration of London, which were accepted in full by the United States, were of such vital importance that it was regarded as impossible and impolitic to attempt to base the position of the United States in any controversies which might arise with belligerents on the London convention.

Oil Well Shooter Vanishes.

Corry, Pa., Nov. 24.—Ralph Pubbs, aged thirty-three, an oil well shooter, was filling a wagon with nitroglycerin near Titusville when it let go. Searchers found not a vestige of man, horses or wagon when they reached a hole ten feet in depth torn in the earth.

TWO GERMAN VESSELS SUNK

Torpedo Boat Destroyer In Accidental Collision

ENEMY DESTROYS SUBMARINE

Danish Steamer Crashes Into Destroyer, Causing Boilers to Explode; All the Crew Saved—English Warship Patroling North of Scotland Coast Drives Into Submarine and Latter Sinks; Only One of Crew Drowns.

London, Nov. 24.—The Germans have suffered the further loss of a torpedo boat destroyer and a submarine.

It was unfortunate for the destroyer that the Danish steamer Anglo-Dane should crash into her accidentally. The war craft sank when her boiler exploded.

The submarine went down off the north coast of Scotland when a British destroyer on patrol duty discovered the enemy and destroyed her.

The destruction of the submarine U-18, one of the newer and most effective types, is officially reported by the admiralty. There is an indication that the U-18 was at least 500 miles from her base at Wilhelmshaven and was searching for the British fleet.

The official statement says that the German submarine was detected off the north coast of Scotland and was rammed by a patrol vessel of the British fleet. The submarine foundered an hour after she had been rammed and one of the crew was drowned. The destroyer Barry rescued and took prisoners three officers and twenty-three men of the crew.

A cruising radius of twenty miles made it possible for the U-18 to make the north coast of Scotland in the newest attempt to "whittle down" the British fleet. The craft had a displacement of 750 tons and was good for nineteen knots on the surface and eight knots when submerged and carried four torpedo tubes. She was finished in 1912.

The news of the loss of the German destroyer S-124 was received in Copenhagen when the steamer Anglo-Dane made port. Her commander reported that south of the entrance to the sound the Anglo-Dane collided with the S-124.

The stem of the Danish steamer split the destroyer between her funnels and immediately the destroyer's boiler blew up. As the S-124 sank the officers and crew were saved by the boats of the Anglo-Dane, but three of the destroyer's crew were injured by the boiler explosion.

PROBE OF PATRICK PARDON

District Attorney Whitman Is Conducting an Investigation.

New York, Nov. 24.—District Attorney Whitman began an investigation of the granting of a pardon on Nov. 27, 1912, by Governor John A. Dix to Albert T. Patrick, serving a life sentence at Sing Sing for the murder of William Marsh Rice.

The investigation was begun after two affidavits had been filed with the district attorney concerning published statements to the effect that Joseph Walker, Jr., a Wall street broker, had offered to obtain Patrick's pardon if John T. Milliken of St. Louis, Patrick's brother-in-law, would join him in a mining deal.

Inasmuch as the statute of limitations would become operative within three days, Assistant District Attorney Delehanty, who was placed in charge of the investigation, was instructed to use all possible expedition.

Former Governor Dix, who is in this city, said that he had pardoned Patrick solely for the sake of Patrick's children.

SIEGEL FOUND GUILTY

Must Serve Ten Months Unless He Tries to Pay Back Money.

Geneseo, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The jury which has heard the testimony in Henry Siegel's trial for grand larceny found him guilty of a misdemeanor.

Justice Clarke sentenced him to pay a fine of $1,000 and to serve ten months in the penitentiary, but the judgment as far as the prison term is concerned is to be stayed until the second Monday in June, when Siegel is to appear here before Judge Clarke. If an effort has been made by that time to pay back the depositors in the Siegel bank the court will consider that fact; if not he is to serve the prison term as the court determined.

New Procedure For Naturalization.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 24.—Instead of familiarizing themselves with the constitution and memorizing the names of the president's cabinet, candidates for citizenship in this district hereafter will go through a regular course at Los Angeles high school and certificates issued to them from that institution will be accepted in lieu of the usual examination in court.

President to Hear Women on Suffrage.

Washington, Nov. 24.—President Wilson consented to see a delegation of Democratic women who want to urge him to support a constitutional amendment for woman suffrage. He will receive them early in December. The president has told other suffragists that he believes the question is one for the states.

CLAIM DAMAGE WAS DONE

Zeppelin Airship Factory Hurt, Official English Report Says.

London, Nov. 24.—It was announced officially that the British aviators who Saturday afternoon raided Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance, report positively that all the bombs thrown by them reached their objective and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin airship factory.

Details of the aeroplane raid were given in the house of commons by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who said:

"Commander Briggs is reported to have been shot down, and to have been taken, wounded, to a hospital as a prisoner. The other officers returned safely to French territory, although their machines were damaged by the fire of the enemy. They report positively that all of the bombs reached their objective, and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin factory.

"This flight of 250 miles, penetrating 120 miles into Germany across a mountainous country under difficult weather conditions, constitutes, together with the attack, a fine feat of arms."

OBOE GAVE AUSTRIAN AWAY

Soldier Who Escaped From Servian Detention Camp Found on Liner.

New York, Nov. 24.—The story of how an Austrian soldier stowed away on the Italian liner Napoli after escaping from a Servian cholera camp and lived on red wine for seven days only to be discovered when he could no longer refrain from playing weird music on an oboe, was told by officers of the Napoli on her arrival here.

"The first evening out," said the first officer, "we heard queer music coming from the hold, where several hundred casks of wine were stored. The sailors thought the ship was haunted and refused to go near that hold. Finally I went into the hold and found this man packed away between several casks. He was playing on an oboe, the only luggage he had with him."

The man said he was Alexis Berger. He had been a waiter at a Belgrade hotel when the war broke out. He was arrested by Servians and sent to a detention camp where he said he nursed cholera patients.

YANKEES WANT TO FIGHT

100,000 Offer to Enlist In Canada to Battle Against Germans.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 24.—One hundred thousand men in the United States have offered to enlist in Canada for service in Europe, according to Major General Hughes, Canadian minister of militia. He made the statement to the Canadian club in reply to questions regarding the theory that Germans in the United States might attempt to raid across the border.

Mr. Hughes said he favored accepting the men who had offered themselves. Hundreds of Americans, he asserts, are already with the first and second contingents.

Thanksgiving

THANKSGIVING'S here; I want to tell my joy to be alive and well.
Through dangers great this year I went, though not a railroad accident,
Not any war nor pestilence, but many things most took me hence.

I had a big mosquito bite, and on my head a fly did light;
I've read of sickness through a fly—of course I thought I'd have to die!
Some highly colored peas I ate and food with soda benzoate.

I drank unfiltered water, too; perhaps it had big germs all through!
I did not sleep outdoors last May; I did not walk ten miles a day;
I didn't have a diet fad, but here I am, and ain't I glad!

His second proclamation, dated at the city of Philadelphia, Jan. 1, 1795, designated Thursday, Nov. 26, as a day to be observed for a general thanksgiving by the people of the United States.

Thanksgiving Joy

BY OLIVE HARPER

[Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.]

MY cousin Esther was a notable housekeeper and the best cook in Wyoming valley, and she was preparing dinner in a happy frame of mind.

The young folks had all gone to town, to church, and were to return with the guests. Margaret, the artist daughter, had carried a basket to a sick neighbor. So Cousin Esther laid the table while the range was steaming and sizzling with the good things in the oven and on top. There were to be twenty-eight guests at table.

Cousin Esther brought large baskets from the cellar loaded with preserves, jams, jellies and pickles, great red apples, cheese, a cold boiled ham, pink and delicious home raised and cured. And there were big pitchers of milk and thick cream. The ham was put at one end of the table, and the preserves and pickles in pretty glass dishes were set along in double lines. The table was stretched to its capacity and supplemented by two others, with the old Avery silver at the head.

Cousin Esther thought that the best decoration for a table was an abundance of good and substantial food. She provided neither soup nor fish. But Margaret had taken a pumpkin and scooped it out and filled it with late flowers, bordered with richly tinted foliage. The dishes of jellies and the pickles with their dull greens gave color in contrast with the snowy cloth. The cheese was piled in generous cubes, the butter, golden and sweet, in fancy dishes. Piles of slices of bread cut from firm, big white loaves with crisp crusts were put at intervals along the whole length of the table, and six distinct kinds of cake were there, all frosted and uncut.

The dresser held the pies—mince, apple, cranberry, lemon and pumpkin. It looked like a baker's show window, flanked by the big dishes of apples and the milk and cream and the great punch bowl which held the nuts—hickory nuts, walnuts and butternuts.

With quick, short steps Cousin Esther fairly flew between the table, range and "buttery," where all the kitchen work was done save cooking. The kitchen was twenty feet square and paneled and floored with oak, which Margaret had shellacked till it shone. This room was both kitchen and dining room and had southern windows.

By the time the table was set Margaret returned from the sick neighbor's rosy and radiant, bringing the crispness of the mountain air along.

"Yes, mother; they were glad of the things. Anna can sit up. But what a helpless thing a man is! There would have been no Thanksgiving there but for you."

"But for you, you mean. Go and see if the visitors are coming. I hope they won't be late to spoil all my cooking."

"Yes; they are coming up the road. We have just time to dish up." Margaret donned her painter's apron and flew to help.

Cousin Esther let her mash the turnips, squash the potatoes and season the boiled onions. Everything was put on the table except the pies. Then came the crowning glories of the feast, a big chicken pie and a pan of baked beans from one oven and from the other a spareribs and a monstrous turkey brown as a chestnut and emitting appetizing odors.

The meats were set on the top of the range to keep hot, while the immense roast of beef was replaced in the oven, and the gravy was made. The vegetables were dished, set on the racks and tea and coffee made. A plum pudding had been baked in a six quart pan, and this was put in one oven to heat, while a perfect mountain of foamy "hard sauce" was ready on the dresser.

Scarcely was this done when three sleigh loads stopped at the gate, and Cousin Esther stood in the door with Margaret to welcome her guests.

There was much laughing as she hurried them in the removal of their wraps to come to dinner. The table was so crowded with the meats and vegetables that not one inch of cloth showed. Men were requested to carve and serve the different meats nearest them, and everybody helped everybody else. Miles had the turkey to carve, and so he could not see the look of appeal his sister Margaret gave him. Esther had all the children grouped around her place. She did not believe in making them wait, and she kept them so busy eating that they behaved very well at dinner and after they were too full to do more than pick at the nuts.

Everybody ate and laughed and complimented Cousin Esther, and her smiles broadened as she saw the substantial food disappearing.

The guests ate their way through all the meats and vegetables, pickles and cheese and bread until there might have been a famine had it not been for the cakes, pies and pudding. Two of the young girls present volunteered to take away all the dishes and bring the pies and apples and nuts, also the noble pudding that was as rich as Croesus, yet gave no one indigestion. When they had all finished and literally could contain no more the guests went to the parlor, where Kate played on the organ and they all sang hymns. Cousin Esther and Margaret remained to set things to rights, for the young folks wanted to play games in the kitchen later. Miles came in with a letter bearing the Canadian stamp and a crest, showing that it was from the viceroy. Margaret went very white.

"I wanted you to enjoy your dinner and thought this would keep."

"Read it, Margaret," said Cousin Esther, fanning herself violently with a dish towel.

"I can't read it out, mother; I should cry if I tried, but it says that I am to paint all their portraits, beginning with the marquis himself."

"Well, dear," said Cousin Esther, a little shakily, "this is a real Thanksgiving, isn't it, Miles?"

"Yes, mother, and Lucy and I thought, coming up from Anna's—that is, if you are willing to have them here"—

"Go and bring them here," said Cousin Esther, sitting down heavily. "Now, if your poor pa would only get over his rheumatism—well, I am thankful, very thankful."

And a couple of big, bright tears told how very thankful Cousin Esther was.

"LET US GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD."

The ancient Hebrews kept the feast of thanksgiving with great rejoicing and religious ceremony. They called it the "feast of ingathering."

In Leviticus we are told that the Lord spake unto Moses and said:

"Ye shall do no servile work therein, and also on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the Lord, seven days, and ye shall rejoice before the Lord your God seven days."

Again in Exodus is mentioned "the feast of harvest, the first fruits of thy labors, which thou hast sown in the field, and the feast of ingathering, which is the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labors out of the field."

All of these feasts occurred after harvest time, when material blessings were both abundant and obvious and the people not only had the disposition, but the time, to be thankful after the labor of crop gathering was over.

In these thanksgiving proclamations the people were commanded to take holiday, to feast and to rejoice, and all the proclamations since that day down to those annually issued by our governors have not improved upon this.

When You Select Your Turkey.

In selecting your turkey or chicken choose a bird that is heavy in proportion to its size. Avoid those fowls that have a prominent breastbone, and pass over those having coarse skin and rough scales on the legs, for these show old age. Select a bird that has clean, smooth, yellow feet and legs, moist and delicate skin and a plump breast, which, when pressed with the thumb, will be elastic.

GREAT TURKEY REGION.

Thanksgiving Bird Flourishes Better In Southwest Texas Than Elsewhere.

The turkey flourishes in southwest Texas as in no other part of the United States. There is an abundance of natural food upon which the birds thrive wonderfully. There is no lack of wide ranges for their foraging, and the climate is so mild that no shelter is necessary. But turkeys were not raised to any extent in that region until the two cold storage and slaughtering plants were erected at Cuero. Then Cuero became the turkey center of the United States, more dressed turkeys being shipped out of the town than from any other place in the country. From the 1st of November to the last of January the plants are in operation day and night.

The largest turkey drive ever seen in the United States took place into Cuero when 8,000 were herded by a dealer and driven thirteen miles. It took the drovers thirty hours to deliver the turkeys. The birds took a notion to roost in a grove about four miles from town, and nothing would induce them to continue the march to the slaughtering pens.

When the birds are well behaved and meet with no strange obstacles on the road the drovers have no difficulty, but when a turkey drive becomes really frightened a cattle stampede is a tame affair in comparison.

The greatest cause of trouble for the drovers is the turkey's habit of selecting its roosting time without regard to the time of day, particularly if the sky be overcast and the birds are passing through a wooded stretch of road. In cloudy weather the drovers carefully avoid the bottom lands and wooded sections, where the darkness is apt to fool the birds into believing that the sun is sinking.

Detours of miles are sometimes made to avoid such conditions. Once the birds decide to stop for the night or day it is impossible to force them to continue the march. Along the most commonly used roads for the drives there are regular roosting places at convenient intervals, which the drovers always try to reach before dusk.

Hymn of Thanksgiving

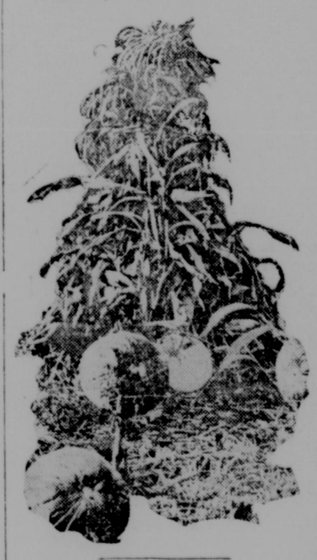
By EUGENE C. DOLSON

[Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.]

FOR guidance through the passing year,
For kindred friends from far and near.
Gathered with us around the board—
For this, today, we thank thee, Lord.

For products of the teeming soil,
Our rich returns for strenuous toil,
A bounteous harvest safely stored,
We meet this day to thank thee, Lord.

For ties of peace throughout the land,
Fraternity of heart and hand,
From shore to shore, in one accord,
All, all unite to thank thee, Lord.



Thanksgiving Table Decoration.

Make a large cornucopia of cardboard or wire and cover this with autumn leaves. Fill with many kinds of fruits and nuts, leaving bunches of grapes, red apples and bright oranges falling out of the mouth of the horn over the tablecloth.

Or scoop out a pumpkin and fill this with all the nuts and fruits in season, putting in a generous measure of purple grapes so that the bunches fall over the edge. If possible arrange runners of scarlet leaves from the blackberry vine from the pumpkin centerpiece to each plate.

If the Thanksgiving dinner is at night or late in the afternoon, when window shades may be pulled down to keep out the white light of day, use candles on the table and cover the shades with gay colored leaves, which, if in yellow and red tones, will give a charming effect.

A teacher's institute is to be held at Gormania November 27.

The Pine Grove church, Swallow Falls, will hold an all day meeting today, a Thanksgiving service.

J. A. Lantz, of Aurora, is visiting his daughters, Mrs. O. C. Wilt and Mrs. Claud Maxwell, at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Frank Frazee, of Selbysport, visited her old home at Zar, W. Va., and was the guest of Ezra Turney and family.

Merchant Smith, of Hoyes, shipped last Friday five live and twenty dressed turkeys to Connellsville, Pa., on a telephone order.

The prospects for good work at the mines at Bayard look blue. The men have only worked three days this month. Several wild turkeys were killed in this vicinity the past week.

Miss Hattie Haas, of Eglon has gone to Marietta, O., where she expects to spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. J. B. McCormick. Mrs. Haas will join her there after a visit with relatives at Aurora.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Miller, daughter, and Miss Cora Miller, of Springs, Pa., motored to Aurora, where they are spending a few days with Mrs. Miller's brother, Jacob Beachy, and other relatives.

Horses and mules valued at $2,499,000 have been shipped from the National stock yards at St. Louis, Mo., to the French and British government since the war began, according to a statement given out.

The farmers all over Garrett county ought to make preparation for a bumper oats crop next spring, also for an increased buckwheat crop. The war in the far east will create a large demand for all kinds of grain and produce.

Silas Beachy, one of Garrett county's most active farmers, shipped a car of cattle east, from Jennings. The cattle got as far as Cumberland, when they were halted by quarantine officers and returned to Jennings, where they were unloaded.

Rev. S. K. Fike and daughter Miss Anna of Cordova, Md., are visiting friends and relatives at Eglon. After a short visit Mr. Fike expects to return home, but Miss Anna will spend the winter with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Fike.

On Nov. 26th, Thanksgiving night, Miss Lucile Hammond, of Keyser, will give a recital at the Mt. Zion church, beginning at 7.30. Tickets are on sale, 15 cents for adults, 10 cents for children. One-half of proceeds will go on pastor's salary. Let everybody attend.

Mrs. David Schoentag of Grantsville, was taken to Cumberland Sunday, in the Stein ambulance to the Allegany Hospital, suffering with typhoid fever. At the hospital last night she was said to be resting as well as could be expected.

The butchering of home grown hogs is now the order and every day one or more families in the town carefully prepare a bountiful supply of pork for the coming year. With plenty of sausage, buckwheat cakes and maple syrup life "Mongst the Hills of Garrett" is decidedly worth while.

Mr. Tommy Tanner of Eglon, gave sport to a number of the men working on his saw mill, accompanied by some of the town people, by buying a bee tree of Mr. Jacob Slaubaugh, about six miles from Eglon, and motored to where it stood and chopped it down, from which they obtained quite a few pounds of honey.

Some of our Garrett county farmers are fixing up their properties for comfort and convenience and others are building new homes. Among the latter is Dick Swauger, of New Germany. Jessie Merril, of Avilton, is putting a cellar under his home and in the future can take better care of his crop of vegetables.

The Garrett county farmers have right on their farms everything needed for the Thanksgiving dinner and plenty of it. Garrett county grown celery; Garrett county cranberries, Garrett county apple butter, Garrett county honey, and in vegetables about everything that is good and eatable. So let our farmers and their families eat, drink and be merry, for theirs is the land.

John T. Davis fifty acre potato "patch" at Harding, harvested about 10,000 bushels of "Murphy's" which was a yield of 200 bushels to the acre and yet some people say that it was not a good year for potatoes. The extract is taken from the Randolph Enterprise. That potate crop was worth something and that kind of farming pays. May scores of Garrett county farmers do as well next fall.

The average production of corn per acre is still under 28 bushels despite the fact that in nearly every locality yields of 100 bushels per acre have been reported. The department will issue a bulletin which will contain 12 lessons. The department thinks "rural school teachers, especially in the great corn-growing states, will find this a valuable aid in the work of stimulating in their charges a healthy interest in sound agriculture."

Mr. Fred Miller, of Accident, spent Saturday in Oakland.

Squire Floyd White of Mt Lake Park, motored to this village Saturday, to bring Miss Eva Welch here. After attending to some business they returned to the Park.

The cold weather is responsible for the slaughter of quite a number of hogs in this vicinity.

Our mail carrier is earning his money these days. The parcel post business to Accident is quite large. Some days large shipments from here, in turkeys, chickens, fruits etc. A good sized turkey is taken to Oakland for 15 cents.

SWANTON.

Mrs. C. W. Burk, who visited her sister, Mrs. Ezra Kight, at Keyser, W. Va., is home again.

Our population was increased by the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rawlings, and a girl to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Rhodes.

During the winter weather of the past week many hogs were killed in this vicinity. The price offered for pork is quite low.

The North Glade box social resulted in a profit of $17 and a very enjoyable evening.

Stephen Rhodes shooting match attracted a few people. Orlie Beckman won two turkeys, consequently was quite elated.

Joseph Beckman and Charles Beckman had corn huskins, which broke the monotony existing in the neighborhood of North Glade.

Prof. W. H. Moon, one of the old school teachers, of this district, went to Oakland Saturday.

John C. Beckman, daughter and son, of near this place, had a call to Oakland Saturday.

Pre-Historic Snake Fossil.

While at work last Saturday afternoon in Mine No. 3 of the George Creek Coal Company, John Eilbeck unearthed a section of a prehistoric snake fossil. It was imbedded in a piece of solid roof slate and came to light when the heavy slab was broken up for handling.

The specimen is almost two feet long and measures two inches in thickness and almost four inches in width. It has the appearance of a monster reptile, and goes to show that some mighty specimens were crawling over this section of the earth during the coal forming age.

J. S. Feyton, of King George county, who had been hunting turkeys one day last week, was in a blind when four tnurkeys came near, and happened to fall in line with the blind. Peyton saw his opportunity, fired and shot each turkey in the head, killing all four.

What Garrett county hunter can beat this record? The old hunters of Sang Run district have made some good shots in their days.

The news of his marriage reached Cincinnati November 9 from Baltimore, where the ceremony had been performed more than a week before. Mr. Procter was married to Mrs. McKay Phillips of Balitmore, who is socially prominent. He is a brother of Colonel William Cooper Procter.

"Safety First"

In purchasing Fire Insurance the first object is to secure protection against loss of your savings of years, represented by your home, store or stock of goods, and you should look into the quality of your protection as carefully as you would the title of your property or the selling power of your stock.

Investigate this quality BEFORE and NOT AFTER your fire.

The Home Insurance Co., New York

offers you the very best protection obtainable, having paid out $150,000,000.00 to satisfied policy-holders, and while the cost to you BEFORE THE FIRE may be a trifle higher than some of the protection offered you by Mutual and so-called Independent Companies in which the cost to you AFTER THE FIRE may be infinitely greater.

The Home's $35,000,000.00 assets makes you safe. We invite intelligent comparison and suggest to you as a business man to secure "Safety irst."

AN OUNCE OF HOME POLICY IS WORTH A TON OF ASHES.

MAIL CHRISTMAS PACKAGES EARLY

Signs in Postoffice Give Timely Suggestions as to Mailing of Christmas Packages.

"Mail Your Christmas Packages Early" is the admonition to the public printed in large letters on cards which are posted in conspicuous places in the Oakland postoffice lobby.

The notices contain timely suggestions as to the mailing of Christmas packages. "Mail early—Wrap securely—Address plainly" are instructions which are emphasized. The public is also advised that packages may be marked "not to be opened until Christmas," or with a similar direction.

Packages weighing 50 pounds may be sent by parcel post a distance not to exceed 150 miles, while 20 pounds may be sent anywhere. Postmaster Peddicord and his assistants will give special attention to prompt service.

High School Notes.

The Ciceronian Literary Society rendered a very interesting program on last Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving. Special emphasis was laid on the time honored custom of observing Thanksgiving. A feature of the program that attracted much attention was a joint debate between Messrs. Robert White and Delbert Davis: The subject was: "Resolved, That the Early Colonists were More Thankful than Present-Day Americans."

The Society also elected the following officers for the coming two months: President, Lulu Friend; Vice President, Playford Naylor; corresponding secretary, Evelyn Helbig; recording secretary, Bess Hendrickson; treasurer, Norine Ault; Editor of the Oakland High School Star, Robert White, chief usher, Robert Porter.

The first regularly scheduled basketball game of the season was played at the Empire Theatre last Saturday night between Kitzmiller and Oakland. Kitzmiller won by the score of 31-8. Both teams played a clean, fast game, and showed themselves to be young men of whom their respective towns may wel be proud.

THE DEATH RECORD

LYDIA HARVEY.

Miss Lydia Harvey, 12 years old, of Blaine, died Nov. 28, at the Allegany Hospital from an abcess of the heart. She was taken to Cumberland Saturday morning and admitted to the hospital for an operation but did not regain sufficient strength. The body was removed to the Wolford morgue, where it was prepared for burial and was sent to Blaine Monday, where the funeral was held Tuesday.

MRS. LIST LEWIS.

Mrs. List Lewis died at her home at her home at Corinth, W. Va., last Friday morning, aged 38 years, 11 months and 2 days. She is survived by her husband and seven children, five brothers and a sister. The funeral services were held in the Corinth M. E. church Sunday. The interment was in White Oak cemetery, near Terra Alta.

Preferred To Stand.

The following will amuse the boys and girls on the Garrett county farms:

Herbert Quick, the author, smiled when the conversation at a smokefeast turned to the unfamilarity of the city people to the ways of the country. He said he was reminded of the experience of Sambo.

Sambo who had lived all his life in a big metropolis, got a job on a farm. Not knowing that the game was new to him Uncle John gave the farm hand a bucket and a three-legged stool and told him to milk the cow. An hour later Sambo returned from the barnyard.

"Look heah, boss," he remarked, with a worried expression. "I guess I will hab to give up de job uh milkin' dat cow."

"What's the matter?" wonderingly asked Uncle Josh, knowing Bossy to be kind and gentle. "She ain't afeered o' you, is she?"

"She ain't afeered, boss," answered Sambo, almost pathetically, "but she won't mind. I tried fo' mos' an hour, but I couldn't make her set down on the little stool."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Dixon & Kelso

A TRIBUTE.

To The Late Charles Elwood Offutt, of Oakland.

It is seldom that our community is called to suffer so great a loss as it has in the death of Mr. C. Elwood Offutt.

A feeling of sadness prevailed throughout the town and beyond it, too, when the news was spread from lip to lip that he had gone.

The general suspension of business during the afternoon of his funeral services betokened the respect in which he was held in the community.

He was recognized as one of our best business men—a leader among them. His genial disposition, the ease with which he met all, his unassuring manners, his hearty, whole souled cordiality and his ability to look always on the bright side of things made him very popular.

The sympathy of all went out to him and his family in his long illness. His hopefulness was manifest unto the end. All that human skill could do, was done for him, but to no avail. Tender interest, hearty sympathy and devotion could not retain him. He heard the call and passed over. Even the heroic act of those who gladly shared their life's blood in the hope of helping him, was of no avail. Yet the intent and purpose of this noble deed was the same as if he had recovered. He will be missed on all hands, but no where as in his own home, where the mother with her three little ones will wait in vain for his coming. Where father, mother and all in his old home will miss his genial presence as he slipped in and out and where his auto horn always notified them of his passing.

Appropriate services conducted by Rev. J. C. Ely, D. D., assisted by Rev. J. M. Davis, a life long and devoted friend of the family, were held on Friday afternoon in the Presbyterian church, of which he was a member. Many could not secure an entrance to the building. From the church, followed by a large concourse of friends and accompanied by a large representation of his lodge, his remains were borne to the cemetery where he reposes in full view of his old home. He rests beneath a covering of choicest flowers, the gifts of those who cherished and loved him.

It is for the living to lay the lesson of this sad providence to heart that they may live in such a way, that they shall be missed when they are gone—remembered by what we have done.

The active pallbearers were Messrs. W. A. Sturgiss, W. O. Davis, Harland L. Jones, John W. Davis, Dr. R. F. Bartlett and Dr. John E. Legge. The obsequies was attended by friends from Parkersburg, Clarksburg, Grafton and other cities in West Virginia and Cumberland was represented by the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Humbird, Mrs. Anna M. Devries, Mr. Carl P. Heintz, Miss Henrietta Seymour, Mr. L. M. Sheppard and Dr. John E. Legge.

"It is not the tear at this moment shed
When the cold turf has just been laid o'er them
That can tell how beloved was the friend that is fled,
Or how deep in our hearts we deplore them.

Tis the tear through many a long day wept,
'Tis life's whole path o'er shaded,
'Tis the one sad memory fondly kept,
When all lighter griefs are faded."

The Maryland Oat Crop for 1914.

The 1914 oat crop of Maryland will amount to approximately 1,161,000 bushels, compared with a total yield of 1,260,000 bushels last year, according to estimates given out by the Crop Reporting Board of the United States Department of Agriculture. The acre yield this year is 27.0 bushels and the product is bringing the farmers around 55 cents per bushel. Last year the average price was 46 cents per bushel.

The oat crop of Continental United States this year is estimated at 1,136,755,000 bushels, or about 15,000,000 bushels more than last season's yield. The average yield per acre in 1914 for the entire nation was 29.6 bushels and 29.9 bushels in 1913.

State Road System to Be Completed Next Year.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Next year we expect to complete the State Road system, consisting of approximately ten hundred and fifty miles, which will connect every county seat in Maryland with the City of Baltimore. The cost of this system has been large, and the maintenance will be more or less expensive. We feel that we are obligated, and that it should be the duty of every citizen in the State to assist us, in enforcing the laws regulating the traffic on State roads, in order to reduce the damage to the minimum.

We have a law, which is being enforced, regulating the speed of automobiles, the weight of automobile trucks, etc., and the load a wagon or automobile truck should carry, which is governed by the width of the tires; also a law stating that no traction engine with cleats on the wheels can be operated on our State roads. We have been unable to enforce this traction engine law, because of the fact that the owners of these machines have made the farmers believe that a traction engine cannot be operated with smooth wheels on State roads.

At a trial several weeks ago, eight or nine traction engine owners testified that it would be impossible to operate a traction engine pulling the ordinary thrashing outfit on our State roads, if it were equipped with smooth bands on the driving wheels. A number of farmers also in favor of the traction engine owners to the effect that they believed that if the owners were compelled to equip their engines with smooth bands, in accordance with the law, they would be unable to have their wheat threshed. We believe that the farmers were sincere in their testimony, but mistaken as to the facts.

We offered at this trial to equip any of the defendants' engines with smooth bands, and make a demonstration, and should it not prove entirely satisfactory, we would withdraw our case, and would not attempt to enforce the law in the future. Not one of the traction engine owners present offered his engine for the demonstration. We have now arranged with a traction engine owner for the rental of an engine and the necessary thrashing machinery, and have equipped the engine with smooth bands. We propose to make a demonstration next week on the road from Cumberland to Frederick, over the Allegany and Blue Ridge Mountains, the most mountainous part of Maryland. The Baltimore daily papers will send representatives, who will report the demonstration.

If we succeed in demonstrating that a traction engine with smooth wheels can pull the usual thrashing outfit, and that the putting on and taking off of these bands consumes only a reasonable length of time, won't you, as a moulder of public opinion, and for the sake of good roads, lay these facts before your readers?

Very respectfully,
O. E. WELLER,
Chairman.

To Help Maryland Hog Raisers.

The modern method of solving agricultural problems by investigating them, not only in the laboratory, but also on the farm in co-operation with the farmer, has given such admirable results that it is to be applied to the anti-hog cholera crusade.

Congress has appropriated a half million dollars to carry on the work and experiments will be made in all parts of the United States. The aim will be not only to exterminate the disease in the test sections, but also to discover the most practical, efficient and economical methods for continuing the work throughout the country.

This investigation will fill a longfelt want in Maryland, as the hog death rate in this State is 78 per 1000 head and hog raisers are losing an average of 26,000 hogs, valued at $265,000 from this disease annually.

UNDER CONTROL.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease Checked at Last in Maryland.

The Maryland State Sanitary Live Stock Board was happy Monday because it was able to announce for the first time for many weeks that the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle had been brought under control.

State Veterinarian Hickman said that with no new outbreaks since last week the indications are that the state and federal inspectors have won their fight. A suspicious herd located near Elkton, in Cecil county, was reported by the State Live Stock Sanitary Board and Dr. Thomas Giltner, a federal attache, was at once hurried there.

The slaughtering of the remaining live cattle in herds attacked by the foot-and-mouth scourge is going on rapidly and by the end of the week all the animals will be buried. Up to this time the slaughtering has included 608 cattle, 88 sheep and 146 hogs. The state pays half the appraised cost of slaughtered stock and the federal government the other half.

Checks Not Taxed.

A prominent local banker said this morning that the idea which seemed to have gained much circulation in this city, that bank checks would be subject to a war tax, and that the war tax stamp would have to be affixed to all checks, was erroneous, and that there would be no tax of any kind on checks. He said, however, that there was a tax imposed upon every note upon which money was borrowed. Thus, it a person were to come into his bank and borrow a sum of money, stamps to the value of two cents would have to be attached to the note for each $100 or fraction thereof called for on the face of the note.

Great Wheat Area.

The greatest wheat area in the world's history will be planted for the 1915 harvest, as a result of the European war, in the opinion of Charles M. Daugherty, statistical expert of the Department of Agriculture. In a report made public Mr. Daugherty says:

"As a result of the war in Europe, a world-wide tendency exists to increase the acreage of wheat. Doubtless the most extensive area in the history of the world will be seeded during the present autumn and coming spring. A prospective heavy demand for this important food grain by the importing countries of western Europe is likely, if sending conditions favor, to give extraordinary stimulus to sowing of both winter and spring varieties in the two exporting countries of North America and to those sowings now being finished under auspicious circumstances in British India."

The Wonder of Wonders.

That wonders never cease is a trite saying, but all the same we do not fail to wander on occasion, even when these wonders tread so closely upon the heels of one another that we would seem to get beyond the point of being taken by surprise. But when so eminent a Democratic authority as Norman E. Mack, who for fourteen years has been a member of the Democratic national committee and for five years its chairman, comes out and calls for another revision of the tariff, upward and not downward, we begin to wonder whether we are standing on our heads, and where we "are at" any how.—Charleston Mail.

We owe it to our friends and we owe it to ourselves to cherish gentle good nature, that has a sympathetic eye, a glowing, bright face and a warm, responsive heart to greet the world with. It is one of the most effective of all means of doing good. Kind words and gentle looks cost nothing and yet they are often more grateful to the poor and oppressed than purses of gold.

We are in the closing month of the year. Soon 1914 will be in the past. The weeks and days before us will be crowded with the holiday thought and anxiety. Be wise and do your shopping at the earliest moment possible. Now you have the choicest goods to select from and a full supply. Later your selections will have to be made from the remnants. Christmas will be here in twenty one days.

PROHIBITION AN ISSUE.

Dr. Hare Starts Campaign For Next Legislature.

Dr. T. M. Hare, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has issued a circular letter announcing that plans are already being made for another effort to secure the passage by the Legislature, for submission to the people, of a State-wide prohibition amendment.

This letter calls attention to the results of the "dry" elections recently held in Charles, Garrett, Carroll and Cecil counties, and asserts that an effort is to be made to secure a Legislature willing to have the State-wide question submitted to the people. This means that prohibition is to be made an issue in the next State campaign:

A Dangerous Decision.

A decision that should be vigorously combated was handed down Sept. 22 by the Frederick (Md.) County Court. Under a law passed by the last Legislature, making it a misdemeanor for traction engines with exposed cleats to use the State highways, the State Roads Commission sought an injunction against infraction by machines in that county. Engine owners objected on the score of added expense and also claimed that it was not possible to operate tractors on steep grades with sheathed cleats. Officials of the State Commission then offered to fit any traction engine with guard blocks and drive it over every State road in the County, drawing a threshing machine. This offer was refused, and the prayer for injunction was dismissed by the court. The astonishing reason given for the decision was that the highways should have been designed to withstand the assaults of the tractors, which were prior users of the roads. A parallel existed, it was said, in the adoption of bituminous treatment because of the demand of automobile traffic.

This false logic appears plausible enough, so that what is at present an unjust decision may become a dangerous precedent. Motor traffic as in Maryland, as in other States, is subject to laws regarding weight and speed and the payment of license fees. These are equitable requirements. What the Frederick Count has done is to set aside a tractor regulation law as logical as those restricting general motor traffic. Bituminous surfaces in Maryland seem to be meeting legitimate strains efficiently. To expect them to carry heavy engines with unprotected wheels in an absurdity which should be evident to every intelligent Marylander. The road commission should appeal from this decision and should be upheld by all interested in the upbuliding of the State's highway system.—Engineering Record.

REPUBLICANS LOOKING AHEAD.

The result of the election in the country at large shows beyond a doubt that the Republican party has "come back," says the Bel Air Times, and while it did not win control of either house of Congress, it did make enormous gains in the House of Representatives and it did win some of the big States so essential to Republican success in 1916. In Maryland the result was most encouraging. Just two years ago the party was torn asunder. In 1913 the first get together movement started anywhere in the country, originated in Maryland. The broken elements united on a broad gauge policy and while the Republicans won only one member of Congress this year, a splendid fight was put up along the line, and Col. Carringten, candidate for United States Senator actually received more votes than were cast for George R. Gaither for Governor before the split of 1912. Of course the great principles of the Republican party formed the basis for the appeal to the country. The evils of tariff tinkering had impressed the nation. Business depression, closed factories, idle workmen, when contrasted with prosperous business under the Republican policy of protection caused the voters to turn again to that party. Republicans may therefore feel optimistic over the future. From the vantage ground of 1914, it should press on until a complete victory is obtained in State and Nation in 1915 and 1916. And when the State election comes next year the splendid management of the State's affairs by the administration of Governor Goldsborough will be a big asset with the solid, substantial voters of the State who rightly value honesty, efficiency and real progressiveism in their public servants. There are many worthy aspirants for that high office, but when the candidate is named and the fight on the general high character of the present Republican administration will be a mighty appeal to the people to continue in control a party that has so faithfully served the highest interests of the commonwealth."

SLAVS DO NOT DISLODGE FOE

Germans Maintain Defense Despite Crushing Attacks

HEAVY FIGHTING IN POLAND

Nowhere Have the Russians Succeeded In Making Breach Through German Lines—Allied Armies In France Are Planning Great Offensive Movement Now That Germans Have Relaxed—Calm Everywhere In West.

London, Dec. 1.—That the Germans are putting up a desperate fight in Poland with considerable success is indicated by the official reports sent out from Poland.

The campaigns in the eastern theater of war, as accurately as can be told, have reached the following stages:

In the region of Lodz, the German army under General Von Mackensen, apparently separated into three parts, is making a desperate defense in lines of trenches that run from Strykow Zgierz and Szadek to Zdunska-Wola.

Russian columns that made breaches in the German lines at Strykow and Zgierz are continuing their attack, but have not succeeded in crushing the defense or in pushing turning movements far enough to the west to cut the communications of Von Mackensen's army, the main line of communications being the railroad to Kaliscz. The most the Russians seem to have accomplished is the capture of German detachments.

Along the left bank of the Vistula, between Plock and Lowiscz, the German army under Marshal von Hindenburg, which escaped serious punishment when the Russians attempted to close a carefully prepared trap, is now attempting an offensive movement designed to rescue Von Mackensen's army and, in conjunction with Von Mackensen, may start another drive toward Warsaw.

A rumor is current in Rome, Paris and Petrograd that the bombardment of Cracow is under way.

Operations at Standstill.

Paris, Dec. 1.—From whatever cause the German effort in the western theater of war has relaxed.

It is officially announced that their forces in Belgium are entirely on the defensive. In France their attacks have been desultory and have lacked power.

There is an impression here that the allies are about to take the offensive in Belgium and northern France and that a great attack by the French and British may be looked for in the event of a great Russian triumph in Poland.

Unofficial reports are that the Germans are preparing for a winter campaign in Belgium and France. Heavy guns, provisions, winter clothing, ammunition and hospital accessories are being poured into the German bases by the trainload.

The official report stated that there was calm everywhere except near Arras.

ITALIAN CHAUFFEUR JAILED

Believed to Know Something About Barnett Baff Assassination.

New York, Dec. 1.—A young Italian chauffeur was taken to the criminal courts building by detectives who have been looking for the driver of the automobile in which the gun men who killed Barnett Baff made their escape from West Washington market last Tuesday night.

Who he is or where they found him was not disclosed, but that Assistant District Attorney Deuel believed he had got hold of a most important witness was indicated by the efforts made to hide his identity or to give any hint as to what the young man told those who questioned him.

Acting District Attorney Delehanty cautioned every attache of the office to say nothing about the Baff case to anyone.

What was done with the chauffeur was also kept secret. No record of his arrest could be obtained.

Another arrest believed to have been made as a result of the efforts to clear up the mystery was that of Harry Cohen who is known as "Kid Griffo," a rather common nickname.

Protective Union Spent Pile.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 1.—Richard Campion, treasurer of the Pennsylvania Protective union, filed at the capitol the statement of the receipts and expenditures of that organization in the campaign just closed, showing that $47,679.95 had been contributed and $47,067.72 expended, leaving a balance of $612.23 on hand.

Men Called Back to Altoona Shops.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 1.—Of the 1,250 men suspended by the Pennsylvania railroad last spring, 200 returned to work in the machine shops this week and 65 in the car shops. This is the first time for any considerable number of men to be called to their old jobs.

ENEMY REPULSED IN WEST

German Report Claims Ground Is Being Gained There.

Berlin (By Wireless), Dec. 1.—It was officially announced that the Germans are repulsing the enemy's attack in the western theater of war are gaining ground and that the battle is gradually nearing final decision.

The situation, in the opinion of military critics, is ripe for the resumption of active operations against the Russians, which temporarily were hindered by the advance of Russian reinforcements in northern Poland.

The German successes, the critics contend, definitely have removed the danger of any invasion of the German provinces.

Farther south the Austrians are cooperating to good effect, and the Austrian advance into Servia affords a reasonable ground for believing that the campaign there soon will be brought to successful conclusion and thus release troops for action elsewhere.

In the western arena the situation is not so clear as it is in the east, but reports continue to show that the enemy's attacks have been repulsed The Germans, it is announced, are gaining ground, and thus gradually nearing a decision.

Commenting on the sinking of the British steamer Malachite off Havre last week by a German submarine, the German press expresses great satisfaction that German submarines are able to operate so far from their base as to render the English channel unsafe.

The following statement was given out at military headquarters:

"There is nothing of note to report from the western theater of war.

"On the East Prussian frontier an attempt by strong Russian forces to make a surprise attack on the German fortifications east of Darkehmen failed with heavy losses to the enemy, from whom we captured a few officers and 600 men.

"South of the Vistula river counter attacks led to satisfactory results. Eighteen cannon and more than 4,500 prisoners fell into our hands.

"Nothing of note has occurred in Southern Poland."

"MORE LIME" IS PLEA

Galicia Is Fighting Cholera, It Is Believed.

Petrograd, Dec. 1.—"Send more lime." This is the request telegraphed daily from the army commanders in Galicia. Sometimes the plea comes thrice in a day; sometimes less, but a day never passes without its being received at least once.

The urgent dispatch means only one thing—cholera. The lime is needed for the destruction of the bodies of those who have died from the scourge and for the annihilation of the filth and dirt from which it has arisen.

FRENCH VIEW OF CAUSE OF WAR

Yellow Book Reviews Events Which Led to Present Conflict

AUSTRIA PRIMARILY TO BLAME

Germany Was Working For War, Book Says, While Other Countries Were Bending Every Energy For Peace—Kaiser Declared War on Russia When Austria Was Ready to Reopen Negotiations For Peace.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The French ministry of foreign affairs made public a yellow book, bearing on the causes of the present war.

The French volume is much more complete than the publications of this nature given out up to the present time by other governments.

The yellow book recites from the standpoint of France the events which led up to the present war and reviews at length the diplomatic exchanges previous to the declaration of war.

In its presentation of the case the French foreign office places the responsibility fully upon Austria and Germany and relates that Great Britain, Russia and France were ready to adopt means of settlement but that the Teuton allies would not consent.

France, according to this yellow book, exhausted every possible avenue of conciliation before she decided to draw the sword to defend her very life.

Germany's ultimatum to Russia is said to have precipitated the rupture.

Commenting on the yellow book the Temps says:

"During the whole of the negotiations during the month of July the German empire is seen to have been solely guided by the preoccupation of assuring its own predominance. The triple entente with Belgium resulting from the close union of these powers barred the route to German ambitions and Germany decided to remove this obstacle. She wished to humiliate Russia and in order to counterbalance the bloc which counterbalanced her power dispassionately decided to resort even to force, if diplomacy failed to obtain the desired result.

"The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria gave he a pretext.

"Germany's resolution was apparent from the opening of the negotiations, the object of which was to avoid a rupture between Vienna and Belgrade She impeded every attempt at an arrangement tried by France, England and Russia, who with untiring patience multiplied their proposals, while Berlin with equal tenacity set herself to make them fail.

"Germany refused to intervene with her ally and instead of giving counsels of moderation encouraged Austria's resistance. She persuaded Austria that Russia would not sustain Servia to the end and that France and England would remain outside the conflict. Finally, when Austrian diplomacy frightened by the danger of a European war, became more conciliatory one sees Germany rushing to the front and declaring war on Russia at the very moment when Austria was ready to accept the proposal to reopen direct negotiations with St. Petersburg which had great chances of ending in a pacific settlement of the trouble."

MINE STORY SKIPPER'S JOKE

Nothing Dangerous to Navigation Seen Outside of New York Harbor.

New York, Dec. 1.—A five-pronged contact mine was supposed to be drifting near Fire Island menacing navigators of coastwise and ocean-crossing steamships.

The maritime exchange shell backs began figuring on the probability of a mine from the European war zone making the trip across the Atlantic and decided that no mine unequipped with a propeller could do the trick against the gulf stream and the prevailing westerly winds.

The result of what the British board of trade might call an "exhaustive examination" convinced the investigators that if there was a mine it might be a gold or a coal mine, inasmuch as the position where it was reported is on the Long Island shore. There have been rumors of gold mines there in past years. Gold mines, it is well known, are harmless except, at times, to folks who are persuaded to buy stock in them.

Finally the five-pronged mine was traced back to a report from quarantine, turned over to the inquisitive quarantine reporters by Captain Davies of the British steamship Etonian, in from London. The skipper hoped apparently to "put one over" on the ship news men, but they got onto his little josh. He admitted later that he had seen no mine.

New York, Dec. 1.—Unable to pay its employees, the United States Metal Products company, of which Albion E. Tecumseh Sherman and Thomas C. Clarke as receivers under joint bonds of $50,000 to conduct the business for ninety days.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1914.

PAY your war tax with a smile and remember we are at peace with the world.

IT is to be remembered that prosperity, like opportunity, comes only where it is welcomed.

CHICAGO claims a population of 2,500,000, of whom 9,620 are Johnsons and 8,526 are Smiths.

THE Democrats of Allegany county spent in the late campaign $2,174,25, and had a balance of $128.41 at the close of election day. The Republicans spent $1,660,000, and had a balance on hand of $635.

THE personal expenses of Hon. David J. Lewis during the late political campaign was $1,924.41 and Senator Zihlman's, $365.02. A considerable difference. The above is actual cash each candidate expended from their personal bank account.

A WAR tax is now imposed upon coffins. With a tax already on income the Democratic party has managed to tax us in life and in death. And lucky, indeed, the man who in trying to scrap together the where-withal to meet the imposts does not imperil his hereafter.

"I AM from Missouri," is no disgrace today, for Missouri is getting way up in the front ranks of a prosperous State. The lastest is, that the highways of the State are being lined with peach and other fruit trees and the legislature will pass laws to protect them.

MEXICO, too, has its starving widows and orphans, and appeals are likely to be made to this country. It seems pretty hard on Uncle Sam that though he is at peace with the world he must dip deep into his storehouses to succor those whom wars not of his making have stricken helpless. Fortunate, too, it is that his heart is as large as his storehouse.

LAST Thursday Ex-president Taft, in speaking on the Monroe doctrine said, The doctrine has not been applied in Mexico because there is nothing in it which requires the United States to to bring about peace in that country.

"Watchful waiting," Mr. Taft said: was the term applied to the United States' status, but he went on "we have neither watched nor waited, but have in fact most hastily intervened and thus find the present anarchy charged as the logical consequence of our policy."

Mr. Taft found much good to say about the Monroe Doctrine and expressed the hope that it might not be abandoned.

"It has made for peace for 90 years," he said. "Why will it not make for peace in the next 100 years?"

THE attendance at the public schools of the county should receive earnest attention. The attendance falls short of what it should be. Boys and girls, who ought to be at school are at home. In Oakland there are boys who refuse to attend school, although required to do so by their parents, who spend their time loafing in the stores and other places. A good public school education is the best gift a parent can give his child. To neglect to send him to school is cruel and an irreparable loss to the boy or girl. The distribution of the State school fund is made according to the number of students attending the school. The greater attendance the greater the sum paid the county. By permitting your children to remain out of school lessons the amount this county receives from the State school fund.

THE Garrett county farmer is becoming a business man, and has the telephone, type writer, rolling top office desk, with pigeon holes and filing cases. You say that man has money, is in a prosperous condition and is making money. Admitted. He was a business farmer. He was prospering. He farmed for profit. He had business methods in his farm work and management. He was enterprising. He had a good home, a cheerful, inviting home, with conveniences for house work. He had good farm buildings for various purposes, a fine orchard, good fences, a fertile farm, well stocked and cared for. Of course he was making money. Deserved to make money, could not help make money. He had an eye to the business of a farmer and a mind to work. Need we add, that he owned an automobile and that he and his family enjoyed frequent rides or rest spells? Well, he did, and yes he was a farmer. Who has a better right to enjoy life than a man of this kind?

THE newspapers of the near by cities are full of Christmas advertisements, and announcements. The local columns contain notices of splendidly displayed show windows, filled with holiday goods. We have been waiting and watching to see the Oakland merchants making a display of their Christmas goods, and for their advertisements of holiday requisites. It is only three weeks until Christmas. Two more issues of this paper to profitably advertise your Christmas offerings in. In our opinion the Oakland Merchants are making a mistake in not liberally advertising for the Christmas trade. The mail order houses are doing it. The Piedmont merchants are doing it. The Cumberland merchants are doing it, and unless the Oakland merchants do so, the trade will go elsewhere. Notice if you please, the number of parcel post packages going from the Oakland post-office every morning, in the conveyances of the rural mail agents.

If you want to reach the homes of Garrett county, if you want an advertising medium that brings results, you will use The Republican. Try an advertirement in this paper and be convinced.

EVERY farmer ought to be interested in keeping the public roads passing his farm in good condition. During the past week we have had occasion to travel over several of the roads in this county and noticed some bad places in the road which could have been repaired in an hour or two. True we have road overseers, but they do not, possibly pass over that piece of road, hence do not see the bad spot. The question in our mind is, could not the farmer living right at that piece of road afford to make the necessary repair for his own advantage? Would not his doing so encourage others to do the same thing in front of their property? There is nothing like a good example. A public spirited man is always popular and of great value to his commnnity. We have in mind a piece of road right in front of a farm house, where a wheel barrow of dirt or shale rock would have filled up a bad hole and ayoided an increasing mud hold. The material was right at hand. Half an hour's work would have made a good road. Some farmers are doing this. We know of one farmer in District No. 8 who expended $50 on the public road over which he traveled to get to the county seat. He was benefitted and so were his neighbors. Mr. Farmer, think this matter over.

THE slogun for Marylanders: "Maryland dry in 1916." Now, that Garrett county has voted liquor out of the county, a new duty falls upon us. This great commonwealth is to be "taken out of the wet and placed in a dry position." On and after May 1, 1915, we will have thirteen dry counties in the State. It is said at the above date that there will be only 800 saloons in the State, outside of Baltimore city and that the number of saloons in that city will be cut down to 1000, making 1800 places where liquors are sold. The work and duty before every patriotic citizen is to see that these 1800 saloons are closed.

The work before us is to elect a temperance legislature next fall. There are 102 members of the House of Delegates and 27 members of the Senate. The Dry counties have 41 members of the House and 14 members of the Senate. This gives the Dry forces one majority in the Senate. To win in the House there would be needed 52 delegates, or eleven more than are credited to the dry counties. There is no doubt but that the friends of State-wide prohibition can elect more than that number. The question is will they do it.

The Temperance people all over the State should get busy. The state should be thoroughly organized at an early date, and an effective campaign should be conducted. Garrett county will be in Annapolis with a solid delegation for State-wide prohibition.

THE magnitude of the war between Germany, Austria and Turkey, and the army of the Allies is beyond human conception. Language cannot describe it, in its horrors, suffering, destruction and loss of life. Sherman's words come nearest in describing it, "war is hell." In Belgium alone, millions of women, children and other noncombatants are now starving for food, clothing and shelter.

An appeal is made to this country to furnish 3000 tons of food stuffs a day for the relief of that suffering country. Because of this unholy war, we in the land of peace, thousands of miles away, are called upon to provide for the needs of the widow and orphans and those made destitute by this war.

The suffering, the misery, the loss of property, the awful loss of life is not confined alone to Belgium. Germany, France, England, Austria, Russia, Servia, Japan, Canada, Australia, Egypt and Turkey are wrapped up in grief from the effect of the past months of bloodshed. Homes are desolate and filled with grief and sorrow.

The effect of the war is world wide. It is appaling. The one thought seems to be, "How many men can we kill? How much devastation and destruction can we cause? How great a loss can we impose upon our enemy?" It appears to be a war of vengeance, of hatred, of extermination.

If such is the beginning of the struggle, what shall the ending be?

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

A case diptheria has made its appearance in the family of Stephen Mattingly. The house has been quarantined.

Thanksgiving day was appropriately observed here. The union services in the Methodist church were interesting and profitable. The weather was delightful; many persons were out riding. The public roads were in splendid condition for automobile driving. It was a charming day. The lives of several turkeys and many chickens were sacrificed for the family dinner. Business was suspended throughout the day and everybody enjoyed a holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Commeford spent Thanksgiving day at Fairmont, W. Va., with relatives.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. McKain went to Newburg, W. Va., and ate their thanksgiving dinner with a former parishoner.

Earl Enlow was taken one day last week to the Allegany hospital, Cumberland and was operated upon for appendicitis.

The Thanksgiving services at this place was in charge of Rev. H. E. Friend. The sermon was preached by Rev. Barnhouse, pastor of the U. B. church. It was very much enjoyed by those in attendance and it is spoken of as a well connected and thoughtful discourse.

J. O. Schooley has purchased the Charles Clark cottage and is putting it in repairs, on completion of which the family will move into the cottage and once more become all year residents of the Park.

Mrs. Mazie Schill went to Salem, W. Va., where her husband, Mr. Lysle Schill, is relief agent, at the B. & O. station, to spend some time.

Brownie White, now at Altoona, Pa., with the Rumford Baking Powder Co., "trade boosters," took a few days off and spent Sunday with his family at Loch Lynn, reaching here Saturday and returning to Altoona Monday evening.

Have you sampled Hayden-hurst candies? Austin Brown & Son, Oakland handle them. They are just the thing for holiday service. Try a box.

Preaching in the Methodist church Sunday 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., by Pastor McKain.

The old inhabitants say "That we are having Indian Summer." Last Thursday, Friday and Saturday were delightful days.

William Edgar has purchased a two horse team and wagon and is ploughing on his farm near Deer Park. He is planning to put in a good crop next spring.

Andrew Shell, is at Altoona, Pa., in the employ of the Rumford Baking Powder Co. advertising department.

Attorney and Mrs. Carl Frame, and son spent Thanksgiving here. They returned to Fairmont Monday, but will return to the Park next week, accompanied by Mrs. Bishop and daughter Catherine. Mrs. Allie Haymond will go to Baltimore.

Charles F. Dawson has been elected superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school of this place.

Miss Rebecca Armstrong, daughter of the late Robert W. Armstrong, of Baltimore, was married Saturday morning to Dr. Hamilton Devine, of Wahpeton, N. D. The wedding took place in First Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Dr. George Clarke Peck, pastor of First Church performed the ceremony. A wedding breakfast followed at the home of Mrs. George F. Ludington, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Devine left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Wahpeton, N. D. Dr. Devine spent the summer in the Park, and Miss Ada as we all called her, has been one of our most welcome summer citizens for years. A host of friends wish the newly-weds a long, happy and prosperous life.

The Moundsville Methodist church is to have chimes in its belfry. They are the gift of Mrs. W. W. Smith. The placing of them is paid for by Mr. J. C. Bardell, one of the Park's summer citizens.

Monday night quite a number of the members of the Methodist congregation of this place met at the parsonage to give the new pastor and his family a friendly welcome to the charge. An address of welcome was made by Rev. Henry Friend, which was an inspiration to the joyfulness of the evening. Pastor McKain responded feelingly. The occasion was a very pleasant one. Refreshments were brought by the parishoners.

Merchant Henry Harvey, of the People's store, was confined to his room part of last week by a severe cold. Saturday he was able to attend to business.

GOSSARD CORSETS

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

December 3rd, 4th and 5th.

At a considerable expense, I have made special arrangements to have Miss Lillian Crawford, special demonstrator for the H. W. GOSSARD CORSET COMPANY, to assist me in a demonstration of Gossard Corsets.

During this demonstration you will not be importuned to buy. All I ask is that you avail yourself of information and siyle news which is at your disposal. A fitting can be arranged by appointment. This should be done, if possible.

Remember—there is only one place in Oakland where you can be correctly fitted to a Gossard—the original and superior front-lacing corset—and that place is this shop.

I shall count it a privilege to serve you during this demonstration. Gossard Corsets at $2.00, $3.50, $5.00, $6.50, $8.50 and up will be shown. Come in and be fitted.

A West Virginia farmer butchered a a hog last week that netted 733 pounds. At 10 cents a pound that hog was worth $73.30. That's some hog. What Garrett county farmer can beat this proposition. The hog measured 25 inches across the back.

The following Garrett county teachers spent Thanksgiving with their parents at or near Midland, Md: Misses Nellie McGowan, teacher of the Steiding school near Deer Park; Elsie Whitefield, of Green Glade school, and Genevieve Sharpe, of Glendale school near Swanton.

According to figures just published in a magazine devoted to the automobile and its many uses, the United States on October 1, automobiles reaching the number of about 1,735,396. This means basing the population of the United States at 100,000,000, that about one family in every 50 own an automobile.

With a big bear from the mountain recesses of West Virginia as a trophy, Will N. Eyler, and his five bear dogs returned to Cumberland from Elkins. A Frederick county farmer boy raised 392 bushels of potatoes from a measured acre of land, as against the average yield of the county of 89 bushels in 1909. The cash profit per acre of the Boys Potato Club was $70.43. The Republican would like to print an item like this about some Garrett county boy. Boys, can't you do as well as the boys of Frederick county. Now is the time to begin to plan for the work.

The past week the associated editor had occasion to travel over several of the public roads of the county. It was a pleasure to find the roads in such excellent condition. Some of the road supervisors had put their portion of the road in good shape for the winter. We noticed that quite a number of farmers were ditching in their fields for drain pipes, while other farmers were laying pipe and covering it. Much plowing was being done. The butchering of hogs was an epidemic. One farmer told us Friday that up to that morning he had helped butcher 18 hogs during the week. A number of farmers had killed from three to five hogs each.

There was noticed many corn cribs well filled with yellow ears of corn. Some farmers were shredding the stalks and housing the blades in the barn. Everybody seemed to be busy getting ready for the winter.

One encouraging sign in the farm life was the many young cattle and sheep grazing in the fields. This speaks well for the future. A number of new, well painted large barns were noticed, an indication of progress and success.

The farmers living in the section of the county we traveled over are to be congratulated on the splendid looking farms, neat, cheerful farmhouses and farm buildings they have developed. Between the mountains are scores of fertile, well managed farms, a thickly settled neighborhood with fine church edifices and inviting school houses.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

The present waste in logging methods is largely an economic problem. Where timber is cheap and transportation charges high, as is generally the case, it does not pay to cut down to such small diameters in the top of the trees or to utilize them as closely as where timber is worth more and the logging costs are less. But the present waste and the destructive methods of cutting cannot be fully justified by this measure of value. Not only is much of the timber left in the tops of the trees usable, but the large amount of debris left on the ground under these wasteful methods greatly increases the fire risk and the damage to the remaining young growth when fires do occur. In cutting the large trees there is generally very little care exercised on the part of the choppers to fell the trees where they will do the least damage to young growth, and to use proper precaution in logging to avoid damage to the young timber. There is, however, at present time quite a change in methods from those that were used years ago, and a growing tendency for closer utilization of the trees. This has been brought about to a great extent by the demand for mine props, pit ties, and other small material. Unfortunately, however, in most cases instead of using the tops and laps of trees more closely for this purpose, the small trees, which in a few years would make valuable timber, are cut into mine props often when they will bring scarcely more than it costs to cut them. This appears to be short-sighted policy, except where the fire risk is so great as to mean almost certain destruction of the young after the large timber is cut.

Garrett is the only county in the State which permits stock to run at large. Therefore, all unfenced land is open range that can be used by anybody without restriction. Consequently, every summer there are thousands of cattle, sheep and hogs running at large through the glades and forests, and no farmer's crop is secure unless he has a very strong fence, that is often difficult to maintain. While cattle and sheep travel through the forest continuously, they graze principally in the glades and do very little injury to the forest growth. The damage from grazing cannot, therefore, be charged directly to the grazing animals, but comes about in an indirect way. Where the forest fires do not occur the young growth of trees quickly takes possession of the ground, and, therefore, a growth of timber and good grazing in the forests is impossible. A great many people who own cattle or sheep and pasture them in the forest own little or no land of their own and must, therefore, depend upon this open range for pasture. There is, therefore, the incentive to burn over the woodlands periodically in order to maintain good grazing. Therefore, it is not strange that incendiary fires should frequently occur under these conditions, and while the open range law is in force the protection of the woodlands from fire will continue to be a difficult problem.

Grazing in itself is, therefore, not inimical to the growth of good forests, but just to the extent that it encourage fires it is detrimental, and since the growth of timber is of so much importance and will add ten times as much to the revenues of the country, it would seem that if these fires cannot be stopped in any other way a change in the stock law becomes imperative.

The forests of the county have been comparatively free from damage by insects. It is true there are localities where at different times insects have made their appearance and have done some local damage, but it has never been extensive, and usually of short duration, so that no special consideration of insect trouble need be given here. About four years ago the foliage of many of the white pine turned a rusty brown in the summer, and it was thought that some serious fungus disease had become prevalent, An examination at the time showed no evidence of either insect or fungus disease, and since the trees all came out again the following year with healthy foliage and had apparently recovered, it is believed that the trouble was due to climatic conditions, following a very cold, dry winter.

The chestnut bark disease, or chestnut blight, as it is generally called, has apparently done no damage in the county as yet. It has been found in Allegany County to the eastward and just across the Pennsylvania line to the north, so that it is quite probable that in a few years the chestnut will suffer severely from this source. This is a fungus disease that works in the inner bark of the tree and, from the point of attack, which may be a branch or the trunk itself, it works horizontally in both directions until it meets on the opposite side, completely girdling the part of the tree that is attacked, and, of course, causing the death beyond that point. If the branches are attacked, it will take two or three years to kill the tree, but where the trunk is attacked the tree is often killed in a single season. This is the most virulent tree disease that has ever appeared in the State, and much time and effort have been spent in trying to work out a remedy. Nothing however, has been found that will control the disease.

Indications of the bark disease are the sudden withering and dying of leaves during the summer so that they turn a whitish color. At the base of the part that is diseased will turn a witish color. At the base of the part that is diseased will usually be found a lesion extending around the branch, and upon the surface of this lesion will be found reddish, yellow postules about the size of pin heads, which are the fruiting bodies of the fungus. The spores liberated from these postules and carried by the wind, birds, animals, etc., will infect other parts of the tree or other trees. Since this disease works only in the bark or possibly the the first one or two rings of the wood, it does not injure the trees for any purpose, and the wood will remain sound as long as a tree that may be killed by any other cause, which is usually about two years. While no method of controlling this disease has been found, it is possible to check its spread to a certain extent by carefully watching its first appearance, cutting the diseased tree immediatly, and destroying the bark. The usual method is to use the tree as far as practicable, first peeling off the bark and then, by burning the bark and branches on the cut stump, the spores both on the tree and those that may be on the bark of the stump will be destroyed. Since the blight has not gotten spread in the county as yet, but is likely to appear, everyone who owns chestnut timber should be on the lookout and act quickly upon the first appearance of the disease. By concentrated action on the part of everyone, it is believed that much can be done to prevent serious damage. In cases where the disease becomes generally distributed through a woodlot the best plan is to cut and utilize as quickly as possible all of the chestnut trees before they become a total loss.

Forest management implies the handling of woodlands according to certain principles related to the laws of tree growth and to the marketing of timber. So far as commercial forests are concerned the object of management in every case is to produce the greatest value of timber upon a given area in the shortest possible time. In the natural forest there is a great amount of waste which can be avoided by careful management. In order to grow more timber upon a given area, we must not only encourage the rapid growing species, but it is necessary to surround them with the conditions conductive to the best growth and form development. Volume growth alone is not always the end in forest management. The quality of product must also be considered, and frequently the returns realized from forestry will in the long run be much greater by encouraging not the trees that grow the fastest but those that will produce the highest value of product. In the virgin forest most of the trees that are now producing the best saw timber required from 150 to 200 years to reach their present size and development. It is manifestly out of the question for us to consider growing timber on such a long rotation. It is possible, however, to accomplish the same results in a much less time by applying the principles of forest management.

The importance of introducing better methods of handling woodlands is apparent when the rate of growth in the natural uncared for forest is compared with that in the planted forest. It has been found that planted white pine under favorable conditions will produce 30,000 feet of lumber per acre in 40 years, whereas under natural conditions of growth in the uncared for forests the yield would not be more than one-half as much in the same time. The large forest area in the county is now producing on an average about 15 cubic feet of merchantable wood per acre per annum. The very low production is due to destructive fires and to the destructive cutting methods that are now practiced, The same area under proper management should produce an annual growth of three times as much in merchantable volume and five times as much in value. The present lack of good forest management in the county, therefore, means a loss in possible revenue of approximately $650,000 annually. Real forest management, however, cannot be successfully introduced until reasonable fire protection is assurred, because there is little inducement to make an investment now for the improvement of the forest when there is more than an even chance that a fire may destroy the improved forest. There is, however, much that can be done by the woodland owner to improve the character of the forest and promote growth conditions at very little expense with a promise of greatly increasing his final returns. The State Forester, Baltimore, Maryland, will upon request examine the woodlands of any land owner in the State, and advise him in their management. This assistance is given free, the only charge being the actual travel expense from the county seat.

The favorable conditions in the county for a good natural growth of timber are so good that it is seldom necessary to plant or in other way to supplement natural reproduction. The main thing is to so guide the development of the young growth that its maturity shall be hastened and the quality of the product improved. There is such a diversity of conditions that it is difficult to state in definite terms any particular methods that can be applied in the different cases. In general, however, there are three kinds of cuttings which need to be applied sooner or later in all of the forests of the county. These may be termed "weedings," improvement cuttings, and liberation cuttings.

Where a stand of timber has been cut almost clean, as is frequently the case where saw timber and mine props are removed, there will immediately spring up a sprout growth consisting of the different species that were found on the ground prior to the cutting. Almost immediately an intense struggle for existence takes place in which a large percentage of the sprouts must inevitably succumb to the crowding out of more vigorous competitors. In a mixed hardwood stand of this kind the species represented will have a different relative value as permanent trees in the final stand. Very often such worthless species as red maple, black gum, fire cherry, etc., which may be regarded as tree weeds will, by their more rapid growth, overtop and kill out the more valuable oaks, chestnuts, pines, etc. Hence, the cutting to be advised in a in a case of this sort is called a weeding, since it removes these weed trees, giving the more valuable species a chance to develop without interference.

Former Senator Brown Writes Concerning the Baltimore Exposition.

Baltimore, Md.
November 24, 1914.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Believing that it will be of interest to the citizens of Garrett county generally (and particularly so to those who helped to swell the number of exhibitors) to know the results obtained from the exhibit of our apples taken down from the collection at our fair, I will give a list of our winnings, and a short description of the arrangement and extent of the exhibition at the Maryland Week Exhibit at the Fifth Regiment Armory, November 17 to 21.

First, our collective exhibit of apples won the certificate of merit that I started in to get. This is the highest award of the State Horticultural Society. A blue ribbon goes with it.

I hope to have this certificate framed in time to hang it in the Court House during the December term of court.

In competing for this award we exhibited seventy six varities of apples on approximately 375 separate plates of five apples each, furnished by sixty-three different growers.

Second, in addition to the large general award some plates of apples were entered in the open plate exhibit and here in the hottest competition we won six first premium and seven second premium ribbons. One can appreciate how close the competition was when I say that Garrett could do no better than red on Northern Spy and on Wolf River; I had expected first on both of these.

At the close of the exhibition our apples were given away. Some went to the School for Blind Children, some to the Home for Aged Men and Women, and others to the Industrial School for Girls. To all of these they will be most welcome.

In other lines I hardly think that Garrett did as well as usual for we allowed Charles county to take the first premium upon oats, weighing less than 37 pounds. We should have beaten this. W. McCulloh Brown won first for the best sheaf of oats, and Mr. T. E. Bishoff and J. A. Shaffer received second and third on oats.

H. Weber & Sons won first for the mountain section of red wheat and came very near winning the purple ribbon for the best red wheat in the show. It was as heavy as that which won, but not quite so uniform in grain.

We won some prizes on corn, and some seconds on potatoes. In the latter exhibit again we hardly did the county credit.

I saw but three county men at the armory; Mr. David H. Ridder, Mr. Frank E. Rathbun and Mr. John T. Mitchell. I regret that there were not at least ten times that number, for the exhibition was most instructive and well worth a visit.

The armory which is the largest unobstructed floor space in the United States, was most attractively decorated. Bunting and flags with the green of smilax, hung from the galleries upon all sides. The central figure was a gigantic vase some 12 feet in height, filled with potted chrysanthemums. Around this a court of some fift feet in radius and filled with all varieties of the most beautiful floral displays. To the right and to the left of the entrance to the Hall (which is on one side of the Armory), were the apple tables. Correspondingly on the opposite side were the vegetables on the left, and the grain exhibits on the right. At either end of the hall were the decorated booths of the farmers' clubs and the granges. These latter adding much to the decorative effect of the exhibition.

Under the galleries and all around the hall were commercial exhibits made by Baltimore and other firms, largely along agricultural lines.

The beekeepers were well represented by exhibits of honey and hives of live bees. The dairymen also took their part.

Those experts who travel from one show to another, said that "this, our last exhibition, was the best that they had seen from Texas on the South, to Boston on the north, and east of the Mississippi river."

PARADISE.

The goose-roast at P. J. Lohr's Thanksgiving was greatly enjoyed by all present. Sons and daughters, their husbands and wives and numerous grandchildren were there. Miss Jessie Dewitt and B. H. Wiley served as substitutes to fill the chairs made vacant by the absence of Miss Walters and Willie Upole—children elect.

Scott Moon is erecting a delling on his farm, which he hopes to enter before Santa calls on him.

Twould be quite an advantage to Solly Kimmel if the officials would improve the road from Deer Park to Hubbard, as the present condition makes it difficult to run three regular trips a week and get home on time unless the flag station at Flanigan's lane should be eliminated.

Will Lohr is annoyed by what seems to be an attack of appendicitis.

Thad Meese and Lawrence Means made a hasty call at Hoves Sunday to recover a watch fob given as guarantee in a turkey trade.

Arthur Harvey visited homefolks near Blaine Sunday.

Earl Friend and Dick Thrasher were in this vicinity last week holding high carnival for wild creatures, which watched from trees and nearby hill. Full dress performance and matinee in the afternoon, preparing to enter as contestants in the shooting match at Deer Park. Mortality was low but many crippled jack-oaks.

G. W. Weitzell and family Sundayed at Meese's.

KID

OVER HALF THE WORLD AT WAR

Belligerents Occupy Thirty Million Square Miles.

With the addition of Turkey and Portugal to the ranks of the belligerents the area of hostilities has been extended to approximately 58 per cent of the land surface of the globe, and about 56 per cent of the total population of the earth must be classed as technically belligerent, says the London Daily Chronicle.

In round numbers, out of a total land surface of 51,500,000 square miles (excluding the uninhabitable regions in the Arctic and Antarctic) 30,000,000 square miles is occupied by the 11 belligerent powers, and about 1,000,000,000 of the 1,800,000,000 human beings on earth are directly involved in the great war.

Apportioning the area and population between the two opposing groups, it will be found that there is a vast preponderance of both on the side of Britain and her allies, which own 27,500,000 square miles and have about 840,000,000 people under their rule, against the 2,000,000 square miles and 160,000,000 people to the credit of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey.

If the effected areas are analyzed by continents it will be found that in Europe 3,049,000 square miles out of a total area of 3,850,000 and 380,000,000 people out of 475,000,000—or nearly 80 per cent in both cases—are at war.

In Asia the belligerent area amounts to 9,300,000 square miles (leaving out of account the interior of Arabia, a political no man's land of about 1,000,000 square miles), the total area of the continent being about 16,500,000 square miles. Hence, over 56 per cent is at war. Of the population of Asia 475,000,000 out of 980,000,000—say, 40½ per cent—must be classed as belligerent.

Africa is proportionately even more affected than Europe. About 10,500,000 square miles out of 11,700,000—nearly 90 per cent—and 125,000,000 of the 137,000,000 inhabitants—over 90 per cent—are at war. The only neutral regions are the Italian and Spanish colonies and the native States of Abyssina and Liberia.

Curiously enough, Australasia and Oceania, although the most remote from the primary zone of hostilities, have the highest percentage of belligerency of any of the continental divisions of the earth—over 95 per cent in population. South America occupies the happiest position of all. Out of an area of over 7,500,000 square miles and a population of about 52,000,000, only 128,500 square miles of territory and 350,000 human beings are subject to any of the combatants. The percentage of area is less than 2 and of population less than 1.

Thus the continent whose very name was formerly regarded as denoting the most favorable soil on earth for the germination of wars has strangely enough, the distinction of being almost entirely at peace, while more than half of the world is at war.

THE IMPORTANCE OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE IN THE SCHOOL.

By Miss Florence Long, Teacher of Domestic Science and Art, Oakland High School.

The following paper was read at the Oakland District Teachers' Institute held on November 21, and is published by request of that body.

The problem of Domestic Science has always been of great value, but only within recent years it has been taken up with our school work. Why? Because people are now beginning to realize its importance to the child and its close relation to the school studies.

Next, what is Domestic Science? Domestic Science is a systematic knowledge of all things relating to the house and the welfare of the household, and not merely the study of cooking, as many believe.

There is perhaps no other training that gives an opportunity for a wider range of knowledge than Domestic Science.

1. In teaching Domestic Science and Domesiic Art control is gained over the body. Pupils soon learn to coordinate the brain and the hands and have them work in perfect harmony. This is accomplished by the careful, accurate measurements which must be made in both cooking and sewing to obtain satisfactory results.

2. Domestic Science teaches accuracy. In measuring one fourth and one half teaspoon of salt or sugar,the pupil must be accurate, in order to have correct results.

3. Personal responsibility is developed. If a girl pours boiling water on yeast, forgets salt and sugar, is lazy in making her muscles work effectively, lets the dough stand a length of time convenient to herself and fails to manage the temperature of the oven, she gets her just dues and gets in return a dark, sour, soggy, illshaped loaf of bread. Any girl worth while is put on her mettle by such an experience. But if she obeys the laws of nature and follows out all the rules and regulations of her yeast mixtures, she will produce a sweet, creamy delicious loaf of bread.

I suppose you are thinking, "Very well, but let the girl cook at home." But I say, the majority of girls will not cook at home. There is a fascination about doing things in a cooking room which is lacking in Mother's kitchen.

4. Domestic Science trains pupils in habits of order and system. As every student is expected to have their desk in perfect order, every sauce pan, spoon, plate and knife must be left in the same place each time. The pupils unconsciously learn to put things back where they found them.

5. Neatness and cleanliness develop in the child. Neat caps for girls to keep back stray locks in cooking, and a clean white apron. Clean hands only can touch food materials and new fabrics, and consequently clean hands and clean clothes are a desired goal. Little habits of neatness and cleanliness which are demanded in the cooking and sewing rooms, as no where else, soon become fixed habits that will follow the children through life.

6. Other grade subjects are closely related to Domestic Science. Cooking and Arithmetic can be so closely connected that the child will delight in working out fractions by using recipes. Cooking is a decided aid in teaching arithmetic as it demands constant use of fractions, numbers, dollars, cents, lbs., ozs., qts., and pts. A pupil quickly sees a need of mathematics in cooking.

7. Cooking makes geography more interesting. To learn where the various articles of food used in cooking come from. Cooking and composition are related. The correct wording of recipes and methods are a most excellent form of composition.

8. Domestic Science develops the power of observation. After studying it a child will notice things in a home, which have been discussed in a schoolroom.

9. It gives the child who has skillful fingers a chance to show what he can do. They may average low in History or Geography but when it comes to cooperate brain and hands they may be a shining light. Every child is not the same and the practical child needs Domestic Science as a means of expression and development.

In the study of Physiology the girl learns about the digestive tract. In Domestic Science she learns what foods are suited to the various needs of the body, which is the most essential thing in cooking. For in order to do good mental work we should have good physical health and we can only obtain this through proper food for the nourishment of the body.

10. It develops the sense of beauty and fitness. A High School girl needs this. She is ready to understand that elaborate household furnishings, extreme fashions of dress and display of food at meal-time are very poor taste. She will soon be converted to a wholesome standard of living that will have its influence upon the house in which she lives.

11. Hygiene is very necessary. The girl can be taught the principles of hygiene and sanitation. She should understand ventilation, heating and lighting in their relation to health and efficiency.

12. The study of accounts is a vital matter. Most women have so little idea of business methods. A course in household accounts trains a girl in the significance of expending money. She learns how to buy material and food to the greatest advantage both to herself and the pocket book.

There is no reason why the rural schools which are or should be eagar to have some work in Domestic Science and yet feel that the expense of equipment is beyond their means, can not accomplish this work. For the Crete System, so called because it first originated in Crete, Nebraska has already been tried out for eight years and proving very successful. The idea is as follows:

Secure the co-operation of ten or twelve capable and suitable women whom you would like to have the pupils learn something from, and into whose homes you would like to have them go for an object lesson in house-keeping.

Suppose there are fifty girls who elect to work and ten women who volunteer to teach them, the girls are then divided into five groups a class visiting each teacher's home once a month and each instructor giving lessons during the year upon two kinds of articles. Mrs. A. for example is to meet her girls immediately after school on the third Wednesday of the month and teach them first how to make muffins and biscuits; or soups with salads as the second article. The girls go to her home directly from school with their note books, and are arranged about a table in her dining room or kitchen while she gives her explanations and demonstrates before them. Then they go to their own homes and practice making the article.

While the pupil is taking notes and getting her lesson she unconsciously receives many lessons about housekeeping in general. She observes the home she enters, the tastefulness of the furniture and draperies, the good manners of the lady of the house, kitchen conveniences, etc. By the time a pupil has finished her course with the ten ladies her ideas of the kind of home she wants for herself have become broadened.

It also raises the dignity of housekeeping in the minds of the girls to find these prominent women of the town or village so interested as to give instructions about these everyday affairs.

I have merely given you the plan of the work without going into details, simply to show how this work can be put into the rural schools.

It is hoped that in a few years every school regardless of size shall take up Domestic Science using a system best suited for its conditions.

CRELLIN.

Frank Butler was on the sick list last week, but is better at this writing.

Quite a number of the Crellin boys attended the dance at Hutton Friday evening.

Mr. Daniel Butler almost captured a fine wild cat Monday morning. With the assistance of Jessie Loviaw they gave the animal a hard fight but finally he escaped to the woods.

HAPPY.

GRANTSVILLE.

The boys of Meadow Mountain and Mt. Nebo have rented the Broadwater hall and begun a series of basket ball games for the winter.

The girls of Grantsville and high school girls have also organized a basket ball team and are practicing with great enthusiasm. A game between the two resulted in a good score in favor of the high school girls the other night. The school girls are Hazel Younkin, Mary Royer, Dorothy Younkin, Evelyn Beachy and Esther Engle. The town girls are Beulah and Ida Engle, Marie Connor, Wilda Getty and Blanch Miller.

Howard Rush, a bright industrious young man employed by Dr. R. C. Bowen, met with a painful accident by slipping on the boardwalk near the house and breaking his arm. The injured limb was set and is doing nicely, but the young man will not be able to do any work for several weeks.

Mr. Thos Wildman, one of the best known citizens of this end of Mineral county, a Civil War Veteran that achieved distinction as one of General McClellan's scouts, during the war, aged 73 years, was captured on Tuesday night Nov. 24th, about 8 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Helmick at Franklin. "Peace hath its victories no less than war" and "uncle Tom" as he is familiary called, submitted most graciously and surrendered most gallantly to the charms of a facinating young lady of 23 years, Miss Ida May Smith of the city of Western port, Md. Rev. Snedegar, of the Bloomington M. E. church, officiated as chaplain for the occasion and was the first party to congratulate the happy couple at the conclusion of the marriage ceremony. The bride and groom are spending their honey moon at the home of Mr. Wildman on his farm at Hampshire Hill, where the groom has resided for many years past. Congratulations and hats off to "Uncle Tom" and his charming bride. May they both live long and prosper.

The Daughters of America, Bloomington Council held an interesting session at the Aaron's Run school house on December 2nd, at which time the members of the council will present a U. S. flag to the public school at that place. The presentation speech was made by one of the lady officers of this patriotic body and we understand, that the Hon. Geo. L. Michaels of Firm Rock, received the same in the name of the school. Appropriate music by trained voices was one feature of the occasion and added interest to the ceremonies.

BITTINGER.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE CRELLIN MILL MONDAY

Edward Chambers, of Baltimore, Died As a Result of Injuries Sustained.

Edward Chambers, aged twenty years, met with a fatal accident at the Crellin lumber mill, a few miles south of Oakland, Monday morning, when he was knocked from the elevated tramway leading from the mill to the yards beyond, by a truck which, on account of the sleet and ice covering the tracks and lumber loaded upon it, slipped its load and running down the tramway struck young Chambers, who fell about fifteen feet to the ground and the truck following fell upon his prostrate body.

His injuries were of such nature that he died a few hours afterwards at the local hospital, where he was removed immediatly following the accident.

An uncle of the deceased, Mr. Harry Chambers, of Fairmont, came to Oakland Monday afternoon and on Tuesday morning accompained the remains to Baltimore where the mother of the unfortunate young man resides.

The sudden and unexpected death of the young man cast a gloom over the town of Crellin, where he was favorably known and held in the highest esteem by his fellow-workers

Hobson Prohibition Resolutions up in The House.

The Hobson resolution for nation-wide prohibition will be considered Saturday by the House rules committee. Indications are that the committee will bring in a special rule to vote on the prohibition issue, which house members dodged last session. Both the drys and wets of the house are now ready for a vote and the leaders have determined to dispose of the question before the Christmas recess.

NO ROOM AT THE INN.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

The streets are crowded in Bethlehem, there is no more room at the inn!
For the people are come for the taxing which tomorrow will begin.
We see two weary travelers who are seeking for shelter and rest;
How anxious and grave the man's face is as he makes his eager request.
His arm is supporting a woman who is shrouded in cloak and hood—
In her pure eyes shine the holy light of expectant motherhood!
Hungry, exhausted and anxious—tired from the turmoil and din —
They are rudely thrust into a stable—no room can be found at the inn!

But look how the stars are appearing! we see one many times more bright
Than the rest stop over the stable, which is bathed in its radient light.
Hushed are the sheep and the cattle, from the others there comes no sound,
In the heart of each beast the knowledge dawns that they stand on holy ground,
And now we hear, borne through the stillness, a mother's low sob of joy,
And in awe we behold where a virgin gives birth to a child, her boy.
In the crowded inn they are sleeping but the silent stars keep guard,
While the sheep and the cattle down in their stalls do homage to the Lord.

To those who are cold and indifferent, and those who are steeped in sin,
This question comes to us each today, will we find any room at the inn?
Have we opened our hearts to the Christ Child or rudely thrust him away?
Does this Christmas-tide mean nothing, or the dawn of a new-born day?
As the wodeerful Star in its glory appears in the Eastern skies,
Do we follow, as did the wise men, to the place where the young child lies?
If we have been cold and indifferent, O let us today begin
The quest for the Child in the manger and make for him room at our inn.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A Letter Highly Complimentary to The Republican.

To the Editor of The Republican.

DEAR SIR:—I want to congratulate you for the position you took in the late campaign for "no saloons" in Garrett county, and for the attitude you have always taken in your journal on the temperance question. I have been a constant reader of The Republican since 1881. Your paper has always stood for clean politics, civic righteousness and purity of life, for the betterment of the human race, and for the elevation and uplift of mankind.

I am proud to know that my native county stands for temperance with such an overwhelming majority, almost unprecedented. Out of nearly 3000 voters only about 500 would register in favor of King Alcohol. Prosperity to the citizens as a whole is sure to be the result of the election.

If California would have had but a half dozen editors who would have had the moral courage, stamina and backbone that you had, and would have given the "state wide prohibition" campaign through their daily journals the support that it ought to have had, we would be in the column of prohibition states today. But the fight is not over in California. Soon another battle will be on and we will win.

We shudder at the great destruction of human life in Europe today, but we forget, sometimes, that King Alcohol is responsible for killing nearly one hundred thousand annually, also responsible, according to noted jurists, for about 75 per cent. of the crimes committed, to say nothing of the terrible sorrow, suffering and disease it places upon humanity.

May you always be successful is the wish of your subscriber. With best wishes and kind regards,

Yours very truly,
A. F. SPEICHER.

SHOULD GROW POTATOES.

Frostburg Fair Facts Show That Garrett County Can Do It.

There was reported at the fair held at Frostburg some facts well worth the deepest study of Garrett county farmers. These facts prove beyond any controversy that there is more money in a few acres of ground well farmed than there is in spreading the work over many acres. One farmer at the fair reported raising 878 bushels of potatoes on two acres of ground; another, 850 bushels. Such farming pays, and pays big.

The farmers of this county should put their ground in the best condition possible for the potato crop, plant two or three acres, give proper attention to the cultivation, and increase the bank account.

What are the Garrett county farmers going to do about raising seed potatoes, and raising large crops of from 300 to 425 bushels to the acre. There is money in this proposition. A crop of 300 bushels to the acre, at 40 cents a bushel represents $120 per acre. Is not that worth working for?

The Republican believes in Garrett county seed potatoes and would like to see the farmers busy in this direction. That is the reason, from time to time we call attention to this subject.

Last Saturday we heard an Oakland merchant ask several farmers, "Have you any potatoes to sell?" The answer in each case was, "No we have no potatoes to spare." Mr. Farmer, think this matter over very carefully.

It is claimed that the eastern shore of Virginia ships each year to the markets 1,500,000 bushels of potatoes, and these potatoes reach the early markets, hence command the highest prices. That potato producing section cannot raise their seed potatoes. They must go to Maine or Michigan for their seed.

Garrett county should supply the seed potatoes for the Eastern shore. There is no reason why we should not do so. The agriculture experts of the State have said that we can do so. That our soil is particularly adapted for raising a prime seed potato, and they recommend, after experimenting on the subject, the Irish Cobbler and the Green Mountain varieties.

Sleet Storm Does Damage.

The sleet storm, which begun in this section on Sunday, assumed such proportions Monday afternoon that telephone and telegraph wires in every part of the county were put out of commission and the service at times was seriously interrupted. The local company was hard hit, while the C. & P. company was unable until yesterday to get any point east and only as far as Terra Alta on the west. This morning a recurrence of the trouble on the lines of the latter company is evidenced by the lack of service.

Twenty years ago last Saturday, says the Cumberland News, James Mahon of Garrett county, killed a fine fat buck at a point of the woods close to Oakland The postmasters of Garrett and Allegany counties received a raise in their salaries, making $1,100 per annum.

OAKLAND'S BIG STORE

Prohibition a Success in West Virginia

Wheeling has never experienced such building operations as since July 1st. The total valuation of buildings under construction at the end of July was about $750,000.00. The former plant of the Reymann Brewing Co. is being converted into a packing house, improvements being made to the extent of $125,000.00. In the packing house there will be employed between 200 and 250 men, while the Brewing Co., employed not more than 75 men. In one block in which there were 14 saloons a shoe dealer's business has increased 35 per cent since July 1st. Panhandlers, who used to buy cast off shoes now buy new shoes. One saloon in this block, about which it was necessary nearly all the time to keep a policeman has been since July 1st an orderly place.

"Prohibition has been helpful to business. Saving accounts from our working population are steadily increasing. There has been a marked decrease in crime."—Mr. John L. Rnhl, of the Clarksburg Trust Company, Clarksburg."

A block in Clarksburg which formerly had eight saloons has now been transformed into one of the most desirable business sections in the city. Instead of the saloons there is now a shoe store, the National Woolen Mills store, two jewelry stores, two or three good restaurants, and a telegraph office. The stores now have attractive show windows instead of screens to bar the public gaze from drinking scenes. Practically every coal company and many other corporations in Clarksburg have given glowing testimony to the benefits of the state-wide dry law.

The following is the condition in Huntington:

The $15,000 per week that went to the support of the saloons in our city now goes to other lines of trade.

Merchants report better collections.

Real estate men report better collections and a demand for better houses.

Banks report an increase in small deposits and all the factories in the city are busy.

Gambling is reported as not profitable any more.

Vice and immorality are on the decrease.

Children are better clothed and better fed.

Taxation on the account of no license has not increased.

Real estate has maintained its usual increase.

In 1913 there were 587 persons arrested in Clarksburg for drunkeness from July 1 to October 31. In 1914 there were arrested during the same period 74 persons for drunkenness, a falling off of 513 in arrests. The total number of arrests from all causes during the same period in 1913 were 1015, in 1914, 223.

Parkersburg would not be a good spot for one to try to prove that prohibition means vacant store buildings. As far as an investigation could ascertain, there is not a single room in the city formerly occupied by a saloon which is not now given over to a legitimate business. Many of these rooms have been remodeled and hold splendid, "going" business concerns.

That conditions have improved wonderfully in McDowell county under the operation of the Yost law is shown graphically by a statement made by F. C. Cook, prosecuting attorney, comparing the last term of criminal court with previous terms. "At this term of the court," he says, "there were only eight convicts sent to the penitentiary, while heretofore the average has been above twenty. This is the smallest number we have had in years. I have never known it to fall below sixteen until last July when we had fourteen. We did not try a single murder case at this term.

Public School Notes.

Under an act of the recent legislature Dr. J, D. Darby has been appointed Medical Inspector for the High School and Drs. Hinebaugh, McComas and Broadwater for the Grammar school. These gentleman made an inspection of the schools last Monday, owing to the prevalence of contagious diseases in Oakland.

The citizens in the neighborhood of the Lake Ford school house, having entered a protest against the sale of that building, the school commissioners withdrew the property from sale.

After the holidays the sewing branch of the department of domestic science will be extended to the grammar school.

The public schools will close on the 18th instant and open on January 4th, 1915, giving the scholars a long vacation.

Two Knocks Instead of One.

The citizen who says he never knocks his town and then buys his goods elsewhere is giving his town two knocks at one time. The money paid to a home dealer helps him to pay his taxes and buy his stock up-to-date.

The money you sent away for goods you can buy at home helps the other merchants pay his taxes—not in your town, but in his—consequently it not only deprives the local merchant of that business, but deprives your town of that support.—Elkins Inter-Mountain.

Maryland Agricultural College.

State Treasurer Murray Vandiver and other directors of the Maryland Agricultural College met Tuesday at Baltimore and completed arrangements for paying over the $19,000 necessary to give the college a clear title to the property upon which it is located.

Of this amount $15,000 will be paid by the State as the sum represented by the mortgage it held upon the property and which for the purpose of perfecting title thereto was foreclosed a short while ago. The remaining $4,000 represents the expenses connected with the foreclosure proceedings.

Several times in the past Legislatures have objected to appropriating money to the college on the ground that it did not have a clear title to the property. As a means of acquiring such clear title as was considered advisable it was suggested that the State foreclose its mortgage on the property and that the college buy it in at the foreclosure sale.

This having been done and the affairs of the college having in other ways been straightened out, it is now believed that the next Legislature will be inclined to grant the college the money it has been asking to put it on a modern basis.

The Order of Owls.

Last Saturday night the Order of Owls, of this city, elected the following officers: P. P., S. B. Aronhalt; P. H., E. Miller; V. P., J. H. Painter; I., O. S. Lewis; W., Elwood Cooper; S., Chas. Difenbaugh; T., W. H. Johnson; Trustee, O. S. Lewis. Lauer's bakery furnished the refreshments. The installation of officers will take place the first meeting in January, 1915.

Which? An Oak or a Squash.

When James A. Garfield was president of Oberlin College a man brought for entrance as a student his son, for whom he wished a shorter course than the regular one.

"The boy can never take all that in," said the father. "He wants to get through quicker. Can you arrange it for him?"

"Oh, yes" said Garfield. "He can take a short course: it all depends on what you want to make of him. When GOD wants to make an oak, He takes a hundred years, but He only takes two months to make a squash.

Gasoline has a Rival.

A substitute for gasoline that can be manufactured for 1½ cents a gallon, and that will run a motor car faster than gasoline, is being made in Indianaplis. Some of the biggest men in the motor car business are interested and predict that the new fuel will revolutionize not only the motor car business, but many other manufacturing industries.

Be Sure You Get These Two Points:

¶ FIRST.—A building must have 253 12-foot stories to secure enough weight to cause these brick to crush under their own weight.

¶ SECOND.—This is the practical way in which any competent architect would figure the load these brick will carry. He would allow a factor of safety of four; consequently he would specify these brick for a building SIXTY-THREE (63) Stories high. Do they build that high in your locality?

IT may be patriotic to pay a war tax, but most of us would rather salute the flag.

DON'T skip the advertisements in this paper. It will pay you to read them all.

THERE are 7,515 National Banks in the United States. Five of these are in Garrett county.

OHIO at the recent election went wet, very wet. Last Monday, the first election under the home rule of a city of any zize was held at Findlay and the city went dry by 370 majority.

Now the farmer has begun to sell, and from the four corners of the world men have come with loose strings on heavy purses to buy from him those precious essentials that come from the soil.

SECRETARY BRYAN says no submarines are being built in this country for any of the belligerents. And he might have added, for our own country either.

THE Baltimore Sun says: "Ye who have tears to shed prepare to shed them now—Congress is preparing to reconvene."

IF every man, woman and child were to chip in $10.59 apiece, the United States wouldn't owe a cent. While this is a poor time to talk about such a liquidation, there is no harm in a plain statement of a fact.

OF course prohibition bankrupts every community that tries it, but nevertheless the tax collections for October in Wheeling West Virginia, were $28,109.70 more than the collections for October a year ago.

THE Saturday Evening Post of last week contained over one hundred thousand dollars worth of advertisements. Somebody must believe that advertising pays. This paper has been fortunate in its advertising patronage. There is a reason.

REPRESENTATIVE GARDNER, of Massachusetts, is going to press his investigation of the country's military preparedness, in spite of President Wilson's opposition. This will be a fair test of the powers of the boss of Congress.

REPUBLICANS will be the first to rejoice over the fact that many of the big steel mills are re-opening after long inactivity. The European war and not the Democratic administration however is to blame.—East Liverpool Tribune.

MR. TAFT says he is sitting up in an apple tree watching the course of events. With Mr. Wilson up a lemon tree, the "course of events" is likely to find the country "in the shade of the old apple tree"—since apples are so much more palatable than lemons.

SECRETARY of Agriculture Houston has lifted the quarantine for foot and mouth disease in twelve counties in Maryland, in sixty counties in Ohio, on the Sioux City stock yards and the St. Louis National stock yards, which may now receive shipments from outside quarantine areas.

THE special elections in the 9th New Jersey Congressional District December 1, resulted in the election of R. Wayne Parker, Republican, over Arthur Seymour, Democrat, by a majority of 565, a Democratic loss of another congressman. The election was to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Congressman Walter I. McKoy, Democrat.

EVERY Democratic paper we pick up these days is teeming with the good news that prosperity is coming. Now would't that pinch you? These same papers said before the election that there was no reason for any more prosperity than we already had. They have suddenly changed their map.—Preston County Journal.

IT is all right to send food and raiment to the suffering of the Old World; it is just splendid to have sent a Christmas ship to the land of war and bloodshed. The United States could not do anything else, but, we must not forget the poor and needy in our own land, and the children in our midst, who may not have a Christmas tree.

KANSAS has a telephone for every five homes and a motor car for every seventh home within its borders. It has rural mail service complete for ninety of the 105 counties, so that 94 per cent. of the farmers get their mail at their door each day. The per capita wealth of the State is a little over $1,600. Just keep in your mind that Kansas is a Prohibition state.

WE would like to have every merchant and business man in Garrett county advertise in The Republican. Its circulation is rapidly increasing and all advertisers will be doubly paid for the money spent in this direction. The holidays are now on and the Republican readers are now waiting to see what inducements are offered. Call in and talk it over—it will be to your interest.

ALWAYS associated with our Christmas Day of the past have been the well filled barns and snug contentment of the farmer. To-day there is an added significance of the peaceful calm of his surroundings. His cattle have seldom lowed over more bountiful stacks of fodder. The American barn-yard fowl has never crowed welcome to a morning when his owner held more of the world's foodstuffs, and a Christmas sun has never set on prices that compare with the average of to-day.

"THE proof of the pudding is the eating thereof." The proof of the value of a paper as an advertising medium, is the advertising patronage enjoyed by that paper. The Republican contained last week over 26 columns of advertising matter, and NO quack or patent medicine advertisements or reading notices. What does this prove? Simply this, that the advertising public considers THE REPUBLICAN the best advertising medium in the country.

FEBRUARY 17, 1915, the treaty of Ghent was signed, but the treaty was signed one hundred years ago, Chrlstmas coming. Christmas eve will mark the completion of a century of peace between Great Britian and the United States.

Plans had been made for a general celebration of the event in England, Canada and the United States, but this will be postponed because of the war in Europe.

On Christmas morning an address signed by Hon. Joseph Choate, chairman of the American committee, and by several members of a special committee, will be published. Under the auspices of the Louisana Historical Society the celebration of the battle of New Orleans and the subsequent century of peace will take place in New Orleans on January 8, 9 and 10. The army and navy will participate and the President and his cabinet are expected to be present.

On February 14, the Sunday nearest the one hundredth anniversary date, the churches of the United States and Canada are requested to hold religoius observance and on the afternoon or evening of February 17, addresses will be made in many State capitals. Prizes are to be offered to pupils of the public schools for excellence of essays relating to the century of peace and the unarmed frontier.

LAST week the Oakland Journal published a very interesting article entitled: "Good Old Grantsville." It was a complimentary write-up of that beautiful mountain village. It is just the kind of local news THE REPUBLICAN publishes from week to week. This paper believes in boosting all parts of Garrett county, hence from time to time such articles as "Good Old Grantsville" appears in these columns. We are pleased to see the article in the Journal. It is an evidence that the Journal appreciates a good thing occasionally. The article referred to appeared in THE REPUBLICAN November 19, word for word, except the head line and the last paragraph in the article, which belongs to the Frostburg Spirit.

Several papers appreciated THE REPUBLICAN'S write up, for instance papers in Cumberland, Frostburg and the Journal of Oakland. We are not complaining; no, not at all. It gives Grantsville a place on the map, and that was our intention November 19th. Just help yourselves gentlemen; it is part of our policy to circulate good things, hence we urge our subscribers to loan or give The Republican to their neighbors when they are through reading it. We know the Journal readers appreciated the article, even if it was almost a month old. Moral: Subscribe for the Republican and get the news first hand.

CALL IT ANOTHER NAME.

The special revenue law passed to finance the cost of the Spanish-American War was a real war tax—properly so called. We had a war on our hands, and it was necessary to buy a large fleet of transports and to outfit an extra military force drawn from the state militia reserves. But the special tax law that went into effect recently cannot, with any propriety, be called a war tax. That is a name given to it by its Democratic sponsors in an attempt to conceal its real significance.

It is a deficiency tax—a tax to provide against the shortcomings of the Democratic tariff as a revenue measure. A recent statement issued from the Department of Commerce shows that imports were greater in value by about $68,000,000 for the first ten months of 1914 than for the corresponding months of 1913. The revenue from these imports fell off, not because of the war, but because of the reckless cut of rates introduced in the new tariff.

The irksome nature of this special tax law became apparent on the very first day of its application. It is not only a documentary stamp act, but a special license act and collects a revenue on certain classes of telegraph and telephone messages. The indications are that it will not only produce the deficit revenue but a surplus revenue, and it is likely to be regarded eventually as another demonstration of the crassness of the Democratic financing.

Wreck on 17 Mile Grade.

Twelve cars loaded with coal were derailed near Everett's Tunnel Cut, on the 17-mile grade, along the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at 9 o'clock Saturday night, when a flange on one of the car wheels broke and for more than eighteen hours traffc was tied up and all passenger trains were detoured over the Pittsburgh division by way of Connellsville. Passenger train No. 1, leaving Cumberland at 8.22 o'clock was stopped at Piedmont, returning to Cumberland and going over the Pittsburgh division. The westbound track was cleared at 10:43 o'clock Sunday morning while the eastbound track was cleared of the wreckage at 1:40 in the afternoon. Train No. 12, due at Cumberland from the west at at 10:10 o'clock Saturday night did not arrive until 9 o'clock Sunday morning

Shortly after the wreck the Baltimore and Ohio railroad sent a train to the scene of the disaster and passengers were transferred and taken in to Cumberland.

The coal was strewn for some distance along the track and the cars were badly mashed. No one was injured.

MORE THAN A CHINESE PUZZLE

The Cumberland Times of last Friday says: A criminal case that is very much complicated and in which there seems to have been a robbery committed and a check cashed by the one who, it is alleged, committed the robbery, without forgery, is occupying the attention of the Cumberland police. The check, which it is claimed, was stolen, was endorsed by the three different parties but the man who received the money did not endorse the check.

The check, which was on the Garrett National Bank, of Oakland, bearing No. 3011, was made payable to Cliff Welsh and was signed by Frank O. Glotfelty. Welsh endorsed the check and gave it to D. W. Broadwaters, a farmer, of New Germany, Md., in payment for a debt. Broadwaters did not endorse the check but placed it in his pocket and it was during a visit to Cumberland on November 12 that it is alleged the check was stolen. A negro known as "Red" appeared with the check several days later and attempted to have the check cashed at a local bank. The cashier, not knowing the negro, refused to cash the check until he could be identified. R. E. Snyder returned to the bank with the negro for the purpose of identifying the man and after Snyder had endorsed the check the cashier asked Snyder to have some one identify him and it appears that F. N. Zihlman endorsed the check also and identified Snyder and the money was paid, but to which one of the three remains a mystery that is yet to be solved.

After discovering his loss Mr. Broadwaters, who is in Cumberland, making an effort and assisting the police in running down the person who received the money and robbed him of the check, had payment on the check stopped at Oakland and the check was returned to the Cumberland bank. Mr. Zihlman, who was the last person to endorse the check, was summoned to the bank and was told that the check had been refused at Oakland, where upon he paid the bank the amount of the check. He afterwards received a check from Mr. Glotfelty, of Oakland, for $9.35, which reimbursed Mr. Zihlman for the amount he had paid the bank.

Now the question is who received the check when it was taken from Broadwaters and who received the money at the bank?

The police are making an effort to apprehend the negro known as "Red" and until he is located the matter will remain a mystery indefinitely.

There are some boys in Oakland who are on the road to jail or a heavy fine. Parents make a great mistake in permitting their boys to roam at large after dark. We have heard of several instances where the quiet of the home circle has been broken by the throwing of rock and clubs against the front doors of the houses by mischievous boys. It may seem like fun, but it is a dangerous fun for those engaged in it.

Oranges and grape fruit are beginning to ripen. Last Sunday P. M. we were invited by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bush, from Oakland, Md., for a launch ride on the bay.
